W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of Interior

A NATURAL PROMOTION.

New Deputy Speaker of Commons Has Earned His Position.

Circumstances were such at the opening of the present Parliament that the Speakership of the House could be filled by means of a natural promotion. In the last Parliament an English-Canadian filled the chair in the House, and a French-Canadian in the Senate. "Turn about" is the rule, and this made the way clear for Mr. Marcil, Deputy Speaker in the last House, to go up higher. A deputy then had to be chosen, and the choice fell upon Mr. G. H. McIntyre, of South Perth. He ought to be able to fill the post, for since he came into the House, in 1904, he has shown considerable ability and great diligence. Always present at the sittings he often spoke, and if not exactly a heavyweight he showed an understanding of the subject he discussed and fair facility of expression. He will now have to post himself on the rules of procedure, for in the absence of the Speaker he must preside and as Chairman of the Committee of the Whole he will, during many long sittings, direct the proceedings. Mr. McIntyre is a native of St. Mary's, Ont., where he still resides, carrying on the business of a private banker and exporter of Canadian produce.

Of course the deputy cannot expect to be so grand a man as the Speaker; he cannot expect so spacious or fine apartments, and on the other hand he is not expected to perform the elaborate and expensive social duties that fall to the Speaker's lot. Still the deputy has not been forgotten in the "economy" of the House. He has quarters on the second floor, comparatively small, it is true, but much larger than a private member can afford at a hotel, well appointed and elegantly furnished. There is a neat little kitchen, big enough for preparing the meals of one or two persons, a handsome dining-room, which "between meals," can be used for other purposes, a sleeping-room, and a fine office. A deputy Speaker ought to be able to make himself comfortable there. Mr. Marcil did not lose weight during his occupancy of those cosy apartments, neither did Mr. Bergeron. Mr. McIntyre has none to lose. Perhaps he will grow stout.

BOY STAKED HIS CUSTOMER.

Young Gambler Had Assets to Bet After His Money Was Gone.

Any day on the down-town streets of Toronto, during the oft hours between the sale of the morning papers and the issuing of the afternoon editions, one may see knots of boys, some little more than babes in years, gathered in doorways or lanes. Approach them and you will see that they are newsboys shooting craps for coppers or nickels. They pay little attention to casual passersby, but scatter at sight of a policeman. Some of them are inveterate gamblers, and not only wager their slender capital but also mortgage the future. A business man tells a little story to illustrate this tendency.

He had been in the custom of buying a paper about the same hour every night from a particular boy who always occupied the same corner. One evening he tendered a cent as usual, but the lad made no move to hand over a paper. Instead another boy rushed up and flourished the sporting edition that the customer wanted. The latter, however, waited expectantly for his regular boy and then asked:

"What's the matter? Where's my paper?"

"Well, you see," replied the urchin, shamefacedly, "me and him was shooting craps last night, and I lost all my money, and you was a regular customer, an'—he won you."

Canadian Shipping Disasters.

One hundred and fifty lives have been lost on the North Atlantic within two months (November and December. Four vessels have mysteriously disappeared, carrying 122 men down with them, while four or five minor disasters swell the total to the century and a half mark. With two exceptions, all these disasters happened to vessels on the Canadian, Newfoundland, or St. Pierre coasts, or to vessels bound thither. Four steamers, three schooners, one bark, and one barge contributed to the death-roll. The casualty list is as follows: Fabre liner Neustria, two months overdue from New York to Marseilles, carried 47 men; steamer Stikklestad, seven weeks out from Glasgow to Sydney, carried 30 men; steamer Soo City, believed to have foundered in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, carried 28 men; bark Artere, believed lost on English coast, carried 18 men; barge 101, foundered off Seal Island, N.S., Dec. 18, in gale, carried 7 men; three schooners driven ashore on Newfoundland coast in gale of Dec 1 with loss of 15 men; steamer Irada wrecked on Irish coast and 5 men lost.

Prices In Gowganda.

The prices are somewhat exorbitant but a wary buyer can usually cut them in half.

One pedlar sold a pair of shoes for $5—much worn—and then sat down to fashion some foot wear out of a piece of blanket, for himself.

Blankets worth $2.50 a pair in the c[illegible] sell for $4 and $5. There are [illegible]ular prices, though, for as common increases the cost of articles will be regulated. Wages are $2.50 per day, with board, which costs $2 a day, though in some cases men are getting $2 a day by contract, and on the other hand, stragglers are being taken on at $3 and $4 in order that buildings may be rushed.

The Birthday Child.

I am a birthday child today.
I must be gentle in my play
And true in all I do and say.
The morning sky outside was red
When mother came and told me so.
She sat beside me on the bed,
Kissed me six times and one to grow.
And then she hugged me hard and said,
"My birthday child is good, I know."
I must be good and glad and gay,
I must walk kindly on my way,
For I'm a birthday child today.

BABY BURNED IN FOREST FIRES.

THROUGHOUT Canada the terrible forest fires, which raged last summer, carried great sorrow and suffering. Hundreds of people lost all they possessed, and not a few, still more unfortunate, lost their lives. Scores of people, running for dear life from the all-devouring flames, had their clothes burned, their limbs scorched, and sustained bruises more or less serious from the falling and burning timber. Zam-Buk in hundreds of cases eased the pain of severe burns, cuts, lacerations, &c.

Mrs. E. A. Simmonds, who now resides at 131, Niagara Street, Victoria, B.C., writes as follows:—"I am sending you an unsolicited testimonial, because I want people to know how wonderful a healer of burns is your great salve, Zam-Buk. We were in the great fire which destroyed Fernie on August 1st last year, and were fighting the flames from three o'clock in the afternoon until eleven o'clock at night. When we had to rush from the house, I made up a small parcel of necessities, and included a box of Zam-Buk. I then wrapped my baby up well, and put a cap on. In rushing past the flames, however, the netting caught fire, and I had to tear it off and throw it away. Just as we were nearing safety, a branch from a burning tree fell down upon us. It fell, all blazing and hissing, right across my baby's forehead; and I feared the little thing was killed. I rushed on, however, and we got down to the riverside. We sat on some stones in the middle of the river until four o'clock in the morning. I got out my tin of Zam-Buk and bandaged the baby's forehead, which was very badly burned and cut. The balm soothed the injury, and after a time enabled her to get a little sleep. When daylight came, we were able to walk several miles to Elko, and then on to Cranbrook, where we got food, and I could renew the Zam-Buk dressing on my baby's forehead.

"Not only did the Zam-Buk prove useful for baby, but for myself and several others who had sustained serious burns. It eased pain in a truly wonderful way, and we got more good from it than I would have thought possible. I may say that it has now healed my child's burn and cut completely; and what I am particularly thankful for is that, although the injury was so serious, Zam-Buk has healed it in such a way that no scarring is left. Our own burns are also healed.

"There are not many women who are burned in forest fires, but there are scores who sustain burns in their own houses, and I want all to know how they can get ease and cure for such burns, however serious, by using Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is a painless and certain cure for cuts, burns, bruises sprains, piles, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, scabs, chapped hands, cold-cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bad leg, diseased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse the harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

Zam-Buk

WHAT MOTHERS SAY OF ZAM-BUK.

MRS. B. SWITZER, of Wetaskiwin (Alta.), says:—"Zam-Buk is the handiest balm possible for a woman to have in the house. It cures, in fine form, cuts, bruises, burns, and cold-sores. I have tried it for all these, and in every case it cured rapidly. I always keep it handy, and use it in emergencies. It is such an effective remedy that I would advise all women to keep it in the house."

Hundreds of mothers have expressed similar sentiments. Keep a box of this soothing first-aid in the handiest place. The kettle may boil over or lurch from the stove any moment, and there is daily risk of similar mishaps to men, women, and children alike. "A burnt child dreads the fire"—but if mother has applied Zam-Buk, it loves this pure healing balm ever afterwards.

The great advantages of Zam-Buk are its remarkable purity, and the fact of its being so readily absorbed by the skin. In Zam-Buk there are no rancid animal fats or mineral poisons to clog the pores and irritate a delicate skin. It contains only the pure rich balsams of the most healing plants, and these balsams are so refined that the skin absorbs them at once, and is immediately stimulated into healthy activity. Zam-Buk is the ideal healer for all diseased, irritated, and injured conditions of the skin.

A THREE MONTHS' NIGHT.

A writer in The London Magazine describes a visit he paid last year to the Esquimaux of Baffin's Bay.

The winter "igloos," or snow houses, are much more pretentious erections than the summer "tupeks," or tents of skins, and are made to resist the extreme cold of the Arctic winter, and to serve as a comfortable hibernating place for the months during which the sun never rises above the horizon. The foundation is usually made of stones, upon which cleverly shaped blocks of snow are built up to form a dome-shaped hut. After these have frozen together the interior is lined with skins.

A long tunnel is then constructed to serve as a porch, this being built very low and narrow, necessitating an entrance being made on hands and knees, closing the first skin door before opening the second, so as to admit as little of the icy atmosphere as possible.

Heat is supplied by an "ikomar," or oil stove, made from a kind of soapstone in the shape of an oval saucer. It is filled with seal or walrus oil, never sweet-smelling, and usually very rank.

In this floats the wick, which is made of moss. This stove not only serves for heating, but also for cooking purposes, though I believe the greater part of their food is eaten raw, or, at any rate, not more than warmed through.

I saw one man eat quite four pounds of raw bear-meat, which was frozen as hard as a rock, only waiting for a second for it to half thaw in his capacious mouth.

At the back of the "igloo," at the end remote from the door, is a raised bench covered with skins, which serves as the sleeping chamber. Here the whole family turn in, taking off every vestige of clothing, finding quite sufficient warmth in the thick bear and deer skins which serve as blankets.

GOOD WATCH PUZZLE.

Have some one look at a watch or clock and think of some hour. Then you can show him what hour he thought of without asking him a single question. For instance, supposing he thinks of 10. Then tell him to begin at 7 on the dial and count on from the number he thought of up to 20, going round the dial backward. The hour that the 20 falls on will then be the one he thought of.

To prove this, start with 7 and count backward, counting 7 as 11 (or the next number above the one he thought of), 6 as 12, 5 as 13, and so on, and you will find this the case. Or, supposing the hour he thought of was 1, then, again, he will begin at 7 and count backward to 20, only this time he starts with the 1 in his mind and counts 7 as 2, 6 as 3, 5 as 4, and so on, until the 20 falls on 1. The explanation is that the same formula holds good for any hour he thinks of. He simply starts with that number and counts on up to 20, calling the 7 the next number above the one he thought of. The trick is very puzzling to any one you try it on, as you do not have to look at the watch or ask for any information.

SNOW.

Stealing, stealing so silently,
So soft and silver white,
Like ghosts of the tender-hearted
From the Land of Eternal Light,
Each tiny flake so easily,
As wafted by angels' wings,
Obeying the Law of the Universe,
Fits into the Scheme of Things.

Falling, falling so tenderly,
So strangely serene and content,
A silent-tongued legion from Heaven
Argus-eyed, steadfast, intent
White-robed Heralds of Purity
Out of the Infinite Space,
Symbols of Life's ceaseless changing,
Knowing no creed and no race.

Creeping, creeping so quietly
Over the shivering earth,
Wombing it warmly till springtime
Then dying to give it birth.
The trees stretch eager arms upward,
Arm so rigid and cold,
Beseeching the snow folk to heed them—
Their nakedness warmly enfold.

Marching, marching so solemnly,
So serious, sober-wise,
So tenderly pure and child-like,
Visitors from the skies
Proving Divine Existence,
Making for Strife's surcease,
Silently telling the story
That God is the God of Peace.

—Ivan Leonard Wright.

Solar System on Exhibition.

An exhibit that arouses much curiosity at the American Museum of Natular History, New York, is a model of the solar system, formed of electric light bulbs moving upon almost invisible wires. This exhibit has recently been improved. The sun is now represented by an illuminated globe three inches in diameter. The orbits of Mercury, Venus and the earth and a part of the orbit of Mars are included in the large foyer on the ground floor. Parts of the orbits of Jupiter and Saturn and the remainder of that of Mars stretch across adjoining halls. The planets are moved along their wire orbits from day to day and glimmer like stars in the air.—Youth's Companion.

The Key of the City.

At the finish of the Marathon at the Olympic games in England, when the Italian had fallen and Hayes, the American, had won, several more Americans came in, pretty fresh, then some runners of other nationalities, and finally an Englishman arrived. The Americans were very sore over the treatment they had received; they had heard nothing for days but boasts that an Englishman could win the Marathon, and when the English runner finally did appear way back in the ruck an immense American, leaning far out of his box, bellowed through a megaphone:

A Chance For Inventors.

A kite is wanted which when sent into the air will remain steady and easily controllable, although the wind may be blowing at fifteen or twenty miles an hour, and which will be capable of lifting a man weighing fourteen or fifteen stone. As a matter of fact, Major Dolfus of the French army is offering a prize of £400 for a kite capable of lifting a man sixty feet and remaining with him at that height for an hour.—London Captain.

Was Troubled With Weak Back For Years.

Could Not Perform Household Duties. Doctors Attended Without Avail.

Mrs. Arch. Schnare, Black Point, N.B., writes: "For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure Backache and all forms of Kidney and Bladder Disease.

BOY STAKED HIS CUSTOMER.

Any day on the down-town streets of Toronto, during the oft hours between the sale of the morning papers and the issuing of the afternoon editions, one may see knots of boys, some little more than babes in years, gathered in doorways or lanes. Approach them and you will see that they are newsboys shooting craps for coppers or nickels. They pay little attention to casual passersby, but scatter at sight of a policeman. Some of them are inveterate gamblers, and not only wager their slender capital but also mortgage the future. A business man tells a little story to illustrate this tendency.

He had been in the custom of buying a paper about the same hour every night from a particular boy who always occupied the same corner. One evening he tendered a cent as usual, but the lad made no move to hand over a paper. Instead another boy rushed up and flourished the sporting edition that the customer wanted. The latter, however, waited expectantly for his regular boy and then asked:

"What's the matter? Where's my paper?"

"Well, you see," replied the urchin, shamefacedly, "me and him was shooting craps last night, and I lost all my money, and you was a regular customer, an'—he won you."

Canadian Shipping Disasters.

One hundred and fifty lives have been lost on the North Atlantic within two months (November and December. Four vessels have mysteriously disappeared, carrying 122 men down with them, while four or five minor disasters swell the total to the century and a half mark. With two exceptions, all these disasters happened to vessels on the Canadian, Newfoundland, or St. Pierre coasts, or to vessels bound thither. Four steamers, three schooners, one bark, and one barge contributed to the death-roll. The casualty list is as follows: Fabre liner Neustria, two months overdue from New York to Marseilles, carried 47 men; steamer Stikklestad, seven weeks out from Glasgow to Sydney, carried 30 men; steamer Soo City, believed to have foundered in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, carried 28 men; bark Artere, believed lost on English coast, carried 18 men; barge 101, foundered off Seal Island, N.S., Dec. 18, in gale, carried 7 men; three schooners driven ashore on Newfoundland coast in gale of Dec. 1 with loss of 15 men; steamer Iruda wrecked on Irish coast and 5 men lost.

Prices in Gowganda.

The prices are somewhat exorbitant but a wary buyer can usually cut them in half.

One pedlar sold a pair of shoes for $5—much worn—and then sat down to fashion some foot wear out of a piece of blanket, for himself.

Blankets worth $2.50 a pair in the cities sell for $4 and $5. There are no regular prices, though, for as competition increases the cost of articles will be regulated. Wages are $2.50 per day, with board, which costs $2 a day, though in some cases men are getting $2 a day by contract, and on the other hand, stragglers are being taken on at $3 and $4. In order that buildings may be rushed.

The Birthday Child.

I am a birthday child today.
I must be gentle in my play
And true in all I do and say.
The morning sky outside was red
When mother came and told me so.
She sat beside me on the bed,
Kissed me six times and one to grow.
And then she hugged me hard and said,
"My birthday child is good, I know."
I must be good and glad and gay,
I must walk kindly on my way,
For I'm a birthday child today.

BABY BURNED IN FOREST FIRES.

THROUGHOUT Canada the terrible forest fires, which raged last summer, carried great sorrow and suffering. Hundreds of people lost all they possessed, and not a few, still more unfortunate, lost their lives. Scores of people, running for dear life from the all-devouring flames, had their clothes burned, their limbs scorched, and sustained bruises more or less serious from the falling and burning timber. Zam-Buk in hundreds of cases eased the pain of severe burns, cuts, lacerations, &c.

Mrs. E. A. Simmonds, who now resides at 131, Niagara Street, Victoria, B.C., writes as follows:—"I am sending you an unsolicited testimonial, because I want people to know how wonderful a healer of burns is your great salve, Zam-Buk. We were in the great fire which destroyed Fernie on August 1st last year, and were fighting the flames from three o'clock in the afternoon until eleven o'clock at night. When we had to rush from the house, I made up a small parcel of necessities, and included a box of Zam-Buk. I then wrapped my baby up well, and put a cap on. In rushing past the flames, however, the netting caught fire, and I had to tear it off and throw it away. Just as we were nearing safety, a branch from a burning tree fell down upon us. It fell, all blazing and hissing, right across my baby's forehead; and I feared the little thing was killed. I rushed on, however, and we got down to the riverside. We sat on some stones in the middle of the river until four o'clock in the morning. I got out my tin of Zam-Buk and bandaged the baby's forehead, which was very badly burned and cut. The balm soothed the injury, and after a time enabled her to get a little sleep. When daylight came, we were able to walk several miles to Elko, and then on to Cranbrook, where we got food, and I could renew the Zam-Buk dressing on my baby's forehead.

"Not only did the Zam-Buk prove useful for baby, but for myself and several others who had sustained serious burns. It eased pain in a truly wonderful way, and we got more good from it than I would have thought possible. I may say that it has now healed my child's burn and cut completely; and what I am particularly thankful for is that, although the injury was so serious, Zam-Buk has healed it in such a way that no scarring is left. Our own burns are also healed.

"There are not many women who are burned in forest fires, but there are scores who sustain burns in their own houses, and I want all to know how they can get ease and cure for such burns, however serious, by using Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is a positive and certain cure for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, scabs, chapped hands, cold-cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bad leg, diseased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Zam-Buk

WHAT MOTHERS SAY OF ZAM-BUK.

MRS. B. SWITZER, of Wetaskiwin (Alta.), says:—"Zam-Buk is the handiest balm possible for a woman to have in the house. It cures, in fine form, cuts, bruises, burns, and cold-sores. I have tried it for all these, and in every case it cured rapidly. I always keep it handy, and use it in emergencies. It is such an effective remedy that I would advise all women to keep it in the house."

Hundreds of mothers have expressed similar sentiments. Keep a box of this soothing first-aid in the handiest place. The kettle may boil over or lurch from the stove any moment, and there is daily risk of similar mishaps to men, women, and children alike. "A burnt child dreads the fire"—but if mother has applied Zam-Buk, it loves this pure healing balm ever afterwards.

The great advantages of Zam-Buk are its remarkable purity, and the fact of its being so readily absorbed by the skin. In Zam-Buk there are no rancid animal fats or mineral poisons to clog the pores and irritate a delicate skin. It contains only the pure rich balsams of the most healing plants, and these balsams are so refined that the skin absorbs them at once, and is immediately stimulated into healthy activity. Zam-Buk is the ideal healer for all diseased, irritated, and injured conditions of the skin.

A THREE MONTHS' NIGHT.

A writer in The London Magazine describes a visit he paid last year to the Esquimaux of Baffin's Bay:

The winter "igloos," or snow houses, are much more pretentious erections than the summer "tupeks," or tents of skins, and are made to resist the extreme cold of the Arctic winter, and to serve as a comfortable hibernating place for the months during which the sun never rises above the horizon. The foundation is usually made of stones, upon which cleverly shaped blocks of snow are built up to form a dome-shaped hut. After these have frozen together the interior is lined with skins.

A long tunnel is then constructed to serve as a porch, this being built very low and narrow, necessitating an entrance being made on hands and knees, closing the first skin door before opening the second, so as to admit as little of the icy atmosphere as possible.

Heat is supplied by an "Ikomar," or oil stove, made from a kind of soapstone in the shape of an oval saucer. It is filled with seal or walrus oil, never sweet-smelling, and usually very rank.

In this floats the wick, which is made of moss. This stove not only serves for heating, but also for cooking purposes, though I believe the greater part of their food is eaten raw, or, at any rate, not more than warmed through.

I saw one man eat quite four pounds of raw bear-meat, which was frozen as hard as a rock, only waiting for a second for it to half thaw in his capacious mouth.

At the back of the "igloo," at the end remote from the door, is a raised bench covered with skins, which serves as the sleeping chamber. Here the whole family turn in, taking off every vestige of clothing, finding quite sufficient warmth in the thick bear and deer skins which serve as blankets.

GOOD WATCH PUZZLE.

Have some one look at a watch or clock and think of some hour. Then you can show him what hour he thought of without asking him a single question. For instance, supposing he thinks of 10. Then tell him to begin at 7 on the dial and count on from the number he thought of up to 20, going round the dial backward. The hour that the 20 falls on will then be the one he thought of.

To prove this, start with 7 and count backward, counting 7 as 11 (or the next number above the one he thought of), 6 as 12, 5 as 13, and so on, and you will find this the case. Or, supposing the hour he thought of was 1, then, again, he will begin at 7 and count backward to 20, only this time he starts with the 1 in his mind and counts 7 as 2, 6 as 3, 5 as 4, and so on, until the 20 falls on 1. The explanation is that the same formula holds good for any hour he thinks of. He simply starts with that number and counts on up to 20, calling the 7 the next number above the one he thought of. The trick is very puzzling to any one you try it on, as you do not have to look at the watch or ask for any information.

SNOW.

Stealing, stealing so silently,
So soft and silver white,
Like ghosts of the tender-hearted
From the Land of Eternal Light,
Each tiny flake so easily,
As wafted by angels' wings,
Obeying the Law of the Universe,
Fits into the Scheme of Things.

Falling, falling so tenderly,
So strangely serene and content,
A silent-tongued legion from Heaven
Argus-eyed, steadfast, intent
White-robed Heralds of Purity
Out of the Infinite Space,
Symbols of Life's ceaseless changing,
Knowing no creed and no race.

Creeping, creeping so quietly
Over the shivering earth,
Wombing it warmly till springtime
Then dying to give it birth.
The trees stretch eager arms upward,
Arm so rigid and cold,
Beseeching the snow folk to heed them—
Their nakedness warmly enfold.

Marching, marching so solemnly,
So serious, sober-wise,
So tenderly pure and child-like,
Visitors from the skies
Proving Divine Existence,
Making for Strife's surcease,
Silently telling the story
That God is the God of Peace.

Solar System on Exhibition.

An exhibit that arouses much curiosity at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, is a model of the solar system, formed of electric light bulbs moving upon almost invisible wires. This exhibit has recently been improved. The sun is now represented by an illuminated globe three inches in diameter. The orbits of Mercury, Venus and the earth and a part of the orbit of Mars are included in the large foyer on the ground floor. Parts of the orbits of Jupiter and Saturn and the remainder of that of Mars stretch across adjoining halls. The planets are moved along their wire orbits from day to day and glimmer like stars in the air.—Youth's Companion.

The Key of the City.

At the finish of the Marathon at the Olympic games in England, when the Italian had fallen and Hayes, the American, had won, several more Americans came in, pretty fresh, then some runners of other nationalities, and finally an Englishman arrived. The Americans were very sore over the treatment they had received; they had heard nothing for days but boasts that an Englishman could win the Marathon, and when the English runner finally did appear way back in the ruck an immense American, leaning far out of his box, bellowed through a megaphone:

A Chance For Inventors.

A kite is wanted which when sent into the air will remain steady and easily controllable, although the wind may be blowing at fifteen or twenty miles an hour, and which will be capable of lifting a man weighing fourteen or fifteen stone. As a matter of fact, Major Dolfus of the French army is offering a prize of £400 for a kite capable of lifting a man sixty feet and remaining with him at that height for an hour.—London Captain.

Was Troubled With Weak Back For Years.

Could Not Perform Household Duties. Doctors Attended Without Avail.

Mrs. Arch. Schnare, Black Point, N.B., writes: "For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure Backache and all forms of Kidney and Bladder Disease.

A medicine that strengthens the kidneys so that they are enabled to extract the poisonous uric acid from the blood and prevent the chief cause of Rheumatism.

SIMPLE CLOTH FROCKS for the SPRING SEASON

THIS is quite the most delightful time of the whole year in which to shop, when every store window displays fascinating new gowns and hats of colors which show that the spring is very nearly here once more, and hint also of the balmy days of summer so soon to follow. Even the school girl, immersed as she is in her studies, that her second term, may show better results than the first part of the year—even she cannot resist the promise of springtime and must spend some time in the stores selecting the gowns which the first warm days will call for.

The timeworn habit of setting Easter Sunday as the day for the inauguration of spring, or spring garments, has at last given way before the dictates of common sense, and to-day straw hats and light weight costumes are donned at whatever time in March or early April the weather renders such garments more comfortable, regardless of whether or not Easter time is already past or is not to arrive for some weeks to come. Assuredly old winter gowns which have done good and faithful service for many months are bound to look shabby and unattractive as soon as the spring days of bright sunshine and balmy breezes have appeared, so that the girl who desires to look smartly and appropriately gowned at all times will take care to order her new frocks full early in the season, so that she will be ready and eager for the spring, no matter how early it may make its appearance.

AFTER all, the spring season in this climate is so very short anyway that unless light weight costumes are donned by the middle of March they will be given scarcely any wear at all, so quickly does unpleasantly hot weather follow upon the days of frost and snow.

In so erratic a climate as this, when days of enervating heat are frequently followed in the space of a few hours by freezing temperature, a smart cloth coat and skirt costume must be provided for every separate season. For summer there must be a white suit of serge or homespun, for autumn a dark colored serge or cheviot, for winter a thoroughly interlined heavy serge or broadcloth, and for spring a light weight tweed, serge or cheviot of a light, becoming shade. Later on mohair, nun's veiling or pongee may be worn, but early in the year, to put on as soon as the heavy winter suit is laid aside, a coat and skirt costume in light weight cloth is absolutely essential.

More light colors will be worn this spring than was the case during the winter, but for the school room dark blue seems to be the favorite shade. For afternoons light gray or gray of medium shade relieved by collars and cuffs of white pique or duck on the jacket is decidedly smart. There are also many shades of deep pink and queer Japanese shades of blue which will be much worn this spring by young girls.

EVERY street suit should have its hat to correspond, or at any rate a Tuscan or possibly black hat trimmed in some way to carry out the design of the dress. Yellow and Tuscan straw hats are always useful, since, trimmed with black velvet and wings or with varied colored flowers, they can frequently be made to do service with more than the one costume.

Plaited skirts are quite out, but among the new spring models many skirts show a certain amount of fulness and plaitings let in below the knee. Plain skirts with the high waist line will also be worn throughout the summer, but for a slender, girlish figure the small amount of fulness now allowed is apt to prove the more becoming, and especially is this the case with the skirts of walking length.

All jackets continue long, but for a young girl the coat should not reach below the knee, and may be several inches shorter if the length is unbecoming. Box front, half fitted back, long tight sleeves and perhaps fancy revers and cuffs make up the smart jacket for school wear. For afternoon the more delicate colored coat and skirt may be ornamented with a simple arrangement of braiding or strapping, but as a rule the more severe models are the best, as they are the more appropriate, the light color and the size and trimmings of the hat keeping the costume quite distinct from that intended for general wear.

The white separate waists are still very much alive, most extraordinarily so considering how long they have been popular and how unprecedented their popularity has been. They are certainly not fashionable any longer, however, although too convenient to be put away entirely.

TO look always well dressed in school a girl should have a waist the color of her skirt—in winter, of heavy silk cloth or French flannel; in hot weather of China or habutai silk. White net ruching at the throat and wrists, or white linen or embroidered collar and cuffs, relieve this bodice, which should be made absolutely severe, with long leg-o'-mutton sleeves.

At boarding school a girl requires a dress throughout, in spring as well as in winter, to wear during study hours. This gown must be fashioned with utmost simplicity, and be made so as to fasten quickly and easily in case an extra five minutes' nap after the rising bell makes any time for prinking out of the question. Instead of the separate collar and cuffs this dress may be finished with a transparent collar and tiny yoke of net, the color of the gown itself. The lightest weight serge procurable, cashmere, Henrietta cloth or a fairly heavy tussore cloth are good for this style of dress. At present a long, rough cloth ulster, which every girl in boarding school possesses, can be worn over this gown for out of doors, but later on no extra wrap will be required.

Belts are rapidly returning to the normal waist line, many of the newest French models showing the soft ribbon girdles about the waist and at the place where the waist ought to be. Empire lines have not yet disappeared, however, although in the short dresses a high belt is never placed exaggeratedly high up on the bodice. With a severely plain skirt a ribbon belt, tied a little to one side in the back, and falling down to within eight or ten inches of the hem, gives a pretty finish to the dress.

IN all wash shirt waists, and in a great majority of the dresses made up in thin materials, the sleeves, instead of being tight from shoulder seam to wristband, have a slight fulness at the top, graduated down to just below the elbow, so that there is not the same strain on the texture as in the long, tight-fitting sleeves.

In cashmere and Henrietta cloth there are extremely pretty striped and figured designs to be had in the new spring colorings, and these materials are excellent weight for school dresses for this time of year.

Rice Packages for Weddings

AS everyone knows, rice plays an important part at wedding festivities, and the smart thing now is to do small portions of it up in fascinating little packages that are cleverly contrived to suggest bride roses. This is achieved by using squares of the most delicate crinkly paper of pure white, into which a handful of rice is put and securely tied with white ribbon, finished lavishly with innumerable loops. The four points of the square which flare out above the tied circle of ribbon are delicately pinched and shaped to look like the petals of a rose.

When dozens of these are prepared and piled up on a silver tray, on which they are passed to the guests, they make a most lovely effect. They are not given out, of course, until just before the bride's departure, and on her appearance she is not to be pelted with them, confetti fashion, for they are too large for that, so the rice is removed by cracking the side of the crinkly paper.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"IF you will only comb your hair more deliberately I will cheerfully delay breakfast," said the April Grandmother, as she watched her youngest descendant performing her morning toilet. "Better a cold chop than the haunting fear of ultimately having to introduce a bald headed débutante to society. Tearing out long strands of hair is not the proper way to battle with tangles. The better method is to lift each lock separately and gently work a course toothed comb through it. If this treatment is patiently continued you will find it easy to run your fingers through the entire mass from scalp to tips without dislodging a single hair from its roots.

"Of course this will take considerable time, because your hair, like that of most young girls, is exceedingly thick, but it will not long remain luxuriant if you persist in violently brushing it with a stiff, coarse bristled brush—a toilet implement, by the way, which is most unsanitary unless regularly cleansed with a mixture of soap and ammonia in boiling water.

"It is well to bear in mind that a brush is not for the scalp but for the hair, which will become dry, strong and glossy if gently brushed once or twice a day. Clipping the ends of the hair every fortnight will also strengthen it, but will interfere with its growth.

"Heavy hairpins are injurious to the hair, as they not only drag at its roots but heat the scalp. In arranging the coiffure it is far better to employ a number of pins that are small and light than a half dozen that are large and weighty.

"The hair should not be arranged in the same manner for many successive weeks or remain confined for an entire day. Several times between morning and evening it should be thoroughly ventilated by removing all of the pins, shaking out the individual locks and running the fingers through them.

"Sometimes the hair of a quite young girl will show indications of fading, usually due to a lack of blood circulation in the scalp. A good way to keep the scalp healthy is to massage it every night with witch hazel, applied with the finger tips and rubbed briskly until the hair is perfectly dry. This will induce circulation, cleanse the scalp and, in addition to making the hair grow long and thick, will keep it fluffy.

"Washing the hair with soda will make it stand out prettily, but it will quickly cause the roots to decay and will bleach the locks to a certain extent—and bleached hair invariably lends the countenance an unnatural appearance and sometimes makes it look mature.

"Girls of delicate constitution are apt to have exceedingly thin hair, which should be fed and strengthened with some tonic known to be absolutely reliable. Whether the hair is heavy or thin, its line should be kept intact, as bare spots about the temples and behind the ears detract immeasurably from the youthfulness and attractiveness of a woman's face.

"The head should be regularly but not too frequently shampooed with castile soap and water, but fine, dry hair should be less frequently washed than that which is oily and coarse. Any preparation containing alcohol or acid should be avoided, as they not only tend to dry and split the hairs, but make them turn gray—unless they fall out. When for one reason or another it is inconvenient to have the hair regularly shampooed the scalp may be cleansed with corn meal, which is readily shaken out.

"A handful of lavender flower mixed with a little powdered orris root and the corn meal shampoo will perfume the hair delicately and will be infinitely better for the health of the hair than the practice of sleeping with the locks wound about a sachet roll or covered with a scented cap."

Novelties for the Tea Table

A GIRL who has her own tea table can make it much more attractive by often having little novelties. All girls like to try something new, and the new things become by and by regular favorites. One of these novelties is to put about half a spoonful of orange marmalade in a cup of tea. It gives a delicious flavor and is a change from the usual slice of lemon.

Many persons have served marmalade sandwiches with tea, but it is newer to use the marmalade in the tea and some other kind of sandwiches. Those made with a nut paste would be good, or paté de foie gras. Swedish wafers buttered and heated would also be delicious.

Some girls do not care for tea and are very fond of chocolate, so it is a good plan to serve chocolate, too, for one's friends. It can either be done by having the chocolate sent up from the kitchen all made or by using an instantaneous chocolate for unexpected company. The latter is made by pouring boiling water over it just like tea, except that it must be stirred until dissolved.

And with the chocolate another novelty can be used. A marshmallow dropped into hot chocolate gives an unusual and unique flavor which is much enjoyed by many persons. A very charming addition to a girl's tea table would be two little glass jars which she could keep supplied with the marshmallows and marmalade.

Attractive Toilet Table Sets

FANCY linens showing delicately colored patterns upon white are made up into attractive looking as well as practical dressing table sets, comprising a square or oblong cover and two or more doilies. They are mounted over sateen of a shade matching the tracings on the linen and finished with a feather stitched hem or with a washable ribbon border. Sheer white lawn sets have wide borders headed with hemstitching or with narrow insertions of Valenciennes or muslin embroidery, while those of allover muslin embroidery have frill trimmed edges of Valenciennes or Chiny. An exceedingly dainty effect is gained by placing strips of embroidery and lace entre-deux and finishing the edges with double frills of sheer muslin edged with lace.

Dotted and figured Swiss is made up with ruffle frilled edges of the same material finished with a rolled hem, with narrow lace or with baby ribbon. Some of them are bordered with a wide hem headed with ribbon run beading. All of these very thin dressing table sets are given additional body and character by the use of colored linings of heavy lawn.

Butcher's linen sets sometimes have scalloped edges and their owner's monogram in the centre or in one corner with white or colored embroidery silk. Or they have solid embroidery centres and scalloped edges in plain buttonhole.

Newest of all in the realm of dressing table sets are those of exceedingly coarse net appliqued with cretonne sprays and veiled with fine net, through which the colors of the flowers show distinctly.

Printed foulards and fancy silks of light tints and in floral effects make exceedingly pretty dressing table sets, and as they are not launderable they may have borders of wide satin ribbon, plain or embroidered, or a frilling of fine lace. Frequently a set of small doilies in silk and lace are used in connection with a very long bureau towel of hand embroidered linen, bearing a large initial on one end.

Craze for New Muff Purse

THERE is quite a craze among girls for the muff purse, which is one of the season's caprices. This novelty is a dainty little leather affair fastened onto a strap of similar leather which is long enough to go around the neck and through the muff. Attached in this way to the strap the purse can be tucked in the muff with a delightful sense of security, and, relieved of the necessity of holding it, the hands are left most agreeably free.

Practical and Useful Hints.

TREES of satin and ribbon are among the novelties of the winter, and any girl with clever fingers can make them. "Treeing" one's shoes and boots to keep them in shape is an English custom which all well groomed women and girls have adopted. The usual tree is of wood, and one should have as many trees as boots or shoes so that every pair may be treed immediately it leaves the feet of the wearer. There are smaller and lighter trees which have hitherto done service for slippers, but now they give way to the dainty satin substitute.

These satin affairs are composed of a firm pad shaped to fit the toe of the slipper, and at the end of the pad is sewed a long ribbon covered whalebone an inch wide, which arches up in a curve from where it starts to where it sticks down inside the heel at the other end of the slipper. Stuff the pad for the toe with cotton wadding, making it very firm, and before you sew in the whalebone cover it with shirred ribbon wider than the bone, so that there will be a pretty finish at each edge. At the centre of the bone, which should be longer than the slipper in order to stand up perkily about three inches from the middle of the sole, tie a full knot of narrow ribbon to enhance the decorative effect.

THERE are "wrinkles" in regard to almost everything pertaining to feminine matters, and the "latest" is always of interest to the up to date girl. In the matter of leashes, now, there is a new departure, and the girl who takes her dog out on one of these leather straps must hold it in just a certain way or she will not be doing the correct thing. The "wrinkle" is to carry the leash, one end of which is attached to the dog, in your right hand, clasping it precisely in the middle of the strap and letting the upper half dangle. The arm must swing in such a fashion that the dog is kept "to heel," as our English cousins say, and this is done by keeping the arm at a firm angle close to the body.

THE latest wrinkles in parasols are charming affairs covered with raffia woven into a stunning texture after a fashion known only to the West Indians, the material somewhat resembling the Japanese grass cloth. Raffia is the fibrous strands in which it is used in this country for Indian basket weaving and sewing is taken from the inner part of the huge palm leaves of the tropics and is wonderfully strong and enduring in quality as well as most attractive when worked up, either in its natural shade or converted into lovely colors by means of vegetable dyes.

The parasols are of the natural color, which will smartly harmonize with linen gowns. They are deeply fringed in a way that is a triumph of skilful hand work, for the fringe is not a separate matter sewed on, but is formed from the strands of the texture cut long to be used for a finish when the weaving part is done. The fringe is intricately and artistically knotted, and the raffia split very fine to make it beautifully full and fluffy.

THERE is a prejudice these days against drinking out of glasses used promiscuously, and so the fashion has started of carrying about one's own little drinking glass. Travellers have long done this, but it is only just now that they have come into use about town. The smart thing is to keep one in your shopping bag and to transfer it on matinee days to your theatre bag, so that when you are consumed with thirst you have only to take it out and get it filled to drink freely without fear of contamination. Fascinating little cups come for this purpose either in glass, with pretty leather cases, or in silver, of the telescope variety, which shut up and slip into a simple small case or an elaborate one, the choice being a matter of how much the purchaser wishes to spend.

IF you wish to delight the heart of a newly engaged girl and insure her the best of luck send your congratulatory flowers to her in a white heather loving cup. These cups are Scotch, where on the moors the lovely heather grows, and every Scotch lassie knows well the old tradition that a bit of heather is sure to bring her luck.

The foundation of this interesting cup is of birch bark, quite hidden by delicate festoons of the feathery heather, also closely entwined about the large handle projecting on one side in graceful lines. An inner receptacle of metal holds water for flowers, which, to most artistically set off the cup, should be pink roses or carnations, as that color is so lovely in combination with the gray tinge of the heather.

The lucky possessor of one of these lucky cups can convert it at any time into a loving cup by using a glass receptacle inside, instead of the metal one, and as the heather, which has been dried to use in this form, will keep forever the girl can bring it out on all sorts of festive occasions and, using it for a drinking cup, share its potent charm with her friends.

GIRLS who wish to dance gracefully should wear the new stockings which have the separate opening for the big toe. This invention gives the pedal extremities a freedom and elasticity unattainable with the binding propensities of the ordinary stocking and makes all the difference in the world in the poise of the foot, in the comfort of the wearer and in her grace of motion, because it enables her to properly bring into play important muscles which when the toes are too closely confined became numb from disuse.

THE BUDGET IS BEING DISCUSSED

Col. Matheson Delivers Address on Ontario Accounts.

CLARKE ACTS AS CRITIC

Member For West Northumberland Says Provincial Treasurer Claims Credit For Too Many Things—Transferred Items From Current to Capital Accounts—Addition to Legislative Buildings.

Toronto, March 5.—Hon. Col. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, presented the budget yesterday afternoon. The financial statement showed that the estimated revenue for the past year has been exceeded in almost every item, while the expenditures have been kept well within the appropriations and the amount of cash on hand to-day is largely in excess of the amount four years ago.

The total receipts amounted to $8,602,902, or $381,000 in excess of the estimate. Cash in the bank on Dec. 31, 1908, was $3,072,000, or $216,000 more than in 1907, and the province has accumulated $97,500 towards sinking fund account against the English loan. The present amount of railway and municipal subsidies, notwithstanding that during the year $240,000 had been paid to the Grand Trunk Pacific for 132 miles of railway, under an arrangement by the late Liberal Government, and $43,500 to the Ontario Central Railway, is $98,450 less than four years ago. During the past four years the excess of revenue over expenditure has been $1,800,000, and, after deducting $500,000 treasury certificates given to Toronto University, the assets of the province are $1,300,000 more than they were in 1904.

In every case, said Col. Matheson, the receipts had exceeded the estimates with the exception of casual revenue and crown lands receipts. In the former there has been a slight oversight in the estimate which should have been $110,000 instead of $140,000, accounted for by a fine of $23,000 paid to the Town of Essex by the Michigan Central Railroad, in connection with the explosion of a car of dynamite, and $8,000 on account of the sale of land.

In regard to crown lands revenue, there was a deficiency of $620,000, due to the trade depression of a year ago, from which the lumbering industry had not yet recovered, and the Government deemed it advisable not to press lumbermen for the amount payable in view of the difficulty referred to.

The amounts received in excess of the estimated revenue are from: Interest $100,000; public institutions, $28,000; Central Prison industries, $15,000; education, $8,000; Provincial Secretary's Department, $22,000; agriculture, $13,000; succession duties, $535,000; supplementary revenue $25,000; licenses, $27,000; law stamps, $5,000; Government railway, $50,000.

Dealing with the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, the total net revenue for the year was $419,000, from which $350,000 was paid to the treasury for interest. The net revenue is $160,000 in excess of last year. The net earnings were $284,000, while the revenue from mining lands, etc., amounted to about $134,000. During the first four months of 1908 the operating expenses were $14,000 over earnings, so that the balance of the splendid showing of $284,000 referred to above was made up during eight months, reflecting great credit upon Mr. Englehart and his colleagues. To date the earnings for 1909 are $68,000, made up largely from supplies for the Transcontinental Railway and the unusual rush of mining men and equipment to Gowganda, Elk City and Charlton Lake.

For 1909 the Government have brought down a bill to change the fiscal year. The public accounts will close Oct. 31 in each year, and greatly facilitate the work of the Department. Two sets of estimates would accordingly be required for this season.

On account of this change the financial operations of the Government for the ten months of 1909 will not advantage the Provincial Treasurer, as the large expenditures of the Government are made during the early months of the year, while the large receipts always come in November and December.

The only item of which special mention was made was that of $300,000 for an addition to the Parliament buildings. It was necessary that the library should be placed in a fireproof structure, as the present offices are overcrowded, and additional vault accommodation is urgently needed.

S. Clarke, West Northumberland, congratulated the Provincial Treasurer on his changed views, both respecting the future of this province and on methods of bookkeeping. For a number of years he was, when on the Opposition side of the House, one of the least hopeful and most pessimistic of men. He was also keenly critical of the charging of items for current to capital account.

In the present budget statement the figures and receipts and expenditures had run pretty close. The statement indicated that when figuring out the result it was seen that the balance was likely to be on the wrong side, so to furnish a surplus the Provincial Treasurer had transferred $107,000 of expenditure for good roads from current to capital account.

Credit was also claimed for the closing out of the Sault Ste. Marie obligations. It was a matter of testing what the late Government recognized that the securities offered at the time were perfectly good.

The Provincial Treasurer claimed credit for the increased Dominion subsidy, but he could not see how in thunder—(Cries of order)—he could do that when that fund was based upon the increase of population.

They were willing to give credit where credit was due, but the satisfactory financial standing of the province was founded on the good work of the Liberal Governments of the past.

TO FORM NEW DEPARTMENT

Bill Creating Office of External Affairs Introduced.

OPPOSITION HAS OBJECTIONS

Mr. Borden Says Better Organization Is Needed and Mr. Foster Declares That Staff of Clerks Under Premier Could Do Just as Well—Present System Causes Much Confusion In Departments.

Ottawa, March 5.—Does Canada need a new department to deal with her foreign relations or should the Secretary of State be given something to do? was the question which occupied the attention of the House for a space yesterday afternoon. The Prime Minister and the Secretary of State think a new department is necessary, Mr. Borden, Hon. G. E. Foster and Mr. Sproule think otherwise.

The discussion arose on a motion of Mr. Murphy to go into committee to consider a resolution for the creation of a department of external affairs. It was felt, he said, that the present system was inadequate to the situation and that it would be of great advantage for all communications relating to our external affairs to be sent to a special department.

Mr. Borden observed that it had not been made clear why the department of the Secretary of State should not be made the common centre for the more convenient working out of all matters of international concern.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier then entered into fuller explantions. All Governments had departments whose whole business was to deal with matters affecting foreign relations, and Canada had reached that stage when it would be an advantage to have an independent department. We had reached the standard of a nation.

Under the present system all communications of a foreign nature came direct to the Governor-General, and were by him transmitted to the Privy Council. It was not the intention to disturb that, but whereas all such communications were now referred by the Privy Council to the various departments it was now the intention to submit them to the new department of external affairs, where they would be digested and information procured to be returned to the new department, where the despatch would be framed in reply.

Mr. Foster declared that Canada's relations with foreign countries had not begun in recent years. To make an external affairs department effective, there would have to be a replica of every department combined in the new department. His suggestion was to add a body of clerks at the disposal of the Prime Minister, and have them docket and index the foreign correspondence.

Dr. Sproule also spoke against the motion.

The Associated Chamber of Commerce of London has passed a resolution in favor of cheaper telegraphic communication throughout the Empire by the adoption of a policy of state-owned cables.

That Hon. Hugh John Macdonald shared in the transaction to the extent of $500 was shown in the further examination of Guinan upon his land deal with the Manitoba Government, in which he secured a tract of sixteen thousand acres for about two to three dollars per acre less than the market value.

UPHOLDS TEDDY'S POLICY

Sudden Storm In Washington Drives Official Party Into the Senate Chamber Where Ceremony Is Carried Out — New President Promises to Maintain Course Followed by Predecessor.

Washington, March 5.—The first chief executive to take the oath of office in the chamber of the Senate in 76 years, William Howard Taft, yesterday became President of the United States. Andrew Jackson was the last one.

Accompanied to the capital by President Roosevelt and a guard of honor, through a swirl of blinding snow, Mr. Taft returned to the White House just as the sun began to force its way through the thinning clouds of grey. A sudden blizzard sweeping in from the northwest Wednesday night, to set awry the weather bureau's optimistic promise of "fair and somewhat cooler," caused an abandonment of the outdoor ceremonies on the famous east front of the capitol, much to Mr. Taft's chagrin, and threatened for a time to stop the brilliant pageant of the afternoon.

By almost superhuman efforts a passageway was cleared along the centre of Pennsylvania avenue, however, and for nearly three hours, President Taft and Vice-President Sherman reviewed a passing column which was replete with martial splendor and picturesque with civic display.

Following the brilliant and impressive ceremonies in the Senate, during which both President and vice-president took the oath of office, President Roosevelt, again a private citizen, bade an affectionate adieu to his successor, while all in the historic chamber looked on in silence. Then he hurried away through a side door to take a train for New York.

President Taft won applause at the very outset by announcing his adherence to the Roosevelt policies and his intention to carry them out by means of further legislation which would also have for its purpose the freeing from harm of those pursuing "proper and progressive business methods."

WALSH DIES IN PRISON.

Welland Canal Dynamiter Succumbs to Liver Disease.

Kingston, March 5.—After an illness extending over three years, John Walsh, one of three men sentenced in April, 1900, to life imprisonment, for dynamiting the Welland Canal, died yesterday. He was 42 years old and suffered from cirrhosis of the liver. It is said he has a wife living in Dublin, Ireland, but no relatives in this country.

Nolan and Dullman, sentenced at the same time, are still in the penitentiary. It was believed Dullman was leader in the plot.

After entering prison, the deceased worked in the tailor shop for over a year, but when health failed him was transferred to the library. He was always regarded as a model prisoner.

On one occasion he remarked that the whole trouble was due to a drunken spree. It is believed that the dynamiting of the canal was not intended as an act of hostility by Fenians, but was rather intended to aid the grain-handlers of Buffalo who were then on strike.

SHOT BY BURGLAR.

Hamilton Policeman and Citizen Victims of Robber.

Hamilton, March 5.—Constable H. Smith was shot by a burglar, whom he was going to arrest last night, about 9.15, near the corner of Ray and Market streets, and James Hanley, 14 Ray street, who was with him to render assistance, was shot in the temple. Both men were at once taken to the city hospital and operated on. It is believed that they will recover, though their injuries are critical. Their assailant got out of the house in the excitement and made his escape.

He was discovered in the house of E. W. Kappele, southeast corner of Ray and Market street, about 9 o'clock by the constable, who at once asked several neighbors to assist him in surrounding the house. They were passing through a side alley to enter the house from the rear when the burglars opened fire on them from the rear of the house.

It is understood that a third shot was fired, which also hit Mr. Smith. Both men fell to the ground, but did not lose consciousness. When they were picked up they were able to walk to the street, and the ambulance being called, they were taken to the hospital.

UTILITIES COMMISSION.

Halifax, N.S., March 5.—The Government has introduced a bill providing for the creation of a public utilities commission in Nova Scotia.

Public utilities are defined in the preamble as "every corporation, company, person, association of persons, their lessees, trustees, liquidators or receivers appointed by any court, and every city, town, municipality or county that now or hereafter owns or may own, operate, manage or control any plant or equipment for conveyance of telephone messages, or for production, transmission, delivery or furnishing of heat, light, water or power, either directly or indirectly to or for the public."

The board is to consist of three persons, who shall receive a salary. The annual expense is to be borne by the public utilities according to their gross earnings. The board is to have general supervision of all public utilities and the act will establish complete and effective control and regulation of public utilities in the province.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE CHURN

Interesting Display Window at White & Gillespie's.

A window that is attracting a good deal of attention is that of White & Gillespie's, illustrating the evolution of the churn from the old pump style to the latest type of earthenware, designed for purity of the butter and cleanliness in the manufacture. The oldest is marked fifty years ago, but it is probably only slightly different from the kind that was used by Noah's faithful wife while the family housebout sailed hte seas as the unquestioned mistress of old Neptune's domain. The changes noticed have aimed at decreasing the labour of churning and this being solved, the sanitary conditions then received attention.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM BIG BLAZE IN BANK OF OTTAWA FIRE WAS IN THE BASEMENT

There came very near bein a serious fire in the Bank of Ottawa yesterday. The fortunate discovery of the blaze before it had made much headway and the quick response of the fire brigade to the alarm sent in were all that prevented a bad fire. Entering the bank at 12:40 yesterday, one of the clerks noticed that the building felt very warm and on making an examination of the premises found that a pile of waste paper in the basement had caught fire from some unknown cause, and was blazing merrily. The fire brigade was telephoned for and were quickly on the scene. They found that the fire had begun to reach the joists of the floor, but were able to extinguish the blaze with the aid of twelve gallons of chemicals. Very little damage was done, although the whole building was filled with smoke.

King Of Siam Sends Thanks To Father Of Peterborough Man

The following letter from Sergeant-Major Rundle, father of Mr. W. G. Rundle of this city, appeared in the Toronto Sunday World:

Editor Sunday World:

Fifty years ago when my regiment was quartered in Aldershot, the crown prince, now the King Siam, was attached to our brigade for a course of training. I was sergeant at the time and had the honour of being associated with H. R. H. military education.

In November last I read of the rejoicing in Siam on the occasion of the anniversary of the 40th year of His Majesty's reign and remembering some incidents that happened while His Majesty was performing the duties of a British officer, half a century back, wrote a letter of congratulation to His Majesty on the happy event and have just received a reply.

The reply reads:

Private Secretary Office,

Bangkok, January 11th, 1909.

Sir,—His Majesty the King, thanks you for the kind wishes expressed in your letter of the 13th November last congratulating His Majesty upon the occasion of the 40th anniversary.

I have the honour to be,
Your obedient servant,

Fireman Craig Out On $1000 Bail And Hawes And Chapman On $500

Application for bail on behalf of Bert. Craig, George Hawes and Chapman, the three ex-firemen, charged with assaulting Assistant Fire Chief Grange, was made to Magistrate Dumble on Saturday afternoon. The magistrate a week ago-to-day, when he refused bail, intimated that if the condition of the injured man showed improvement within the next few days he would consider bail.

On Saturday afternoon the three appeared before him. Craig was allowed out on bail of $1,000 in two sureties of $500 each, while Hawes' and Chapman's bail was fixed at $500 in two sureties of $250 each.

They will appear in court on Thursday morning at ten o'clock.

Broke Pop Bottle On Italian's Head Putting Him Asleep

A blow on the head with a pop bottle transferred an Italian to the Garden of Dreams in a fracas on Saturday night in a local hotel yard. From the information received the bottle was in the hands of Robert Bailey, of Emily. The Italian's name could not be learned. When he recovered consciousness his first act was to pick up a piece of the bottle which had been broken into fragments by the blow. He threatened to inform the police and bring the matter before the Court on Monday, but there was nothing doing when the roll was called by Chief Roszel this morning. It was stated that the wound required the services of a doctor.

Show Stopped In Second Act Company's Share Was Kept Back

Only two acts of "Come Back to Erin," were given at the Grand Opera House, after which the manager of the troupe informed the audience that they might get their money back by applying at the box-office. It is stated that the reason for the sudden ending of the romantic Irish play was that Mr. A. Small, of Toronto, who handles all the shows that appear on this circuit wired the local management to hold back from the company the portion of the receipts coming to them to cover an account that it is alleged the company owes Mr. Small. The manager of the company on learning this decided to put an end to the performance and accordingly stepped forward to the footlights at the end of the second act and announced to the audience that the show would not be gone on with. The house was fairly well filled and the audience had apparently enjoyed the performance very much up to that time.

Young Man Said To Have Obtained A Horse Under False Pretences

Ernest Buck, whose home is in Norwood, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning and pleaded not guilty to obtaining from Allan McCarthy, East City, a brown horse, by false pretences.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared on behalf of the prisoner, and elected to be tried summarily. Chief Roszel was not ready to go on and the case was enlarged until to-morrow morning. Buck being allowed out on giving bonds for one hundred dollars.

P.C. Meagher drove to Norwood yesterday and brought Buck to the city. He had been arrested there by the Norwood constable.

London City Council Offers Free Lights For Verandah Use

If the City Council decide to own, Ald. Stewart and Engineer Sifton, as the Niagara power distribution plant, stated in last night's Advertiser, have an elaborate scheme for lighting up the city, in addition to the usual run of street lamps.

They intend to furnish power free of charge to the residents who will place lamps on their verandahs, forming a regular string of lights down the streets and avenues of the city.

"I think the scheme will work out all right," said Ald. Stewart. "We will furnish the power free for these lights. It will cost us practically nothing, as we can use power for this purpose that will not be utilized in any other way. One light, or say half a dozen lights, on a verandah, will produce a fine effect. It will improve the property and make the streets well lighted. It will also be good for the moral tone of the city. It will prevent all dark alleys around private houses, and will keep marauders and burglars at a distance. Plenty of light will protect the homes."

"The citizens would not be charged for this power. It will be connected with wires that do not register at the meter, and consequently will not be charged to the consumer."

"We are working out the details of the scheme, and we will have the plan made known very shortly.—London Advertiser.

A RETROGRADE MOVEMENT

The Conservative Government is beginning to give the people cause to reflect whether they have done wisely in giving the Government so much power—so large a majority as to tempt the adoption of an autocratic bearing in dealing with public interests. Conservative journals have been fiercely indignant because as they asserted the authority of the Dominion Auditor-General had been partially neutralised. Now we shall see if they will be consistent in condemning the Whitney Government for restricting the power of Mr. James Clancy, Provincial Auditor. A bill is now before the House, and by virtue of a large majority it will doubtless pass into law. By this bill the authority for absolute refusal to pay accounts of doubtful authenticity, is to be taken from the Auditor. In future should he object in the interest of the public to paying a doubtful account the matter is to be taken out of his hand and referred to the Treasury Board. Control of the preparation of the public accounts is to be taken out of his hands and instead of being independent is to be made partizan, in sympathy with the policy of the Conservative Government which brings and aims to bring everything within the operation of the "spoils system," which they have inaugurated—a vicious principle thereby first introduced into Canadian administration of public affairs. While the Liberal Government of the Dominion is aiming by principle and practice, by legislation and action to minimize partizan administration of public affairs, the Conservative Government of Ontario is giving a few extra rivets to the partizan shackles. The Provincial Auditor is an officer heretofore independent of the Government, and responsible only to the Legislature, the direct representative of the people whose interests are at stake. It is now proposed to restrict his power to an extent that will prevent him from being as he was intended to be—an independent check upon the Government. Where the Auditor had the power to refuse for sufficient reason the payment of the expenses of Government officers, he is now to be deprived of that power and the minister of the department concerned (not even the Treasury Board) supersedes and can direct payment of a bill of expenses that may be either right or wrong. It is not assumed that any minister will certify to any account that is not proper, but it is to be remembered that he is given the power to do so, and even this may be a temptation. The supersession of the Auditor in this matter is not in the public interest. It removes the power of independent audit, and introduces the vicious principle of partizan finality in financial administration.

Power unwisely employed is dangerous to both possessor and subject.

CANAL ENLARGEMENT

Canada's present position of prominence and promise is very greatly due to the large expenditure made on transportation, and if our progress is to satisfactorily continue the means of transportation must be extended in proportion to the requirements imposed by our increasing growth. We have, by help of the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals, and improvement of the harbour of Montreal and the St. Lawrence channel, wrested from New York its supremacy as a grain shipping port for the Middle American and Canadian West. To maintain the practical supremacy we enjoy, which is threatened by the proposed enlargement of the Erie Canal, we must do so by a decided improvement and enlargement of the Welland Canal. This policy has been entertained by the Government for some time and in the House on Friday, Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals made it plain that the work would be undertaken. This is rendered necessary by the increasing volume of traffic through the Canadian canals.

The total for the season of 1907 was 20,543,638 tons, which was about double that of 1906. The quantity of grain carried through the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals to Montreal in 1907 was 636,573 tons, compared with 404,936 tons in the previous year.

One factor in this growth has been the abolition of the canal charges, but the natural advantages of the Canadian water route are drawing to it an increasing proportion of the export grain traffic from both countries. In his annual report, the deputy minister of railways and canals, Mr. M. J. Butler, strongly urges the enlargement of the Welland Canal to a depth of 25 feet in the reaches, and 22 feet on the lock gate sills, with a corresponding increase of width. Vessels using the Welland Canal at present are restricted to 255 feet in length and 44 feet beam, whereas to make a remunerative voyage from Lake Superior to Lake Ontario eastern ports, boats should be capable of carrying 7,000 to 10,000 tons. The Welland canal should accommodate the largest vessels using the Sault canals. The passage through it would occupy only seven hours if it were enlarged as proposed, and the number of locks reduced to seven.

With the Welland Canal enlarged, with the Trent Canal completed and in operation from lake to lake; with the transcontinental and Canadian Northern Railways operating to the seaboard and with the Hudson Bay Railway completed, the conditions will have been provided for realizing upon the great grain resources of the Canadian West to a degree adequate for many years to come. But doubtless the time will come when even all these outlets will be insufficient for traffic purposes; then or in the meantime, the Georgian Bay project will assume the condition of a national necessity.

The Welland Canal was opened for navigation in 1841.

TAKING STOCK.

More knowledge is urgently needed as to Canada's timber resources—knowledge as to the extent of these forests, the amount of timber in them the rate of growth and all the other particulars which must be known in order to enable those in charge to know how much timber it is safe to cut without cutting into the growing stock of the forest. Forestry experts themselves have so far had to depend to a great extent on conjecture in estimating even the acreage of the forests.

It will pay Canada to take stock of her resources now and use these with intelligence and foresight. The people of the United States are beginning to realize that they have been too prodigal in using up their resources, and the keynote of the work of their "Conservative Commission" has been the "taking stock" of the resources of the republic as to forests, mines, soil, and water (both as a source of power and as means of transportation) and the devising of economical means of using them. The Comission was appointed by President Roosevelt in May last at a meeting of the governors of the several states, scientific experts and commercial leaders, and during the second week of December last, the reports of the summer's work in computing the national resources were presented at another similar conference.

Canada may well take warning and before her national wealth is wasted to any great extent, provide for its economical use. But the first step is to find out just how much there is. Accounts are brought from time to time of great forests existing in Canada's northland, especially along the banks of the great rivers. These accounts are given by travellers whose routes have lain along the watercourses, where the heaviest timber naturally lies. Accounts from other travellers who have gone some distance from the banks of the streams indicate that in the drier regions the timber becomes much smaller and more scattered.

To obtain definite and comprehensive knowledge as to these resources, men with a knowledge of timber estimating should be sent out to traverse the entire country, that at a distance from the streams as well as that along the water-courses. Full and accurate reports from these men would do much to clear up the hazy notions now held as to the resources in timber of the less-known parts of Canada, just as was the case with the exploring parties sent out by the Ontario Government to Northern Ontario in 1900.

WINNIPEG'S EXPERIENCE.

The following may be read with profit—if they profit by it—by our Board of Trade and City Fathers:

Winnipeg maintains an Industrial Bureau, which displays much industry and produces some very effective advertising.

An example of good advertising is the calendar which was sent broadcast over the continent last December, and which doubtless has been seen by many Examiner readers. At the top is the suggestive line, "Over $50,000,000 in new buildings erected in the past year," and beneath it a bird's eye view of the heart of the business section of the city, taken from the roof of the new Grain Exchange building. In the centre of the calender, above the "tabs," is a large photographic view of the best residential district, and at the bottom two large engravings showing the power development which has taken place on the Winnipeg River, and from which the city is supplied. The view of the business section of the city, at the top of the calendar, is sustained by two large pillars, which afford ample information under the following captions: "Financial, Manufacturing, Commercial Opportunities; Municipal, Railways and Educational. Large letters tell us that "Prosperity shines on Winnipeg," while the reader is invited to "locate at Winnipeg, the natural distributing centre, where cheap power, railway facilities, new territory and new business will be added assets to your industry."

The directors of the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau held their annual meeting last week, and the Commissioner's report shows that the Bureau's field of operation has grown to considerable magnitude since the establishing of the offices of two years ago. A synopsis of the more important of the work carried on in that time as given by the report shows that 312,172 lines of paid advertising were placed, from which a total of 3,874 actual requests for information from manufacturers, capitalists and others were received. These had been personally replied to by letter, and including others received from various sources, 237,721 pieces of statistical and illustrated printed matter were sent out. The Bureau offices had handled 10,771 incoming communications, and had sent out 35,722 letters in 1907-8. Over 600,000 lines of press matter had been furnished, with which 900 photographs were supplied as illustrations. A recapitulation of results shows that during the two years of operation, 33 manufacturing establishments had begun operations, 69 industrial and commercial company incorporations were recorded in 1907, and 88 in 1908, with a total authorized capital of $28,616,600; bank clearings had increased at a greater rate than any city in Canada; and population, building and real estate had made gains along sound, sane and substantial lines.

The Executive of the Winnipeg Bureau is composed of the representatives of sixteen business organizations of the city, and the work certainly seems to be thoroughly done.

It has not yet been stated whether

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Ottawa Free Press regards the speech of Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party at the banquet given him by his supporters in Parliament as an apology for being in public favour.

It has not yet been stated whether or not Attorney-General Foy's proposals of law reform contain one for the "abolition of the bar," remarks the Brantford Expositor.

The monthly bulletin of the Census Branch of the Department of Agriculture is especially of value to farmers this month, because it deals with the results of the recent international conference at Rome. No farmer in Canada ought to be without a copy, and all that he has to do to get a copy is to write to either his member or to the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa.

To-day is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the incorporation of Toronto. William Lyon Mackenzie was its first mayor, and the population on March 6, 1834, was 9,254. Toronto has grown grandly since then, and it seems her political degeneracy has been in direct ratio to her material progress.

PASSED AWAY AFTER A SHORT ILLNESS

Had Been Talking to Neighbours on Saturday Evening and Was Dead Next Morning—Death of Mrs. N. Lemoir.

Having been out calling on her neighbours at half past five on Saturday evening and apparently in the best of health, Mrs. Narcisse Lemoir, 479 Mark St., was taken suddenly ill late on Saturday night and gradually sank until the end came on Sunday morning at half past ten. She had made no complaints whatever and had been down to the store, making her usual Saturday purchases. Her death was due to heart disease.

She was seventy years of age and was born in Ireland. She had resided in Peterborough county for fifty-four years, thirty years of which she lived in Otonabee and twenty-four in Ashburnham. She was married twice, her first husband being the late Wm. Morgan, of Otonabee. She was a woman highly esteemed by all who knew her and the news of her death was received with the profoundest regret.

Eight daughters and one son by her first husband are left to mourn her loss. The daughters are Mrs. F. Brown, of California; Mrs. T. J. Mahoney, of Grand Forks, N. D.; Mrs. T. McCarthy, Winnipeg; Mrs. R. Hair, of St. Catharines; Mrs. P. J. O'Brien, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien, Mrs. J. H. Breault and Mrs. John Dingnan, of Peterborough. The son is Mr. W. J. Morgan, of Winnipeg.

The funeral took place this morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery. Requiem high mass was said by Rev. Father Kelly. Rev. Father Galvin officiated at the grave.

PLENTY OF WATER IN THE RIVER NOW

There is an abundance of water in the Otonabee river just now, and there have been no complaints from the power companies or power users. The recent rain and thaws have filled up the river and water is running over the dams in great style just now.

WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY

Why Many People Never Need a Doctor.

You have a natural laxative in your body. Why, then, should you use a false purgative to move the bowels?

Bile is nature's laxative. It is bile—and bile alone—which moves the bowels as they should be moved. The liver is the store-house for the bile. The liver pours forth the bile into the bowels, which stimulates them to move, and thus causes the waste matter to pass from the body.

Constipation is a disease, OF the bowels, but CAUSED by the liver. When the bowels do not move regularly and naturally, it is because the liver is not giving up enough bile. And the only possible way to cure Constipation, is to cure the liver.

Calomel, cascara, salts, senna, common pills and sweet lozengers and all the other purgatives do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate and inflame the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they act on the liver. The fruit principles stimulate the liver to secrete and give up enough bile to move the bowels, while the tonics and antiseptics tone up and invigorate the muscles. "Fruit-a-tives" are the only medicine ever discovered that will cure Constipation, Biliousness and all other troubles due to a Torpid or Disordered Liver. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MILK SUPPLY SMALL BUTTER WAS SCARCE

One of the Prevailing Conditions Noticed at Saturday's Market.

One of the noticeable features of Saturday's market was the scarcity of butter. At eleven o'clock the supply was practically gone, and the few remaining baskets were being rapidly emptied irrespective of quality. On questioning a number of the farmers' wives it was learned that the cows are at present giving very little milk, it being the dry season. This condition will likely remain for a month or even longer. The price was 28 cents and it might have been more judging from the heavy demand. Eggs are becoming more plentiful every Saturday now, and it will not be long before the bottom price is again experienced. The Lenten season means a large increase in the demand for this article, and the grocers are continually keeping a large stock.

GRAIN FRAUD U[illegible]VERED.

Toronto, March 8.—Systematic fraud in short-weight delivery of oats is alleged against two men for whom the police are now searching. It is said that several local firms have "suffered rather heavy losses."

The operators have been a former traveler for a flour and feed firm, and a small grain dealer from an outside town. The modus operandi has been simple, but successful. After having had a load weighed, and the certificate issued, the wagon has been driven to the car and several hundred pounds removed. The balance was delivered as the original load.

The bait by which custom has been secured was an extremely low price, 45 to 48 cents a bushel being quoted, while the price by carload being 48 cents and on the market 50 cents.

Among the firms victimized are the McWilliam and Everest Co., fruiters; the Dawson Commission Co., and the Dominion Express Co. The fraud was discovered when somebody telephoned the first-named that they'd better make sure they'd got all they'd paid for, as he had seen them unloading. Investigation showed a deficit of 700 pounds in the load. The company had been secured by one of the men telling the stableman he would supply all oats wanted at 46 cents.

One small load netted a profit of $10.

Indictment Against C.P.R.

Detroit, Mich., March 8.—A Washington despatch says the division of prosecutions of the interstate commerce commission was notified yesterday that an indictment containing 21 counts had been found in the District of Vermont against the Canadian Pacific Railway and an indictment containing the same number of counts against the Quaker Oats Co. The Canadian Pacific is charge with giving transportation of certain stocks, food and other grain products from Richmond, Vt., to Boston, Mass., and nearby points free of charge. The recipient of these favors is alleged to have been the Quaker Oats Co.

Ottawa Scouts.

Ottawa, March 8.—The winter scouting competition between an Ottawa team and the 41st Regiment of Brockville, which started at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, concluded near Kemptville at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

They had got about midway between Prescott and Ottawa when the Ottawa scouts, on their snowshoes, sighted the enemy first and shot them up.

In the matter of points Ottawa got 39 and Brockville 33. Both sides enjoyed the novel feature and the night drive in winter. In the autumn the experiment will be repeated upon a much larger scale.

Murdered His Sweetheart.

Medina, Ohio, March 8.—Guy Razor was found guilty of manslaughter late Saturday by the jury trying him for the murder of his sweetheart, Orie Lee, Oct. 8. The penalty is a sentence of one to twenty years in the penitentiary. He and the young girl were friends from childhood and were engaged to be married. The wedding had been postponed several times. When Miss Lee's body was found it was found that she was in a delicate condition.

Baltimore Was Isolated.

Baltimore, Md., March 8.—The isolation from the outside world, of which this city has been a complete victim practically since early Thursday morning, was broken, and the city began to see the end of the difficulty yesterday. FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Millions of leaflets are being circulated among the people of the Empire, informing the masses how to guard against Tuberculosis, of which 100,000 Germans die every year. The time is fast approaching when this disease will be treated like diphtheria and smallpox—the patient being isolated and removed from contact with others.

Meantime it is to be hoped the masses will learn the all-important lesson of guarding against coughs and chest colds, from which tuberculosis always springs. When your throat tickles, your chest feels tight and sore, when you sneeze and feel cold shivers up your back — that should be your warning.

Nerviline Will Assist

The following treatment is known to be very efficient: Give the chest and throat a vigorous hand-rubbing with Nerviline, and take twenty drops of Nerviline in hot, sweetened water. If there is any hoarseness or cough, gargle well with Nerviline and put a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the chest. By following this advice you can keep clear of colds, pneumonia, bronchitis, and preserve uniform good health. This is worth cutting out and preserving.

CORNERED BY LUNATIC.

Three Welland Men Have a Narrow Escape From Shooting.

Welland, March 8.—Harvey Jones, aged 19 years, came near adding a further shooting tragedy to those reported within the last fortnight.

He went into Booth's hardware store at 10.30 Saturday night and asked to see a revolver. He then enquired about the ammunition, and loaded the weapon. He began measuring the barrel with a plug of chewing tobacco, and it was seen that he was deranged.

J. W. Lamoureaux of Hamilton, who was standing nearby, asked him to unload the weapon. This he refused to do. Lamoureaux and Booth grabbed him to get the revolver and Jones shot his free hand to his hip pocket and declared that he would shoot both of them if they did not let go. As soon as he was free he drove both of them and George Boyd, who had entered the store, to the rear and announced that he was going to kill the three of them. Boyd made a desperate jump and grabbed the weapon just as he was taking aim at Lamoureaux.

The bullet grazed the latter's leg and went through the counter. He fired two more shots before the revolver was taken from him. He was at once placed under arrest. He had been drinking, but it is thought he is insane.

An Attempt to Assassinate.

Havana, March 8.—An attempt was made to kill Gen. Amelio Nunez, ex-governor of the Province of Havana, while he was passing through San Miguel street. Jose Cisneres, a merchant who has had a personal grudge of long standing against Gen. Nunez, fired two shots at him, but neither took effect.

Cisneres was arrested and said that he had selected the day to kill Gen. Nunez because the latter's daughter Maria was to be married at night to Edgar Raviel, son of a millionaire sugar planter.

Bargains For Foreigners.

Washington, March 8.—The alleged practice of foreign manufacturers selling goods in the country at a price lower than that obtained at home, was he subject of a resolution of enquiry introduced Saturday by Mr. Gallinger. The resolution which was agreed to directs the Secretary of State to "procure through consular and other representatives abroad all available information relating to the practice of foreigners selling goods in the country at a price lower than the domesic price set."

Old-Time Actor Dead.

New York, March 8.—Wm. H. Bishop, well-known in theatrical circles as manager or owner of such old time stage successes as "The Black Creek," "What Happened to Jones," and "The Country Fair," died here yesterday at his home from internal injuries sustained three weeks ago, when he was struck by a heavy automobile truck. Mr. Bishop was 64 years old.

Thousands of Delegates.

Toronto, March 8.—Secretary H. K. Caskey of the Laymen's movement for missions has received up to date the names of 873 delegated commissioners to the national congress to be held in Massey Hall from March 31 to April 4.

Three-Year Agreement With Miners.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 8.—There is a distinctly better feeling in the hard coal fields regarding the outcome of the negotiations for the new agreement. This is no doubt due to the cordial manner in which Mr. Lewis says he was received by the presidents of the coal-carrying roads when he met them individually in New York and Philadelphia to arrange a conference. Business men say that they feel that there will be no trouble and that they look for only a short suspension of work, if indeed there is any stoppage in the mining of coal.

The business interests of the entire region are almost unanimous for a three-year agreement in order to avoid an annual disturbance in business.

Tried to Beat Hotel.

Deseronto, March 8.—George Johnson of Napanee was committed to trial by Magistrate Bedford on a charge of defrauding D. McVicer, proprietor of the Deseronto Hotel. Johnson came to Deseronto on Thursday, stopping at McVicer's Hotel. He told the proprietor he was hauling timber for the Hepburn Bros. of Picton, and after stopping at the hotel a day and a night, ran away without paying for his keep.

Railroad to Electrify Terminals.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 8.—The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. here has started work on a $5,000,000 contract given by the Pennsylvania Railroad for the electrification of its New York terminals, including the tunnels and terminals at Jersey City and Long Island.

WERE HONOURED BY FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Porter Were the Recipients of a Presentation.

On the evening of March 4th, a very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Porter, of Otonabee, when a number of their neighbours asembled on the eve of their departure from the neighbourhood; Mr. Porter having sold his farm in the northern part of Otonabee, and purchased that of Mr. R. Miller, some miles farther south.

About 7.30 p.m. the neighbours assembled, when Mr. Porter was presented with a handsome Morris chair and Mrs. Porter with a rocker. Mrs. E. Beavis read the following address: Mr. and Mrs. Porter:

We, your friends and neighbours, feel that we cannot allow you to depart from our midst without showing some mark of the esteem in which you are held in the neighbourhood. We hope that your removal will not sever the bonds of friendship existing among us. We beg you to accept these chairs as a slight token of appreciation, trusting that their presence in coming years may serve to remind you of departed days.

Therefore, we join in sincerely wishing you and your family a long, happy, and prosperous life.

Signed on behalf of your friends, Mrs. Thos. D. Chamberlain, Mrs. Ed. Fitzgerald.

Mr. Porter, though taken somewhat by surprise, made a very suitable reply. He thanked his friends for the kind thoughts which had prompted the gift, and spoke of the friendly relationship which had existed during his long residence among them.

The evening was spent in music, and games, closing by singing Auld Lang Syne, and God Save the King.

EDMUNDS TO JOIN WINNIPEG

Clever Catcher of Last Year's Peterboros to Play in the Northern League.

Fred (Jerry) Edmunds, the crack catcher of the Peterborough Baseball Club, champions of the Midland League, will make his debut in faster company this year, as he has been signed by the Winnipeg Club of the Northern League. His contract has been forwarded, and he will leave Peterborough for the West in a short time. Edmunds should have no trouble in making good in the West. Last summer he proved himself to be one of the most classy catchers that ever wore a Peterborough uniform. He receives in splendid style, has a fine whip, hits nicely and is speedy on the bases, all of which should make him a valuable asset to the Winnipeg team.

His many friends among the fans in Peterborough will wish him every success in Winnipeg.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING SPENT

Another one of those very pleasant nights for the Cold Spring's young folks was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rose, of McMartinville, last week.

The evening was spent in games and dancing, the music being delightful. At twelve o'clock the hostess served a very dainty repast and the crowd dispersed in the wee sma' hours of the morning. The party was given in honour of Mr. Bertram Bennett, who is leaving for the West on Tuesday. His friends join in wishing him every success in his travels.

NO WOMAN

CAN BE STRONG AND HEALTHY UNLESS THE KIDNEYS ARE WELL.

When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble know not the misery and suffering which those afflicted undergo.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles. They begin by healing the delicate membranes of the kidneys and thus make their action regular and natural.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages.

Let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others, that is, cure you.

Mrs. M. Bryanton, Spring Valley, P.E.I., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for two years. They were so bad at times I could not cross the floor for the pain. I tried a doctor but he did me no good at all. I sent to my nearest druggist and got four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I am glad to say that after taking them I have had no more trouble for nearly three years now."

Price 50 cts. per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Number of Local Men Have New Enterprise on Charlotte Street.

The store recently occupied by the J. M. Greene Music Co. on Charlotte street will be opened in a few days and will be presented to the public as a boot and shoe store. The building, which was erected last summer, comprises two stores and an entrance to rooms on the second story. A number of local men are interested in it. They are R. C. Braund, J. T. Braund, W. J. Routly, Nelson Routly and Robert Routly. They have purchased a large stock, making a fine selection for the coming season. Their goods are in the leading grades and when the store is opened to the public a line of choice footwear will be found on the shelves. Mr. Robert Routly will manage the business. All these men are meeting with success in business and their combined efforts should result in establishing a good trade in their Charlotte street store.

MISS ALICE LEADER HOME ON VISIT

Has Made Excellent Progress in Preparing for Salvation Army Work.

Captain Alice, leader of the Salvation Army Training School, established in one of the suburbs of Toher with herbgkqj gkqj gkqj gkqj y ronto, is home on a week's visit with her parents. At the barracks last night she gave an address in the form of a sermon, which was highly spoken of by those who heard her. It is only eighteen months since Miss Leader left Peterborough to study for an office in the Army, and her efforts have been very successful. It is not often that one so young makes such progress, but Capt. Leader' efforts were whole hearted and thoroughly in earnest. Before leaving Peterborough she occupied a position in the Quaker Oats Company's office, but gave up that kind of work for that which appealed more strongly to her.

Parisian Sage is a discovery of a celebrated scientist, who spent the best years of his life in perfecting this great hair tonic.

In giving his receipt to the American people he said, "Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world, but it is more than a fair dressing. It cures dandruff by killing the germs that infest the roots of the hair; it stops falling hair; it gives vigour and strength to the hair roots." Wm. Madill sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents a large bottle and guarantees it to do all that is claimed for it, or your money is refunded. If you do not reside near a druggist who sells Parisian Sage, send 50 cents to Giroux Mfg Co., Fort Erie, Ont., and a bottle will be sent you all charges prepaid.

THE TOWN OF OSHAWA HAS NOT ENOUGH GIRLS TO MEET DEMANDS OF THE EATON FACTORY THERE

May Lose This Business if Situation is Not Relieved—It Has Proved One of Town's Best Industries—Council to Take Action

LARGE NUMBER EMPLOYED

Oshawa, according to press reports, has not enough girls to meet the industrial demands of the Eaton Company's factory, which is located in that town. When the company located there they were assured that there would be no lack of female labour, and now the council is trying to solve the problem of bringing in enough help to meet the requirements. There is a feeling that the company is looking for another location and the people do not want to lose them. The following is taken from the report of the council meeting:

"A deputation of prominent citizens waited on the Council to discuss the subject of the probable change in location for the Eaton factory.

"Mr. Everson was the first speaker, and said that the question of retaining this industry in our midst was one in which the whole town was interested. The Eaton Company are not dissatisfied with the town or citizens, but are unable to get sufficient help. Their Toronto and Winnipeg stores consume large quantities of goods and must be supplied In their factory here they now employ 170 hands, and without making further additions can employ 150 more. In the past we have done much to secure industries, but to me it is more important to retain a good industry than secure a new one. A removal of a running concern creates great loss to the town. During the distress of last winter 125 homes were sufficiently provided for through the Eaton factory. The average wage paid the employees is $5.40, some receive more, some less than this amount. The question now is, what are we going to do towards trying to keep this industry in Oshawa. When the city decided to come here we gave them every assurance that there would be no lack of female labour, so I think it is now up to us to put our heads together and devise some scheme to solve the difficulty. The Company have advertised extensively in other towns for help, but the results are unsatisfactory. It might be advisable to make a grant towards sending a man to other towns to lay before people the advantages of coming to Oshawa and securing a position in the Eaton factory. If this or some other plan were adopted the Company would see that we were interested in trying to retain them here and help them.

Mr. J. F. Grierson was also prepared to speak on the subject, but thought a special meeting should be called especially for the discussion of this question, as it was of great interest to every citizen.

The Mayor agreed with Mr. Grierson and promised to call a special meeting at an early date, when he hoped a satisfactory solution would be arrived at, whereby this valuable industry would be retained in our midst."

Awards Will Be Presented To Salvation Army Scholars

Annual Event in the Affairs of the Sunday School—One Hundred and Twenty Children—Tea and Entertainment.

HOW PRIZES ARE GIVEN.

The awards to the scholars of the Salvation Army Sunday School for regular attendance during the year will be made next Thursday evening. This is an annual affair and is looked forward to by all the members of the school. Sergt. Major R. C. Braund, who is Superintendent of the Sunday School has been making arrangements to prepare a special programme for the presentations and an enjoyable evening is promised.

There are altogether 120 scholars. It is required of them to obtain a full mark for each Sunday, that they be punctually on time and there must be no misdemeanours against them. The awards to be made are as follows:

Sixty first-class awards. These are given to the scholars obtaining a full number of marks for 48 Sundays in the year.

Twenty-three second-class awards —These are given to the scholars being in attendance 46 Sundays.

Ten third-class going to those who are there 40 Sundays and obtain the required marks.

Twenty-eight fourth-class, who average marks for twenty-six Sundays. The prizes are books which Mr. Braund secured in a trip to Toronto during the latter part of last week. Each scholar will also be given an album. They will also receive every Sunday an illustrated card with the memory text for that day. They will be required to put a card for each Sunday in their albums. This, it is believed, will be an added incentive to attend regularly and to obtain the highest marks for the year.

In connection with Thursday night's proceedings there will be a tea, which, it is expected, will make the annual event one of the most successful that has been held in some time. The attendance as shown by the above report, is considered by the officers of the Sunday School to be very encouraging and one that reflects credit on the Army's work in looking after the welfare of its younger members.

The tea will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock, after which the distribution of prizes and an entertainment will be held.

Curtailing The Power Of The Provincial Auditor

The absolute power of Mr. James Clancy, the Provincial Auditor, is materially restricted by a Government bill which is to come before the Legislature this sesion to amend the audit act.

The authority for absolute refusal to pay any account is taken from the Auditor. In future, should he object to paying any account, the matter must be referred to the Treasury Board, who will decide whether his objection is well-founded or otherwise. Largely owing to the difficulty which has arisen with regard to the payment of the expenses of the Provincial detectives, the bill provides that the Auditor shall consider the certificate of a Minister sufficient authority to pay the travelling expenses of an officer when the amount does not exceed $100.

Control as to the preparation of the public accounts is also taken out of the Auditors' hands. The concluding clause of the bill states:

"The Treasury Board may direct in what manner and with what detail the public accounts and statements therein are to be prepared, and may make regulations in regard thereto for the guidance of the Auditor, who shall carry out the same. The Treasury Board may in like manner make regulations with regard to reports and statements to be made by the Auditor under section 13 of this act, and the detail with which the same shall be printed in the public accounts the duty of the Auditor to conform to any regulations so made."

Rev. Father McColl Speaks On Non-Payment Of Debts And Bills

In reference to the text for yesterday's gospel at St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Father McColl spoke in regard to different forms of stealing, but dwelt in particular upon those people who borrow money or contract bills with merchants and do not intend to pay them. There were various forms of stealing, he said. The robber enters a house and with a pistol takes by force. The burglar enters by stealth, but there was a meaner way than either of these. There was a certain amount of honour in the man with the pistol, but meaner was he who takes your money, pretends to be your friend, tells falsehoods about repaying it and at the same time does not intend to pay it. Persons of this kind were just as bad if not worse than those who steal openly with a revolver.

People should live according to Christian principles. If we are not well provided with money or if we are in poverty we can at least be honest, upright and respectable. Father McColl gave, as an illustration, the lives of Christ, His mother, and St. Joseph. There is a great deal of competition in these times. If the world were less strenuous the people might live to more advanced and healthier lives. The strenuosity of to-day is because of the striving among men to have more money than their neighbours, to have more power and in a business and worldly sense to be accounted greater and more influential than those who are vying with them. Unjust means of doing business is another form of theft, Father McColl stated. The poorer people, moreover, emulate the rich. They, too, contract debts, which they know they are unable to make return for, and even obtain things which they do not intend to pay for. In every walk of life people of this kind were found. To use a common expression they were beating their way everywhere. The storekeepers met them, the business men knew them and they were even met with in church circles. Father McColl's sermon was an appeal for honest living. In conclusion, he stated: Let your lives be worthy of Christians such that you will never be ashamed of them."

A TERM IN JAIL WAS THEIR DOWRY

Paris, March 8.—A marriage has taken place between M. Louis Jean Savenac and Mlle. Marie Octavier. The bride and bridegroom have received a dowry from the State. The bridegroom was awarded on the day of his engagement seven years' hard labour; the bride got two years on the same day. They met in the passage leading from the courtroom to thie cells and plighted their troth. They were married last Thursday in prison. The jailers passed the hat around and bought them their wedding rings, and in presenting them to the happy pair, the Governor of the prison made the pretty allusion to their condition, that their friends all hoped that these two little rings would be the heaviest in the chain that bound them.

STYLE is a something not charged for here, but which is a priceless feature of Women's dress. A high-priced garment is not always a stylish garment. Style may be lacking in even the most expensive suits.

Style shines forth in every fold of every garment in our showing of Women's Suits for Spring.

Every Suit in our collection is RIGHT, not only in style—but RIGHT in material, RIGHT in workmanship, RIGHT in price. You'll find our prices far lower than you could get anywhere else. Our policy this season will be to sell more Suits at SMALLER profits. That, evidently, was the maker's policy, too, for we got better values from him, than we ever had before.

There's surely just the Suit for YOU here. Come for it to-day—now.

PRESS ASSOCIATION IS TO VISIT PETERBORO' AND WILL INSPECT FACTORIES

Important Visit of 150 Newspaper Men From All Over the Dominion to This City on March 22.

WILL BE ENTERTAINED.

On Saturday, March 27th, Peterborough will be honoured by a visit from the members of the Canadian Press Association, who will spend the day in the city. This is the first occasion upon which the Press Association has been entertained in Peterborough, and their visit is an event of more than usual importance.

Some one hundred and fifty newspaper men from all parts of the Dominion will take in the trip, and as their impressions of the city will be given in the reports in the various papers represented by them, Peterborough will receive some extensive and valuable advertising of a nature that is not usually forthcoming.

The Press Association will hold its annual meeting in Toronto on the Thursday and Friday preceding, and will be here on a special train from Toronto on Saturday morning. While here they will be the guests of the local newspaper association, and the itinerary of their visit will include a visit of inspection through some of Peterborough's most important industrial concerns. In the morning the visitors will be taken through the Canadian General Electric Works and the Canadian Cordage Company's plant, while in the afternoon the Quaker Oats Company's big buildings will be inspected. A visit to the lift lock will also be a feature of the afternoon's programme.

The visitors will be entertained at luncheon at the Oriental and National Hotels at one o'clock, as the guests of the Peterborough Association.

The trip will be marked by the visit of a number of the old Peterborough boys, who will accompany the visitors. It will be a gala day for the members of the fourth estate.

Vags Promised To Leave The City If Given An Hour In Which To Do So

One hour to get out of town, was given John McCormack and Thomas McGuire, by Magistrate Dumble, at the police court this morning. They were charged with vagrancy.

They came to the police station last night wanting a night's lodging. It is said that they had been begging from door to door.

"I'm no vag," said McCormack. "My home is in Toronto and I had been working for the C.P.R. I don't want to go to gaol your Honour. Give me another chance."

"How long will it take you to get out of town?" His Worship asked.

"One hour," was the answer, and the magistrate told him to go.

"Give me an hour too," said McGuire.

THREE MONTHS OR GIVE INFORMATION

Magistrate Has a Cure for Silent Indian Listers.

Charles Walsh might have been the Sphinx for all the information he would give concerning where he got his liquor when he appeared in court this morning on a charge of being drunk. Walsh is an Indian lister, and was arrested last night.

"Where did you get that liquor?" asked the court.

"Oh, well," said the court, "I will remand you for a week, and if you don't feel like telling then, why we will see about sending you down for three months."

Donald Galbraith and Mary Nelson were arrested on Richmond street last night for being drunk. Galbraith was fined $3 and Mrs. Nelson was remanded for a week.—London Advertiser.

Peterborough People Leaving for the West To-morrow.

The C. P. R. yards this morning presented one of the liveliest sights this morning that has been seen in many months. Six cars of settlers' effects have been loaded with goods and are nearly all ready to be shipped to-morrow. Lumber, waggons, live stock, household furniture, a everything that is required by people moving into a new country. Mr. John Deyell and his mother have two cars of goods, Mr. Wm. S. Turner and Geo. F. Brisbin have a car each, Mr. Thos. Lee has also a car load and there is also another. Mr. Lee has had his land for some years going out every Spring and working it until the grain had been harvested and all the work finished. He is taking his family with him, thus removing from this city.

Mr. Brisbin is going to Pilot Mound, Man., and will have a trip of sixty miles overland from the station to the place where his farm is located.

WAS BEGGING FOR COPPERS IN THE STREET

Had One Cent But Needed Four More to Have Enough to Get Food.

"Do you see this cent?" a booze-soaked individual managed to mumble to pedestrians on Charlotte St. on Saturday afternoon. Several stopped to see what was the matter with the cent, and they soon found out that its only ailment was the fact that it was without companions in the man's empty pocket. He wanted to collect four more to make five, which would be enough to allow him to get something to eat. He did not state that five cents would buy another drink, which was probably what he was so anxious to get.

WOULD NOT ALLOW TRAMPS IN HOUSE

Woman Gave Them a Handout at the Back Door.

The two meandering Willies, who appeared in the police court this morning on the charge of vagrancy, were told to move their lazy bodies away from Peterborough as quickly as they could. They were given an hour to make good and apparently they follow l out instructions to the letter, for about half-past eleven they were seen at a farm house several miles southwest of the city. They asked for food, but the woman, who was alone, was afraid to let them in, so she gave them a handout, which they ate, sitting on a wooden horse near the doorstep, on the sunny side of the house. It is evident that they were holding their way out the C.P.R. track, likely to be moved on at the next place where they decide to stop for a day or two.

The Rev. W. M. Fee Of Wyoming Spoke At Temperance Meeting

The Gospel Temperance meeting at the Crystal yesterday afternoon was again well attended. The speaker was Rev. W. M. Fee, B. A., of Wyoming, Ont., who is on a visit to his brother, the pastor of Bethany Church in this city. The orchestra of the George St. Church and the Ark Quartette, under the leadership of Mr. W. H. Cunningham, took charge of the musical part of the programme and added very much to the success of the meeting.

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

Mr. Fee in starting his address said that when a boy he used to think, that on every social and moral question, we in Ontario were away ahead of all the rest of the world. He had been compelled to change his mind and to admit that the people of the United States were away ahead of us on the temperance question. They have now 38 million people living in "dry" territory, and the number is rapidly increasing. The statement is often made by those opposed that prohibition does not prohibit. It was quite evident that the people of Maine and other states were well pleased with it even if it did absolutely phohibit. The fight is not against the hotel nor the hotelkeeper, but against the bar-room with its open door and invitation to every boy and young man to become a drunkard. The boy or the man that drinks is handicapped. To succeed one must be at his best, and even the moderate drinker is not in the best condition for efficient work. Then there is the risk of the moderate drinker becoming something worse. Corporations and large employers of labour will not employ even moderate drinkers.

What License Has Done

There are many persons who desire to sell liquor. License restricts this privilege to a few and so tends to lessen the evil effects of the traffic. It places restrictions around the trade as to time and place and also the persons to whom liquor may be sold. These tend to decrease the evils and would do so to a much greater extent if the law were strictly observed. But putting the traffic into the hands of a few these men are enabled to make large profits, and places where liquor is sold acquire an inflated value. To whom does this enhanced value belong? To the man who sells and makes the profit or to those who grant the license and create the inflation? The argument is freely used that when bar-room licenses are removed the hotels either close up or deteriorate in character. In reply to this the speaker quoted the opinion of a young commercial man in Western Ontario to the effect that in local option territory in that region the hotel accommodation is better than it was under license. It is the bar-room that has given hotel property a false value, and it is only the false value that falls when the bar-room is closed.

Liquor and Crime

A noted criminal when on his way to penitentiary the other day said: "Drink brought me to this." Indeed drink is said to be responsible directly or indirectly for 95 per cent. of all murders and 90 per cent. of all crime. Can those of us who have never felt the blight of drink think without great misgiving of the possibility of our boys and girls getting through? Will they be as fortunate as we have been? Those who have not the right to vote may have no responsibility in this matter, but those who have must be prepared to bear the responsibility if after January next this great evil still exists in our midst. If we permit the business to go on we are in partnership with it. All the gains will go to the dealer and all the losses to us. There is not room in any town for consecrated Christian citizenship and for the saloon. If the law does not pass, and if prohibition does not prohibit the church and those that belong to it are not where they should be.

ITALIAN GRAND OPERA COMING

One Hundred and Fifty in the Company.

The Italian Grand Opera Company which is scoring such a great success in Montreal, at His Majesty's Theatre, will be heard at the "Grand" Thursday, March 18th.

This splendid organization carries a company of 150 people, an augmented orchestra of 5 selected musicians, a grand chorus of 50 voices and a triple set of principals.

The Italian Grand Opera Company comes almost direct from remarkably successful engagements in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburg, Chicago, St. Louis and other large cities, and the press of the above mentioned cities were unanimous in declaring the performances given by this superb company were equally as good as those heard at the Manhattan and Metropolitan Opera Houses in New York city.

The management has gathered together a brilliant array of song birds from the great operatic centres of the world, among whom may be mentioned Mme. Duce-Merola, a mezzo-soprano of European reputation, whose strong roles are "Carmen" and "Santuzza"; Mlle. L. Bertozzi, a lyric soprano secured from the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York; Mlle. Almeri, a colorature artist of few equals, from the Lacalle Theatre, Milan, Italy; Sig. Bari, one of the greatest dramatic tenors on the dramatic stage to-day; Sig. Torre, another tenor with a marvellous voice; Sig. Arcangeli, an eminent baritone and Sig. Gravini, a splendid basso, are a few of the leading artists with this meritorious organization.

The opera for this city will be announced later.

THE POLICE HAVE A CLUE NOW

P. C. Smith's Assailant May Have Been Chicken Thief.

HIS BAG IS IDENTIFIED

Sack Found at Kappele House Had Feathers Sticking to It and It Is Believed to Have Been That of Englishman Seen In Vicinity—Bullet In Girl's Heart Fired 15 Minutes After the Others.

Hamilton, March 8.—The first threads of a web of evidence which the Hamilton and provincial detectives have been trying to gather up against the man who fired upon and perhaps fatally wounded Constable Smith of Hamilton last Thursday night have been obtained by the authorities, who are now satisfied that the shooting of the policeman and the murder of Miss Kinrade were not done by one and the same person. The theory that the man who shot the policeman was the one who murdered Miss Kinrade, which met with much favor at first because so many of the circumstances of the case supported it, has been completely abandoned by both the city of Hamilton and provincial detectives.

The investigation of the shooting of the policeman is being left solely in the hands of the Hamilton police officers, who are looking for a man now believed to be in or near Hamilton, and whose principal occupation of late has been the systematic stealing of chickens. The connection of the man with the shooting of the policeman has been established by a bag picked up after the constable was shot. The bag, the police assert, was a short time before in the possession of a man seen loitering around the home of Bishop Dowling, which is just in the rear of the dwelling where Police-Constable Smith was shot. The man who had the bag under his arm was spoken to by Joseph Lynch, coachman for Bishop Dowling. The man was about 5 feet 8 inches in height, and spoke with a decided English accent. He is also described as having rosy cheeks, with a two-weeks' growth of a moustache. His clothing consisted of a light brown or grey suit and peak cap. He wore no overcoat, and had every appearance of having just come a short distance when he met the bishop's coachman. That the man was an ordinary chicken-thief is evident, the police say, from the number of feathers found inside the bag which was carried by the man, and afterwards picked up at the scene of the shooting.

With this evidence in the possession of the authorities it is believed the mystery attending the shooting of the constable will be cleared away as well as some of the dread and uncertainty which have been abroad in Hamilton since the murder of Miss Kinrade and increased when the policeman was fired upon. The man who shot Constable Smith was discovered in the home of Mr. E. W. Kappele, southeast corner of Bay and Market streets, about 9 o'clock on Thursday night, by the constable, who at once asked several neighbors to assist him in surrounding the house. They were passing through a side alley to enter the house from the rear when they were fired upon from the rear of the house. One bullet struck Constable Smith on the side of the head, and the second hit Mr. James Hardey on the temple. Both men fell to the ground, but did not lose consciousness. When they were picked up they were able to walk to the street, and the ambulance being called, they were taken to the city hospital. An X-ray operation performed on Friday showed that Constable Smith was very seriously injured, half of a bullet having penetrated the brain. The weapon used was a 38-calibre revolver.

Constable Smith's condition last night is not as favorable as the doctors had hoped for. He is suffering much pain and has to be given opiates.

With the definite statement of the police that the shooting of the constable and the murder of Miss Kinrade were not the work of the same party interest centres about the story Miss Flossie Kinrade will have to tell on Wednesday night, when the inquest will be proceeded with. Mr. and Mrs. Kinrade and the other members of the family, now at the Arlington Hotel, Toronto, have also been notified to attend and throw what light they can on the mystery which is hanging over the tragedy. That confident manner which has been noticeable with the detectives ever since the murder is now even more marked, and it was said in police circles last night that there will be developments of more than passing interest at the sitting on Wednesday night. For the instruction of the jurors Provincial Detective Mills on Saturday had plans made and photographs taken of the Kinrade house.

A Doctor's Statement.

Toronto, March 8.—The Mail and Empire this morning in a despatch from Hamilton quotes Dr. Evans, who assisted at the Kinrade autopsy, as saying that the four bullets in the head of the dead girl had been there fifteen minutes before the fatal shot was fired through her heart. This he says is proven by the blood clots about the bullets. An eighth shot he also said was fired, passing through the victim's hair pad.

PLANS PLENARY COUNCIL.

Canada's First Will Be Held This Year In Quebec.

Ottawa, March 8.—The Catholic Register Extension, the organ of the Catholic Church Extension Society of Canada, will announce on Tuesday that His Holiness the Pope has resolved to call the first plenary council in Canada, through his representative, Mgr. Sbarretti, apostolic delegate. The council will be held in the early summer at Quebec, and to it will be invited all the bishops of the Dominion, superiors of religious institutions, and a full body of theologians.

This council will mark an epoch in Catholic Church in Canada, and cannot be regarded by the faithful otherwise than as a signal favor by His Holiness. His Excellency Mgr. Sbarretti, will preside over the gathering, and while the doctrine will not be a subject of discussion, a restatement of it may be made, and disciplinary laws laid down to govern the changing conditions of the church in Canada.

The United States has had three plenary councils, one in 1852, one in 1866, and the last in 1884. The South American republics had one in 1899, so that with the holding of the proposed great gathering in Canada the entire continent of America will be covered by plenary council legislation.

Loan to G.T.P.

Montreal, March 8.—The rumor is freely circulated here that the Government will loan $10,000,000 to the G.T.P. in order to tide them over their present financial difficulties. Reports to this effect have been circulated by a number of M.P.'s from the city who are home for the week-end. They state that the G.T.P will borrow this amount from the Dominion Government, giving ample security for its payment. It is said that the G.T.P. will seek their precedent for this in the action of the Macdonald Government in loaning thirty millions to the C.P.R. on the personal guarantee of Lords Strathcona and Mountstephen and Mr. R. B. Angus. This amount was repaid long before it was due, and it is said that the G.T.P. could do the same

"Is Pope Ill?

Rome, March 8.—The Pope's indisposition has taken on the character of influenza and his condition inspires apprehension.

Notwithstanding his ill-health his holiness took the keenest interest in the electoral struggle yesterday, insisting upon seeing the despatches giving the returns.

The Pope is ordered to spend a week in bed. People are asking why there is such mystery about the holy father's illnesses if he is simply suffering from a slight cold. They suspect that Pius X. is really suffering from some serious disease which the doctors are striving to conceal; something, for instance, like heart trouble, which in an aged gouty person is dangerous.

Charged With Burglaries.

Toronto, March 8.—In the arrest of Norman McFarland, 659 Yonge street, and Garnet Lawson, 382 Church street, late last night, Detectives McKinney and Armstrong believe they have got the men responsible for several burglaries that have been committed recently.

They are believed to have been implicated in the two burglaries at Jones' china ware store, 88 West King street, the breaking into Allison's cigar store, 12 1-2 East Queen street; and four attempts (one successful) to get money from the stores of W. J. Lloyd & Co.'s bakeries.

Hurls Herself From Bridge.

Hamilton, March 8.—A woman who flung herself from the high level bridge, Saturday morning has been identified as Miss Anna Kobielska, a Polish woman, 22 years of age, who has been employed at the Tuckett company since she came to this country about a year ago.

She lived with her brother, who says that she has been acting strangely for the past few days, refusing to leave her room. It is thought that her mind was deranged.

Will Release Cuban Criminals.

Havana, March 8.—The General Amnesty Bill has been signed by President Gomez and will take effect immediately. It provides for the release from prison of those persons who have been convicted of other than crimes of grave atrocity. This will result in the freeing of many professional criminals.

New York, March 8.—The Tribune's London correspondent cables:

There is the strongest prima facie evidence that the English people are ripe for a general revolt against free trade. Tariff reform has made continuous progress since the last general election, and the struggle is likely to culminate in the establishment of a revenue tariff, with preference for the colonies and maximum and minimum schedules for foreign countries. The trend of the bye-elections is in the direction of tariffs of this nature, and Mr. Balfour's return to power is confidently expected this year or the year after.

British Conservatives, having committed themselves to a definite policy, have their own work cut out for them, and it cannot be neglected when they return to power.

The moral drawn from the elections in Scotland by The Manchester Guardian, the most consistent organ of Liberalism, is that protection is commanding the support of an increasing proportion of the rising generation of voters, whose sympathy is excited by the idea of self-sacrifice for the cause of imperial unity and whose blood is stirred by the cry, "Let us tax the foreigner." This is followed by the confession that the Liberals must labor sleeplessly for the defence of free trade by scattering tracts among the masses and by ceaseless platform activity, since the tariff reform candidates are already talking themselves hoarse in a systematic campaign of education. The country is likely to have as much economic discussion as it can stomach.

While there is nothing in the bye-elections to encourage the Ministers to appeal to the country, many Unionists assert that a general election will come in the course of a few months, either from the rejection of the budget by the House of Lords or from the Prime Minister's deliberate act in riding for a fall when he has forced the privileged House to challenge the taxing powers of the Commons. This opinion is not shared by those in Mr. Asquith's confidence. They are emphatic in declaring that there will not be a general election this year, accidents being barred. An accident has been possible over the naval estimates, but the risk has been minimized by the specious compromise arranged by the Admiralty with the help of Sir John Fisher, by which the two-power standard is nominally preserved and the Radical economist is dexterously played with.

Winston Churchill remains the most youthful and restless member of the Cabinet. His veiled threat of retaliation against France has brought upon him the sarcastic comment that he has left a bridge behind him for a retreat to the Unionist party.

Clergyman Expelled.

London, March 8.—With impressive rites the decree deposing from holy orders the Rev. J. Hugh Smyth-Pigott, the Church of England clergyman who has been posing as the Messiah, was pronounced by the Bishop of Bath and Wells in Wells Cathedral Saturday. Smyth-Pigott was not present.

Smyth-Pigott has been for years the head of a notorious religious community that occupies an establishment known as Agapemone, or the Abode of Love, in Somersetshire, England. His followers worship him, and he teaches that the ordinary rules of morality are not binding upon those to whom spiritual light has been given. He was tried last January before an ecclesiastic court at Wells' Cathedral and found guilty of immorality. His expulsion from the church was decreed.

The "Slocum" Goes Down.

New Brunswick, N.J., March 8.—The barge Maryland, formerly the steamboat General Slocum, on which more than 1,000 persons lost their lives a few years ago, sank at South River yesterday. The barge was loaded with 500,000 bric

To Suffer From Headaches Makes Life Miserable.

It takes a person that has had or is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia. The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels. To the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headache. It has proven a specific for the malady in all its forms.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHES.

Mrs. Allison E. Brown, Summerfield, N.B., writes:—"I have been troubled with Constipation and Headaches for a long time. After trying different doctors to no effect, a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after taking three bottles. I can safely recommend it to all."

A NEW SCHEME OF CANALS

Engineer Proposes to Utilize the Welland River.

WILL COST TWO MILLIONS

Following Upon Hon. G. P. Graham's Remark in House on Friday, Engineer J. C. Gardner Presents His Plan to Bring Canal Up to Date In the Least Expensive Way—Would Expropriate Land.

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 8.—As an alternate route for part of the proposed new Welland Canal suggested by Hon. G. P. Graham, on Friday, J. C. Gardner, B.A., Sc. A.M.C., Soc. C.E., formerly engineer to the Government of Chili, consulting engineer to several large American companies, has outlined a scheme which, if adopted by the Government, will save millions of dollars.

It is to build a dam in the Welland river near its mouth, to Lyon's Creek just outside Chippewa, and to construct a canal three miles long from the dam to Slater's Point, the dam to raise water in the Welland river ten feet to the level of the Welland Canal, making the Wellnad river part of the canal system.

Mr. Gardner has spent several months creating the project and a wealth of data and details of his plans testify to both thoroughness and extent of work.

The Welland Canal intersects the Welland river at Welland and there is carried across the river by a stone aqueduct.

The level of the water in the canal down to the first lock at Thorold is at the same elevation as the water in Lake Erie.

The Welland Canal has cost twenty-eight and a half millions, and the enlargement proposed by the Government will cost thirty millions.

The section between Port Robinson and Port Colborne is one of the hardest parts of the work, including heavy earth cuts and three million yards of rock to be excavated. The cost of this section would probably be three millions.

Gardner says that by making the Welland river part of the canal system, vessels drawing over fourteen feet will leave the proposed new canal at or near Port Robinson and entering the Welland river, proceed to a point near the proposed dam and be lowered by lock into the new canal leading to Slater's Point on the Niagara river. The new canal would pass through land, the average elevation of which is twelve feet above the surface of the water in the Niagara river and the enormous expense of enlarging the present Welland Canal between Port Robinson and Lake Erie would be avoided, while boats drawing under fourteen feet would still pass to and from Lake Erie by the present canal.

Of course, all the low land along the Welland river would be flooded by raising the water ten feet and this is the only great objection to the scheme. A generous estimate places the value of this land at one million dollars, and this outlay would be more than neutralized by the increased value of adjoining lands and shipping facilities, which would be created along the banks of the Welland river for twenty miles inland from the proposed dam, besides the saving of millions of dollars which would be expended by the Government on their scheme.

Teacher Burned at North Bay.

North Bay, March 8.—Miss Beaulands, directress of the kindergarten department of the public schools here, met with an unfortunate accident Saturday night while preparing to make tea on a spirit lamp in her boarding house. The alcohol blazed up suddenly from an overflow in filling and the young lady tried to smother the flames with her skirts. Her clothing took fire. A gentleman boarder took her in his arms and ran out of the house, where he smothered the flames in the snow, but not before Miss Beaulands was seriously burned from the waist down. Her condition is critical, and her father, Rev. Canon Cody of Vancouver, has been notified.

To Try 384 Russian Looters.

St. Petersburg, March 8.—Proceedings have just been begun in the high court of Moscow which involve the largest conspiracy trial on record. Three hundred and eighty-four persons are charged with belonging to a criminal organization, the object of which was the stealing of merchandise on Russian railroads.

Between 1905 and 1907, during the worst period of the revolutionary disorders, over $17,000,000 worth of property was stolen on two railroads alone.

Chooses Death by Jumping.

New York, March 8.—Choosing between death by fire, which had driven him out of his blazing room and on the narrow ledge of his window, and a leap of three storeys to the sidewalk, W. Dennis Redmond jumped and almost instantly killed yesterday by striking head first on an iron railing.

BOSTON TEAM AHEAD IN THE BIG SIX-DAY RACE IN NEW YORK HARTLEY HAS A NEW PARTNER

Examiner Special (2.46 p. m.)

New York, March 8.—Only 24 of the teams which started at 12.05 yesterday in the six-day go-as-you-please race in Madison Square gardens were in the race at the end of the eighth hour last night. Dineen and Prouty, the Boston team, were holding a lead of two miles over their nearest competitors, and had covered 86 miles, 3 laps.

NORWOOD AND STIRLING WILL PLAY TRENT VALLEY FINAL HERE

A great game of hockey is promised for Wednesday night of this week when Norwood and Stirling, winners of Districts No. 1 and No. 2 respectively will play off at Brock Street rink for the championship of the Trent Valley. Officials of the League were in the city this morning making arrangements for the use of the rink, and they state that the game will be well worth seeing, as both teams are playing the hardest kind of hockey. George Lynch, who has been refeering a number of the games down that way is also authority for the statement that the Trent Valley brand is very fast.

It should be a great game, and no doubt a big crowd of local fans will be on hand to see the battle. Stirling will run an excursion, while Norwood will bring up a big bunch of supporters on the regular afternoon train. The Norwood bunch who played in the Peterborough City League last year are well known to the followers of the game in Peterborough, and a large number will turn out to see them in action again. Both teams are supremely confident and it promises to be a battle from the drop of the hat. It is likely that Harry Morgan will referee the game.

The League has been a great success this season and some very hard games have been played. Norwood won district No. 1 after a hard fight with Keene, while in the other district the race was so close that when the regular schedule was completed Stirling, Madoc and Marmora were tied with four games and two lost. Stirling won out in the play-off.

The Stirling team will line up as follows on Wednesday night:

The Norwood team has not yet been selected, but will be picked from the following: Goal, Doherty; point, Edwards; cover, Cumming; forwards, Pearce, McNicholl brothers, Kempt brothers, and Scott.

EDMONTON OVERCAME LEAD OF FOUR GOALS AND NOSED AHEAD

The Edmonton Bulletin gives the following account of the hockey match between the home team and the Shamrocks, of Winnipeg, for the Fit Reform Cup, which Edmonton won in two games:—

After one of the hardest fought games ever seen on the local ice, the Edmonton hockey team again demonstrated their superiority over all comers by defeating the Winnipeg Shamrocks, challengers for the Stanley Cup, by the close score of 6 to 5. This is the first of a series of two games for the Fit Reform Cup, emblematic of the hockey championship of Western Canada, which Edmonton won from the Winnipeg Maple Leafs in January.

The Shamrocks started out last evening in whirlwind style in an evident effort to play the locals off their feet, and after some 25 minutes play with the score 5 to 1 in their favour, even the most optimistic fan had misgivings. Then the Edmonton boys began to arouse themselves. Boulton netted one just before half time, making the score 5 to 2 in favour of the Shamrocks. In the second half the Irishmen could not stand the pace and the score of the locals climbed steadily until it was a tie, 5 all. Ten minutes of strenuous play followed, after which Deeton scored with one minute to play, making the score 5 to 6 in favour of Edmonton.

The outstanding feature of the first half was the spectacular work by both Quinn and Winchester in goal. Hard shots were the order of the game, but these two veterans stopped them in splendid style and called forth round after round of applause. At one time in the first half Winchester stopped four successive shots at close range and so fierce was the onslaught of the Shamrocks that the five goals scored were almost impossible to save.

Hewer and Dunderdale played a star combination on the visitor's forward line, while Breen distinguished himself on left wing by his swift rushes and wicked shots. Flett at cover, was a tower of strength, and broke up the forward rushes in big league style.

Winchester in goal and Bert Boulton, rover, were the star performers for Edmonton in the first half. The others played hard, but did not seem to be able to get away. They showed up stronger the latter part of the game and Whitcroft, Miller, Deeton and Boulton made a very aggressive and dangerous forward line. Ross and Crowley did well on defence and checked the opposing forwards heavily.

The game was rough and strenuous, but there were not many penalties handed out. Flett and Dunderdale went to the fence in the first half for tripping and Bill Crowley also decorated the side for a few minutes. In the second half Whitcroft and Flett mixed it rather freely in the corner, and were benched for three minutes. Miller was also put off for cross checking.

ROGERS WAS TOO MUCH FOR DAGO

Big Yankee Beat Sylvia in a Hard and Fast Bout in Toronto.

Toronto, March 6. — That clever grappler, Yankee Rogers, put out another shining light last night at Riverdale Arena before a good crowd, when he cleaned up Frank Goteh's unknown — Emil Sylvia, the Italian champion. Sylvia was big and strong and rough, but Rogers' cleverness saved the day for him a score of times. Rogers was the favourite with the crowd, but Sylvia had a big Italian backing, and the rival factions made things lively.

It took Rogers 34.45 to gather in the initial fall. Half a dozen times he had half-Nelsons and bar arm holds on Sylvia, but the Italian's strength of neck enabled him to break loose. The end came when Rogers got a double Nelson with his legs. Sylvia could not break that and had to go.

In the second engagement Sylvia rushed at Rogers like a mad bull and seizing him, quickly slammed him on the floor. He batted him round like a toy doll, and before the surprised Rogers could locate himself, the "Guinea" had him mussed up with a double bar hold that no man could break, and Rogers was forced to yield a fall in 3.15.

In the final struggle Rogers was more than furious. He rushed the Italian all over the mat. It was bing-bang hammer and tongs all the way. Rogers secured the final fall in 4.21. He seized Sylvia by the legs, and standing him on his head, slowly doubled him up and crushed his shoulders to the mat.

The preliminary was between F. Mills, late of London, Eng., and Chappell, of Oshawa. Mills was to throw Chappell twice in thirty minutes. Mills took the first fall with a body hold in 6 1-2minutes, and the second with scissors in 12 minutes 17 seconds.

THE BIG RACE TO BE HELD OUT DOORS

Simpson Will Have His Chance With the Rest of the Crack Long Distance Men.

Early next month an outdoor Marathon, open to the world, will be run off at the Polo grounds. It will be a professional sweepstake, and it is expected that the field will include the greatest distance men in the world—Shrubb, Hayes, Simpson, Dorando, White, Svanberg, Longboat, and Maloney, and possibly one or two of the crack amateurs.

Such a race was hinted at a couple of months ago, but nothing definite had been settled at that time. Now everything has been arranged but the date, and that will be made public in the very near future.

Powers and Pollock are promoting the event, and this insures the appearance of Longboat and Dorando at any rate. As Charley Harvey, Johnny Hayes' new manager, is mighty close to the combine, the little Irish American can also be numbered among the probable starters. Unless the tour Ernie Hertberg is arranging for him interferes Svanberg will most likely start, and Tom Eck is so confident of Simpson's ability to show a clean pair of heels to the best of them that Fred may safely be counted upon to start. White and Maloney are both seeking matches. Shrubb still believes that he can go the route—and he is not alone in his belief. The capacity of the Polo grounds is all that will limit the size of the crowd. The purse for which the runners will compete will be one of the biggest ever offered for a foot race. Powers and Pollok think so much of the idea that they will guarantee $10,000 or $12,000 with a percentage privilege.

THE STANDING IN THE TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE

Examiner Special.

Havelock, March 8.—Stirling has won out in Division No. 2 of the Trent Valley League, consisting of Havelock, Marmora, Madoc, and Stirling. At the end of the arranged schedule the following was the standing:

	Won	Lost
Stirling	4	2
Madoc	4	2
Marmora	4	2
Havelock	0	6

Stirling won in the playing off of the three-cornered tie.

Norwood has won out in District No. 1, consisting of Norwood, Hastings, Keene and Warkworth with the following standing:

	Won	Lost
Norwood	5	1
Keene	4	2
Warkworth	3	3
Hastings	0	6

A 241 SCORE WON THE "SMOKES"

Herb. Martin, of the Iroquois, won the box of cigars given for the best single score last week at the P. B. C. Alleys, but it took a 241 score to do it. On Monday George Cairns, of the Examiner A, hung up a score of 238, which looked good all week, although half a dozen bowlers came very close to the mark Saturday night. Martin came along with his big score just in time to annex the smokes.

By the way, last week witnessed some of the most classy bowling seen at the P. B. C. Alleys since the drives were opened. Over twenty scores of 200 or better were put on during the week, and the rolling throughout was way above the average. Cairns' score of 238 was the next highest to the top mark, but Wareham, of the Belmonts rolled 232. Walter Miller put on the some high total, Cairns hung up 230, McIlroy, of the Pacifics, had 229, Craig, of the Examiner B's 225, Gene Hurtubise, of the Hams, 224, and MacRae, of the B. A. C., 211, while there were at least a dozen other scores over 200. The rollers made the pins fairly talk during the week and if they keep up the good work. Geo. Cairns' alley record of 264, is liable to go by the boards.

THE STRATHCONAS ACCEPT CHALLENGE

Will Play St. Andrew's But Not for the City Championship.

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The Strathcona Hockey Club wishes to announce that it has decided to accept the challenge of the St. Andrew's team, champions of the Church League, to a game of hockey. The Strathconas, however, wish to make clear that the game is not for the city championship, feeling that is would be a rather nervy proposition on their part to play St. Andrew's for the championship when, as a matter of fact, Lakefield are the champions of the City League, and who have been, the Strathconas claim entitled to the honour of playing the Church League winners. If St. Andrew's wish to claim the city championship their course is to challenge Lakefield, champions of the City League. If on the other hand they want an exhibition game with the Strathconas, the latter will only be too willing to give them a chance and will play them at Brock St. rink between 8 and 9 o'clock on Friday night of this week, and expect to hear from St. Andrew's at once in regard to the officials, etc.

Thanking you for the space,
The Strathconas Hockey Club.

SIMPSON HAS A RACE AT LAST

The Peterborough Indian Will Meet Mat. Maloney in Newark Shortly.

Toronto, March 6. — Fred Simpson, the Ojibway thunderbolt, and Tom Eck came back from New York to-day. Simpson went on to his home in Hiawatha, while Eck remained in Toronto.

"Simpson has been matched to run a Marathon race in Newark's ball park on Sunday, March 21," said Tom Eck to-day. "We are at last getting a chance at the big ones. The New York managers refuse to give Simpson a match with Dorando, Hayes, or Longboat."

Eck wants to put Simpson against Shrubb at 15 miles next week at Riverdale, or he will run a relay consisting of Henry Jackson, the Midland Indian, and W. F. Cumming.

HOCKEY

There is a meeting to-night of City Hockey League at the Oriental Hotel at 7.30, at which representatives of the various city league teams are asked to be present. It is desired to wind up the business of the League for the season as well as to make arrangements for the annual banquet at which the Stratton trophy will be presented to the victorious Lakefield team.

• • • •

The Stratford Juniors showed their class on Saturday night by defeating the crack Eurekas in Toronto by seven goals to six, and the Junior O. H. A. championship is conceded to the Junior Indians. The Eurekas are a good road team, but after being defeated at home it is not likely that they will be able to even up with the classic city team on their own ice.

• • • •

Stratford's win in Toronto does not help Lindsay any in their fight for the intermediate championship. The Stratford management will probably figure out that having beaten Eurekas in Toronto they will be able to beat them hands down on home ice and that, therefore, they may be able to spare the services of Preston, their crack cover point. There is a big vacancy on the intermediate Indians' line-up that Preston would fill to a nicety and the chances are that he will be with the seven when they line up against Lindsay to-morrow night. With Preston on and on their own big rink that Stratford bunch is apt to prove a different proposition and the summer address of the O. H. A. silverware may yet prove to be Stratford, Ont., instead of Lindsay on the Scugog, although as has been said before, the game is a great betting proposition.

• • • •

Stratford's prominence in hockey matters is due directly to the way in which they look after their juniors. This year finds them once more with two teams in the finals, and with a team of such speedy juniors that there are two or three of them that they would very much like to use on their intermediate line-up. It pays to look after the "kids." It will be remembered that in the final games last year Midland had to call upon a couple of their juniors, and the youngsters more than made good in the most important matches of the year when the championship was at stake. All of which goes to show that to have good intermediate and senior teams, it is necessary to see that the young material is properly developed. The right start was made in Peterborough this season by placing a junior team in the O. H. A. True they did not win their district but they gathered in a couple of games and showed what could be done if they keep at it. There is an aboundance of material in sight in Peterborough, and if the youngsters are looked after in the right manner for a couple of years, this old town is going to hit back in the centre of hockey circles with a bang.

• • • •

By the way, the fans that want to see just how promising is the material in Peterborough, cannot afford to overlook the game on Thursday night between the Peterborough O. H. A. Juniors, and the Collegiate Institute seven. The latter is one of the most likely looking junior teams that has been seen together here for many moons, and their work is well worth watching. They have speed, combination and headwork, in fact everything that goes to make up a good team and will bear watching in the next few years. That they will make things interesting for the seven that wore Peterborough's colours in the O. H. A. this season, goes without saying, and there are not a few who say that the school seven will clean up handily In any event it will be a great game.

• • • •

That contest between the Strathconas and St. Andrew's Guild teams on Friday night will be worth seeing. The promoters of the Church League have been claiming all winter that the hockey played by the teams of that organization was faster than the City League brand. Friday night's game will show just how much truth there was in the opinion. True the Straths have lost a couple of their men but they have the greater part of the City League team ready to get back into the game, while St. Andrew's will have the team that won the championship for them last week.

• • •

St. Michael's play the 14th Regiment team in Kingston to-night in the second game of the senior O. H. A. finals and the one best bet is the Soldiers. St. Mikes have a lead of three goals, but it will hardly carry them through.

• • • •

The Canadian Canoe Company hockey team hereby challenge the English Canoe Company to a game of hockey to be played as soon as possible.

Warkworth defeat Keene at Warkworth. Norwood defeat Warkworth at Warkworth. Norwood defeat Warkworth at Norwood. Keene defeat Norwood at Keene. Norwood defeat Keene at Norwood. Norwood defeat Hastings at Hastings. After these games have been played, Warkworth and Hastings default the rest of their games. Kindly let me know who would win this district? Norwood claims the championship of this district. Keene claims they are tied with Norwood on the ground that when Warkworth defaulted that all games that Warkworth had played were void. Havelock Enquirer.

	Won	Lost
Norwood	5	1
Keene	4	2
Warkworth	3	3
Hastings	0	6

Under the rules all scheduled matches played by the defaulting clubs count, as they were played, and all unplayed matches count as wins to the teams scheduled against the clubs defaulting.

BOWLING

There are some interesting games scheduled at the P. B. C. Alleys this week, and when the games are completed the standing of the League may receive a severe shaking up. At present the Pacifics have a lead of 23 points on the Examiner A, who are 22 in front of the Bankers. The Belmonts again are just 22 points behind the Bankers and anything is liable to happen before the League schedule is through. The Examiner A and B teams, who are scheduled to play, will not be able to get together until to-morrow night. The leaders have a hard proposition in the Hams, while the Belmonts in going up against the Iroquois, will have their hands full. Big Chief Martin is going great guns just now and he has rounded up a couple of dark horses to take the places of Stroud and Adams of the Indians, who have left the city. Sutherland is one of the cracks who will represent the Redskins, while another good bowler has been signed. Just who he is, the Iroquois refuse to state just now, although they mention he put on half a dozen two hundred scores last week. Following is the standing and the schedule for the week:

	W.	L.	P.
Pacifics	33	12	733
Examiner A	32	13	710
Bankers	31	14	688
Belmonts	30	15	666
Iroquois	25	20	555
Examiner B	24	21	533
B. A. C.	21	21	500
Lock Works	19	23	452
Hams	17	25	450
Grays	11	31	260

SCHEDULE FOR THIS WEEK

Tuesday — Examiner A vs. Examiner B, Iroquois vs. Belmonts.

Wednesday—Pacifics vs. Hams.

Thursday—Lock Works vs. Bankers.

Box of cigars for high score for this week.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN WASSON.

The death occurred on Saturday afternoon at ten minutes to two of Mrs. John Wasson, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, 369 Brock street, after an illness extending over some months.

The late Mrs. Wasson was 61 years of age, and was born in the township of Belmont, her maiden name being Susan McBurney. On her marriage to John Wasson she moved to Warsaw, where she resided until about four years ago, when they came into Peterborough to reside. The deceased was a woman of many estimable qualities. She was known by her always kindly disposition and her acts of charity to those who were in need. Before coming to the city she was prominently identified with church work at Warsaw, but her failing health of the past few years prevented her from taking any active part during her residence here. She was a Presbyterian and attended St. Andrew's church.

Her husband, two sons and one daughter are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Dr. Wasson, of Victoria, B.C., and Mr. W. E. Wasson, of Peterborough. The daughter is Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, Brock street.

The funeral took place to-day at 1 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Sanderson to the Warsaw Cemetery. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church, assisted by Rev. R. Pogue, of St. Paul's church.

MRS. GEO. RICKEY.

In the death of the late Anne Jane Armstrong, relict of the late Geo. Rickey, which occurred at noon to-day at her residence, 108 Aylmer street, one of the oldest and most respected residents of Peterborough passed away. The deceased had been ailing since April last and had been confined to her bed for the past three months. She was a daughter of the late John Armstrong and a granddaughter of Corporal Geo. Wiggins of County Farmanagh, Ireland. She was born in Ireland on Oct. 31, 1841, and came to Canada in 1859. On Oct. 24, 1861, she was married to the late George Rickey, who predeceased her. She had been a resident of Peterborough for the past 46 years.

She is survived by four daughters and two sons. They are Mrs. George Davis, Hinton, Va., Mrs. Jas. Greer, of Bailliboro, Mrs. Geo. Wanless of West Toronto, Mrs. E. A. Welch, Port Arthur, John T. Rickey, West Toronto, and W. Bruce Rickey, Peterborough.

Two sisters, Mrs. John McColl and Mrs. R. E. Miller of Welland, and one brother, Mr. Wm. Armstrong of Smith also survive.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence, 108 Aylmer Street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

ELZINE LOSEY

The death occurred yesterday of Elzine Losey, the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Thos. Quinlan, 217 Caddy St., East City. She was seven years of age and her death was due to spinal meningitis.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

MARY C. KEENAN.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Keenan, 501 Elm street, will sympathize with them in the loss they have sustained by the death of their four year old daughter, Mary Catherine, which occurred yesterday.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to St. Peter's Cemetery.

A Letter On The Subject Of The Finances Of The City

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to call the attention of your readers to the latest piece of financing on the part of the City Council, a transaction of which so little has been said that few have even heard of it. It is proposed to deduce from the amount due this year for interest and sinking funds on our debentures the sum of $8,500 and to use the money in paying up the deficit on last year's current account. In other words the City of Peterborough is to be guilty of the financial trickery of paying a dividend out of capital. The ratepayers are bound by law to pay the whole amount due for interest and sinking fund each year and the Commissioners of the City Trust are bound to compel the full payment and have in fact made a lawful demand for the proper amount. It is nothing short of a breach of faith with the purchasers of our debentures as well as a direct violation of the law.

Under what pretence is this scheme devised? It is said that we have a large surplus to the credit of our sinking fund accounts. That is quite true—but to whom does it belong. The surplus in each account belongs to that account and cannot be applied to any other purpose except by a special act of the Legislature. To apply it to the payment of a deficit in current account is to divert money paid by the taxpayers for one purpose to another and a totally different purpose. I can understand the Mayor and some of his supporters in the Council proposing such a scheme but I am utterly unable to understand how the Chairman of the Commission can permit himself to be a party to such a scandalous transaction.

What is the purpose of this scheme? Simply to hide from the electors the fact that the financial administration of last year was so bad that it would require an additional two mills on the taxes to pay up for its extravagance. To meet the ordinary expenditures (not those of last year) and put the city back where it was financially when Mayor Rush took office would require a rate not of 19 or 20, or 19½ mills, but of between 22 and 23 mills.

The revised Act of 1908 relating to the City Trust Commission make applicable to both the City Council and the Commission and the members of each, the provisions of the Municipal Act, sec. 418, relating to the management of sinking funds. This section expressly provides that a surplus to the credit of any sinking fund account shall be applied to that account and it expressly prohibits the payment of any monies collected for the purpose of a sinking fund on the current expenditures of the municipality. Further it provides that any members of the Council (or of the Commission) who vote for any such diversion of sinking funds into current expenditures shall be personally liable for the amount so diverted and the members who have voted for the same shall be disqualified from holding any municipal office for the period of two years.

Do the members of the Council or of the Commission think that such a transaction will be allowed to pass unchallenged in the Courts? I can assure them it will not go unchallenged, but I hope that there will not be the necessity for dragging such financing before the whole Province and ruining the high reputation which this city deservedly enjoyed.

I appeal to the Trust Commissioners to be true to the high trust reposed in them as the guardians of the City's financial honour. I appeal to the Mayor and his majority in the Council to be honest and frank with the people, to admit the gross extravagance of last year and to adopt a policy which will restore the finances to the condition in which the present Mayor found them.

Yours sincerely,
R. A. McWILLIAMS.

ONLY ONE OFFERED TO TAKE THE WORK

Magistrate Asks "Rail Birds" at Police Court if They Would Like Something To Do.

There was an unusually large number of "rail birds" at the police court this morning, so large was it that it caused the court to wonder why there were so many unemployed in the city.

"If there are any of you men want work," said his Worship, "I can give you some."

There was one came forward, out of the crowd, but it was found on questioning him that he did not own a cross-cut saw and he said that his axe was very dull. He was told that under those circumstances he would not be able to cut much wood, and he walked away.

INTHON BIBLE CLASS NOTES

The attendance at the Inthon Men's Bible Class still continues to climb; ninety-seven were present yesterday and eleven new members were added to the roll.

The Reds, with ex-Ald. W. J. Johnston, as Captain, still continue to lead the Whites and Blues by a good majority. Mr. Johnston, who went to the Dominion Alliance Temperance Workers' convention in Toronto as a delegate from the Inthons, was on hand with a report that was both big and interesting.

The lesson was very helpful and interesting to all. In fact, the lessons cannot be otherwise with such an able teacher as Rev. Mr. Pearson. After the lesson came the reports of the various officers and then a surprise was given the class with the announcement that Messrs. W. S. Turner and Geo. Deeprose were leaving on Tuesday for the far West. They expect to come back in the fall again so we won't lose them for good.

The class rallied sufficiently from the surprise to be able to sing a verse of "God be with you till we meet again," and to wish them Godspeed.

They are both very active members and it will be hard to have to part with them.

The members then went home after the "Inthon friendly handshake was passed around.

A relay race at Penetang, and several other les simportant matches have already been arranged, and the local marvel is in great demand. Simpson left for Toronto this afternoon to rejoin Tom Eck.

'ROUND THE STORES.

A Peterborough Romance by an Old Peterborough Boy.

Mr. Bruce Chowen, of Ludlow, Vermont, U.S., an old Peterborough boy, sends the following to The Examiner:

In Peterborough once, not long ago,
Lived Billy Bruce and Annie Snow.
She was as fair as the summer skies,
And on Billy there were no flies;
But to marry she would not decide
Until he could a home provide—
For she'd received too many "tips"
Through other matrimonial slips.

So Billy being a lad of muscle,
Pulled off his coat and began to hustle;
And, spurred by love, being fortunate,
His gains began to accumulate.
The money earned — he seldom drank —
He put in P.O. Savings Bank.

Schneider, the jeweller, first he sought,
From whom the engagement ring was bought;
From several beauties which he inspected,
A solitaire diamond was selected.
Here new arrivals met his eye,
Which in the future he must buy.

Silverware in great galore
Were shown him in this model store—
Clocks and watches, pins and rings,
Jewels fit for queens or kings.
Solid silver, plated ware,
Cut glass too, in pattern rare,
Fine engravings as you have need,
And skilled repairing guaranteed.

With the money he in time had got,
Of Andy Brown he bought a lot.
Here he planned and planned it well,
To make his future home and dwell.
"No paying rent for me," said he,
No landlord bossing over me.
I'll have a home my own to call."
(A lesson which applies to all).

After which the deed was drawn,
And the lot was his ere another dawn.
So whether it be for farm or lot,
Brown is your "Johnny on the spot."
So you should call on him this very day
And secure a home without delay.

Ernest Mann then did fill
The contract for the lumber bill.
Doors and windows, sashes and blinds,
Builders' materials of all kinds,
Seasoned lumber, highest grade,
Mouldings, newals, finest made.
Rails and balusters all new.
Shingles, laths and clapboards too.

A yard complete in everything,
You've only but your wants to bring.
If your mind is therefore filled,
With a thought that you may build,
Don't forget ere 'tis too late
To let this Mann give estimate.

The plans were drawn and contract made
With a builder, foremost in his trade,
And his house was built in manner neat
By Jimmy Frowde of Walton street;
And never was a home built better,
Each plan filled to the very letter,
From the cellar to the very dome,
It was, indeed, a model home.

For when Frowde a contract takes
He has no time to make mistakes.
Now let everyone by this take heed,
And should repairing be one's need,
'Twill pay you well this man to meet
This James Frowde of Walton street.

His dwelling was a gorgeous sight,
When finished with electric light;
The electric wiring was done with skill
By MacPherson & Co. and—a modest bill.
No bungling work, but every wire,
Secure and safe from chance of fire;
A perfect system all throughout,

Every fixture plumb and neat,
In fact a job one couldn't beat.
Estimates furnished and supplies
For jobs, no matter what the size.
For the plumbing and the heat as well,
To Adamson the contract fell.
A first class job in every way,
And made as Dobbin makes to stay.

Dobbin installed the heating too,
Made all connections, neat and true.
Sanitary conditions all fulfilled,
Labour, highest class and skilled.
And a guarantee, wherein he agrees,
That all work done will surely please.
The proof of the pudding, by the way,
Lies in the eating, so they say.

Therefore for plumbing, let me suggest
That you call on A. & D.'s when you invest.
For the painting and the papering too,
With Fred Cook, he the contract drew.
A man well known for miles around,
None better, as our hero found.
Wall paper of the highest grade,
Paints that the sun will never fade.

Decorating, a special feature,
An art he's learned, he needs no teacher.
Employees, all of whom are skilled,
Guaranteeing every contract filled.
Another thing I wish to mention,
To which he pays careful attention,
Is that all his work is No. 1.
He does it when you want it done.

To Edward Clegg he gave his trade,
For furniture of the highest grade;
And as his floors were rude and bare,
He chose their coverings with great care.
Art squares, linoleums, those he found,
With finest oil-cloths, good and sound.
At Fair's, who sell such things galore,
And sends them gladly to your door.

To the wedding now they wend their way,
Miss Bruce to be in bridal array;
For Turnbull's she often sought
Where all her finery was bought.
Her wedding dress, the best I've seen,
Was white taffeta under crepe de Chine.
It was trimmed with white silk applique
And a handsome thing, the guests all say.

Her travelling gown was a beauty, too,
It was neat and tasty, a pretty blue,
With fine kid gloves to match her suit.
She was, indeed, a perfect "beaut."
The moral here, as you have guessed,
Is trade with Turnbull, be well dressed.
But Billy, being a stylish elf,
Took great care how he dressed himself.

So LeBrun we did induce,
This man to trade our Mr. Bruce.
For suits, and hats, and furnishings,
And all those needful little things
That serve to make a man well dressed,
And everything here was of the best.
Here Spring and Summer goods were sold,
The most fastidious trade to hold.

And raincoats, too, for every age,
Latest styles and all the rage;
Dressy shirts and neckwear neat,
Those at LeBrun's cannot be beat.
Annie, too, was filled with pride,
As well becomes a handsome bride.
And she had sought for a long while

She wanted a hat fit to wear that day,
And so to Richard Hall's she hied her way;
Where she found a stock complete in all
The styles for the street, the play, the ball.
They make suits that have a charm,
And a gift of one oft proves a balm
For a broken heart or one filled with hate
Because the head of the family stays out late.

Now girls and women, all get wise,
And visit this modern paradise;
The stylish shoes the couple wore
Came from McWhinnie's, the shoeman's store,
Where fit and comfort, too, as well,
Are found in every pair they sell.
The Empress shoe will gratify,
The Packard shoe will satisfy,

The quality is always there,
They have the style, they have the wear;
They are shoes that stand up every day,
They are perfect shoes in every way.
A place I'd like to have you know.
Now pin this statement in your hat,
See McWhinnie's for shoes. Remember that!

The wedding guests from near and far,
Quickly arrived on every car.
The Hotel National was a sight,
For all desired to stay that night,
They ate as hungry people can,
And praised its table, every man;
They praised its rooms, as something nice,
They praised the landlord for his modest price.

Supper, lodging and breakfast through,
They bade their host a fond adieu;
Three cheers were given with a hearty go
For Billy Bruce and Annie Snow.
The landlord, Dennison, got his share
Of the cheers, as well as the bridal pair.

A month has passed—in rolls the train,
Mr. Bruce and wife are home again;
When lo! A knock upon the door,
Admits a clerk from Mason's store.
Here table supplies of the very best,
Conforming to the Pure Food Laws test,
They're sold at prices you'll all agree
Are extremely low for the quality.

Their flour, butter, eggs and cheese,
Spices of all kinds, coffees, teas,
Reliable canned goods of highest grade,
Are the special features of his trade.
What need have I to tell you more?
Except to trade at this fine store.

Said Mrs. Bruce: "Do you not know,
Of a market quoting prices low,
Where cash will buy the best of meat?"
"Yes, Kennedy's market, on George street."
If meat is high, it's a reason why
At Kennedy's market you should buy,
Here you will find the sweetest ham,
Corn fed pork and tender lamb.
Roasts and joins, chops and steaks,
Poultry to fricassee or bake.
Sausages, his own make too,
Vegetables fresh as the morning dew,
And courteous clerks on you to wait;
A market thoroughly up to date.

And when a druggist she did need,
The doctor told her to take heed,
Lest the prescription should be filled
By clerks or druggists who were not skilled.
Many a man from this life is sent,
Because the druggist tried an experiment;
But at Tully's Pharmacy you may be sure,

On Brock and Aylmer he chanced to stroll,
Where of Fitzgerald he bought his coal.
The quality of which he found,
A No. 1 in every pound.
Carefully screened and free from slate,
And every order proved full weight;
Put in his cellar without fuss,
Where oftentimes men made a muss.

Here, too, he purchased seasoned wood,
Sawed and split, quality good;
No better fuel for summer and fall,
And kindlings for which there's urgent call.

B. Shortly his harness made
From leather of the finest grade.
Who is Shortly? Well, I'll tell you,
He is just the man to sell you
A blanket, lap robe, or a whip,
A harness that will never rip.
Made from the best oak tanned leather
Warranted to stand all sorts of weather
Blankets for both barn and street,
And which for quality can't be beat.
Carriage trimmings of various kinds,
To suit the most fastidious minds;
And repairing done in manner neat
By Shortly on George street.

Long years have passed since I saw Billy,
The tears are falling, don't think me silly,
But I know he will sing a different tune,
Since he has stopped taking the Examiner,
That shows a weakening in his mind;
And throughout the land you'll always find,
That this is true and this alone—
The Examiner should be in every home.

I remain yours,
AN OLD PETERBOROUGH BOY.

Only part of the wheat berry is fit for food. Yet much that isn't often gets into flour. You cannot see it or taste it, but it's there. It is simply a case of the miller getting more flour from his wheat and your getting less nourishment.

REDEEMING HER SEX.

By VENA KENNEDY WILSON.

"Are you sure, madam, you bought nothing in the upholstery department on Thursday?"

"Yes; I am sure."

"Then this receipt for $3.29 was given you for a five dollar deposit?"

"Yes; it must have been. I was here Thursday and paid $5 on a rug, and when I got home I found the receipt was for $3.29."

"Well, just take a chair, and I will look it up."

The head of the department went through a pile of papers before him. A faintly amused contemptuous glance in his eye told the underclerk that he had branded her story "another lie."

In a few minutes he turned to her and said courteously, but coldly:

"Strange; our slip says $5. Now, I will give you a duplicate receipt. I will keep the receipt you gave me for the $3.29. It is of no value to you," looking her in the eye.

"No; oh, no! Of course not. Thank you! I—I—knew I had paid the $5."

"Well," said the underclerk, with a laugh.

"Same old thing," he said wearily. "The receipt was given for goods bought by her Thursday. She has lost or mislaid her receipt for the $5 and, judging us by herself, was afraid we would deny receiving it, so hatched up that lie. By heavens, I believe a woman would lie her soul away to save a dollar!"

The other man chuckled.

"You think it is funny. Well, I don't."

An hour later he turned to his clerk again:

A woman stood beside him, and as his eyes scanned her quickly he smiled involuntarily.

She was not shabbily genteel, but shabbily grotesque. The skimpy cape, the threadbare waist, the beflowered bonnet and ill hanging skirt were of all colors and materials. They were alike only in cleanliness.

She raised her sharp brown eyes, hesitated and smiled a little tremulously, showing gums entirely devoid of teeth. Then, straightening herself up, she said slowly:

"I've come to see if you'd take a rug back."

"What is the matter with the rug?"

"Nothin', only I don't want it."

"How long have you had it? A couple of days, I suppose," ironically.

"No; I've had it purty near two month."

"But you have not used it, of course?"

"Well, it's been on the floor all the time, but I only set there when I have company, an' I don't have company very often," this a little apologetically. "It's a purty rug, an' I like it, but I want to send it back."

"Why did you buy it if you didn't want it?" he asked bluntly.

"I do want it, but—but I've got to have some money, an' I can't get it unless I can send the rug back."

"How much was it?"

"'Leven dollars an' forty cents," she answered dejectedly.

"Are you sure there is nothing wrong with the rug?" he asked in an insinuating voice. "If it is crooked or off color or not as represented I may be able to do something for you."

"No," emphatically, but sorrowfully; "there ain't nothin' wrong with the rug. It's purty an' all right, but it ain't hurt any, an' I must have the money, an'—an' I thought you might take it back."

"Give me your name and address," he said, "and I will call tomorrow and look at it. I will tell you then what I can do." His eyes held a smile that was not amusement or contempt, but a combination of incredulity and joy that made the underclerk wonder.

The next afternoon he climbed five flights of stairs and was ushered into the room with the rug.

Its flaunting colors, the glaring chromos, the table with the installment plan album, the few wooden chairs and the old cane rocker, even the one little scarlet geranium, were noted in a single glance. But he looked at the old woman's face long and steadily. It was such a battered old face, as though time, sorrow and privation had fought out their desperate battle there and left each time traces to tell the tale.

"It's a purty rug," was what she said.

"You don't want to give up the rug. Why do you do so?"

She clutched nervously at her apron and shrank within herself before the man who seemed to fill the room with his dominant, forceful personality. He was so strong, young, well groomed, that she felt suddenly old, weak and helpless before him.

"Excuse me," he said kindly. "I had no thoughts of prying into your business. I only want to help you out of this if I can."

"I know, I know," she said quickly, "an' you're good—good. You'll think me a silly old woman, but I can't bear to disappoint him. Nigh thirty years! It's a long time, an' we've both got old an' ugly, but our hearts is just the same. If he hadn't said it almost the last thing I wouldn't care so much, but, 'Molly,' said he, 'be careful of your teeth. You've such a purty mouth. An'—an'—now I ain't no teeth at all, an' him a-comin' after all these years! It's a long time to be in prison, an' that's why I want the rug, 'cause it's so bright an' cheerful, an' he hain't seen nothin' very cheerful all these years, but—but I must have the teeth. I had the money for them, too, but they'll only send him to Cincinnati, where he went up from, so I'll have to send the money for the rest of the way. I must have the teeth," wringing her hands unconsciously while the sunken lips quivered and the tears trickled down the yellow cheeks. "I must have the teeth—an'—an' I don't know what to do.

"They sent him up for fifty years. It's a long time for killin' a man that egged him on to doin' it, an' he was young an' hot headed then. We'd only been married four year, an' we was jus' gettin' a nice little start, but," with a dry sob, "I know it seems silly to you fer an old woman to care how she looks, but it's for him; it's to please him."

A woman true for thirty years! A woman who would not lie! A woman whose love had grown with suffering! A woman with clear brown eyes like—He bowed his head in his hand a moment, and when he raised it the light of joy that shone through the mist was like the sun behind an April cloud.

"We can't take back the rug," he said, "but here," quickly writing on his card, "is the address of my dentist. Go to him. He will make your teeth, and I will stand good for them. Now promise me that you will go today."

"No, no," she said, breaking into tears. "I ain't nothin' to you, an' I can't let you do that. God bless you! I ain't never taken nothin' yet but what I earned. I wouldn't feel honest in doin' this, for I wusn't tryin' to get help, only to have the rug taken back."

"You must," he said firmly. "You can pay me back; you can pay it a little at a time. Will you be generous and do this to please me?" And he looked into her face with a winning smile.

"God is good," she answered brokenly, the weary old face lighting with a great joy. "I know you mean what you say, an' I'll pay you ever cent jus' as soon as I can. You don't know what this means to me," breaking into helpless sobs, "for—for I want to look as good as I can for John."

That evening a girl with clear brown eyes sat with hands folded listlessly in her lap, her lips in wistful curve. Suddenly she started, a flush came to her cheeks, a warm light to her eyes. With a cry of joy she sprang to her feet and held out her hands to him. With no words he caught her to him and kissed her with a passion of love; then, putting his hand under her chin, he held her face so he could look into her eyes and said slowly:

"If I was sent to prison for thirty years, would you love me, be true to me and kiss me after those thirty years with the same gladness you do now?"

"I don't know," she answered hesitatingly.

"You don't know?"

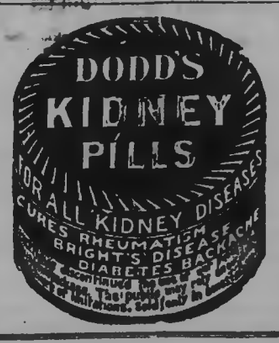
"No. How could I? I love you so much I think I could love you always. But how can I tell? Oh," her face flushing scarlet, "what am I saying? I am telling you I love you, and—you have never yet said you loved me. And you cannot or you wouldn't have left me for a month with no word, even to tell me why."

"You know I love you, though," he said—"love you so much I was afraid of it. And I am happier to hear you say that you can't tell whether you would be true to me or not than for an assurance to come tripping off your tongue. It wasn't you, darling, but your sex, that has almost robbed me of my happiness. But one little old woman has redeemed all your sex for you and brought me to you again. For God's sake, never lie to me, Cleta!"

She looked at him with tender womanly pity.

"Poor boy!" she said softly. "You have seen the one side so long you forget how many sides there are to an octagon. Because from millions of women a few hundred come to you with lies on their lips must you condemn all womankind? No, no, my dear; you must not condemn women, for every noble man is mostly what his mother has made him. While women have their weaknesses, they are"—

"The light of man's life!" he cried.



Luther as a Tease.

"To the saintly, anxious lady Katherine Luther, owner of Zuisdorf, at Wittenberg, my gracious dear wife. Grace and peace in Jesus Christ! Most saintly lady doctoress, we thank you kindly for your great care of us, which prevented you sleeping, for since you began to be so anxious we were nearly consumed by a fire in our inn just outside my room door, and yesterday, doubtless on account of your anxiety, a stone fell upon our heads and almost crushed us as in a mouse trap, and over and above in our private room lime and mortar came down for two days, and when the masons came after only touching the stone with two fingers it fell and was as large as a pillow and two hand breaths wide. We had to thank your gracious care for all this, but happily the dear, holy angels guarded us also. I fear if you do not cease being anxious the earth may at last swallow us up and the elements pursue us. Is it thus that thou hast learned the catechism and the faith? Pray and leave God to care for us, as he has promised to do."—East and West.

SEISMOLOGY.

Old Uncle Simon's hung for years
Round Dawkins' grocery,
And he ain't had much chanct to talk,
'Cause Deacon Weatherby
Has allus seemed to know the most
About the world's news grist.
But Simon's gettin' even now—
He's a seismologist.

He knows jest what it is that makes
The earth's pulse beat too fast.
He sanvvies when the tremblors come
And how long each will last.
And Deacon Weatherby jest sets
And chews his beard and fist,
'Cause everybody wants to hear
Our town seismologist.

I wisht when I was learnin' things
I hadn't fooled around
A-studyin' them fool three R's.
It's time lost, I'll be bound.
I'd rather learned what Simon did.
It heads the study list.
I wouldn't be ignored if I
Was a seismologist!

"Yes," says the milliner sweetly to Mrs. Brightun, "the big hats are going completely out of style. Next season they simply will not be worn. You will have to come and get a new hat, or several of them, in fact, and the new ones will be very small."

"Oh, how lovely!" exclaims Mrs. Brightun. "My husband will be so glad."

"He's different from most husbands, then," laughs the milliner.

"But, don't you see, I can make five new hats out of that last big one I got from you."

Professional Opinion.

"Well, is there anything new, novel or interesting?" inquires our friend the theatrical manager as we enter his neatly but not gaudily appointed office.

"Nothing much," we reply, "except that a new star has been discovered," referring, of course, to the new planet that has been found somewhere the other side of Neptune.

"New star?" he asks. "How's that?"

"It's a new star, but it is so far away they can't see it."

PROTECTS YOU FROM COLDS

As the only way to reach catarrh is by inhaling medicated air, it follows that the healing balsams of Catarrhozone can't fail to cure. It is a purely vegetable antiseptic—soothes and heals wherever it goes.

The germ-killing vapor is inhaled at the mouth and instantly spreads through all the breathing organs. Every case of bronchitis and catarrh is rooted out, and such health and strength is imparted that these troubles never again return.

Catarrhozone has cured thousands, and here is quoted the experience of Mrs. James A. Tweedle, of Jay Bridge, Maine, who sent for sixteen outfits of Catarrhozone for friends in her locality. This lady gives very full particulars why she did so. Her daughter, fourteen years old, had doctored for catarrh, obtaining no benefit, tried lots of other remedies, but all failed—recommended by a neighbor to try Catarrhozone. Instead of despairing, as she had good reason for doing, obtained Catarrhozone and before it was done, as she states, she was completely cured. No wonder she recommends it. Child had dropping in the throat, hawking, spitting; father thought she was going into consumption; could not sleep at night, and adds: "I only wish anyone suffering from catarrh to give it a fair trial."

Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh and colds. Large size, guaranteed, $1; medium size, 50c; small trial size, 25c. All dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

WINNIPEG MAN CURED OF RHEUMATISM

Remarkable Case of Cure After Specialists Failed.

Winnipeg, Man.—A prominent resident of this City, who for personal reasons does not wish his name mentioned publicly, but who permits us to show his letter to interested enquirers, writes to say that he was suddenly taken with excruciating pains in the back and side, which were pronounced by his physicians as Rheumatism. Hot applications were at once resorted to, the usual medicines administered, supplemented by electrical treatment, but all to no purpose. In his desperation he took Gin Pills on his own account, and in a few hours after taking the first Pill the pains commenced to subside. He continued taking them and in 48 hours he had not an ache or a pain left.

Gin Pills are sold at 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Send to us if your dealer does not handle them. Sample box free if you mention this paper.

SCIENCE AND NATURE.

No one can set down laws for earthquakes. It was just about three years ago that the writer was in Martinique when that island was in a state of constant quiver from seismic disturbances. The late Angelo Heilprin, professor of geology at Yale and one of the most distinguished scientists of the age, had come to Martinique for the purpose of looking into its earthquakes and volcanoes. He explained this theory, a very interesting one—that the earthquakes were due to a gradual subsidence of the sea bed of the Caribbean.

My home was in Brooklyn. I asked, somewhat nervously, as to whether he thought that city would ever be subjected to similar disturbances.

"I will answer that," said the careful professor, "by relating a bit of history. The late Sir William Dawson was addressing the British Association For the Advancement of Science, and the subject of his address was the stability of the Atlantic coast of the North American continent and the scientific reasons there were for believing that no great seismic movement could take place in that region.

"While in the middle of his address a cablegram was handed to him, one announcing that the city of Charleston, S. C., had been destroyed by an earthquake.

"There was a moment's pause while Sir William read the message which had so directly refuted his labored argument. Then, rising to the occasion, he read it to the audience and, folding it up, said that, while his address had dealt with the theoretical side of science, this message which he had just received was one which had to do with the practical side of nature."—New York Times.

Approves of the Fighters.

"Every schoolroom should have a picture of John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett or some other great man hanging on its walls to show the boys what physical development means," said Dr. Walter Cornell, assistant medical inspector, in an address on "Physical Defects of Children" recently delivered at the normal school, Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets.

There was an audible titter among the teachers when the speaker pronounced the names of these prize ring heroes.

"Yes, I mean it," Dr. Cornell said emphatically. "They ought to be held up as examples of physical fitness, just in the same way that we hang up 'God Bless Our Home' mottoes. They'd work by suggestion. Opposed to the statue or picture of John L. Sullivan I should suggest a representation of a physical wreck, just to give the youngster a demonstration of both extremes."—Philadelphia North American.

Where Noise Is Salable.

"You know, of course," said a watch factory foreman, "how Lynn captured the African shoe trade making shoes that squeaked loudly. The native considers the discomfort and expense of American shoes quite futile if they don't squeak as he walks like an ill greased cart wheel. We have now captured the African cheap watch trade by turning out a good dollar watch that ticks like a boiler factory. You could hear this tick through a feather mattress. In fact, natives wearing our watches tick audibly. As they swagger along, their American shoes squeaking and their American watches ticking, they give out as much noise as a brass band."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Gun With a History.

The modern sportsman who objects to a gun weighing more than seven pounds would find burdensome a gun purchased by Arthur Seran of Wewoka, Okla., from a negro farmer, eighty years old, who lives near that place. The gun was given to the old negro when he was a small boy by his master in Texas. It is a double barreled eight gauge shotgun, handmade, weighing sixteen pounds, twist barrels, muzzle loader. This gun has a remarkable history, and the old negro's master, William Kimbrew, who was one of the pioneers of Texas, in Lennon county, made many a hard fight with the gun against the Indian and Mexican marauders in the old Texas republic.—Kansas City Times.

FOREIGN MEN "PLEASING."

But Do We Choose Our Husbands Because They Are "Pleasing?"

An American girl but recently returned from Europe insists that the men of the Latin race are far and away more pleasing to women than the American men.

"I met many charming Frenchmen and other Latins," she declared, "and I found invariably that they are more attractive than our own men. Now, don't let your patriotism blind you or look wildly around for a band to play 'The Star Spangled Banner,' so you can enjoy my confusion and shame. Listen to me a minute. Isn't it quite natural, after all, that they should be? The main object in the life of the Latin man is to please women. He makes a study of it. He devotes most of his time to it. He has the love of the chase. And then, moreover, he has the background of centuries of old custom, of history. The American, I am sorry to say, does not fascinate. He does not try to please. His mind is occupied with matters which to him are far more important than being nice to women. He lacks finesse—that is the trouble.

"Remember, I speak only of superficial attractiveness. I go no deeper than that. I do not intend to discuss whether a large part of the Latin's charm is only a veneer—whether the American man has not, after all, more genuineness and solidity than the Latin. I quite agree with the saying that the Frenchman makes the best lover and the American the best husband. But the world over women like the man who makes a good lover. I feel sure that nine out of ten women who have had the opportunity of meeting a great many men of the Latin race and have felt their charm would, if given their choice, choose a man of that race."

And then, when the listener has sufficiently admired the perspicacity of the observant American girl, comes the inevitable question:

Do we choose our husbands because of their "pleasing" qualities?

FIRE WILL NOT SCORCH.

Simple Culinary Apparatus to Prevent Food From Burning.

The most careful of cooks with the many different viands in the course of preparation under her eyes will slip up occasionally and relax her vigilance for a second when some one of the articles on the stove is touched by the finger of fire. Scorched food is one of the most inexcusable offenses of the cook. A simple piece of apparatus to prevent this mishap has been devised. It consists of a metal affair resembling an inverted pie plate generously perforated with small holes. This rests on the bottom of the kettle and effectually prevents the contents from coming into contact with the overheated bottom.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

For cracked heels soak the feet in warm water a few minutes and apply equal parts of rose water and glycerin to the heels and side of the feet for three or four nights.

The feet are injured by being always so closely confined. While few persons will adopt the barefoot fad, even for the privacy of one's room, it is well to get into the habit of wearing sandals about your room whenever you are to be in it for any length of time. In this way feet get an air bath that is most beneficial.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped try to improve the latter by training the cuticle. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes. Then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to lengthen the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream. Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very dry.

Most mothers know what it is to have a child screaming with toothache. The next time your ears are so tortured try putting a little baking soda in the cavity, if there is one. The mouth should first have been rinsed with hot water. Even simpler and almost certain to give relief is hot witch hazel used to rinse the mouth. Repeat every little while until the pain is eased.

The advantage of hot water taken inwardly is well known, but not every one knows that it has been found valuable in fighting grip. A famous doctor, noted for the speedy cure of his grip patients, says he attributes his success to the fact that he always puts his patients to bed at the first sign of disease and makes them drink quantities of hot water. This should be taken at intervals of every two hours and as hot as can be drunk without burning the tongue and throat.

Dainty Sandwiches.

Nut Salad Sandwiches.—Grind English walnuts or hickory nuts in your meat grinder, mix with an equal quantity of celery chopped extremely fine and add to this mixture mayonnaise made with plenty of lemon juice. Have white bread cut thin, brush lightly with melted butter, lay on a crisp lettuce leaf, spread this with the nut and celery mixture, lay the second slice of bread upon it and serve at once.

Olive Sandwiches.—Cut the meat off the stones and chop the olives very fine. Mix with mayonnaise dressing and spread on unbuttered white bread cut very thin.

Tongue and Veal Sandwiches.—Remove from cold tongue and veal every scrap of fat, gristle and skin. Grind in your meat chopper, moisten just a trifle with soup stock and season highly with paprika and a mere dash of nutmeg. Spread lightly on thin white bread and serve very cold. A half warm meat sandwich is not appetizing. If you prefer a salad sandwich, add to the ground tongue and veal a little mayonnaise. Another very dainty meat sandwich which must be served crisp is made from white bread brushed lightly with butter, a crisp nasturtium leaf or sprig of watercress and a sliver of highly seasoned cold chicken spread with a little mayonnaise.

Brown Bread Sandwiches.—For this purpose use either Neufchatel or Philadelphia cream cheese. If the former is very hard you must moisten it a trifle with sweet milk or, better still, cream. Add just a dash of paprika to give it taste and a little salt. Finally to each cheese add half a cupful of nut meats ground in your meat chopper. English walnuts are best for this purpose. Almonds are flat in flavor. Spread this mixture on thin slices of brown bread brushed with melted butter.

Washing Hints.

To soften hard water put an ounce of quicklime into four gallons and a half of water, stir it thoroughly and allow it to settle. Then pour off the clear solution, which will be enough to add to four barrels of hard water.

Sheets, pillowcases, towels, tablecloths—all folded linens—should be laid upon the shelves with the open and hemmed ends toward the wall, the round folds outward. The effect is neater to the eye, and articles are more easily taken out.

Unknown to Science.

"Dad," he said, "they photograph comets and meteors and flying birds and lightning flashes and all sorts of moving things without any trouble, don't they?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then how is it they can't photograph a boy without putting his head in an iron frame?"—New York Herald.

Starner Measures Necessary.

"Really," said Nervey, "I want you to be my wife. Come, now, don't say 'No.'"

"Mr. Nervey," replied the heiress, "I wouldn't think of saying 'No' to you"—

"Ah!"

"It wouldn't have any effect on you, so I think the best thing I can do is to yell for the police."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Crater's Mouth.

"Now, Pearl Beem," asked the Wyoming schoolma'am during the geography lesson, "what is it that volcanoes throw up?"

"Wait a minute! I know—don't tell me!" cried Miss Beem excitedly. "It's saliva! Redhot saliva!"—Lippincott's

EPIGRAMS OF A QUEEN.

Witticisms of Marie Leczinska, the Wife of Louis XV.

The wife of Louis the Well Beloved had more need than most of the consolations of wisdom and philosophy. That she possessed them both in a marked degree is quite evident. "To great goodness Marie Leczinska joined solid information," says Imbert de Saint-Amand in "The Court of Louis XV." "She knew six languages—Polish, French, Italian, German, Swedish, Latin. Men of letters were struck by the shrewdness of her judgment on things of the mind. Several of her maxims have been preserved, which attest a lofty soul and a profound knowledge of the human heart. Here are some of them: 'We ought not to reflect more on the faults of others than will suffice to preserve ourselves from them.' 'Human wisdom teaches us to conceal our pride; religion alone destroys it.' 'To live peaceably in society we must open our eyes to the qualities which please us and shut them on the follies and caprices which shock us.' 'The women who pique themselves most on knowing what it is allowable for them to be ignorant of are those who care least about instructing themselves concerning what it is shameful not to know.' 'Many princes have regretted when dying that they had made war; we never see any who repented of having loved peace.' 'Good kings are slaves, and their people are free.' 'The only thing which can make amends for the slavery of the throne is the pleasure of doing some good.' 'In politics, as in morals, the shortest way to make men happy is to endeavor to make them virtuous.'"

WOMAN WHO WOULDN'T.

Idiotic Feminine Pose That Altogether Lacks Sense.

If some women and girls can't be great martyrs and are denied the exalted joy of being burned at the stake or otherwise sacrificed, they do not intend to blush unseen nevertheless. They fix up their own little role of martyrdom and play it to the bitter end—bitter, that is, to those who have to listen to tales of it, for, be it known, the role is milk and honey to whoever plays it.

As a rule, the feminine martyr starts in to do good to some one near and dear to her. So far so good. That surely is something to admire. But it's the way she goes about it. Perhaps it's a young brother that she's supporting. She assures you she could not earn money for herself; it's only for love of him, and that in face of the fact that she owns no property and hasn't a penny of income. Could anything be sillier or weaker or more puerile? How else would she live?

Another type, better off in worldly goods, declares that she wears pretty clothes only to please her children or her father or her friend. Why apologize? Very likely she does not make herself dangerously lovely, after all. Another enjoys a good table because her husband likes good things to eat. Again, why apologize? As well apologize for being respectable or having a little sense.

This being interesting, or at least in the limelight at all costs, is tiresome.

MANY DON'T KNOW HEART AFFECTED.

More People than Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Two Mills Using Same Quality of Wheat May Not Produce Same Quality of Flour

The quality of flour largely depends on the milling. Two mills might grind wheat of the same quality and the product of one far outclass the other. It is not only the high quality of the hard wheat used, but also the superior milling facilities, that places "PURITY" flour so far above all others. Our milling plant at St. Boniface, Manitoba, cost nearly $1,000,000, and is one of the most perfectly equipped mills in the world. The wheat itself is subjected to the most wonderful system of cleaning and scouring, passing through twenty distinct machines. Fifty-five steel rollers, the largest in Canada, reduce the wheat into flour. Then it is purified and dressed by "bolting" it through silk sifters of fine mesh. Not a "branny" particle or speck of dust is ever found in "Purity" Flour.

You may have to pay a little more for Purity, but baking results, quality and quantity, prove it is worth far more than the slight difference.

We have two other modernly equipped mills at Brandon, Man., and Goderich, Ont.

WINNIPEG MAN CURED OF RHEUMATISM

Remarkable Case of Cure After Specialists Failed.

Winnipeg, Man.—A prominent resident of this City, who for personal reasons does not wish his name mentioned publicly, but who permits us to show his letter to interested enquirers, writes to say that he was suddenly taken with excruciating pains in the back and side, which were pronounced by his physicians as Rheumatism. Hot applications were at once resorted to, the usual medicines administered, supplemented by electrical treatment, but all to no purpose. In his desperation he took Gin Pills on his own account, and in a few hours after taking the first Pill the pains commenced to subside. He continued taking them and in 48 hours he had not an ache or a pain left.

Gin Pills are sold at 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Send to us if your dealer does not handle them. Sample box free if you mention this paper.

SCIENCE AND NATURE.

No one can set down laws for earthquakes. It was just about three years ago that the writer was in Martinique when that island was in a state of constant quiver from seismic disturbances. The late Angelo Heilprin, professor of geology at Yale and one of the most distinguished scientists of the age, had come to Martinique for the purpose of looking into its earthquakes and volcanoes. He explained this theory, a very interesting one—that the earthquakes were due to a gradual subsidence of the sea bed of the Caribbean.

My home was in Brooklyn. I asked, somewhat nervously, as to whether he thought that city would ever be subjected to similar disturbances.

"I will answer that," said the careful professor, "by relating a bit of history. The late Sir William Dawson was addressing the British Association For the Advancement of Science, and the subject of his address was the stability of the Atlantic coast of the North American continent and the scientific reasons there were for believing that no great seismic movement could take place in that region.

"While in the middle of his address a cablegram was handed to him, one announcing that the city of Charleston, S. C., had been destroyed by an earthquake.

"There was a moment's pause while Sir William read the message which had so directly refuted his labored argument. Then, rising to the occasion, he read it to the audience and, folding it up, said that, while his address had dealt with the theoretical side of science, this message which he had just received was one which had to do with the practical side of nature."—New York Times.

Approves of the Fighters.

"Every schoolroom should have a picture of John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett or some other great man hanging on its walls to show the boys what physical development means," said Dr. Walter Cornell, assistant medical inspector, in an address on "Physical Defects of Children" recently delivered at the normal school, Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets.

There was an audible titter among the teachers when the speaker pronounced the names of these prize ring heroes.

"Yes, I mean it," Dr. Cornell said emphatically. "They ought to be held up as examples of physical fitness, just in the same way that we hang up 'God Bless Our Home' mottoes. They'd work by suggestion. Opposed to the statue or picture of John L. Sullivan I should suggest a representation of a physical wreck, just to give the youngster a demonstration of both extremes."—Philadelphia North American.

Where Noise Is Salable.

"You know, of course," said a watch factory foreman, "how Lynn captured the African shoe trade making shoes that squeaked loudly. The native considers the discomfort and expense of American shoes quite futile if they don't squeak as he walks like an ill greased cart wheel. We have now captured the African cheap watch trade by turning out a good dollar watch that ticks like a boiler factory. You could hear this tick through a feather mattress. In fact, natives wearing our watches tick audibly. As they swagger along, their American shoes squeaking and their American watches ticking, they give out as much noise as a brass band."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Gun With a History.

The modern sportsman who objects to a gun weighing more than seven pounds would find burdensome a gun purchased by Arthur Seran of Wewoka, Okla., from a negro farmer, eighty years old, who lives near that place. The gun was given to the old negro when he was a small boy by his master in Texas. It is a double barreled eight gauge shotgun, handmade, weighing sixteen pounds, twist barrels, muzzle loader. This gun has a remarkable history, and the old negro's master, William Kimbrew, who was one of the pioneers of Texas, in Lennon county, made many a hard fight with the gun against the Indian and Mexican marauders in the old Texas republic.—Kansas City Times.

FOREIGN MEN "PLEASING."

But Do We Choose Our Husbands Because They Are "Pleasing?"

An American girl but recently returned from Europe insists that the men of the Latin race are far and away more pleasing to women than the American men.

"I met many charming Frenchmen and other Latins," she declared, "and I found invariably that they are more attractive than our own men. Now, don't let your patriotism blind you or look wildly around for a band to play 'The Star Spangled Banner,' so you can enjoy my confusion and shame. Listen to me a minute. Isn't it quite natural, after all, that they should be? The main object in the life of the Latin man is to please women. He makes a study of it. He devotes most of his time to it. He has the love of the chase. And then, moreover, he has the background of centuries of old custom, of history. The American, I am sorry to say, does not fascinate. He does not try to please. His mind is occupied with matters which to him are far more important than being nice to women. He lacks finesse—that is the trouble.

"Remember, I speak only of superficial attractiveness. I go no deeper than that. I do not intend to discuss whether a large part of the Latin's charm is only a veneer—whether the American man has not, after all, more genuineness and solidity than the Latin. I quite agree with the saying that the Frenchman makes the best lover and the American the best husband. But the world over women like the man who makes a good lover. I feel sure that nine out of ten women who have had the opportunity of meeting a great many men of the Latin race and have felt their charm would, if given their choice, choose a man of that race."

And then, when the listener has sufficiently admired the perspicacity of the observant American girl, comes the inevitable question:

Do we choose our husbands because of their "pleasing" qualities?

FIRE WILL NOT SCORCH.

Simple Culinary Apparatus to Prevent Food From Burning.

The most careful of cooks with the many different viands in the course of preparation under her eyes will slip up occasionally and relax her vigilance for a second when some one of the articles on the stove is touched by the finger of fire. Scorched food is one of the most inexcusable offenses of the cook. A simple piece of apparatus to prevent this mishap has been devised. It consists of a metal affair resembling an inverted pie plate generously perforated with small holes. This rests on the bottom of the kettle and effectually prevents the contents from coming into contact with the overheated bottom.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

For cracked heels soak the feet in warm water a few minutes and apply equal parts of rose water and glycerin to the heels and side of the feet for three or four nights.

The feet are injured by being always so closely confined. While few persons will adopt the barefoot fad, even for the privacy of one's room, it is well to get into the habit of wearing sandals about your room whenever you are to be in it for any length of time. In this way feet get an air bath that is most beneficial.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped try to improve the latter by training the cuticle. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes. Then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to lengthen the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream. Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very dry.

Most mothers know what it is to have a child screaming with toothache. The next time your ears are so tortured try putting a little baking soda in the cavity, if there is one. The mouth should first have been rinsed with hot water. Even simpler and almost certain to give relief is hot witch hazel used to rinse the mouth. Repeat every little while until the pain is ensod.

The advantage of hot water taken inwardly is well known, but not every one knows that it has been found valuable in fighting grip. A famous doctor, noted for the speedy cure of his grip patients, says he attributes his success to the fact that he always puts his patients to bed at the first sign of disease and makes them drink quantities of hot water. This should be taken at intervals of every two hours and as hot as can be drunk without burning the tongue and throat.

Dainty Sandwiches.

Nut Salad Sandwiches.—Grind English walnuts or hickory nuts in your meat grinder, mix with an equal quantity of celery chopped extremely fine and add to this mixture mayonnaise made with plenty of lemon juice. Have white bread cut thin, brush lightly with melted butter, lay on a crisp lettuce leaf, spread this with the nut and celery mixture, lay the second slice of bread upon it and serve at once.

Olive Sandwiches.—Cut the meat off the stones and chop the olives very fine. Mix with mayonnaise dressing and spread on unbuttered white bread cut very thin.

Tongue and Veal Sandwiches.—Remove from cold tongue and veal every scrap of fat, gristle and skin. Grind in your meat chopper, moisten just a trifle with soup stock and season highly with paprika and a mere dash of nutmeg. Spread lightly on thin white bread and serve very cold. A half warm meat sandwich is not appetizing. If you prefer a salad sandwich, add to the tongue and veal a little mayonnaise. Another very dainty meat sandwich which must be served crisp is made from white bread brushed lightly with butter, a crisp nasturtium leaf or sprig of watercress and a sliver of highly seasoned cold chicken spread with a little mayonnaise.

Brown Bread Sandwiches.—For this purpose use either Neufchatel or Philadelphia cream cheese. If the former is very hard you must moisten it a trifle with sweet milk or, better still, cream. Add just a dash of paprika to give it taste and a little salt. Finally to each cheese add half a cupful of nut meats ground in your meat chopper. English walnuts are best for this purpose. Almonds are flat in flavor. Spread this mixture on thin slices of brown bread brushed with melted butter.

Washing Hints.

To soften hard water put an ounce of quicklime into four gallons and a half of water, stir it thoroughly and allow it to settle. Then pour off the clear solution, which will be enough to add to four barrels of hard water.

Sheets, pillowcases, towels, tablecloths—all folded linens—should be laid upon the shelves with the open and hemmed ends toward the wall, the round folds outward. The effect is neater to the eye, and articles are more easily taken out.

Unknown to Science.

"Dad," he said, "they photograph comets and meteors and flying birds and lightning flashes and all sorts of moving things without any trouble, don't they?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then how is it they can't photograph a boy without putting his head in an iron frame?"—New York Herald.

Sterner Measures Necessary.

"Really," said Nervey, "I want you to be my wife. Come, now, don't say 'No.'"

"Mr. Nervey," replied the heiress, "I wouldn't think of saying 'No' to you"—

"Ah!"

"It wouldn't have any effect on you, so I think the best thing I can do is to yell for the police."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Crater's Mouth.

"Now, Pearl Beem," asked the Wyoming schoolma'am during the geography lesson, "what is it that volcanoes throw up?"

"Wait a minute! I know—don't tell me!" cried Miss Beem excitedly. "It's saliva! Redhot saliva!"—Lippincott's

A NOVEL IDEA FOR A CHARITY BAZAAR

ANY girls who are planning a spring fair will find one of the most attractive novelties they can get up in a fruit and vegetable stand, presided over by an old apple woman of the typical Irish kind. One of the girls, of course, impersonates the apple woman, and she should be a girl who has some ability at brogue and repartee.

For a costume she should wear a voluminous checked gingham skirt and waist, a small plaid shawl, pinned across the chest, and either a big, round starched white cap or a straw poke bonnet. A clay pipe in the mouth will add much of realism to the make-up, and a big red cotton umbrella is a most picturesque addition to the outfit, the opened umbrella behind and over the apple woman's head being a fine background for a pretty face.

For the stand a regular push cart is the best thing, and should be hired or borrowed. But if this is not practicable, a good imitation may be made of a plain kitchen table, rather low, with a little rim a couple of inches high standing up all around the edges. The whole stand should to be really correct be painted green.

The stand must be supplied with real fruit and "surprise fruit" and imitation fruit. It partakes somewhat of the nature of a grab bag. Ordinary brown paper bags should be used to wrap the purchases.

As to the articles to be sold, the plan best followed would be to divide the stand into three sections—one for real fruit and nuts and candies, one for imitations and one for the "surprises." The imitations are easily contrived. Balls of orange colored string are to be piled up like oranges; banana shaped pin cushions of yellow silk are made, stuffed with wool wadding (cotton wadding will not do); emery cushions in the form of strawberries and radishes; tomato and cucumber pin cushions; and thimble holders made of English walnut shells opened, the meat taken out, and tiny holes burned through the shells by a red hot hairpin, a narrow ribbon being slipped through these holes to tie the two halves of the shell together. These fruits should be piled as neatly as are the real ones, a stick with a placard at the top announcing the price of each variety.

For the "surprises" there are many devices. An orange may be quickly made of the proper shade of cambric, cut in four pieces the shape of a quarter of an orange skin, and stitched together; or it may be even more simply made, though with a less lifelike look, by cutting a circle of nine or ten inches diameter and drawing up the edge with a needle and thread run around in long stitches about half an inch from the edge.

Each of these oranges will contain some little thing, such as would be put in a grab bag. The articles—a doll, a china dog, a little dish, some candies or whatever may be found available—should be wrapped in tissue paper and then in cotton batting in a ball and stuffed inside the oranges.

Sometimes real orange skins are used for this purpose, being carefully cut in quarters on the fruit, and even more carefully removed. They may be tied around the ball of cotton with a piece of ribbon or string of their own color. Banana skins, torn off in halves, may be used in the same way, filled with candies rolled in a long yellow tissue paper package and placed inside the skin.

The walnuts may be used for concealing tiny gifts, and tomatoes, cucumbers and potatoes can be made of cambric like the oranges.

Bed Draperies of Irish Linen.

PRETTY bed draperies go far toward improving the appearance of a young girl's room. This result may be attained by making a fancy spread long enough to extend from the head to the foot board and wide enough to almost touch the floor at either side, by using a full valance in connection with a narrow cover or by draping an improvised poster frame with eight curtains and a cornice flounce.

The girl who embroiders quickly may have a spread of imported Irish linen worked in white or in tints according with the room's color scheme, or she may take an ordinary white fringed spread in Marseilles pattern and embroider it with colored crewels in a long darning stitch which works up rapidly and is most ornamental. Widths of French piqué printed in Oriental and Pompadour effects are joined with bands of color embroidered plain piqué and bordered all around with knotted fringe in white or mixed colors, or with a band of piqué embroidery similar to that joining the widths.

Mercerized pongee linens and the silk and cotton pongees that come in plain pale tints with fancy borders make exceedingly effective spreads, although there is considerable waste of plain material on account of the extra yards required for bordering.

Batiste spreads which have the appearance of an overgrown handkerchief are bordered with wide hem stitching and worked in one corner with medallions, a cluster of lace motifs, an embroidered floral design or a huge monogram. Cross barred linens are treated similarly to the batiste spreads, save that the lace motifs are usually omitted and the embroidery medallions are worked into a centre design.

Daintiest of all are the spreads and drapings of allover muslin embroidery frilled with four inch plain muslin ruffles and the lace frilled and joined soutache embroidered muslin panels. But if a girl has the good fortune to possess a genuine mahogany poster the spread and drapings should be of old fashioned English chints or flowered cretonne with gimp headed narrow ruffles.

Easily Made Lingerie Caps.

Normandy crowned muslin caps have wide lace frills framing the face from ear to ear, while a somewhat narrower frill finishes the back and still further conceals the hair. Clusters of ribbon loops are placed between the peaked front of the crown and the frill and other clusters just over the ears.

Dutch caps have flat crowns of heavily meshed lace, while net or sheer muslin is employed for the "curtain" frills, which are exceedingly quaint. They are about an inch wide at the front centre, but gradually widen toward the ears and are of an even width of four inches across the nape of the neck. A wide ribbon defines the crown, whose broad effect is emphasized by big rosettes of ribbon at either side.

Practical Suggestions for the Girl Who Sews

GIRLS who prefer to sew on dainty things during Lent instead of the usual gingham aprons and flannel petticoats made up by the average sewing class may profitably employ themselves with the making of various ribbon contrivances which will sell readily at an Easter bazaar. An envelope pin book of four by six inches diameter when closed consists of a ribbon strip which has one straight end folding under a pointed end equipped with a silk cord loop which fastens over a small ornamental button. The inside of the case is padded to accommodate pins and the outside embroidered in monogram or floral design.

Work trays, made by covering an oblong piece of pasteboard with wide ribbon, have centre frames in repoussé daisy work surrounding a pin cushion which lifts to expose a needle case. Around the edges of the tray are laced fourteen spools of sewing silk.

To make lingerie ribbon reels cover a half dozen heart shaped cardboards with silk and join them with a short length of ribbon passed through eyeletted holes and terminating at the outer sides of the end hearts in ribbon rosettes. From this silken axle may neatly be pulled the various colors used for lingerie ribbons.

An eminently practical handkerchief case consists of two squares of cardboard somewhat wider and longer than the largest size handkerchief. These squares are padded with scented cotton, covered with silk and secured by a shirred ribbon covered elastic. A collapsible handkerchief case may be made of stiff flowered ribbon, three inches wide, shirred at each side over an embroidery ring, to one of which is attached a cotton padded, sacheted cardboard bottom. The bow decorated lid is formed of a ribbon covered embroidery ring a size smaller than that used for the box.

Satisfactory veil holders are made of padded and ribbon covered lengths of broom handle or curtain rod, over which the veils may be rolled and kept crisply flat and unrumpled.

THE girl who wishes to render the verandas of the summer cottage attractive should take time by the forelock and make up an assortment of pillow covers. One of the most serviceable tops is of a new material which closely resembles leather and comes in red, blue, green and leather shades made up plainly and fringed with imitation leather fringe.

Burlap covers are embroidered with flower, foliage and bird designs, or with water and rural scenes, and are finished with fringe made by fraying the edges of the face and the back of the pillow top.

Lingerie pillows are of muslin all over embroidery of batiste banded and frilled with embroidery and of dotted and sprayed Swiss. Any of the flowered lawns are pretty if finished with wide ruffles, and so are the Scotch ginghams striped in two tones of one color. Some of them have a broken tartan plaid border that makes an effective ruffle. Scotch madras in two tone or solid colors furnishes a serviceable and smart looking pillow top, and there are most attractive plain French linens in such shades as wisteria, catawba, champagne, Van Dyke brown and old rose.

Ecru scrim is an excellent material for a porch pillow cover, and is charming when decorated with Dalmatian embroidery in Oriental color combinations with embroidery silk. Cream colored scrim is used to carry the Brenta embroidered, which are done without a pattern, as is also the German cross stitch known as serial work.

For the Doeblinger work, done on colored monks' cloth, the eight-fold Germantown yarn is used to develop art nouveau or Oriental patterns.

SACHETS play an important rôle in the wardrobe of a refined girl, as the delicate perfume of the powders is all pervading yet evasive. Every drawer of the dresser should have its accurately fitted pad of thin silk, dotted Swiss, allover muslin embroidery or printed cretonne covering two sheets of wool, the lower sheet generously sprinkled with sachet powder. After the pad has been tacked in a few places to prevent it from wrinkling it should be finished with a frill of matching material with muslin embroidery or Valenciennes lace edging or with a quilling of ribbon matching the bows at each corner.

Handkerchief sachets of linen, soutache embroidered or of embroidered muslin, oblong pieces, faced with thin silk and interlined with scented batting, are first doubled at the centre and then turned inward from each end, thus forming deep pockets on the inner side similar to those fitting over a magazine cover. The edges of the "book" are bordered with a narrow silk quilling or cable cording and tied together with ribbon strings.

For lingerie frocks there should be sheet sachets, scented with lavender, which conveys the impression of country laundering and out of door drying. Shirt waist and blouse boxes should be lined similarly to the party frock wardrobe or provided with miniature sheets, modelled after those used for the box couch.

The same plan may be adopted for the hat box, but an excellent method of scenting headgear is to make a good sized soft ball of silk covered scented batting and place it in the crown. This will not only perfume the hat, but will help preserve its shape.

TO shade the candles which decorate as well as illumine the college girl's five o'clock tea table there are charming effects in paper, silk and glass. A mosaic design is of paper motled in yellow and green on white, barred with a heavy leading in soft green.

White, yellow and pink in rose and chrysanthemum effects developed in paper are to be found in bell and wreath shapes. They are adequately lined with asbestos to prevent them from catching fire.

Mission shades have oddly shaped cardboard frames in weathered oak tint, overlapping pale green, yellow and old rose paper windows.

Green paper cardboard frames, with panels filled to simulate stained glass designs, are immensely attractive, but scarcely more so than are the silk lined Japanese basket shapes and those of silk in glass beaded effect.

Hat Pins of Shell Pearl.

GIRLS who are making a collection of hatpins can find attractive novelties in white, smoked or colored shell pearl. They are in diamond, oblong, tablet, oval and cube shapes set in gold, gun metal or silver stems, as are also those carved to represent beetles, butterflies and an extensive variety of birds and animals.

Bronze metal framed, flat surfaced cabochon pin tops of amber are flecked with gold or silver particles, imitations of turquoise and New Zealand green stone, set in gold or silver, are dotted with seed pearls. A hard substance in Pompeiian red is brightened with rhinestones or pearls, while a translucent composition in dull brown and taupe shades set in bronze metal, is blocked in imitation of the clan plaided steamer rugs.

Many of the choice designs in pin tops are evidently borrowed from Oriental and other hand made work. Some of those in green silver and dull gold are set with imitation jade, malachite, turquoise, lapis lazuli, aqua marine, amethyst, enamels and topaz.

Miniatures representing Indians, old time beauties and stage favorites set into oval framed pin tops are unique and attractive, but so exceedingly conspicuous that girls of refined taste prefer to exhibit them as a portion of the collection rather than as a sartorial accessory.

Four inch diameter ball-top pins are made of Venetian, Dresden, Russian and crystal beads of every imaginable hue, many of them gold, black or silver traced. Tortoise shell pin tops are both carved and plain and on some of them are set vivid green beetles or brilliantly colored tropical bugs.

Garnets make exceptionally attractive hatpins whether set in gold or intermingled with fresh water pearls, with rhinestones or with silver beads.

Genuine rose pin tops are produced by metalizing the half-opened buds, but quite as pretty are the blossoms carved from white, pink or deep red composition, in which material are also miniature wreaths and clusters of forget-me-nots and violets.

Some Novel Desk Mascots.

GOOD luck elephants of miniature proportions are desk novelties which may be used for paper weights as well as ornaments and mascots. They are in metal or in ivoried celluloid, while the lucky pigs, which come singly or in pairs, are usually of gilt or silver plate.

Calendars are in many quaint designs, including those having different specimens of sea moss pressed on a single large sheet or on four ribbon strung small sheets of cardboard. Another attractive calendar consists of a twelve sheet book swinging from a miniature old English sign post in weathered oak.

Two pocket desk stationery holders are covered with morocco, pin seal, pigskin, Japanese embossed leather, suede and gray cloth. These materials also furnish covers for diaries, envelope clipping books, writing tablets and a set of six tiny volumes intended respectively for domestic and foreign postage, court plaster, elastic bands, clips, pens and pins.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

IT is simply surprising what unattractive little habits we may have without being in the least aware of it. Take, for instance, the sticking of a lead pencil in one's mouth to moisten it in order to have it write blacker. Every one will admit that it is not a pretty trick, yet one sees it on all sides. Scores of girls do it so habitually that they are quite unconscious of it, so strong does habit become.

It is peculiarly a feminine trick. You never saw your fathers or your brothers do it, and they do not like to see you do it—with good reason, for they know it to be uncleanly as well as unbecoming in the physically unattractive sense. Did you ever stop to think that a lead pencil is always dirty after it has been once sharpened? And surely no nice girl cares to put dirty things in her mouth! It is an offence to decency as well as bad manners. If your pencil does not write to suit you that matter is quite easily remedied by buying crayons that make heavier, blacker marks.

Another naughty, unbecoming little trick is to let the tongue stick out of one's mouth when one is reading or writing or otherwise mentally engaged. Some persons, bent on a piece of work, unconsciously open their mouths and keep them open, while the tongue hangs loosely out or moves nervously at the corner of the mouth as if it were taking an active part in accomplishing the work at hand. This display of the tongue is a puppy trick and good usage frowns upon it, for we must not have habits in common with the animals. Indeed, the great importance of all the refinements of life which make up the customs of polite society is that they teach us to live on a high plane.

The rightful place for the tongue is inside the mouth, so do not allow it to make itself useful in outside matters where it has no business to be. It is a willing, long suffering little member with about all it can properly manage in carrying on its natural functions, so do not exact of it unnatural ones or allow it to come in contact with dirt or foreign substances of any sort.

For this, as well as for the other good reason that it is unattractive, Madame Grundy says you must not give notice with your tongue. The fashionable way is not to use the mucilage provided on the envelope by the manufacturer, but to depend altogether on wax stamped with your own seal. As envelopes are very wide now, the smart thing is to place the wax on in two places, about an inch from each end of the envelope. But one may be sealing an envelope when wax is not at hand, and there are always the stamps to be reckoned with.

All properly equipped desks or writing tables should contain a small sponge in the glass receptacle which is made for desk purposes. Fresh water should be put onto the sponge every day, and there you are equipped with the proper mode of obtaining moisture for sticking purposes. As you will prefer to seal your letters with wax, the sponge serves its chief end in the matter of stamps. Never take the sponge out, but moisten the stamp by passing it lightly over the surface of the sponge, and treat envelopes in the same way should you resort to the mucilage in lieu of wax. Of course, no communications of a business nature should be sealed with wax, which in these days is used in social life purely as a fad, not as a necessity, and it is not good form to embellish business letters.

When there is neither wax nor a damp sponge about you, and you are forced to resort to natural means of obtaining moisture for sticking purposes, the tongue must not be called into play. The proper thing then is to delicately moisten your handkerchief by putting it to your lips, and apply the dampened part of the fabric to the stamp or the envelope. Never rub your hand across the envelope to make it more secure, but in an emergency, where no piece of linen is at hand, use your handkerchief. Smart people, who are nothing if not fastidious and dainty, have their maids supply them with squares of gauze for desk use, the squares being small enough to go into one of the drawers, where they are conveniently available. Immediately after use the piece of gauze is thrown into the waste basket.

Book Cover for Travellers.

A MOST useful and pretty gift to make to a friend who is sailing for Europe is a book cover. Of course, one can buy very handsome covers of brocade or burnt leather, but there is always a pleasure in giving what one has taken the trouble to make, especially for a friend. And, besides, for use on the deck of a steamer a cover that can be washed is best, so no great care need be taken to keep it clean.

The material to be used is either Utility canvas, heavy linen or duck. Cut a piece of the material eighteen inches long and nine inches wide. Turn over a quarter of an inch on each of the long sides and stitch it down. Buttonhole across the ends and turn over two and three-quarters inches at each end, pressing the edges flat with an iron. Before sewing it up embroider some simple design and your friend's monogram or initials on the front. Then overhand the edges of each inner flap to the outside very firmly, and the book cover is finished.

This is the size for an ordinary book, but of course the cover can be made larger for magazines or smaller for small books. Indeed, if you want to do so much for your friend, it is a good plan to make two or three covers of different sizes.

Tea Used for Coloring Lace.

IF you want to cleverly convert white lace into the ecru shades now all the rage, dip it in tea. The process is so simple that any novice can do it and the results are most satisfactory. Make a strong solution of tea, strain it and when it has cooled dip the lace into it, leaving it soaking in the tea overnight in a receptacle which is covered. On removing the lace the next day squeeze it gently, pin it down between two pieces of brown paper on which something heavy should be placed to press it in fashion until it is quite dry.

THE INSURANCE BILL MODIFIED

Important Changes Are Made in Insurance Act.

POLICYHOLDERS TO DIRECT

Places on Board Will Be Given to Insured as Well as to Shareholders by Measure Introduced in Commons—Limitation of Expenses and Condition of Investment Made Somewhat Broader.

Ottawa, March 9.—Hon. Mr. Fielding brought down the revised insurance bill yesterday. It contains many modifications of the features in the bill submitted a year ago and withdrawn after discussion in the banks and commerce committee.

As foreshadowed, there is more freedom allowed the insurance companies in the way of investments.

There was no change, Mr. Fielding said, with respect to assessment insurance. A proposal in relation to these institutions was made in the bill of last year, but even if that bill had been gone on with, the proposal with regard to these institutions would have been withdrawn. The principal companies in that line represented that they recognized the need of strengthening their position and desired to be left to themselves for that purpose.

There had been some changes in respect to investments. Section 60 of the new bill provides that any life insurance company which derives its corporate powers from an act of the Parliament of Canada, or which is within the legislative power of the Parliament of Canada, may invest its funds, or any portion of them, in the purchase of: (a) The debentures, bonds, stocks or securities of or guaranteed by the Government of Canada or Great Britain, or any dependency thereof, or guaranteed by the Government of any foreign country, or any state forming a portion of any such foreign country wherein the company carries on, or is about to carry on, its business of life insurance, or any school or municipal corporation in Canada or elsewhere, were the company is carrying on business. This is substantially the bill of last year.

Another change is instead of it being required that debentures must be of seven years' standing it is demanded that the company which had paid regular dividends for five years, last year's bill provided that such stocks were a proper field for investment if they had paid four per cent. for seven years. The new bill drops the four per cent. restriction and provides that the company shall have paid regular dividends for five years, without specifying the rate.

There was a proviso as to the percentage of money which may be invested in the securities of any one company, said Mr. Fielding. The object of that was to provide that the company should not create a subsidiary company and obtain a controlling interest. It was found, however, that the words of the clause seemed to be too broad. Last year's bill limited the investment to 20 per cent. of all the stocks or securities of the company. In the present bill he was distinguishing between the stocks and bonds, and it was provided that the investment may not exceed 20 per cent. in stocks, but left the company free to invest in the bonds if deemed to be good security.

Mr. Fielding next discussed expenses of management. In the last bill provision was made for limitation of the expenses on new business and at one stage it seemed that such a provision was called for. In the investigations abroad great importance was attached to this question, but when it came to be discussed with insurance men it was urged that it would be exceedingly difficult to apply a limitation of that kind without interfering with the volume of insurance. A provision had been inserted not to put any limitation on the expense of new business, particularly but to provide a limitation upon the expenses generally. Provision is made for new companies to be incorporated hereafter, thus limitation shall begin when they have had ten years of existence.

The provision in the present law that no life insurance company shall loan any of its funds to any director, shareholder, officer or clerk, is modified by a stipulation that it shall not be held to interfere with the ordinary loan to any policyholder who is entitled to receive this merely because he is an officer of the company.

Henceforward all life insurance companies shall provide for their policyholders as well as for their shareholders, having directors. A certain number of directors shall retire annually. Policyholders and shareholders are to have an equal number of directors and two of each class are to retire every year. Last year's provision that proxies shall be recognized is continued with a proviso that proxies shall not be good for more than three months. Shareholders will not be eligible to be policyholders' directors.

With respect to the classes requiring publicity of returns, Mr. Fielding said the companies objected that some of the restrictions proposed were not necessary, but it was held that publicity was the best guarantee which the public could have.

Mr. Fielding said he would ask to have the bill referred to the banking and commerce committee and in that committee the bill might again be referred to a sub-committee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday tabled the correspondence between Earl Grey and the Imperial Government relative to the delay in submitting the waterways treaty to the Canadian Parliament. On Jan. 29 Earl Grey cabled: "Following sent to Bryce international boundary waters treaty. No copy received here. When can I expect copy for my Ministers. Unfavorable comment in Canadian House of Commons because no copy available, the treaty is before United States Senate.'"

Lord Crewe's reply to this was read in the House some days ago.

On Feb 18 Earl Grey cabled: "As text of boundary treaty already published in United States press Ministers desire to present it to Dominion Parliament. Have you any objection?"

Lord Crewe's reply to this is dated Feb. 22 and reads: "With reference to your telegram of Feb. 18 Bryce reports that boundary waters treaty has not yet been published in United States, though parts have leaked out and United States deprecate publication till passed by Senate."

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, prices unchanged. Export ewes, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3.25 to $4 per cwt.; lambs, $5.50 to $6 for common, and $6.50 to $7 per cwt. for choice grain-fed, with one lot of extra fine at $7.10 per cwt.

One packing house quoted $7 for fat and watered at the market, and $6.75, f.o.b., cars, country points; another representative of a city packing house said he was paying $6.90, f.o.b. cars, country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 8.—(Special)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 6 were 1629 cattle, 121 sheep and lambs 2670 hogs and 307 calves. The offerings this morning were 1125 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 1550 hogs and 115 calves.

The supply of cattle was somewhat larger than a week ago, but this fact had no depressing influence on the market, owing to the improved demand from exporters who bought about 150 head to complete shipments with, from St. John, N.B., this week, which relieves the market of its surplus stock, and in consequence prices were maintained.

Cables from Liverpool reported the market firm at an advance of ¼c to ½c per lb., but stated that trade was slow. In addition to the above there was a large gathering of local and out of town buyers and as the weather continues to be favorable, for keeping stock, they showed a disposition to operate a little more freely on account of the fact that the prospects are that values will rule higher in the near future, consequently trade on the whole was fairly active and a good clearance was made. Choice steers sold at 5½c; good, at 5c to 5¼c; fair, at 4½c to 4¾c; medium, at 4c to 4¼c; common, at 2½c to 3¼c; choice bulls, at 4½c to 4¾c, and lower grades, at 2½c to 4c per lb. An easier feeling has developed in the market for lambs, in spite of the continued small, receipts and prices have declined ¼c to ½c per lb. The demand was good and sales of choice lots were made at 6¼c to 6½c, and good at 5¾c to 6c per lb.

The market for sheep was unchanged and trade was quiet, at 4¼c to 4½c for choice, and at 3½c to 4c for culls per lb. There continues to be a good demand for calves, of which supplies are increasing some and in consequence an easier feeling prevails in the market and prices are lower than they were a week ago at $2 to $10 each, as to size and quality. There is a firm undertone to the market for hogs. The tinues strong and prices have accordingly further advance of 15c per cwt. The supply was fair, for which the demand was good and sales of selected lots were made at $7.75 to $7.80 per cwt., weighed off cars.

PROFESSORS' PENSIONS.

Resolution In Legislature to Let Them In on Carnegie Fund.

Toronto, March 9.—Premier Whitney introduced a resolution in the Legislature yesterday which will enable retiring professors of Toronto University and University College to take advantage of Andrew Carnegie's $10,000,000 fund for superannuated professors. Premier Whitney pointed out that no college with religious affiliations was entitled to participate in the benefits of the fund, so that Toronto University was the only institution of the kind in Ontario that could derive any advantage from it. In order to do so the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council and of the Legislature was necessary.

Hon. A. G. MacKay in seconding the resolution remarked that no legal responsibility was involved and he thought it would be clear that no moral responsibility was either.

The resolution carried.

In reply to Hon. A. G. MacKay, Hon. Frank Cochrane stated that $391,950 timber dues, and $1,594 ground rents paid in 1908 were due as arrears and properly payable in 1907. No timber bonuses were so paid.

Hon. A. G. MacKay obtained an order for a return showing when a branch or sub-department of forestry was established under the Government of Ontario. The names and duties of all officials and employes. Name of any and all officials whose duty it is to deal with forest conservation or reforestration or either of them. A statement in detail of the lands that have been set aside as forest reserves and for reforestration since 1905.

Mr. MacKay briefly considered the areas under forest reserve. It was estimated that the Mississagua Reserve had three, the Temagami Reserve five billion feet. The Algonquin Park, established in 1893 had 1,001,000 acres, so that the total forest reserve area was 6,922,000 acres. Thomas Southworth, when clerk of forestry, had calculated an increase of 150 feet board measure per acre annually, which on 40,000,000 acres in Ontario was worth $30,000,000. Mr. MacKay believed the annual loss was very substantial, and almost equal to the increase. He was not adversely critical and was not suggesting any immediate danger of the forests running out, but he doubted if they were in as good a position as the City of Munich which for 1,000 years had drawn its supplies from the forest which was now in better condition than at first. He approved of the idea of natural reforesting and suggested that larger timber be left for the purpose of reseeding depleted areas.

Bible Not Infallible.

Winnipeg, March 9.—Attacking the infallibility of the Bible, Dr. S. P. Rose, formerly of Ottawa, now pastor of the Broadway Methodist Church, the most aristocratic Methodist congregation of this city, contended that they proved it was not historically infallible, and ventured the assertion that, owing to his serious doubts on this matter, he at one time thought of retiring from the Christian ministry. He would have done so but for the advice of Rev. Dr. Nelles.

Bill Before Congress May Cut Duty on Lumber.

PINCHOT IN FAVOR OF IT

Chief Forester of U. S. Is Said to Be Behind the Tariff Revision Clause Which Proposes to Reduce the Charges on Import Timber—Profits of American Lumber Interests Are Unduly Large.

Washington, March 9.—A cut of one-half in the duties on lumber and manufactures of lumber is understood to be one of the changes provided by the new tariff bill, which is printed preparatory to its final revision by the Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee. Another change that has been made, according to information from reliable sources, is that hides have been placed on the free list. There has been much contention over the duties on these two articles.

During the hearings on the lumber schedule it was claimed that the forests of the country could only be conserved by admitting foreign lumber free of duty. It is understood that Gifford Pinchot, chief forester, is preparing figures for this committee in a further effort to have lumber placed on the free list. Champ Clark, the House minority leader, claimed at the hearings that the profits of the lumber interests were unduly large. Representative Pordney of Michigan, a member of the committee, has championed the cause of the lumber men, and the latter have been working energetically to prevent the free entry of lumber. They contend that the rates of duty should be increased in order that the American industry may compete with the cheaper labor employed in Canada, and because of the better facilities for transportation afforded by the proximity of the Canadian lumber camps to waterways.

Fasts to Cure Cancer.

Marlboro, Mass., March 9.—Adelford J. Bastien, ill from cancer, is trying to carry out a fast of forty days, in the hope of curing himself. He has already fasted thirty-eight days, and yesterday he prayed that God would give him endurance to fast two days more. Eight months ago he weighed 155 pounds. To-day he weighs 50 pounds.

For thirty-nine days Bastien has taken only a quart and a half of water. Last week a clairvoyant told him that if he lived over Saturday he would regain his health. Each day he has smoked a cigar, but has taken no food. Six months ago specialists told him he could not live a week.

Extending Public Service.

Port Arthur, March 9.—It is understood T. H. McCauley, former manager of the Twin City Street Railway, discharged when the Fort William interest got control, is likely to be appointed to the management of a new system at Calgary. Extensions of the local telephone and street railway systems into the townships are being considered.

A bold attempt at purse-snatching occurred Sunday evening just after nightfall, when a man grabbed a bag carried by Mrs. Whittaker. The woman held on until hauled into the roadway, when the would-be robber, frightened with the screaming, ran.

Police Dogs Capture Three Men.

New York, March 9.—Max and Nogi, police dogs stationed at Parkville, in the outskirts of Brooklyn, distinguished themselves early Sunday morning by running down and capturing three men who were escaping from the police. For the first time since they were put on the force a year ago the highest hope of Commissioner Bingham for them was realized. They tripped the fugitives by running between their legs and held them until their masters could come up and arrest the men.

Marriage Record Not Altered.

Madrid, March 9.—The Criminal action in connection with the claim of Ernest Henri Batiste West to the Sackville peerage and estates, came to an end yesterday with the acquittal of Bolfir and Sanchez. These two men were accused of having altered the church records of the marriage of Josephine Durand de Ortega to a Spaniard named Oliva. This woman was the mother of the present claimant, and her alleged marriage to Oliva was relied on to bar his claim.

Million For Crossings.

Ottawa, March 9.—Mr. Graham's promised bill to provide for the protection of the public at level crossings will apportion the cost between the federal, provincial and municipal authorities. He has given notice of a resolution to set apart a million dollars to be expended in five years for this purpose.

The resolution says: "That it is expedient to provide that the sum of $200,000 each year for five consecutive years from April, 1907, be appropriated in the consolidated fund for the purpose of aiding in the providing of protection, safety and convenience for the public in respect of existing highway crossings of railways at rail level, and that the sums be placed to the credit of a special account to be known as the railway grade crossing fund and be applied under the authority of the board of railway commissioners for Canada."

"All Red" Wouldn't Pay.

London, March 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Glasgow Herald says there is a good deal of misplaced sentiment in the demands, such as they are, for the all-red mail and passenger route. The dominating question is, will it pay? And the answer must be, no.

Referring to the proposed external department for Canada, The Herald thinks in theory this sounds ominous of discussion and disruption, but in fact is doubtful of it. The new scheme means very much.

There seems no reason why Canada should not take more direct interest in the settlement of her frontier difficulties with the United States.

FIRST SIGNS ARE IN THE BACK

Best Not to Neglect Nature's Danger Signals When Kidneys are Involved

ANYONE CAN PREPARE IT

Take care of backache. A great many cases of kidney complaint are reported about here; also bladder trouble and rheumatism.

An authority once stated that pain in the back, loins or region of the kidneys is the danger signal nature hangs out to notify the sufferer that there is something wrong with the kidneys, which should receive immediate attention. Only vegetable treatment should be administered and absolutely no strongly alcoholic medicines, which are harmful to the kidneys and bladder.

The following prescription, while simple, harmless and inexpensive, is known and recognized as a sovereign remedy for kidney complaint. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This preparation is said to restore the natural functions of the kidneys, so they will sift and strain the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, purifying it and relieving rheumatism. Backache will be relieved, the urine will be neutralized and cleared and no longer a cause of irritation, thereby overcoming such symptoms as weak bladder, painful frequent and other urinary difficulties.

Voters' Lists Not Stuffed.

Winnipeg, March 9.—The report of the committee appointed to investigate the charges against the Manitoba election lists has been prepared. The report states that the statements of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Clifford Sifton that the lists were stuffed were absolutely unfounded. A few cases where names were left off were discovered, but in every case it was shown that it was purely an error.

Elevator Fell.

Brantford, March 9.—Compressed air compartment at the foot of a four-storey elevator shaft saved the life of John Van Camp at the Massey-Harris works yesterday. A drive pin broke, letting the elevator fall the full distance. The platform rebounded several times when it struck the air at the bottom. Van Camp was unconscious from fright, but sustained no injuries.

Manitoba Club Licenses.

Winnipeg, March 9.—Some radical amendments were made in the Liquor License Act in the law amendments committee yesterday morning pertaining to the regulation of clubs.

Three hundred dollars for annual license was agreed on, while for clubs elsewhere in the province a license of $100 was cut down to $50.

Fatal Quarrel.

Winnipeg, March 9.—A special from Devil's Lake, N.D., says: Cashier Bryant of the Great Northern freight depot, yesterday shot and fatally wounded Agent O. J. Hoeper, and then shot himself.

There had been ill-feeling between the pair. Both were married and have families.

Grain at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, March 9.—Grain is again beginning to come to the local yards in large quantities. There are now 150 cars in the Canadian Northern yards being transferred to elevators. This is mostly sold for May shipment. It is expected that the movement of grain will now reach such proportions that it will be necessary to increase the elevator staff.

Soo Votes Bonus.

Sault Ste. Marie, March 9.—Only 12 voted yesterday against the bonus of $5,000 a year for 20 years for the proposed drydock. Of this amount one-half will be repaid in school taxes.

Stabbing Affray.

Quebec, March 9.—At about 11 o'clock last night, while quarreling together on King street, St. Roch, a young man named Nolan was stabbed four times in the abdomen by Alfred Dube.

Stole Electric Light Bulbs.

New York, March 9.—Following patient detective work covering a period of nearly two years, five men were placed under arrest here yesterday, charged with having stolen between $25,000 and $30,000 of incandescent light bulbs from the Edison company. The thefts are said to have been committed uninterruptedly since September, 1907.

Turkish Consul a Grafter.

Washington, March 9.—Three hundred thousand erstwhile Ottoman subjects, now living in the United States, have petitioned Kaisim Bey, Turkish ambassador to the United States, to urge that Munji Bey, Turkish consul in New York, be deposed for acts termed by them "grafting," in overcharging for passports, etc.

Renounces Claim to Throne.

Lisbon, March 9.—The Seculo says that the pretender, Dom Miguel of Braganza, has declared his intention to renounce all claim to the throne of Portugal, out of sympathy for King Manuel. Dom Miguel will take part in the work of regenerating the country.

Shoots Girl and Self.

Providence, R.I., March 9.—Carmello Destino, 21 years, and his sweetheart, Christina Palmieri, 18 years, were taken to the Rhode Island Hospital yesterday afternoon, both suffering with bullet wounds, which the police say were inflicted by Destino.

THE INQUEST TO BEGIN TO-MORROW

Hamilton Authorities Prepare For Kinrade Inquiry.

TRAMP THEORY DROPPED

Police Are Now Satisfied That Murderer Knew Ethel Kinrade — Evidence To-morrow Will Point to Hamiltonian Who Has Shown Signs of Homicidal Mania—Blackstock Will Examine.

Hamilton, March 9.—The City Council last evening approved of the action of Mayor McLaren in offering a reward of $500 for the capture of Miss Ethel Kinrade's murderer.

George Tate Blackstock, K.C., will likely conduct the examination of Miss Florence Kinrade at the inquest Wednesday evening. The police intimate that they do not expect any developments until after the inquest.

The police theory seems to be:

(1) That Miss Florence Kinrade's memory cannot be trusted for any effective help in solving the mystery.

(2) That a considerable time must have elapsed between the firing of the first shot and the giving of the alarm.

(3) That no casual tramp or housebreaker would stand over the body, waiting to see if life remained. The inference is almost inevitable that the murderer knew that he or she would be recognized by Ethel Kinrade should she recover.

The statement which, it is said, Drs. Balfe and Edgar will make at the inquest to-morrow, is to the effect that, as shown by the flow of blood, fully 15 minutes must have elapsed between the shots fired in the face and those which were discharged into the girl's breast.

Dr. Victor Carmichael, who assisted Dr. Balfe at the postmortem, says he will defy anyone who says that any great time elapsed between the firing of the shots.

Estimates are now given that eight bullets were used.

Speaking generally, the evidence to be presented will point to a resident of Hamilton whose actions have at times indicated a form of insanity which frequently results in homicide. If in seeking a solution of the mystery the detectives have had to look elsewhere than right in the city of Hamilton, the evidence needed has been sought in but three other places, Buffalo, Norfolk, Va., and Toronto, and was in part obtained by calling in the help of Provincial Detectives Greer and Rogers, who worked elsewhere while Provincial Detective Miller has been working on the Hamilton and Toronto ends since the tragedy.

Liberals Gain Lead.

Edmonton, Alberta, March 9.—With nomination day just one week off, Liberals still hold the advantage in the large number of candidates in the field.

There has up till yesterday been 34 Liberals nominated and 25 Conservatives. There are also six Socialists and Independents, who have announced their intention of entering the contest. Present indications are that four or five seats will be given to the Liberals by acclamation. One seat in Edmonton has already been conceded and it is probable that Lacombe, Sturgeon, Victoria and Sedgewick, will also go by the boards.

Marine Association Protest.

Ottawa, March 9.—A deputation representing the Dominion Marine Association waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Messrs. Graham and Pugsley yesterday morning to protest against the proposed scheme of a New York company to dam the Long Sault Rapids in the St. Lawrence river for power purposes.

Transvaal Gets Access to Sea.

Durban, South Africa, March 9.—The Natal Mercury announces that an arrangement was signed at Johannesburg on Friday under which Great Britain takes over the Lourenco Marques Railway and port, as part of the Union Railway system, thus giving the Transvaal direct access to the sea.

New Witness Has Stated That He Saw Murdered Girl Shortly Before Crime

REV. FATHER McCOLL PRESENTS PROPOSITION TO THE CITY COUNCIL TO ERECT A NEW HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE TO RELIEVE THE PRESENT OVERCROWDING WHICH IS NOW BEING EXPERIENCED

Young Man Gave Two Notes In Payment Of A Horse But They Are Long Since Overdue

Ernest Buck was remanded for 8 days at the police court this morning on a charge of obtaining a horse by false pretences, in order to allow his friends to make restitution to the complainant, Mr. Allan McCarthy. The Magistrate suggested this means, of settling the case, stating that he did not care to sentence such a young man to gaol. He said that probably the money could be paid or the horse returned to its owner.

The Evidence.

Mr. Allan McCarthy, the complainant, was the first witness. He had a horse deal on the 9th of February with the prisoner. Mr. McCarthy had advertised a horse for sale and the accused came to buy. He asked $5 for the animal, cash payment. Buck asked for a little time to pay for it and he would buy it. He said that he was in business and had a team on the road delivering for Geo. Stevens. He gave his home as Peterborough, but said that he had formerly belonged to Norwood. Mr. McCarthy suggested waiting until the next day to close the deal, but Buck said that he couldn't as he was leaving town on the following morning. The deal was then put through. Buck gave two notes in payment, one for twenty dollars and the other for thirty dollars.. The notes were long overdue.

Mrs. McCarthy was a witness of what had taken place between her husband and the prisoner. She corroborated her husband's evidence.

Percy Frances knew the prisoner. He traded horses with him on the 22nd of February. He knew that the horse at one time belonged to Mr. McCarthy. He did not know anything as to how the prisoner procured it. The animal was well worth fifty dollars.

Wm. Ashley had only known Buck about two months. He peddled for George Stevens. He did not know of the prisoner owning any team.

Coleman Lasey said that Buck boarded at his place. He was sure from what he had heard the prisoner say that he owned nothing.

George Stevens gave evidence as to when the prisoner was in his employ.

Miss Lizzie Buck, an aunt of the prisoner, was called. He was not nineteen years of age until July. His reputation had previously been good.

Asks Guarantee That Grant of $1.50 For Each Poor Person Be Given For 15 or 20 Years---Will Erect Building This Summer If This Promise Is Given---Does Not Really Pay The Expenses.

QUESTION TO BE CONSIDERED

Judging by Rev. Father McColl's statement at the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night, it is highly probable that another House of Refuge will be erected during the coming summer to be especially devoted to the aged poor of the city. At the present time the House of Providence is overcrowded on account of the children and old people being together. Unless some further provision is made for the inmates that institution will not receive the grant made by the Government. The proposed building will be for the Catholic aged poor in particular but as in the House of Providence no one will be refused admission as long as there is accommodation for them. The building will be constructed for the future and will therefore be large and spacious and for years to come it is expected that there will be more than sufficient room for the Catholic poor.

Inspector's Report

Rev. Father McColl stated to the council that the inspector had recently visited the building and had refused the usual Government grant unless there is more provision for the inmates. There are at present over one hundred children being cared for and the present condition is practically contrary to the law. It is therefore necessary to separate them.

"We are willing to do a great deal," Father McColl stated.

"Of course the law requires the city to maintain its poor. We are willing to build a new House of Providence provided we receive some consideration from the city. We do not feel able to go on and erect a new building that will cost about $30,000 and still sup-

Saw Murdered Girl On Street, Says Witness New Developments In Hamilton Murder Case

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Hamilton, March 9.—The latest development in the Kinrade murder mystery is the discovery of a new witness who will give evidence at the inquest to-morrow night. This is Charles Hossack, 140 Herkimer St., wholives about a block west of the Kinrade home. On the afternoon of the murder between 2 and 2:30 o'clock, Mr. Hossack was painting his front porch, when he saw Miss Ethel Kinrade walk past his house. The girl was alone and soon passed out of sight. Mr. Hossack did not see her return. This is the first intimation that the unfortunate young woman had been out of the house barely an hour before she was murdered.

The North Country Is Well Adapted For Agricultural Purposes, Says Mr. A. W. Ponton

Mr. A. W. Ponton, C.E., who for the past six years has been engaged in governmental work, surveying and exploring in the country north of the Peace and Athabasca Rivers, left for Edmonton yesterday, after spending a few days in Peterborough, visting Mr. and Mrs. Montizambert. Mr. Ponton is a brother of Mrs. Montizambert. He had many interesting things to say of that vast section of country in which he has been working, and is pronounced in his opinon that a very large portion of it is fit for agriculture.

He has eaten tomatoes grown at Fort Vermilion, and deduces from this fact alone that in any country where such a tender plant can flourish and come to maturity, hardier ones should certainly thrive. Cereals certainly do well there, but there is some difference of opinion in regard to the durable character of the soil, and it is in order to fully determine this point that Mr. Ponton is returning to Edmonton. He intends to start out on his trip in April.

Presentation Was Made To Mr. W. J. Howson And Family On Eve Of Their Departure

South Dummer, March 2.—Mr. W. J. Howson and family wer pleasantly surprised when about one hundred and fifty of their neighbours and friends gathered at their home to bid farewell and extend their good wishes. A very bright, social evning was spent in games, songs, recitations and speches, refreshments being abundantly supplied by the ladies. During the evening Mr. Howson was presenter with a beautiful Oak Rocker, Mr. Christopher with a very handsome secretary and picture, and Miss Gertrude with a very useful as well as handsome music cabinet and bracket. Though very much touched by these unexpected tokens of kindly feeling each made a suitable reply and thanked their friends for their thoughtful generosity. Mr. Howson and family will carry with them to their new home, near Peterborough, only the warmest feleing and best wishes for their old neighbours who for so long shown them such unfailing kindness. The address accompanying the gifts read as follows:

Dear Friends,—We your friends and neighbours, having learned with deep regret, of your intended departure, from our midst, have gathered here to-night, that we may express to you, something of the high esteem with which we have regarded you.

We have heard you remark, "This is a good neighbourhood to live in," but we would remind you that "A man's Neighbours are largely what he makes them." You, as a family, by your ready and willing hands, have during the last twenty-five years, proven yourselves worthy of our greatest confidence. Not only in neighbourly relations have you proven yourselves worthy, but also as friends. In times of pleasure you have always been willing to take your place and many an evening has been made a real success by your willing contribution. In times of trouble no hand was more welcomed, no words more sympathetic than yours. Thus we can speak of your friends in the words of Philip Brooks, "Friendship! mysterious cement of the soul! Sweetness of life, and solder of society!

We owe thee much."

On Washington's monument is engraved this sentence:—"There is as much greatness of mind in owning a good turn as in the doing of it." Thus that we seem not ungrateful, we would have you accept these articles, not so much from the standpoint of their real value but as a continuous evidence of the high esteem in which we hold you. May they, as you use them in your new home, bring back to your memories only the most pleasant recollections of your years in South Dummer.

We trust that a smiling Providence will long look down upon you, and grant to you all many, many years of health, happiness and prosperity in your new home.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

City Will Make Provision To Entertain The Members Of The Canadian Press Association

The Committee of the Whole Council held a meeting last night with all the members present, and Mayor Rush in the chair.

A letter was received from representatives of the Examiner, Review and Times calling the attention of the Council to the visit of the Canadian Press Association on Saturday, March 27. This is a gathering of a large number of the foremost newspaper men of Canada and is an annual affair. They will arrive in the city in the morning and lunch at one o'clock at the National and Oriental hotels. During the day the visitors will visit the Canadian Cordage Works, Canadian General Electric Works and Quaker Oats establishment, and make a general trip to the places of chief importance. The letter stated that one of the results of the visit would be a good advertisement for the city as the newspaper men will very likely individually write up Peterborough and give it a prominence which could not be otherwise obtained. It was moved by Ald. Hicks that this matter be left to the Legal and Reception Committee and that they report back to the Committee of the Whole Council regarding the entertainment the city will provide. The members of this committee are Ald. Turner, Chairman, Ald McIntyre, Metheral and Duffus.

Mr. R. B. Rogers Selected By The Council To Prepare Estimates Regarding Auburn Dam

The special Power Committee of the Council met last night with all the members present.

Chairman Ald. McIntyre stated the meeting was called for the purpose of considering the power question. It was time for the city to make some move towards forming a power policy. There was one thing to be considered and that was the purchase of the Auburn dam and securing an engineer to make a report on it.

The question raised by one alderman was who was the best man for the city to engage.

Ald. Phelan asked if Mr. R. B. Rogers would not be suitable. Ald. Morgan agreed with this and then moved that Mr. Rogers be asked the cost of making a report on the Auburn dam, the amount of power available, the cost of a new dam and the cost of a power house at the water works dam and how much power would be available there. The report to include the cost of electrical equipment and distribution of power. This was seconded by Ald. Phelan and it carried.

Charity Board Decides To Appeal To The Authorities To Put Man On Indian List

William Jordan, a resident of the fifth ward has incurred the disfavour of the members of the Charity Board. His wife,it was stated worked hard for her family but the husband has been one of the unemployed for months. This was not the condemning feature however. It was further remarked that Jordan was able to secure drink and had often got what might be termed too much for his equilibrium. The Board wanted to know if they could not take steps to prevent Jordan from obtaining beer or whiskey. Only one dollar in charity had been asked for by the family. On motion it was decided to have the chairman and relief officer take the necessary steps to have Jordan placed on the Indian list.

This Man's Honesty Evaporated As Soon As He Got The Groceries A Minister Paid For

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt told an experience of his own at the meeting of the Charity Board last night. He said that a man had come to him stating that he was out of work but had promise of some which he was to begin in a week. He did not want to accept charity but he would like to be given five dollars worth of groceries and he would return the money when he received his first wages. Dr. Langfeldt was impressed with the story and told him to call at one of the grocery stores across the river and obtain the required provisions. The man did this and Dr. Langfeldt paid the bill, but Mr. Honesty did not return with the five spot. It was learned that he had intentions of going to work but up-to-date had no opportunity of getting anything to do.

Is The Sale Of Chattels By Mortgagor A Crime? Interesting Case Argued In Police Court

George Sexsmith appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. He was charged with, during the month of June, unlawfully and without colour of right stealing 4 heifers, the property of Martin A. McNamara, the chattel mortgage thereof, contrary to the provisions of the criminal code.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution, and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. McNamara Mr. A. P. Poussette, K. C., defended Sexsmith. He elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty. Judgment in the case was enlarged for eight days.

Objection Overruled

Mr Poussette submitted that the information disclosed no offense, the owner of the cattle being described as only a mortgagee and as the criminal code did not make the sale by the mortgagor of chattels a crime, there was no offence.

This was overruled by His Worship, Crown Attorney R. E. Wood referring Mr Poussette to section 352. Mr. Wood put in chattel mortgage dated 25th March, 1907, from James and George Sexsmith to Martin A. McNamara for $2,500, it covering all the chattels on the farm

Mr. N. A. McNamara was called. He took a chattel mortgage from George and James Sexsmith in March, 1907, covering all chattels on lot 9 in concession nine and lot 9 in concession ten. The accused and his brother were the tenants of that property. He gave them no permission to part with anything on the farm with the exception of a team of horses. He had heard that other things had been sold. Upon investigation he learned that one yearold heifer and three two-year-old ones were missing. He did not speak to the defendants about it. He could not say whether they were the same heifers as were mentioned in the chattel mortgage.

Mr. Jas. Dunlop was called. He stated that he purchased four heifers from Sexsmith in June or July, 1908. He paid $44 for them. He paid $5 on them when making the sale and on the following day brought them to his farm.

Mr. Hughes Charles, Manager of the Bank of Commerce, gave evidence as to discounting a note for Sexsmith for $510 on Sept 24th, 1907

Judgment Reserved.

His Worship intimated that he did not believe the defendant had any intention of stealing when he sold the heifers. He had not done what was right but he felt that he had done it, not being acquainted with the law in respect to selling goods under mortgage. He stated that he would give judgment in eight days.

Latest "Silver-Lined" News From The Great Gowganda Mining Camps For Examiner Readers

The Examiner's correspondent at Elk Lake has found time to scribble off the following interesting items:

Elk Lake, March 9.—(Special correspondence.)

Church Service in Theatre.

The Presbyterian missionary, Mr. Ellis, who has carried on faithfully the work of the church in this corner of the mission field for several months has been shifted to Gowganda, and the Rev. J. J. Wright, formerly of Dawson, has taken his place. The congregation have engaged the large theatre tent for Sunday services, and yesterday the tent was filled to the doors at the evening service. On week nights it is occupied by a moving picture show, which is attracting large crowds.

Wedding at Elk Lake.

The first wedding at Elk Lake, so far as your correspondent is aware, took place last Sunday. As there is no issuer of marriage licenses here yet the banns of Alfred Lapierre and Bertha Chertrand were published at the Presbyterian services, and the couple were married after the morning service by Rev. Mr. Wright.

Stables are Overcrowded.

The number of horses engaged in freighting and drawing stages is extraordinary, and although there are stables built all over the town, many horses have to stand in stable alleyways or in flimsy sheds because of the overcrowding.

A Tenderfoot Road.

The road from Charlton here is a very good one, but the engineer who laid out the road to Gowganda must certainly have been a tenderfoot in roadmaking. In one place the road goes up over a steep, narrow, hogback hill, about seventy or eighty feet high and down again at the other end, while there is a level valley running the whole length of it. An experienced bushman would have made a much better location.

Mine Here to Stay.

There seems to be no question of the permanency of the mine workings both here and at Gowganda. Every day fresh strikes are made, and wherever sinking is being done it seems to be the invariable rule that the ore improves with depth.

A Wharf Needed.

A petition is being circulated asking the Dominion Government to build a wharf on the south side of the river, and this will doubtless be done, as it is badly needed for the summer delivery of freight.

"Blind Pigs" are Growing.

The "blind pigs" continue to grow and flourish. There are about a dozen at least doing a rushing business day and night. One can stand in the middle of the town and see half a dozen of men wending their way to the different "booze joints" within sight. Some day the Provincial Constable, who is here to maintain law and order, will discover them and then there will be trouble.

Coal Oil Famine.

There was a coal oil famine one day last week—none in town—and the people with cans were running all over the town site trying to beg or steal a little coal oil. One hardware merchant got in six barrels at the latter end of the week, but it was all sold out the next day.

Bread, Ten Cents a Pound.

Potatoes are also a seldom-to-be had luxury, and the price is prohibitive—about $4 per bag, and generally half frozen and short weight at that. Chuck steak is selling at 20 cents per pound. This last is an outrage, as first-class flour only costs the bakers $3.75 per hundred delivered here. Your correspondent bakes his own bread. The bakers' prices would spell ruin to a poor newspaper man.

Lots Come High.

Real estate is booming—twenty-five hundred and even three thousand dollars have been paid for a lot close to the business centre, and lots further out command prices ranging from five hundred to fifteen hundred dollars.

Stole the Bell.

Some thief stole the bell used for the Presbyterian service early last Monday. The bell was made of about six feet of chilled steel made into a triangle, and hung from a tree outside the tent. Evidently some one needed some drills for development work.

Thefts are Prevalent.

Stealing is getting altogether too prevalent in Elk Lake and along the road. Nearly every teamster is bewailing the loss of part of his outfit. A week's supervision by the Northwest Mounted Police would work a great change in the habits of the light-fingered gentry.

Coroner In Buvabik, Minnesota, Looking For Friends Of Man By Name John Patterson

Mr. T. Cavanagh, of the Cavanagh House, received the following letter, which he handed over to Chief Roszel:

Buvabik, Minn., March 4, 1909.

Mr. T. Cavanagh,
Peterborough, Can.

Dear Sir,—A man by the name of John Paterson died here on Feb. 22nd last. I could not find any letters or papers among his effects that would give any clue as to who his friends are. Today a man by the name of Morris Irwin, who was acquainted with him told me his former home was in Peterborough, and gave me your name and address.

If you know of his friends and inform them and they wish to learn further particulars they can write me.

Yours sincerely,
H. G. SEELEY,
Dep. Coroner, Buvabik.

Mr. Cavanagh did not know of any such man, nor did Chief Roszel. If anybody knows relatives of the deceased they will please communicate with Chief Roszel.

CANADA'S STEAM RAILWAYS

The total steam railway mileage in Canada on June 30, 1908, was 22,966 miles, or an increase of 514 miles over the preceding year. At the same time there were under construction in the Dominion 4,327 miles of road, of which 750 miles have since been put inoperation. Of the total mileage 7,932 is in Ontario, the increase for the year being 294 miles.

The amount invested in privately owned railways totals $1,239,295,013, and in Government roads $325,345,031, or a grand total of $1,564,640,044.

The recently issued report of the Minister of Railways gives some further interesting statistics of railway business during the year. The total number of passengers carried was 34,044,992; average receipts per mile per passenger, 1.92 cents; average passenger trip, 61 miles; passengers per train, 54; passenger train mileage, 39,954,349; freight handled 63,071,167 tons; gross earnings, $146,918,313; average per mile, $6,389; operating expenses $107,504,142; percentage of operating expenses to gross earnings, 73.04; net earnings, $39,614,171; amount of taxes paid, $1,309,399.

There was an increase both in passenger train mileage and in number of passengers carried. In gross earnings there was an increase of $180,098, but this was more than offset by an increase of $355,470 in operating expenses. Twenty-nine of the eighty-seven roads had deficits on the year's operations.

There was some improvement in the matter of railway casualties. The total number of persons employed on Canadian railways was 100,739, of whom 224 were killed, and 1,793 injured. The total number of persons killed, employees and public, was 449, or 149 less than in the preceding year. The injured totalled 2,347.

Facility of transportation is the measure of the quality of civilization.

CANADA'S WAYS TO THE SEA.

The importance of the internal waterways of Canada derive an additional degree of importance when our neighbours to the south of us take so deep an interest in them; not so much on account of friendly interest in us, but because our waterways threaten to exalt Canada's water traffic conditions above those of our neighbours. The Engineering News of New York of a late date, gives a considerable amount of attention to Canada's deep water-way transportation route. It is good enough to prefer the Welland Canal route to the proposed Georgian Bay route. It says:

It is true that the distance would be somewhat greater by the St Lawrence route. In figures, the distance from Sault Ste Marie to Montreal, by way of Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario and the St. Lawrence, is 943 miles; whereas by the Georgian Bay route it would be 661 miles. But the saving in distance by the Georgian route would be fully offset by the reduced speed through narrow channels and the delay in passing through the greater number of locks required. There are other reasons why the Lake and St. Lawrence route would be more attractive for navigation. The winter climate is less severe, so that the period of navigation would be longer; and the route lies through the most populous and wealthy section of Canada, where the largest amount of local traffic could be developed.

The News also points out that construction work would be more cheaply done along the St Lawrence route. It is evident that self-interest leads the News to take or rather insist upon this view. It urges the superior advantages of this route in relation to the advantages the United States would derive for its selection. In this connection it says:

If the Canadians start the ball roling by promptly enlarging the Welland Canal, and particularly if they follow this up with the enlargement of the St. Lawrence canals, there can be little doubt that a few years hence will see the shipping of the Lakes coming down to New York city as well as Montreal, and voyaging through Long Island Sound and along the Atlantic coast as well as in the Lower St. Lawrence.

Canada will get her full recompense for this seeming final division of traffic from her seaports in the enlarged prosperity of her western provinces and in the tolls which she could readily charge upon a route offering such great advantages to commerce.

What concerns Canada is to take the course that is best in her own interests, and within her resources. Though we recognize our duty to our neighbours it is no part of our plan to give first consideration to United States interests in regulating our transportation facilities. This plan involves not so much consideration of the development of trade as the provision of transportation for the trade already developed and developing with great rapidity in the Canadian West. If United States trade follows the Canadian route so much the better. It has already done so to a considerable extent very much, owing to the liberal policy of the Government in remitting canal tolls on whose advantage the News lays so much stress.

From Port Arthur, the head of internal navigation, to the Atlantic Ocean, at Belle Isle, the distance is 2,259¼ miles; of this open navigation is 2,188¾ miles and canal navigation 73½ miles.

DUTIES ON WOOD, PAPER, AND PULP.

(Toronto Star.)

A report of the select committee of the House of Representatives on pulp and paper contains some interesting information, and some important recommendations for tariff reduction. It is shown that about 5,280,000 cords of spruce were consumed in the United States east of the Rocky Mountain in 1907, and that 924,491 cords were imported from Canada in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908. The amount of standing spruce in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains is estimated roughly at an amount equal to seventy million cords, and the annual production at 1,540,000 cords. "It is quite evident says the report. "that there is not to-day enough spruce forest standing in the United States to furnish a future constant supply based upon the present methods of manufacture, the probable needs of the future, and the present methods of forest conservation and waste."

The committee recommends that measures be taken to encourage the production of spruce, and that if necessary, the Government of the United States should start large tracts of spruce forest. The most important recommendations for us are those which relate to the tariff.

The policy aimed at in these recommendations is to encourage the importation from Canada of ground pulp, and spruce wood. It is proposed to admit mechanically ground wood pulp free, from any country, or Province which does not impose an export duty, or any duty or fee levied with the same object, upon pulpwood. If such a duty be imposed the tax will be one-twelfth of one per cent. per pound, dry weight. The duty on chemical wood pulp unbleached is to be one-sixth of one cent per pound dry weight, and on bleached one-fourth of one per cent per pound dry weight, provided no export duty or similar charge is imposed. If it be imposed the amount is to be added to the duty on the chemical pulp. The duty on newsprint paper is to be reduced to about $2.00 per ton, equivalent to five per cent., ad valorem, unless the paper comes from a country which imposes an export duty. In the latter case the amount of the export duty and an additional duty of two-tenths of one per cent per pound are to be added.

It would have been better if the committee had not inserted the provision relating to export duties. Naturally we want to preserve our spruce, as our neighbours want to preserve theirs. We also desire to export the products of our spruce forests in the form of paper, not in the form of wood. If the American manufacturers of paper want our spruce, they are welcome to it, but we want them to establish mills in Canada, not to ship out the raw material and turn it into paper in the United States. If an export duty be imposed in Canada, it will be with this object, namely, to encourage the manufacture of paper in Canada, instead of the export of the raw material.

Even if the export duty had the effect of excluding our pulp and paper from the United States, it would only be a temporary disadvantage, for as the scarcity of spruce in the United States became acute, their manufacturers would be obliged to come to Canada. The delay would do us no harm, and might do us good. Meanwhile other parts of the world require be supplied with paper, and our mills will be in a better position supply the foreign demand, for the reason that an export duty would cheapen pulpwood.

The attempt of the United States to control Canada's action is on the face of it futile. We have the whip-hand of the situation. The United States paper mills must, if we say so, come over here and manufacture that wood into paper. Famine-threatened men are not in a position to lay down stipulations regarding the supplies for which they stand in need. Canada's policy as to her pulpwood can, therefore, follow the lines laid down by our own ultimate interests without being turned aside by Congressional bluffing.

Shoots Sister's Abductor.

Chicago, March 9.—Frank Serino was shot and killed because, a week ago, according to his slayer, he held a revolver to the head of Mrs. Josie Fresso, 19 years old, a bride of ten days, and forced her to elope with him to New York City. Serino's slayer was the brother of Mrs. Fresso.

Aeronauts Nearly Drown.

Antwerp, March 9.—Henri Leblanc and Louis Dupont, French aeronauts, had a narrow escape from death by drowning yesterday while crossing the River Scholdt in a balloon. Their balloon fell into the water, and the two men were forced to climb into the rigging.

Barrister In Trouble.

Edmonton, March 9.—Application was made in the Supreme Court yesterday to have William Laurie of Cardstown suspended as a barrister for retaining unlawfully the money of Vancouver clients. Judgment was reserved.

Incendiary In Postoffice.

Truro, N.S., March 9—Sunday night in Truro postoffice three distinct fires were found in the basement by an employe who smelled smoke, and going to the basement observed the fire among the paper near a stairway.

Powder Mills Blow Up.

Wilmington, Del., March 9.—One man was killed and several were slightly injured yesterday by an explosion which destroyed two paper mills. The country for miles around was shaken.

Tan Bark From Africa.

London, March 9.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that a scheme is afoot for shipping Natal jattle bark to Canada in place of the large quantities of mangrove bark from West Africa at present imported for tanning purposes.

Roosevelt Jabbed Again.

Washington, March 9.—The order of the Secretary of the Navy, given at the direction of President Roosevelt, abolishing the navy yards in Pensacola, Florida, and New Orleans, La., was yesterday revoked by Secretary Meyer.

Negro Burned at Stake.

Rockwell, Texas, March 9.—After burning Anderson Ellis, a negro, who attempted to assault Mrs. Arthur McKinney, at a stake in the public square of this little town late Sunday night, the crowd quickly dispersed. As the flames licked about him the man did not utter a cry nor show any symptoms of losing his nerve. Ellis had resisted arrest, firing seven shots at the posse in pursuit.

The Sundew.

A striking illustration of the adaptation of plants to their surroundings is shown in the sundew. This plant flourishes in boggy places; but, being fleshy in nature, it needs nitrogen, sulphur and other means of sustenance that the boggy soil cannot supply, for these substances have been dissolved out of it. Here nature steps in and gives the needed elements to the plant by feeding it with insects whose bodies contain those elements. It has glands that secrete a viscid fluid that glitters like dewdrops, and this fluid attracts and holds the insects. After an insect is caught the glands curve inward, thus preventing it from escaping, and the leaf digests it.

To Bring Back a Card.

After you have shuffled the pack and placed it upon the table you let any person draw forth the lowest card, of which there should be two alike at the bottom of the pack. Tear it in small pieces and throw them out of the window. You then assure the company that the pieces just thrown out will join themselves together and return as a whole to the pack. You raise the window and call, "Come, come, come!" Then approach the table, assuring your spectators that the mutilated card has returned complete to its old place in the pack, and let them satisfy themselves that such is the fact.

STRUGGLING SINGERS.

A Great Army of Vocalists Eager For Engagements.

At present there are not as many Americans as usual in Milano—possibly the late crisis may have something to do with the state of affairs—but the city is flooded with Russians, eager to obtain a chance to appear on the boards and willing to pay well for an engagement lasting off and on for six months, a year or even two for the sake of experience.

In Milan, the commercial center of music, all engagements are made through agents, of whom there are from seventy-five to a hundred. Most of these publish a long list of their clients, and it is seldom that the same name appears in two different lists. The one now before me—one of the best—gives the names of 933 artists. These may be divided into three classes: (a) Those who do not desire an engagement, having a long contract (among these are the names of Caruso, Tetrazzini, Alda, Bonci and others equally well known); (b) those having short engagements, ending in a month or two, and (c) those who have nothing to do.

Remember, this is only one list, that it mentions only tried artists and that behind these is an army of singers who have studied from two to three years and are eager for an engagement; that foreigners do not have an equal chance with natives, and one has little idea of the difficulties a beginner and a foreigner has to encounter.

Caruso with his beautiful voice was floating about Italy for eight years, glad to get a chance to sing now and then in little theaters at $1 a night, and it was not until he was fortunate enough to get a contract for South America that he became famous. North and South America taught Italy to value him. Another great artist, now singing in New York, almost starved in Milan. Time after time he tempted fate in little towns, only to be "protested," until outside of Italy a queen admired his voice and his fortune was made.

If one has the divine spark and is willing to sacrifice everything for his art let him go into the battle an "enfant perdu," knowing all its perils. But young girls and boys should not be allowed to rush into the fray, thinking it a frolic.—Emil Bridges in Musical America.

The New Financial Game.

"William Bayard Hale, who has got more fame by suppressing an interview than he ever got by printing one, is a caustic, sarcastic man," said a magazine editor.

"I once heard Hale speak at a bankers' Christmas banquet. He always speaks well because he is a clergyman. One part of his speech I'll never forget. It bore on Christmas games.

"'There is one Christmas game,' he said, 'that has become very popular, especially in banking circles. It resembles hide and seek. You play it as follows: A cashier or president takes all the institution's money and runs and hides. Detectives swarm out to find him. If they succeed he comes home with them and has to pay a forfeit.'"

"John" Fully Americanized.

"Here is the badge of the complete Americanizing of a Chinaman," said a drug clerk who was putting up a box of quinine capsules. "Most Chinese are slow about forswearing oriental drugs and quackery. Many of them live here for years before they can be tempted to sample occidental medicines, and some of them live and die without making the experiment. In fact, when a Chinaman turns cosmopolitan taking American medicines is his final accomplishment. But when he does get the medicine habit quinine is his long suit. Whether or not it is good for what ails him, every Chinaman who has learned to patronize American drug stores feeds his system with quinine pills."—New York Sun.

Big Pensions.

The biggest annual pension that is paid in any part of the world is $95,000. The Duke of Richmond is the recipient of this vast annuity, which is perpetual, passing from son to son. The pension was granted 300 years ago by Charles II.

Taking the annual payment on account of pensions at the present time, Earl Nelson is in receipt of the highest outside the royal annuities—viz. $25,000 per annum, payable in perpetuity to all and every one of the heirs male to whom the title of Earl Nelson shall descend.

The Duke of Wellington's annuity pension of $20,000 is for life, and Lord Rodney's pension of $10,000 is, like that of Earl Nelson, perpetual.

Treasury Note Plates.

The plates used in printing treasury notes contain four notes, and to distinguish one note from the other they each have engraved on the face separate check letters, A, B, C, D, and if you will examine the check letter you will find printed near it a number which is used by the bureau for identification and by means of which can be ascertained a complete history of the plate used in printing the same, by whom engraved, printed, etc. At present you will find a number in excess of 4,800 on the one dollar silver certificate notes. This signifies that 4,800 plates have been used thus far in printing this denomination.—National Magazine.

A Queer Advertisement.

Some queer advertisements appear in the Australian papers. Here is one from a recent issue of the Sydney Morning Herald: "Wanted—Some kind person to adopt young gentleman absolutely homeless and deserted; present boarding house just sold out; guaranteed harmless. Please be quick." "It reads like a joke, but people, as a rule, do not pay advertisement rates for the publication of their pleasantries," says the London Chronicle.

RUNNING ATHLETICS HOCKEY

THE CITY LEAGUE BANQUET LIKELY TO BE HELD MARCH 22

Affairs of the League Were Wound Up Last Night—Gate Receipts Away Below Last Year.

EXPENSES MUCH LESS

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough City Hockey League was held last night in the Oriental Hotel for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the league for the season and of making arrangements for the annual banquet.

There were present Messrs C. G. Graham, president in the chair, Sec.-Treas. F.-D. Craig, W. Butcher, of the West Ends, J. Hanrahan and W. Landry, of the T. A. S., and W. J. Metheral, of the Strathconas.

Secretary-treasurer Craig presented the following statement for the year:

LEAGUE ACCOUNT

Receipts

Balance from 1908	$ 1 60
Entrance Fees	14 00
Total	$15 00

Expenditures

Proportion of the Examiner account	$ 2 65
Refunds	4 00
Advertising games	1 23
Total	$ 7 88
Balance	$ 7 72

Several small accounts still to be paid out of this amount will leave a small balance on the right side of the ledger.

Team's Account

Gate receipts	$ 126 20
Deposits	100 00
Total	$ 226 20

Expenditures

Rink Company	$ 100 00
Referees	10 00
Telephone	85
Proportion of Examiner account	2 60
Total	$ 113 45
Balance	$ 112 75

Lakefield will therefore receive as their share of the receipts $22.55, and the other League clubs $12.55, ten dollars being returned from each to cover the cost of the complimentary banquet to the Lakefield seven.

The gate receipts during the past season are over $100 less than last year, not because the crowds were small, but because of the unusually larger number of season tickets sold, none of which money comes back to the League, but is retained by the clubs selling the tickets. Next year it is likely that the number of tickets to be sold will be limited, and it is just probable that the season ticket will be done away with altogether.

The secretary treasurer was instructed to issue cheques to the different teams for the amounts coming to them.

Arrangemnts were made for the annual banquet which the League intends to make the biggest success on record. It is likely that it will be held on Monday, March 22, although that date was not definitely settled upon. A committee was appointed consisting of Past President F. A. Clarke, President C. G. Graham, Vice-President N. E. McWilliams, Secretary-Treasurer F. D. Craig, Messrs. W. Butcher, of the West Ends, W. J. Metheral, of the Strathconas, J. Picord, of the T. A. S., A. C., and R. Hall, of the Belmonts, to make the arrangements for the banquet. It is expected that about 100 people will be present for the event.

On the whole the League has been most successful this season, although financially the clubs have suffered. With less tickets out next year and with the renewed interest aroused by the winning of the championship by Lakefield, next year should prove the banner one in the history of the organization.

The Champions Of Mercantile League Banquetted Last Night

The Quaker Hockey Club, champions of the Mercantile League, were banquetted last evening in the spacious grill room of Coleman Bros. The affair was quite informal, but none the less enjoyable. Sixteen sat down to a most sumptuously prepared repast, which was the subject of many favourable comments.

Those who sat down to supper were Messrs. T. H. G. Denne, M. Kirn, W. Cawthorne, J. E. Sullivan, E. Carr C. Williamson, J. Brightman, George Henry, H. Callaghan, F. Heaslop, Ira Moore, Gordon Rytmyer, W. Pratt, Frank Hefferman, Joe Gilman and L. Derocher.

After partaking of the many choice viands provided by the hosts, a programme of music was given, those contributing being Messrs. Brightman, Williamson and Henry. Several choruses by the boys were also much enjoyed. A comic song by Mr. Charlie Coleman was loudly applauded, and an encore was demanded.

Lindsay-Stratford Game Held As Example In Sunday School

The game of hockey played between Stratford and Lindsay last Friday night was the cleanest game witnessed in Lindsay for many moons. Both teams were told to play the game, and stay on the ice, and they did so. Citizens who take very little stock in hockey matches were agreeably surprised when they noticed how clean the game really was. It was very fast and clean.

It is very seldom that a hockey game is ever put before a Sunday school as an example to the children, yet while this could not be done in Ottawa, Montreal, Cobalt or Peterboro, (for they play pretty rough hockey in these places) it was done in the Cambridge-St. Methodist Sunday school, Lindsay, Sunday afternoon. The following conversation took place between the Superintendent and the school:

Supt. Boxall—"Boys, what was it that took place in Lindsay last Friday night?"

Supt. Boxall—"Yes, but what was the most pleasing feature about the game?"

The boys—"Lindsay won."

Supt. Boxall—"No, I don't think that that was the best feature of the game. I have been told by people out of town and citizens in town that the game was the cleanest that they have ever witnessed. This speaks well for the Lindsay players. Now, boys, our Sunday School tea will be held shortly and I want you all to play clean. Don't dirty the floor, and act as gentlemen at all times."

FRED SIMPSON AND SHRUBB ARE MATCHED FOR BIG RACE

Toronto, March 8.—The negotiations for a fifteen-mile race between Alfred Shrubb and Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt, have come to a head, and the chances are that articles will be signed this afternoon binding a race to be held in Toronto Armouries in two weeks.

The fifteen-mile relay race between Henry Jackson, the Midland Indian, Simpson and W. F. Cumming and Ira Moore, Gordon Rytmyer, W. Pratt, Frank Hefferman, Joe Gilman and L. Derocher.

After partaking of the many choice viands provided by the hosts, a programme of music was given, those contributing being Messrs. Brightman, Williamson and Henry. Several choruses by the boys were also much enjoyed. A comic song by Mr. Charlie Coleman was loudly applauded, and an encore was demanded.

The singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save The King brought a pleasant evening to a close.

DAVE HARTLEY HOOKS UP WITH ITALIAN AND IS STILL IN RACE

New York, March 8.—At the end of the twentieth hour of the six-day race the field has narrowed to 18 teams. Christie of the West Side, Higgins, of the Canadians, and the two Greek teams, during the afternoon found the going too strenuous and quit, and Ferri of the Italians, also fell by the wayside. Hartley of the Canadian team, coupled up with Ward of the West Sides, but the latter was run into the ground and dropped out, and Hartley cast his lot with Pallanti, the Italian taking the place of Ferri.

Dineen and Prouty still led with 145 miles 9 laps to their credit, but Cibot and Orphee, the Frenchmen, had replaced Spring and Adams in second place. These three teams at 8 o'clock were well in the van of the others and running smoothly.

Wakker and Jansen, the Dutch team, were compelled, through sickness, to retire after the fifteenth hour. Munley, the Canadian Indian, and Tracey, of Philadelphia, retired after 3 o'clock. Davis, Munley's partner, and Metkus, who had been coupled with Tracey, formed a partnership as a reconstructed team, and continued in the race.

At 10 o'clock the scores of the leaders were: Dineen and Prouty, 156.1; Cibot and Orphee, 154.8. Spring and Adams, 150.1.

At 10.50 Sahford, the Englishman, and Endlich of the military team, quit, and their partners, Wooledge and Cameron, imediately paired. This leaves seventeen teams in the race.

WILL BE A GREAT RACE, SAYS GLOBE

Referring to the Meeting Between Simpson and Shrubb in Toronto on March 20.

The Toronto Globe says:—

The next big event among the distance runners will be the meeting of Alfred Shrubb and Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt, which will occur here on Saturday of next week. The men have been matched at twelve miles, and will run in the Armouries, under the auspices of the Garrison Athletic Association. Shrubb was for five years in the 2nd Sussex Volunteers, and so figures as a military man. The Indian was anxious for a longer distance, and he may get that later. He does not fear the Englishman at the distance agreed on, anda his performance recently in the Riverdale Arena makes him out a dangerous opponent for any man at ten miles or over. In fact this match brings together two runners who are now most prominent in the public eye. Tom Longboat has retired to the obscurity of a wigwam at Preston Springs, and is just now out of consideration by the public. If he does not come out soon his opportunity may be gone, for public favour is fickle. In the meantime the shrewd Shrubb is ready to reap the golden harvest, but he will not run against opponents of small calibre, and he considers Simpson the man that the public wants to see in competition with him. While Shrubb's supporters and admirers are legion, Tom Eck, who is looking after Simpson's affairs, says:—"In a long experience with athletes of all kinds, I have never yet hooked up with one that did not make good, and if I did not know Simpson was a runner far out of the ordinary, I would not be handling him. There is not a runner in the world that I will not match my man against in a distance race, whether outdoors or in."

Tom Eck said last night that if Shrubb beats Simpson he will have to run faster than he has run on this side of the water. The Indian's manager points to the fifteen mile record, set by Simpson at Savannah, Ga., and his indoor performance for ten miles at Riverdale Arena. Eck says that when Simpson ran at Riverdale the track was 102 feet over the mile of twelve laps. The corners were altered for the Meadows-Dorando race to cut off the 102 feet over the mile. In spite of the fact that the track was altered, Simpson's time was better than that set by Dorando when he beat the Guelph runner.

RECORD OF CURLERS ON THE BIG TRIP

H. S. Wills, of the Montreal Thistle Club, honorary secretary of the All-Canadian curling team, gave the following concise account of the visit to Scotland:

Our team, consisting of 11 members from the Manitoba branch, 10 from Ontario, 10 from Quebec, and 6 from Nova Scotia—in all 27—assembled at Halifax, January 9, 1909, and sailed that day by the R. M. S. Empress of Ireland, landing at Liverpool, January 16, and reaching Edinburgh by special train the same day.

The team remained in Scotland until February 24th, and played during the interval a total of 36 matches, the results of which are summarized as follows:—

Matches won, 23; shots up, 947.

Matches lost, 3; shots down, 16.

Majority of shots scored by Canadians, 931.

Of the abov ematches those against Inverness Province, North-Eastern Province, and at Balmoral were played on natural ice in the open. The rest of our matches were all played on artificial ice at the Crossmyloof Rink, Glasgow.

As a result of the team's success in each of the three test matches against All Scotland (6 rinks a side, duration of play, 3 hours) the valuable and handsome cup donated by Lord Strathcona, President of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club, and the first Canadian who has attained to this distinction, is now being brought back by us to Canada, there to remain in our keeping until December 1st next, when, in accordance with the deed of gift, it will have to be returned to the custody of the Royal Club. It has been arranged that in the interval the cup will be transferred for exhibition purposes from one to the other of the four Canadian branches of the Royal Club.

The record of the results obtained as skips by the individual members of the team makes it difficult, when all have done so well, to single out any one for special mention, but I feel it my duty in the case of Simpson Rennie, of Toronto, to mention that he has obtained the distinction of skipping nine matches without a loss, a showing which is all the more to his credit by reason of his being the oldest member of the team, having celebrated this week his 69th birthday. It may also be noted that the only member of the team who played in every match was William Stuart, of Ottawa. He skipped in 21 of these, winning 15, drawing 3, and losing 3.

A 217 SCORE WAS PUT ON LAST NIGHT

Bowlers are Getting After the Cigars Again—Two Games To-night.

217 is the score to beat this week for the weekly box of cigars at the P. B. C. alleys, but in view of the fall rolling last week this mark is not expected to weather many days' bowling. Sutherland, of the Iroquois, hung up the 217 score last night after Tanney of the Belmonts, had obtained the first two hundred score of the week with 204. To-night there are several league games and the 217 may not prove high enough to hold out. There are two games scheduled at the P. B. C. alleys to-night. The Examiner A will play the Examiner B, while the Belmonts will clash with the Iroquois.

It is probable that a crack Toronto team will be invited to come down to Peterborough in the near future. With the scores the local cracks are making just now the Queen City trundlers would have to break records to beat the Peterborough bowlers on their own drives.

BOTH TEAMS ARE LOOKING FOR A WIN

Great Interest in the Norwood-Stirling Game To-morrow Night.

The announcement that Norwood and Keene are to come together here to-morrow night in the final game for the Trent Valley League Championship has aroused a lot of interest and there will be a big crowd on hand to see the two Eastern teams perform. Both clubs will be accompanied to Peterborough by big crowds of supporters and there will be excitement enough to last for a month. Stirling is picked by most of the local fans to win out, although Norwood will have the support of the local lovers of the game. Both teams will have their strongest line-ups on and both expect to win. It will be hockey all the way and those who have seen the two teams in action state that the winning team will have only a scanty margin on the losers. Harry Morgan will referee the battle, which will start at 8.15 sharp.

GREAT INTEREST IN JUNIOR GAME

The game between the Collegiate Institute and the Peterborough O. H. A. juniors, on Thursday night promises to be about the tidiest little junior game seen here this season, and the fans cannot miss the battle if they want to get a line on the promising youngsters who are going to bring a junior O. H. A. championship to Peterborough before long. The Collegiate seven will take a lot of beating, while the O. H. A. team are in good shape and will make things decidedly interesting for the Kennerites. Both teams have been practising faithfully for the game, and given fast ice there is every reason to expect a snappy, exciting struggle. The teams will line up about as follows, although there may be changes made before Thursday night.

MAKE A CHANGE

A New Back for an Old One—How it is Done in Peterboro

The back aches at times with a dull feeling, making you worry and restless, sharp pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, it is agony to bend, stoop or lift. The rubbing of liniments or application of plasters does no good in these cases, they do not reach the cause. To get rid of these symptoms and exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one, follow the example of this Peterborough citizen:

Mrs. John Barclay, 583 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "My back was weak and tender, and a dull, grinding pain had settled in the small of it. I could not stoop to lift anything and could scarcely turn in bed. Rheumatism had settled in my hands and shoulders. I was in constant suffering and could find no relief. The urine plainly told the disordered, inactive state of the kidneys, as it was thick and highly coloured and contained a quantity of brick dust sediment. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at the Market Drug Store, and I tried them. I found more relief in one box of Booth's Kidney Pills than in all else put together. My back strengthened and the pains left it. Rheumatism disappeared and has not since returned. The urine cleared, I am strong and well and feel like a new person." Sold by dealers. Price, 50 cents. PRESENTED WITH BIBLE LAST NIGHT

Mr. Mervin Lee Remembered by Mr. H. P. Kennedy's Bible Class.

A number of Mr. Mervin Lee's friends of the Charlotte St. Methodist Sunday School called at his home last night and presented him with an address and a handsomely bound Bible. Mervin left for the West with his father to-day. He was agreeably surprised by the remembrance his class in Sunday School presented him with, and desires to thank them for their splendid expression of sympathy and kindness. The address accompanying the Bible was as follows:

Peterborough, March 7, 1909.

Dear Mervin,—On behalf of Mr. H. P. Kennedy's Bible Class, we wish you to accept this token of love and esteem. It is but a small proof of our affection which words cannot express. Wishing you a happy and successful future, we remain

Your sincere friends,
Mr. H. P. Kennedy's Bible Class.

"Bronchitis"

Is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color.

Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor but found that her cold lasted about twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

Be sure and accept none of the many substitutes.

Protest Against Bonusing Of Companies By Municipalities

London's Real Estate Association Appeals to Legislature and to Mayors and Councils in Ontario —Peterborough Among the List That Tried for a Company.

OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST

The bonusing of companies is the main subject of a circular which has been issued by the Real Estate Owners' Association of London, Ont. It is very strongly opposed to the system of bonusing. Other interesting topics are dealt with which should be read with interest by ratepayers. The following is a part of the circular:

No Additional Burdens Wanted

We also request that no power be granted for the issuing of debentures to the extent of one hundred thousand dollars for the purchase of lands or sites to be used for the (dubious) purpose of "attracting" or in other words bribing factories to locate in the City of London.

No Return to the Ward System

There are four wards in the City of London, and as the law now stands any ratepayer owning realty in more than one ward has a vote in each of the wards in which he may own property. This in so far as experience goes has not worked injury to any tax-payer, but if changed to that as requested in the Bill, would place a goodly number of our heaviest taxpayers on a plane with those having almost no interest in the city.

Not Discussed in Recent Campaign

The items cited in the London Bill were not discussed in the recent municipal campaign, either by the candidates or the electorate, notwithstanding every opportunity was given prospective aldermen for that purpose, hence these measures are a surprise to the electorate. A further proof of the wisdom of action on this matter may be seen in the clipping from the London Free Press of date February 4, herewith produced:

Example of the Bonus Evil

(London Free Press, Feb. 4, 1909.)

Kingston, Feb. 3.—(Special)—The evil of the bonus system was never more clearly shown than in the frenzied efforts of fifteen Ontario municipalities to secure the Wormworth Piano Company, recently burned out here. Liberal offers have been made by the following municipalities:

Stratford,	Uxbridge,
Welland,	Peterborough,
Niagara Falls,	Chatham,
Prescott,	Iroquois,
North Bay,	Alexandria,
Guelph,	Gananoque,
Arnprior,	Port Hope.

The result has been that a demand has been made on the city for ten thousand dollars, and the ratepayers will vote on a by-law to grant this bonus to-morrow.

[The above despatch tells eloquently of what this city was "up against" when the Globe Casket Co. burned down. The officials of that company within four days recived just as many offers, if not more.—Ed. Free Press.]

Co-operation Requested

We respectfully request that every member of the Legislature will give these matters their careful attention.

That every Mayor and his colleagues will also aid us in trying to eliminate from our statutes any and every enactment that will place a debt charge upon his business or his home without at least some means of defence.

The Real Estate Owners' Association is a representative body, holding weekly meetings throughout the whole year, and represents the largest taxpayers of the city in its membership, running into several millions of dollars, and many of its members are mechanics and workingmen.

We appeal on behalf of our members and for all other taxpayers that the aforementioned sections of the London Bill be not granted.

Respectfully submitted.

R. A. JONES, President.
W. H. FERGUSON, Sec.-Treas

Little Girl Lost For Several Hours In East City Yesterday

Flossie Ballantyne, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ballantyne, 277 Concession St., caused her parents considerable anxiety yesterday afternoon. The little girl attends the East City kindergarten and when the class was dismissed, instead of returning to her home, she went off with some other children to the north end of the East Ward.

Her mother who was very uneasy over her child's long absence from home must have called at every house in the neighbourhood where she was thought most likely to be, but she was unable to locate her.

About seven o'clock the little girl was brought home.

STUDENTS DEBATE AT THE COLLEGIATE

Regular Meeting of the Philomatheon Society Held Yesterday.

On Monday, March 8th, a meeting of the Collegiate Philomathean Society was held. The programme opened with the reading of the minutes of the previous meetings which were adopted.

Miss Katheryn Burnett then gave a very delightful rendering of one of Mendelssohn's songs without words, followed by a humorous reading by Mr. Vincent McCabe.

The next number, a vocal solo by Miss Bessie Reade, was followed by a debate; "Resolved that theatres should be abolished," between Forms I B and I C, resulting in a victory for I C.

The affirmative speakers of I B were Mr. Bruce Lees and Miss Stella Cuffe, and they upheld their side of the argument in a very able manner.

The negative was almost equally well supported by Mr. George Hogan and Miss Mary Potter.

Miss Byers then gave a recitation after which Miss Edwina Palmer, a prominent little violinist of the Collegiate, rendered a selection.

Mr. Hodgson criticised the numbers at some length and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

ROUTE TO GOWGANDA IS SAID TO BE GOOD

Mr. D. E. Conroy Tells of His Shipping Experiences.

D. E. Conroy writes from Gowganda stating that he sent his man over the Sellwood road to ascertain how freight was being moved by the Gowganda Transport Co. He found that freight was being put through from Sellwood in three days and that the freight was being handled as fast as delivered at Sellwood.

There is no freight held up at Sellwood or any place along the line, and all the merchants he met spoke favourably of that route. Up to date it has been entirely dependable. With the closeness of the break-up season this road is proving to be a boon to the country on account of the quick methods this company is employing in pushing supplies, which are of vital importance to the people here.

Mr. Conroy complains in his letter of the charges for delivery from Englehart and says that the miners and prospectors are being held up for $2.75 to $3 per hundred. He says that he saved $1.25 per hundred by shipping via Sellwood, thus saving $500.

The Italian Grand Opera Company which is scoring such a great success in Montreal, at His Majesty's Theatre, will be heard at the "Grand" Thursday, March 18th.

This splendid organization carries a company of 150 people, an augmented orchestra of 35 selected musicians, a grand chorus of 50 voices and a triple set of principals.

The Italian Grand Opera Company comes almost direct from remarkably successful engagements in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburg, Chicago, St. Louis and other large cities, and the press of the above mentioned cities were unanimous in declaring the performances given by this superb company were equally as good as those heard at the Manhattan and Metropolitan Opera Houses in New York city.

The management has gathered together a brilliant array of song birds from the great operatic centres of the world, among whom may be mentioned Mme. Duce-Merola, a mezzo-soprano of European reputation, whose strong roles are "Carmen" and "Santuzza", Mlle. L. Bertozzi, a lyric soprano secured from the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York; Mlle. Almeri, a colorature artist of few equals, from the Lasalle Theatre, Milan, Italy; Sig Bari, one of the greatest dramatic tenors on the dramatic stage to-day; Sig. Torre, another tenor with a marvellous voice; Sig. Arcangeli, an eminent baritone and Sig. Gravini, a splendid basso, are a few of the leading artists with this meritorious organization.

The opera for this city will be announced later. 1-d

BET TRAINLOAD OF "ROCKS" ON LINDSAY

From Burnt River comes a story of a curious bet made between two sporty residents of that neighbourhood over the outcome of the recent Stratford-Lindsay game. The two men were scarce of ready funds for the time and they bethought themselves what to wager. Then one offered to bet five hundred logs he had against anything of value the other fellow posessed. As his stake the other fellow put up a trainload of stone just from the quarry and the wager was made, signed and witnessed. The trainload of stone went up on Lindsay and the logs on Stratford so the lumberman is now minus his logs.

A Trip To Starland Will Be The Subject Of A Lecture

The lecture this evening in the Collegiate Institute will be entitled "A Journey to Starland," and will be open to the public. There will be no charge.

Mr. G. Parry Jenkins, F.R.A.S., of Hamilton, who will be the speaker of the evening, has, we understand, the happy faculty of making his talk plain to all, and in conjunction with the many views to be shown on the canvas produces a lecture of interest to everyone.

This lecture is the second in a course of some seven which have been arranged for by the Royal Astronomical Society, and as they are particularly for beginners the public are cordially invited. It is to be hoped that the efforts of our Society to bring these eminent men to Peterborough will be appreciated by all and that the attendance will be large.

The great majority of people and a very large proportion of even well-educated individuals are woefully ignorant of the most elementary facts of astronomy. The local society is endeavouring to correct this feature by a course of free lectures. Students at the Normal and High Schools will find these illustrated talks of great value to them particularly.

Mr. Jenkins is a Fellow of the British or parent Royal Astronomical Society, and as there are to-day but three Fellows in the Dominion the honour is significant. Dr. Marsh also holds a place in this trio.

play for the championship of the city as the Lakefield club are champions of the City League.

I might say that in issuing the challenge to the Straths we did so under the impression that it would be up to the Straths, Quakers, and St. Andrew's to fight it out for the championship of the city inside the city limits.

As the Straths do not feel that they could conscientiously play for the city championship there is no need for our playing them, so we will withdraw our challenge, with the hope of meeting and putting it over them un the City League next year.

Signed:
ST. ANDREW'S HOCKEY CLUB.

WRESTLING.

Friday at the wrestling bout at Riverdale Rink, W. B. Naylor, on behalf of "Kid" Batten, the South African featherweight wrestling champion, challenged Artie Edmunds, of Toronto, to a match to a finish. Edmunds accepted on the spot. Batten wanted a $250 side bet, but Edmunds wanted it doubled. Naylor immediately acquiesced. The chances are that the match will come off about March 26.

If Batten throws Edmunds he will toss the best little man Canada ever produced. The chances are that the South African will lose some of his laurels if he tackles Edmunds in his own back yard. Edmunds has beaten everything up to 145 pounds who ever tackled him in Toronto.

RUNNING.

Tom Eck, trainer and manager of Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian runner, who is making a name for himself in the pro ranks, is very anxious to arrange a relay race for him this week, and has wired the Peterborough Hockey Club, Limited, owners of the Brock street rink, asking them to arrange a race for Friday night of this week with W. F. Cumming, the Toronto middle distance man, who has turned professional, and Henry Jackson, the Midland Indian, who is being touted as a successor to Tom Longboat. Unless the men are willing to run on the ice the race is not likely to come off, although it is possible that a cinder track may be put down on the ice for the race. It would be impossible to get the ice out of the rink in time for the race, even if the management thought that such a move would be advisable. Mr. Chris Graham of the Rink Company, expects to know definitely to-day concerning the race.

He Is Back At Work Again

Abraham Garand's Rheumatism Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He Suffered for Five Years and Was Four Months Off Work, But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

ALFRED STATION, ONT., Mar. 9. (Special.)—After being laid off work for four months by kidney disease and rheumatism, from which he had been a sufferer for five years, Abraham Garand, a section man on the railway here, is back at work again and he gives all the credit for his cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am forty-one years old," Mr. Garand said when asked about his cure. "And have been section man here for ten years. For five years I suffered from kidney disease and rheumatism, also sciatica in my right hip, which descended to my feet. For four months I could not work. Reading of cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to try them. I used nine boxes in all and to-day I am advising all who suffer from rheumatism to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Rheumatism and sciatica are caused by diseased kidneys failing to strain the uric acid out of the blood. Cure the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and they will strain the uric acid out of the blood. Then you can't have rheumatism.

MARKET SOCIAL WAS A SUCCESS

Enjoyable Evening at Park Street Church in Aid of Piano Fund.

The market social held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wright on Albert St., under the auspices of the B. Y. P. U., of the Park St. Baptist Church, was a great success, socially and financially. It was held for the purpose of securing funds for the new piano, which the young people of the church are buying to be used in the new church.

The pastor of the church, Rev. W. C. Riddiford occupied the chair, and after the following programme was rendered, the evening was spent in pleasant social intercourse, after which light refreshments were served, and all went away feeling that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wright are ideal hosts.

The programme was rendered as follows:

Clergyman's address—Rev. W. C. Riddiford.
Solo—Mr. Dawson.
Recitation—Mrs. Ethel Hill.
Duet——Miss Maud Smith, Mr. C. J. Nutter.
Instrumental Quartette — Messrs. Garside, Elliott, Griffin, MacCaw.
Solo—Mrs. Kennedy.

"BILL" CROWLEY "RUSHED" TWO GOALS

Edmonton Keeps the "Fit-Reform" Cup —Trimmed Shamrocks 9 to 4.

The following reference to the Edmonton Hockey team in their second game for the Fit Reform Cup resulting 9 to 4 for Whitty's seven, shows that the Peterborough representatives earned a fair share of the glory.

Bert Boulton was the candy kid on the Edmonton team last evening. He is a speedy skater and a good stick handler and played a consistent game all through. "Hay" Miller worked hard, and, except in the second half, when he was ruled off for foul play a couple of times, he was the most effective man on the team. Whitcroft and Decton were in their usual form and made some nice rushes. They showed up particularly well in the scoring. Hugh Ross, on defence, played a good game, while big Bill Crowley distinguished himself by scoring two goals in rapid succession by lone rushes down the ice, for which he received an ovation from the crowd.

HOCKEY

There will be a full practice of the Stratheonas to-night between 7 and 8 o'clock in preparation for the game with the St. Andrew's team, champions of the Church League, on Friday night of this week. Much interest is being displayed in the meeting of the two teams and it is likely that there will be a big crowd present to see them perform. The Church League winners have a large following who say they will defat the High Commissioners while the latter are confident that they can administer a proper trimming to the Saints. It should be a fine game whichever way the fortunes of war go.

Kingston, March 8—St Michael's College of Toronto annexed the John Ross Robertson Cup, emblematic of the senior O.H.A. championship, by gaining a decisive victory over the 14th Regiment team here this evening. The game resulted 13 to 9 in favor of the Toronto collegians, who won the round by 24 to 17.

To-night's contest was somewhat similar to the one in Toronto last Thursday, except that St. Michael's played a stronger finish. The loss of Van Horne completely broke up the 14th Regiment defence, and Powell was wholly unfit to be on the ice owing to an injury he had received. St. Michael's proved faster than the soldiers and had a combination that enabled them to get in on the 14th defence so well that thirteen goals went by the redoubtable Hiscock.

At half-time St Michael's led by 4 to 2, and the soldiers' chances of winning out and retaining the championship had practically gone. In the second half the new champions started the scoring and kept it up till the end. The scores in both final games were the largest probably ever scored in the O. H. A., senior championship.

St. Michael's whole forward line played fine hockey. Laflamme being the most effective. They checked back better than in Toronto, the large ice area seeming to suit them. For the soldiers Richardson, Davidson, and Hiscock were best, but even Hiscock seemed off colour. The game was witnessed by 1,500 people, the majority of whom were keenly disappointed over the result, but satisfied that the 14th Regiment's line-up without Van Horne at cover and to captain the team was not equal to the fast Toronto seven.

The executive of the Church Hockey League met last evening in the Y. M. C. A parlours and wound up the affairs of a most successful season. The Secretary reported 98 players registered and eighteen games played which provided some good sport for the fans. Financially, the season was also a success, the Treasurer showing a balance of $18.00.

In the senior series St. Andrew's were returned winners and All Saints carried off the honours in the junior division, both teams having to go every inch of the distance to win out. The one regretful feature of the season was the default of St. John's Juniors in the middle of the season, but this was excusable, as their team was broken up owing to the loss of several of their players, who were barred by playing city league games. Guarantee deposits were ordered to be paid back to all teams who finished their schedule.

A committee of Messrs. E. N. McWilliams, J. F. Reed, H. Campbell and H. Reed was appointed to make arrangements for a banquet to be given St. Andrew's Club when the Burnham trophy, emblematic of the league championship, will be presented that club.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Y. M. C. A. for the use of their parlours for the evening.

The meeting then adjourned, the banquet committee to meet next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in St. Andrew's lecture hall.

The eyes of the hockey world to-night will be turned upon Stratford, where the Indians and the Lindsay Midgets are fighting it out for the intermediate championship of the O. H. A.. The Midgets left Lindsay at one o'clock this afternon with a crowd of supporters and a lead of five goals. The question that is agitating the fans is whether five is going to be enough. On one hand Stratford is defeated about as often at home as there are snow storms in July. On the other hand the big ice surface will favour Lindsay as much as it will Stratford. The Indians have the combination and the shooting ability. The Midgets have speed and check back better and have a shade the better of it in the weight. Lindsay have five goals lead to encourage them. Stratford will have several thousand fans to cheer them on. The keen ice will suit both teams equally, so pick your winners. At that it would not surprise some of the fans to see Stratford overcome that lead.

Local fans cannot afford to overlook the Trent Valley League battle to-morrow night between Stirling and Norwood. The Trent Valley League teams are playing the hardest kind of hockey and the game will be well worth seeing. Norwood had a classy team last year, while Stirling is said to possess a collection of stars.

The provision for allowing the sum of $1.50 was made for only one year and it was desired that a guarantee for the future, for fifteen years or more be made. "We cannot afford to spend $30,000 for only one year's allowance" Father McColl stated.

In answer to another question he remarked that $1.50 a week would be a satisfactory sum.. This did not quite pay expenses, but left an amount which the Catholic people would have to pay.

"The exercise of charity, however, is a good thing for our people," Father McColl smilingly remarked.

It was moved by Alderman Hicks and Alderman Buller that this question be brought up at a special meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council. Father McColl stated that he would have prepared all the necessary information for that occasion.

After Father McColl had retired Ald. Phelan drew the attention of the Committee of the Whole to the proposition brought up in the council last fall re making an effort to secure assitance from the Provincial Government to pay for the sewer and sidewalk to the Normal School. Ald. Phelan stated that when in Toronto last Friday he had in company with Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., interviewed the government and had been successful in securing $50 for the sewer and $20 for the granolithic walk. He added that Mr. Bradburn hed been of great assistance to him in securing these two grants.

It was moved by Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Buller that a vote of thanks be extended to Ald. Phelan and Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., for the grant they secured from the Ontario Government.

This was the only instance Mr. Miller said he could quote.

Humor

A WONDERFUL BOY.

What the Brown Family Thought of the New Arrival.

The Mother—Oh, isn't he the cutest, grandest, handsomest, smartest little fellow in the whole world? Such eyes! Such features! Such shoulders! And hear him talk, will you? Why, he understands perfectly every word I say.

The Father—There's a boy for you! Smith will brag about that kid of his, will he? Well, you just wait until this youngster is a month old and I'll take the conceit out of Smith!

Little Bobby—So that's what the stork brought, eh? Gee, the stork must have it in for this family!

Bachelor Brother—I don't want to cause you folks any anxiety, but he's the smallest human being I ever saw outside of a dime museum. You want to feed him upon roast beef and porterhouse steak right away.

Uncle Jack (a dog fancier)—Is his nose cold? Hold him up by the back of his neck and we'll see if he's got any nerve.

Grandma—There you go, spoiling the child as soon as he has his eyes open! I suppose when he's a month old we shall all have to stand on our heads to amuse him! Give me that infant this instant before he has colic and dies!

The Family Cat—Well, that settles my hash! It's either hunt a new home or become a tailless feline inside of a month. Why, that kid's got a grip on him like a longshoreman's!

The Baby—Goo-goo! Goo-goo! Goo-goo-goo-goo! Or, in other words, "I'll make it good and hot for this family about midnight!"—A. B. Lewis in New York Herald.

HOW ABOUT IT?

You vowed to be cheerful.
The test is to come.
Are you smiling this morning
Or moody and glum?

You vowed you'd endeavor
To spread smiles around.
What was it—cold coffee?
I hear that you frowned.

You vowed to be patient.
Come now and confess.
Had she used your razor
To rip up a dress?

You vowed to be pleasant
To all you would meet.
What! She didn't say "Thanks"
When you gave up your seat?

You vowed you'd oblige.
Yet you growled overmuch
At the friend who came in
Just to make a small "touch."

Oh, these are the tests
That our good resolves end!
Come on and confess.
How about it, my friend?

An interesting discussion took place with regard to church union. Rev. Mr. Beattie, Mr. J. F. Clark, and Mr. Abraham, of Port Hope, reported their considerations of the various departments of the report of the union committee, in regard to polity, finance and doctrine.

A call from Campbellford to the Rev. G. A. Brown, of Burk's Falls, was taken up. The call was very largely signed, and inasmuch as many of the congregation had not had the opportunity of signing, it was decided to extend the time for two weeks.

At the time of going to press the election of the commissioners to the general assembly to be held in Hamilton was engaging attention. Those appointed by rotation were Rev. James Skene and Rev. D. A. McKenzie.

ONLY ONE HONEST MAN IN TWELVE YEARS

"Only one honest man in my twelve years' experience" was Relief Officer Miller's statement at the meeting of the Charity Board last night. This is of course in reference to those people whose honesty was tried. On one occasion a man asked for a load of slabs. He promised to return the money for the wood and lived up to his word. This was the only instance Mr. Miller said he could quote.

A WONDERFUL BOY.

The Mother—Oh, isn't he the cutest, grandest, handsomest, smartest little fellow in the whole world? Such eyes! Such features! Such shoulders! And hear him talk, will you? Why, he understands perfectly every word I say.

The Father—There's a boy for you! Smith will brag about that kid of his, will he? Well, you just wait until this youngster is a month old and I'll take the conceit out of Smith!

Little Bobby—So that's what the stork brought, eh? Gee, the stork must have it in for this family!

Bachelor Brother—I don't want to cause you folks any anxiety, but he's the smallest human being I ever saw outside of a dime museum. You want to feed him upon roast beef and porterhouse steak right away.

Uncle Jack (a dog fancier)—Is his nose cold? Hold him up by the back of his neck and we'll see if he's got any nerve.

Grandma—There you go, spoiling the child as soon as he has his eyes open! I suppose when he's a month old we shall all have to stand on our heads to amuse him! Give me that infant this instant before he has colic and dies!

The Family Cat—Well, that settles my hash! It's either hunt a new home or become a tailless feline inside of a month. Why, that kid's got a grip on him like a longshoreman's!

The Baby—Goo-goo! Goo-goo! Goo-goo-goo-goo! Or, in other words, "I'll make it good and hot for this family about midnight!"—A. B. Lewis in New York Herald.

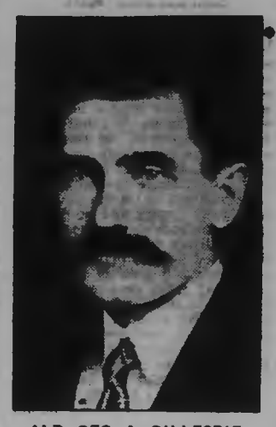
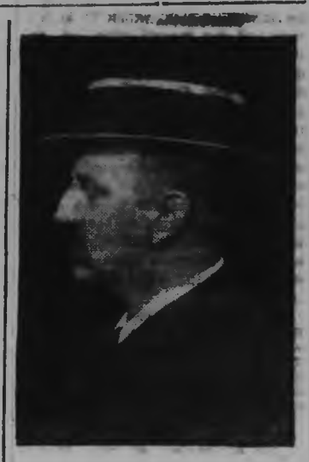
ALD. GEO. A. GILLESPIE UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED TO THE PRESIDENCY OF THE BOARD OF TRADE AT ANNUAL MEETING

Has Been Vice-President for Several Years—Mr. M. A. Morrison, Retiring From the Chair, Presents an Optimistic Report—Board Endorses the Water Commissioners' By-law—New Dam is Needed.



ALD. GEO. A. GILLESPIE
Elected President of Peterborough Board of Trade at Annual Meeting Last Night.



MR. T. Q. QUARTERMAINE
Now Commencing His Eleventh Year as Secretary of the Board of Trade.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR 1909

While the attendance at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade was not as large as it should have been, there was a representative gathering present and the interest displayed in the affairs of the organization augurs well for the success of the Board during the coming year. The meeting was featured by the retirement of Dr. Morrison, President of the Board for the last two years, and an instructive discussion of the water works dam and power questions. The Water Commissioners' proposition to erect a new dam and pumping station at a cost of $120,000 was thoroughly discussed and a resolution expressing the approval of the Board was passed.

Dr. M. A. Morrison was in the chair and presided over the meeting in his usual efficient manner.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and confirmed after which several communications were dealt with. Among these was one from the Central Ontario Power Company, which Mr. J. A. Culverwell controls, in regard to the purchase of the Burleigh Falls power by the city.

On motion of Messrs. Meldrum and Dodd a vote of thanks was passed to the Mayor and members of the City Council for their kindness in allowing the Board the use of the council chamber for meeting purposes. President Morrison then read his annual report as follows:

To the Members of the Peterborough Board of Trade:

Gentlemen,—In presenting to you the President's Annual Report I wish to congratulate the City upon the manner in which it has emerged from the period of depression just passed. We have experienced no great depreciation in property values, the business men have held their own and many of them have prospered and the outlook is indeed optimistic.

The Board has held four meetings during the year, at which questions, vital to the interest of the City were discussed and resolutions passed and forwarded to the City Council, some of which that body has already acted upon.

The Board of Trade is handicapped by not having at its disposal funds sufficient to carry its schemes into execution. In this respect I would recommend that at least One Hundred Dollars ($100) be placed at the disposal of the Executive to be used in furthering the interests of the City, especially in endeavouring to secure new industries.

We note with pleasure the fact, that during the year the Government let one contract North and four contracts South of Peterborough on the Trent Canal, the estimates for these contracts for the two years 1908-1909 amount to $2,000,000. There is yet to be put under contract 6 miles between Peterborough and Trenton, North of Peterborough the Canal is completed to Lake Simcoe; between Lake Simcoe and Midland there is no work done as yet.

The question of additional power for the City is being worked out by the City Council and will no doubt be satisfactorily solved.

The building permits for the year amounted to $238,963.00 a considerable decrease when compared with the former year.

We note with pleasure that the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co. is again in operation and we bespeak for it a most successful career.

The financial stringency is somewhat relieved and generally speaking the prospects for a busy and successful year are very bright. We think that Peterborough ought to forge ahead more rapidly than she has done in the past with our natural advantages. Central location, shipping facilities and cheap power should be an attraction for manufacturers, while we

Constable Short's Assailant Reported Having Been Seen Here By Peterborough Police

"Mike" Carlin Has Made Good His Escape After Brutal Work in Lindsay—Reward is Offered for His Capture—Believed to Have Gone to Ennismore.

LINDSAY POLICE CENSURED

A reward of $50 has been offered by the town of Lindsay for the capture of "Nick" Carlin, the man who assaulted Constable Short and then made good his escape. The last heard of him, he is believed to be holding his course to Ennismore. The Lindsay Council had a few things to say about their police force and also the county constables. The following is a part of the report:—

Poor Police System

Reeve Jordan stated that the police system could be more perfect in this country, as the county police could not arrest a man in another county. "I never yet saw the commissioners or council refuse to assist the police in any way possible. The chief of police is not infallible. Another thing he is a marked man and Carlin's friends will post him on the chief's movements. I don't know that the chief is lax in this case any more than he is in any other case. This man escaped on a stormy day and a poor day for driving. The chief, no doubt, phoned all the county police of the escape, but the county constables don't put themselves out of the way to get in the way of dangerous men. There is no money in it for them. The chief was handicapped and I presume he did all he could in the case. There are men who are appointed to do this kind of work by the Government. The case is more than an assault case. It is a serious case and Carlin should be brought to justice. If a reward was offered, and if it would bring him back, why, I am in favour of offering a reward. Some say that the escaped man is no use to the community and was better away, but that is a selfish motive. This man is dangerous to other communities."

Mayor Begg—"I don't think the chief should wait and ask us what he should do."

Chief Vincent Heard

Chief Vincent appeared at this juncture and was heard in regard to the case. He explained what had been done by him as chief of police since the affair took place. He first received word of the affair about 12.35, and immediately ascertained that Carlin was the ringleader of Constable Short's assailants, and he summoned Constables Thornbury and Porter, and they divided the town into three divisions and made a search for Carlin. Next day Chief Vincent stated, he (the chief) telephoned all the county constables and every surrounding village and town to be on the lookout for Carlin, and he also had cards printed describing the appearance of the man wanted. The chief also visited all the local places where he was likely to be found, and then communicated with Mayor Begg, asking that a reward be put up for Carlin's capture, in order to get the constables of the county interested in the case. The chief stated that the county constables were not paid anything beyond their regular fees for the capture of men who were wanted, and they therefore would not put themselves out of the way to capture them. Very few men of Carlin's stamp were arrested by the county police unless they happened to fall down in front of the police official. They would not hunt up a man and lose their valuable time when there was no reward offered.

The chief stated that he, as chief of police of Lindsay, could not leave the town without appointing some person as his substitute, and another thing he found great difficulty in securing another man to even take Night Constable Short's place on the force. Then again they were handicapped in the fact that if a man escapes from this county (or any other county), into another county, the constables in this county could not arrest the man wanted without certain formalities.

Friday morning he received a letter from the chief of police at Peterborough to the effect that the man wanted was seen in Peterborough, and that they were after him, but shortly afterwards he received a wire message to the effect that the Peterborough police had followed the man up and located his hiding place, but he (Carlin) had just left for Ennismore. This prompted the idea of offering a reward and Chief Vincent then interviewed the Mayor in regard to offering a reward for his capture. This would probably set the county constables to act.

Fifty Dollars Reward

Deputy-Reeve McLean moved that the chief be authorized to offer a reward of $50 dollars for Carlin's apprehension.

Mayor Begg—"Our policemen should be censured in this case. Constable Short knew that Carlin was home, and on the night of the assault he followed Carlin bare handed, that is, he had no tools on him. I also think that Chief Vincent should have spotted Carlin as soon as he arrived in town."

DISCUSS PROPOSED CELEBRATION AT MEETING NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

Adjourned Annual Meeting of the Officers of 57th Regiment Held Last Evening—Finance Report Read.

A SUBSTANTIAL BALANCE.

The adjourned annual meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment was held last evening. A large number was present, Lieut.-Col. Stevenson occupying the chair. The financial statement was read and discussed. It showed a substantial balance on hand, this being due to the fact that no pleasure trip was taken by the Regiment last summer. While the local soldiers enjoyed a visit to the Barrisfield Camp in September, it was for the purpose of drilling that they went, and the heavy expenditure of a pleasure outing was not incurred.

At last night's meeting the matter of establishing a more thorough system of keeping an account of the clothing and equipment of the Rangers was brought up but nothing definite was decided upon.

The officers will meet again next Monday to discuss the proposed celebration to be held in connection with the formal opening of the new armouries.

THE WANT OF THE HOUR.

This morning's icy streets brought out a painful and and unfortunately typical example of juvenile impertinence and rudeness. A little girl about eight or ten years age was crossing the street on her way to school and nearly fell on the slippery roadway. One of the two elderly gentlemen passing at the time kindly cautioned her. "Be careful, little girl, or you will fall." "I won't be careful; mind your own business," was the astounding reply. The child was well clad and evidently came from a comfortable home, where it is to be supposed a degree of culture and refinement would be found. This is one of the frequent examples one may meet any day of the results of the failure to give home teaching or school teaching in the important matter of manners. The crying sin of the day is the utter lack of reverence for age or position or authority. This condition derives its chief importance from the fact that this irreverance for human superiors begets a spirit of disrespect for divine authority, divine law, and human law. It is evil, only evil, and that continually in its tendencies and manifestations. Flippant doubt and irreverent criticism of even the Holy Scriptures come from this spirit and this spirit comes from the lack of home-training, of school and even Sunday school training. If the out-of-school hours of children are spent unchaperoned in the streets while the mother is possibly playing bridge or pursuing some other will-o'-the-wisp of social frivolity we can easily see how in our children rudeness and ill manners take the place of reverent politeness and culture of demeanour. We cram our school children's heads with a mass of abstract literary lumber to the exclusion of the development of the higher and finer faculties of the soul. In a child, in a young girl, mental acquirement is a jewel in a swine's snout, if it is unaccompanied with refinement of manner and speech and the courtesy and politeness that differentiate the real lady from the spurious article. Good manners, politeness and courtesy are one of the most important equipments for success in any sphere of human activity in business, in society; in fact in any human relation. To be of the highest quality they must be engrained in the nature, form part of the character, must be taught by precept and examples in the home or the school—where in these days such teaching is practically non-existent.

Manners must adorn knowledge and smooth its way through the world.—Chesterfield.

THE RAILWAY COMMISSION

The usefulness of the Dominion Railway Commission, effective as it has been in protecting public interests of all kinds and safeguarding the rights of the public in relation to their dealings with the railways, is made more effective from the attitude of the Minister of Railways towards the character of the commission. In this connection Hon. Mr. Graham says:

"I want to prevent this board becoming a real court. I want to keep it as it as a body whom I may go myself without any lawyer and say to the chairman:—This is my case; I want a judgment upon it."

The elimination of red tape, the removal of cumbrous formality of procedure is greatly in favour of the average claimant of his rights at the hands of the commission. Whatever legal points or interest may be involved in any case they stand to be effectively looked after. The chairman of the commission being an ex-judge and the assistant chairman a lawyer of repute. Thus all the legal ability requisite is embodied in the commission, so that any ordinary man of business is able to appear before it armed with simply the justice of his cause, which is guaranteed ample recognition, and he is able to dispense with a costly retinue of legal advisers. The gentlemen of the long robe have their important place in our affairs, but there are times when their services which are as a rule costly in proportion to their value, can in the interest of economy and smooth sailing be dispensed with. The Railway Commission is organized for the purpose of protecting the public interests and its greatest usefulness consists in making it easy of approach and securing its services at a moderate rate of cost to the suppliant.

A purely business matter, should be satisfactorily arranged, by simple and straightforward business methods.

THE INSURANCE BILL.

(Ottawa Free Press.

Hon. Mr. Fielding yesterday afternoon introduced the bill to amend the Insurance Act, which is both a sequel of the investigation of the Royal Comission upon insurance and of the evidence heard before the Banking and Commerce committee of the Commons when the other bill was before it last year. The measure differs, as would naturally be expected, from both its predecessors, because it is the result of an additional year's thought to the great question of safeguarding the people's interests in what is probably the subject which interests them most—the protection of the home and the family.

The measure is, even when judged by the standpoint of a lay man, an admirable attempt to deal with a great problem. It has the advantage of being not only a combination of the ripe wisdom of the legislators and the insurance men of the country, but it is drawn upon lines which have received their foundation both in the experience of the Mother Country and of the various investigation and post investigation experiences of the United States.

There may, of course, be objections to the measure from individuals, and perhaps, from certain companies, but as the measure is to go before the Banking and Commerce Committee before it is given final consideration by the House, there ought to be ample opportunity to frame a measure which, while availing ourselves of the experiences of other countries, shall be suited to the conditions of Canada, which conditions, in insurance as in politics, and in other matters, are peculiar to this country.

There will be a month or six weeks in which Parliament can give careful consideration to the measure, and no reason exists why the result should not be an act which will be equally protective of the interests of the policy-holders and a safeguard to the interests of the shareholders in the companies.

IS IT "BRITISH?"

(Brantford Expositor.)

Premier Whitney's stock argument in favour of the retention of the three-fifths handicap as applied to Local Option is that the majority principle is un-British. Unfortunately for him the facts do not bear out his contention.

To begin with, the Mother Country has no Local Option measure such as we have in Canada, and if we wanted to follow her lead we would cancel no license without providing compensation. So that the legislation we now have upon the statute books which wipes out licenses without any such proviso, is un-British. What, then, becomes of the Premier's ideal?

But, for obvious reasons, it is not to Great Britain, but to places more advanced than she is in the matter of temperance reform, we should look for models in the matter of legislation affecting the liquor traffic.

In the United States, which is the home of Local Option, the bare majority principle generally prevails, but as the Premier professes an unwillingness to look for models in that direction, let us consult the other provinces of the Dominion. Here we find

That Manitoba, after trying the Three-fifths, has abandoned it in favour of a bare majority.

Prince Edward Island is under probation. Had formerly been under the Scott Act, which provides for bare majority.

Quebec—Bare majority.

Nova Scotia—Three-fifths of the resident ratepayers must petition.

New Brunswick—The Lieutenant-Governor may issue a proclamation putting prohibition in force in any particular locality.

Saskatchewan—Three-fifths.

Alberta—Three-fifths.

Then let us turn to other British colonies, and we find as follows:

Tasmania—Bare majority.

Queensland—Simple majority to prevent new licenses or to reduce the numbed of licenses. Two-thirds to prevent any licenses.

Victoria—Bare majority to increase or reduce the number of licenses. No local option as to entire prohibition.

New Zealand—Bare majority prevails, save when the vote is no, license, when three-fifths is required.

South Australia—Bare majority.

Newfoundland—Bare majority.

Transvaal—Bare majority.

It will be seen from the information afforded above that the Premier's claim that a bare majority is un-British cannot be substantiated. Were the fact otherwise the argument would be a weak one. For example, take the fiscal policy of the country. For his model does Sir James look to Washington or to Westminster? In this matter he certainly accepts American ideals as being better suited for this country than those of the Mother Country. And the trade policy is not the only illustration we have that a policy which is in harmony with sentiment in the Mother Land may not, because of differing conditions, be one Canada or the other colonies should adopt.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Good John Bull sems to think that his name gives him special privileges. While he refuses entry of Canadian "store" cattle to his pasture fields, and insists that these who are received must be slaughtered as conveniently as possible to the point of landing, good Jean Crapeau, under the amended French treaty, is a little more liberal. Canadian lean cattle are admitted at the minimum duty to be fattened in French pastures.

MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE HELD LAST NIGHT

desire larger concerns that employ 200, 500 and 1,000 hands, we welcome the smaller concerns such as the Lubricating Cup Factory, Mat Factory, Furniture and Novel-Ti Factories and others which have located here within the last year or so. We hail with delight the prospect of the extension of the Street Railway both in the City and to the Lakes. The building of the Victoria Harbour, Peterborough C. P. R. line will put us on the grain route of that great system and no doubt before long the Toronto Montreal Branch of that Railway will be double tracked and be used for the main line to the West. This will give us at least one train a day extra each way, and increase our travelling and shipping facilities. We have in the past been endeavouring to work out a scheme for the earlier delivery of the Toronto Daily Papers in our City; for over twenty years there has been no improvement in this matter. We are apparently content to receive the daily news of the world in the middle of the day. The Board will keep at this work until we can have our Toronto Daily at our Breakfast table.

There are many other subjects I might touch but this report is already long enough. I wish in conclusion to thank the Officers and members for their loyal support during the year and for the many courtesies received at your hands.

M. A. MORRISON,
President.

Secretary's Report

To the President, Officers and Members of the Peterborough Board of Trade:

Gentlemen,—I have the honour of presenting to you as Secretary the 20th Annual Report of this Board.

This year we have held four meetings, viz.:—3rd March, 29th September, 10th December and 21st December, 1908. We have also held several Committee meetings.

The following subjects were under discussion: The Public Library Question—Electric Wiring—Equipment of the Fire Department—Fire Protection (Prevention), when a Paper on this subject was read by Chief Howard—Preparations for an Industrial Revival—Tabulation of available sites for information of outside inquiring Manufacturers—Sending a business man to interview intending locators instead of mailing them information as heretofore—Money By-laws to be submitted to property owners at Municipal Election.

The average attendance was 15 members, a slight falling off from the previous year, although well up as compared with other years.

The thanks of the Board of Trade are due to His Worship Mayor Rush and the immediate past and present Members of the Board of Aldermen for the use of the City Council Chamber during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,
T. Q. QUARTERMAINE,
Secretary.

Peterborough, Ont., March 9, 1909.

Preference to Peterborough

The following telegram was received at 8 p.m. from Mr. J. A. Culverwell, of the Central Ontario Power Co., Limited:

Toronto, Ont., March 9.
Chairman Board of Trade Meeting, Peterborough.

We prefer to sell Burleigh Power to Peterborough if fair and prompt deal made. Two offers pending to use power outside. Peterborough's future depends upon large immediate supply cheap power, not small temporary supply from nearer sources at higher cost. Unbiassed engineers' reports will demonstrate costs. Incorrect published statements by past council and power companies as to quantity of Peterborough available power prevented financing Burleigh's development and misled ratepayers. We expend immense sums advertising Peterborough, and shareholders expect return. Engineers' reports demonstrate Burleigh now entitled to twenty-seven feet head, and reservoir will give fifty per cent. additional power during working hours and prevent frazile ice and give cheapest delivered power. Water flow same as Peterborough. Let ratepayers, and not selfish interest, now decide industrial future of Greater Peterborough.

THE CENTRAL ONTARIO POWER CO., LIMITED. 8 p.m.

The election of officers was then proceeded with. Dr. Morrison announced his retirement, stating that he had been two years in the position and thought that the office should be passed on to somebody else. He was renominated for the position but declined the honour.

The election of officers resulted in the unanimous selection of the following, who were greeted with applause.

President—Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie.
Vice-President—Ald. W. H. Bradburn.
Treasurer—Mr. P. Campbell.
Secretary—Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine.

The latter is now commencing his eleventh year as secretary of the Board. In moving that he be re-elected, Mr. Morrison stated that he had been connected with Mr. Quartermaine in connection with Board of Trade matters for the past two years and he had always found that he did his work faithfully and well.

The meeting then passed on to discuss the water works dam proposition which proved interesting and profitable.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners opened the debate upon the question. He explained that there was an erroneous impression that the commissioners wanted $120,000 for a new dam. The dam would cost only about a third of that sum, but it was necessary to increase the pumping facilities. Mr. Matthews said that the matter had been delayed as long as possible and this was regarded as an opportune time.

The Canadian Fire Underwriters had informed the commissioners that the pumpage per day would have to be increased to 10,000,000 gallons per day while at present it was only 4,500,000. In case the increase was not made there would surely be an increase in the insurance rates.

The speaker explained that Mr. Kennedy, the eminent engineer, had recommended a new dam and pumping station, about 500 feet below the present site. If the new dam was not built at all it would still be necessary to spend $80,000 to increase the pumping facilities.

In all, some 1,200 h.p. would be available at the new dam and of this the city could use about 700 h.p. for street lighting. The leakage at the present dam was tremendous and there could be no surplus power developed there.

The taxpayers would not be called upon to pay a cent of the interest. Every year there was a surplus, although the water was supplied to the consumer at a cheaper rate than in any other city of similar size in Canada.

The commissioners had in mind the erection of a filtration plant immediately after the dam was built. The Board was unanimous on the question and believed that the building of a new dam and water works plant was in the best interests of the city and that the citizens would carry the by-law.

Mr. Jas. Kendry criticized the commissioners for not giving enough information to the public in regard to their proposition. He did not think that the people knew just what was intended to be done and that they would therefore vote against the measure. They were entitled to the information and he was of the opinion that they should get it. He was not opposed to the water works dam believing that a new one might be needed but he did not think it worth considering the power that might be developed there as it might in a few years require all the power developed to look after the water service. Mr. Kendry stated that the commissioners were claiming credit for the surplus that was coming in, whereas the speaker considered that this was due to the increase in the number of services. He thought the commissioners should get the advice of more than one hydraulic engineer before they committed themselves.

Mr. Matthews pointed out that the commissioners had employed the services of two experts, as Mr. Kendry had suggested and had called in Messrs. Keefer and Kennedy. Their proposition was based upon the reports of those gentlemen and the commissioners had carefully considered the matter before acting.

Mr. W. H. Moore said the matter had not been hastened and sprung on the citizens in a moment. It had been under the consideration of the commissioners for three years. He explained that the Commissioners had engaged two hydraulic engineers, Messrs. Keefer and Kennedy, and he thought that enough information was forthcoming. The desire of the Commissioners was to keep nothing from the ratepayers, but to give them the fullest information possible.

Dr. Morison remarked that he thought every one was agreed upon the necesity of a new dam. He was of the opinion that the Commissioners should be supported in any effort that they might make in that connection. In regard to developing power at the dam for city purposes he did not think that question should be brought in as part of the proposition. The Commissioners were not able to say how much power they might require in the years to come.

The development of power at the dam would not be sufficient to solve the city's power question. He moved the following resolution:

"That this Board is of the opinion that the Water Commissioners should carry forward their scheme to build a new dam and pumping station at the earliest moment possible, and that the project of the Commissioners should receive the loyal support of the ratepayers in the city."

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles was of the opinion that a new dam was needed, and approved of the proposed scheme to establish a filtration plant. He thought that all the power possible should be developed at the dam, because the water works would need it eventually and the city could use it in the meantime. He seconded Dr. Morrison's resolution.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum also discussed the subject. He was of the opinion that by uniting the powers at Auburn and the water works dam as had been done in the cases of Dams No. 4 and 5, that better results would ensue as far as power was con-

Delightful Imaginary Trip To Boundless Realm Of The Stars

Mr. T. Parry Jenkins Leads His Audience From Planet to Planet on a Most Interesting Journey —Profitable Sojourn on the Moon.

CORDIAL VOTE OF THANKS.

"A Journey to Starland," under the guidance of Mr. T. Parry Jenkins, F. R. A. S., President of the Hamilton Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society, proved a revelation to those who were unfamiliar with the abysmal depths of the heavens, and a delight to those who have acquired a certain knowledge of the planets, constellations and stars through the work of the local branch of the society. Mr. Jenkins manifested at every stage of the journey a thorough acquaintanceship with the various realms visited, and his entertaining treatment of the entire subject held the undivided interest and attention of the representative gathering which started on the imaginary trip in the Chemical Laboratory of the Collegiate Institute building. Very impressively did he bring out the utter infinity and immeasurable, inconceivable vastness of the universe in which Mother Earth is but a mite, and similarly he conveyed, indirectly, an idea of the wonderful advances that have been made in astronomy in most cases by men who devoted their lives to the pursuit of this great study.

Mr. Jenkins was introduced by Mr. H. B. Collier, president of the local centre. He extended greetings from the Hamilton centre, having been deputed to do so at a meeting held on Monday night. He regretted very much the illness of Rev. Dr. Marsh, which prevented him from being present.

The Lecture

Before launching the imaginary aeroplane, Mr. Jenkins stated that even among people of culture there is very largely an ignorance of the heavenly bodies. One reason is because they are always with us. If they appeared only one night in one thousand years many would believe and adore the Omnipotent Master of the universe. Regarding the sun, one important reference was to the effect that if it were cut into 1,300,000 pieces, each piece would be as large as our earth. If a celestial railway connected the sun and earth, it would take a train going 60 miles an hour, travelling day and night, 175 years to cross the intervening gulf of 93,000,000 miles. A cannon ball with initial velocity maintained all the time could not reach the sun in nine years. This gives an ide. of the meaning of 93,000,000 miles. The Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, with the fine telescope used therein, was shown in two splendid slides. An enlarged group of sun spots taken by this instrument were shown. It was in 1611 that the first sun spot was observed. Before that it was considered pure, unsullied. When Fabricius turned his crude telescope on the first sun spot known to be observed, he thought it was another body crossing in front of the sun, and it was only by continual observations that the was confident that it was a spot on the sun. The sun's corona was also an interesting photograph. This halo is visible only during a total eclipse of the sun. It is for this reason that governments send out expeditions to observe this wonderful phenomenon. The particular photograph was taken by a Japanese in Tokio in 1905. The red flames or protuberances, immense jets of burning hydrogen, were pointed out, being rather prominent One of these has been measured and found to extend 400,000 miles from the sun.

An interesting photograph was shown of Dr. Marsh and Mr. Jenkins at their telescopes in Labrador, where they had been sent with Dr. Johnston, of Chicago, by the Canadian Government. The awful gloom that galls the earth during an eclipse was vividly described.

The planet Mercury was then dealt with. It nestles close to the sun and can be seen immediately before the setting and rising of the sun. Venus was also in the itinerary, after which the imaginary course was followed to the earth's nearest neighbour, the moon. It is 238,000 miles from the earth. The celebrated Greenwich Observatory was founded in 1675, during the reign of Charles II., for the express purpose of watching the motions of the moon.

Maps of the Moon

There is not a part of the moon that has not been surveyed and mapped out, and its mountains, valleys, etc., located. The moon has been more thoroughly explored and surveyed than the earth. Large tracts of Africa have got to be definitely laid out, and even in Ontario there are unknown stretches of land. Dried ocean beds, craters of volcanoes now quiescent, mountains and valleys were pointed out by Mr. Jenkins on the screen. There were no shadows on the moon, the transformation from day and night being instantaneous. The phases of the moon, that is, its changes, do not affect the weather. We have one kind of weather in Peterborough at a certain time, but at the same time it is different in Ottawa, different from either of these in Vancouver, yet at that time the same moon is shining, thus shattering the old idea. The description of the extinct volcanoes on the moon was very interesting. Mr. Jenkins proving that they were volcanoes by a comparison with photographs of volcanoes on the earth. As far as astronomers at present understand, there is no life on the moon. Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, and Neptune were dealt with, also meteors, comets and nebulae, each receiving careful attention. Mr. Jenkins concluded his lecture by reciting Richter's dream. A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Messrs. A. W. Patterson and T. A. S Hay, was conveyed by Mr. Collier to Mr. Jenkins, who made a suitable reply.

The lantern was in charge of Mr. Homer O. Fiske, and the service being highly satisfactory, enhanced the descriptive effects.

cerned. He had had considerable experience in that line and thought that such a move was worth considering. Mr. Meldrum criticized the Commissioners for claiming credit for the fine showing of the water works department. He thought that they were only servants of the people, but they seemed to talk as if they owned the whole business.

Ald. Bradburn remarked that the matter had been before the council, and thoroughly discussed and the Council decided that it was the proper thing to submit the by-law to the people, feeling that it was their duty to do so. The interest and sinking fund would be looked after by the Commissioners.

Speaking of the power to be developed, Mr. Bradburn stated that Mr. Kennedy had reported that there would be 750 h.p. available for the use of the city and that the cost of a power house would be $15,000. The Council had discussed the matter and while they were not unanimous the majority had approved of the scheme. The contract with the Peterborough Light and Power Company would expire in 1912 and the Council wanted to be in a position in which they might protect themselves.

There was some discussion on the Burleigh Falls power question, the position of the Council in the matter being explained by Ald. W. H. Bradburn.

Mr. Meldrum asked if the Council were in earnest about the power question and Ald. Bradburn replied most emphatically that they were. It was impossible, he said, to do anything with Mr. Culverwell, who would not name a price for the Burleigh Falls Power. Mr. Culverwell, he explained had a lease of the power for 60 years at $1 per year from the Dominion Government.

Dr. Morrison's motion was then carried, after which the Board adjourned.

WEDDING BELLS

JENKINS-HATHERLY

At the parsonage of the George St. Methodist Church at two o'clock this afternoon, a pretty wedding was celebrated, when Miss Hannah Maria Hatherly, of Otonabee, was united in marriage to Albert John Jenkins, of Dummer. Rev. E. A. Pearson performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins will reside in Dummer, but will not be at home to their friends until April, owing to the fact that the husband has purchased a farm which will not be vacated until that time.

MATTHEWS—BUCK.

A quiet wedding was celebrated this morning at the parsonage of the George Street Methodist Methodist church, when Miss Hannah E. Buck was united in marriage to William Matthews. Both parties are from Asphodel and were unattended. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson.

NELSON-HENDERSON

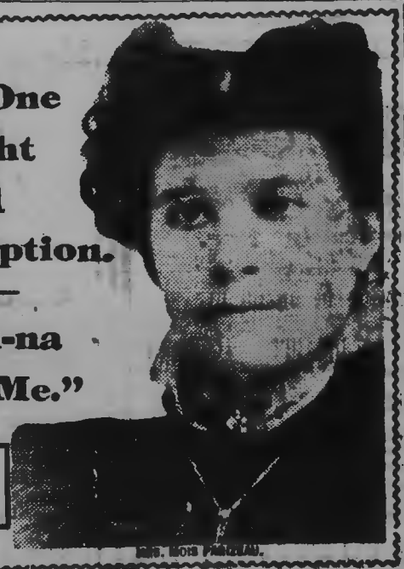
A very pretty March wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Henderson, of Keene, at 7:30 o'clock, Wednesday evening when their eldest daughter, Miss Alice Elizabeth Henderson was united in marriage to William A. Nelson, of Keene. The ceremony was performer by Rev. D. D. McDonald, in the presence of between forty and fifty guests. The bridal party entered the drawing room while Miss Mary Bryce played the wedding March. The bride was given away by her brother. She was charmingly attired in a grey silk princess gown trimmed with dainty silk braid and seeded pearl beads.

The bride was assisted by Miss Jennie Nelson, sister of the groom, who wore a pretty gown of rose silk trimmed with chiffon and braid. Mr. John Henderson, brother of the bride, assisted the groom.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a delightful wedding dinner was served. The groom's gift to the bride was a sable muff, while he presented a harvest moon brooch to the bridesmaid and a brooch set in pearls to the pianist.

Mr and Mrs. Nelson will reside near Keene.

"Every One Thought I Had Consumption. Pe-ru-na Saved Me."



"I THANK DR. HARTMAN FOR PE-RU-NA."

MRS. MOIS PARISEAU.

"I hardly know how to thank you for the good Peruna has done me.

"I suffered five years with pain in the stomach. About a year ago it became so bad I could hardly bear it. I coughed day and night and grew weaker and weaker. The pain extended through my body and I also had difficulty in breathing, which made me cough. Everyone thought I had consumption.

"My husband heard of Peruna and bought five bottles. This treatment virtually cured me and now I recommend Peruna to every one who is suffering.

"I thank Dr. Hartman for this excellent remedy."

Ste. Julie de Vercheres, P. Q., Canada. —Mrs. Mois Pariseau.

A NEGLECTED cold is generally the first cause of catarrh.

Women are especially liable to colds. These colds occur more frequently during the wet, sloppy weather of winter and spring than any other time of the year. Often they are not considered serious and are allowed to run on, or they are treated in such a way as to only palliate the symptoms, while the cold becomes more deep-seated and the patient finally awakens to the fact that she has a well-developed case of catarrh.

WOMEN SHOULD BEWARE OF CATCHING COLD.

By reason of their delicate structure, the lungs are frequently the seat of a cold, especially if there is the slightest weakness of these organs. The treatment of catarrh of the lungs is also more difficult and discouraging than catarrh of any other organ of the body.

It would be wise therefore, to guard against it by every precaution possible.

Peruna has been found the most reliable of all remedies for coughs, colds and catarrh, by reason of the fact that it goes at once to the very seat of the trouble.

It searches out every crevice, every duct of the body. It quickens and equalizes the circulation of the blood, thus relieving the congested mucous membranes. It exercises a healing and soothing effect upon the mucous membranes, no matter whether they are the more exposed membranes of the head and throat, or whether they line the remotest cells of the lungs.

PE-RU-NA THE REMEDY FOR CATARRH OF THE LUNGS.

Mrs. Jaschob, 1631 Hicks St., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

"When I wrote to you for advice, I had been sick for three years. I had trouble with my throat. Often I could not breathe through my nose. I also had pains in my chest and a cough. I took Peruna according to directions and it has cured me."

Nerviline

"Last Winter," writes J. E. Hemmingway, of Woodstock, "I was stricken down with Influenza. Every bone in my body ached. My chest was tight and sore, breathing was hard, stabbing pains shot through my lungs and made me wince. My head swam with dizziness, and fever and high pulse dragged down my strength. Nothing but Nerviline helped, and it cured me quickly. For all Winter ills I urge every family to use Polson's Nerviline."

All dealers sell Nerviline, large bottles 25 cents.

OWEN SMILY GREETED WITH LARGE AUDIENCE AT CONSERVATORY HALL

WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

A large and most appreciative audience greeted Owen A. Smily at the Conservatory Music Hall last evening. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Girls' Guild of George St. Church, and they are to be congratulated on having been able to obtain Mr. Smily for an evening for Peterboro Mr. Smily is not at all a stranger to local audiences, having appeared here on several occasions. The announcement that he is to appear here is sufficient guarantee that there will be a large attendance at his concert.

His programme always composed of selections, both humorous and serious, are so delightful to his hearers that he is repeatedly called upon to respond to the most enthusiastic encores. Mr. Smily more than ever last evening excelled himself. His humour was of the bright, sparkling kind that kept his audience in fits of laughter. His opening number was a Scottish one, "Courtin'." His delineations of the two Scotch characters outlined in the selection were very ludicrous. Mr. Smily is equally at home in telling an Irish story or giving an elocutionary recitation. Last night in reciting "The Proposals of Bridget O'Brien," he brought down the house, so exceedingly laugh provoking was it. Probably his best contribution was the recitation and sketch "Old Ways and New."

It was opened with the reciting of Longfellow's "Hiawatha's Wooing." This beautiful little poem was given in a manner that held his hearers spellbound. Then followed a number of humorous parodies, illustrating traits of character in the present day society wife. He gave as an encore number to this, "My Sweetheart of Olden Days."

Local talent of an exceptionally high order of merit also contributed to the entertainment. The programme opened with a splendidly executed piano duet by Misses McKee and McGaw. Miss Ida Sanderson sang the "Creole Love Song" in excellent manner, and Miss C. Reesor's sweet soprano voice was heard to advantage in "A May Morning." For an encore she sang "My Rosary." Mr. Mortimer Johnston sang the "Bandolero" in splendid voice.

The entire programme was as follows:

1. Piano duet, Misses McKee and McGaw.
2. Dialect poem, "Courtin'" Mr. Owen A. Smily.
3. Vocal solo, Miss Ida Sanderson.
4. Humorous recitation, "The Proposals of Bridget O'Brien," Mr. Owen A. Smily.
5. Violin duet, Misses Grace Todd and Julia Choate.
6. Recitation and sketch, "Old Ways and New," Mr. Owen A. Smily.
7. Vocal solo, Mr. Mortimer Johnston.
8. Selection, Mr. Owen A. Smily.
9. Piano duet, Miss Grace Todd and Helen Greaves.

Misses McKee and McGaw acted as accompanists for the evening.

Owing to illness Mr. W. McIlroy and Miss Myrtle Kline, who were to have taken part in the programme were unable to do so, and those who did sing kindly consented to fill in at the last minute.

Theatrical Man Speaks Highly Of Play To Be Produced March 17

Mr. E. C. Fitzgerald Predicts Success for "True Irish Hearts" and Compliments Mr. George Lynch on the Pretty Piece He Has Chosen.

LAST REHEARSALS NOW HELD

"You have a very pretty show there George, and I very much regret that I will not be able to see the production on the 17th of March." Mr. E. C. Fitzgerald, who has been signed by Burton Nixon Co. to appear next season in "Mollie Bawn" in bidding farewell to Mr. Geo. Lynch was heard by a reporter to make the above reference to "True Irish Hearts," that will be presented on Mar. 17th by the dramatic section of St. Peter's T. A. S. Mr. Fiezgerald while in the city several days was present at the rehearsals of the play lending his assistance in parts and helping Mr. Lynch who will play the leading role. The piece will delight the public according to those who have seen it and the musical numbers are very appropriate and will appeal to every ear in the house.

The parts are taken by experienced amateurs and a very pleasing and effective role is that played by a little boy. There are many surprises in the production. There are no multiplicity of scenes. The curtain goes down only on the close of the acts, Mr. Lynch having devoted his best efforts to make the piece smooth running, and well connected. The bills are out announcing the play and another success is at this early date practically assured. A word of caution is given to those intending to purchase seats and that is that as the early bird catches the worm, so the early applicants get the best seats.

Market Clerk In Lindsay Gets Raise In Salary For His Services

The Lindsay Council has decided to increase the salary of its market clerk. They have also aranged the hours at which he must be present in his office. The Warder makes the following note of how the council dealt with the matter.

At the meeting of the council committees held last night Mr. Neil Callaghan's salary as market clerk for the town of Lindsay, was increased $550 to $600. It was after considerable discussion on the subject that the salary of Mr. Callaghan was increased. He was recognized by the members as a very efficient servant.

Ald. Kylie moved that an increase of fifty dollars be made and the motion being seconded by Reeve Jordan it was carried.

On motion Market Clerk Callaghan's hours were set as follows: From April to October, that he be present at the market at seven o'clock during the months of April, May, June, July, August, September, and at 8 o'clock during the remainder of the year. The motion carried.

The Collegiate Institute Wins Praise From Mr. J. P. Jenkins

Peterboro's Collegiate Institute very much pleased Mr. T. Parry Jenkins, who lectured last night in the chemical laboratory before the local centre of the Royal Astronomical Society. The whole building won many expressions of satisfaction as he passed from room to room. The location in the park was a strong point, he stated, and likewise the plan of the rooms and the spaciousness and pleasing appearance of the interior was very much to Mr. Jenkins' taste. The natural history specimens won his particular favour as he is interested in that branch of study himself. He spoke highly of the manner in which the different birds and animals had been mounted, stating that Mr. Elcome's knowledge of taxidermy was most commendable. The poses of the birds and other specimens were very true to life, one of the best tests of a taxidermist's science. Mr. Jenkins stated that Peterborough might well be proud of its Collegiate Institute, which had been placed in a splendid position and was an ornament to the city.

Many Important Matters Were Dealt With By The Presbytery

Letter of Sympathy to Dr. Marsh—The Furtherance of the Evangelistic Spirit—Church's Efforts in Observance of the Sunday—Committees Were Drafted.

ACCOUNT OF THE WORK.

The concluding work of the Presbytery was brought to a close yesterday afternoon, many important matters being dealt with. To-day the visiting clergymen have returned to their homes. The work at the afternoon session was in part as follows:

Peterborough, March 9, '09.

The Presbytery of Peterborough, now assembled, having learned of the long and serious illness of the Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, takes this early opportunity to express its deep regret for and sincere sympathy with him in his trying trouble, and we rejoice to know that he is convalescing so favourably. The Presbytery expresses the hope that Dr. Marsh will speedily be restored to perfect health, and enabled to resume the work so dear to him, and prays that he may long be spared to carry forward the Lord's work in the congregation to which he has been called to minister, and in which he has been so highly blessed.

The Presbytery wishes to convey to Mrs. Marsh and family its expression of gratitude to God that they have been so signally sustained in their ministry to Dr. Marsh during his sickness, and joins with them in the joy of his restoration.—D. A. McKenzie, J. F. Clark, Jas. G. Potter.

According to adjournment the Presbytery met at 2 o'clock and was constituted. The Clerk reported satisfactory results regarding congregations coming up to required minimum of stipend for ministers.

The Rev. A. C. Stewart of Grafton was appointed to address the annual meting of the W. F. M. S., Presbyterial Society, at Port Hope, in June.

The Moderator appointed Messrs McLeod, Currie, and Lees a committee to appoint standing committees and the Presbytery gave them leave to retire.

Commissioners Appointed.

Commissioners to the General Assembly were then appointed, as follows:

Rev. Messrs Skene and McKenzie by rotation.

Rev. Messrs. Burns and Thomson by election.

Elders—David Armstrong, Thomas Spear, J. Clapperton, J. T. Morrison.

It was moved by the Clerk, seconded by Mr. Pogue, that Dr. Samuel Lyle, of Hamilton, be nominated as Moderator of the next General Assembly.

Mr. Wm. Madill was appointed to represent this Presbytery on the Business Committee of the Synod and Mr. Skene was nominated on the Business Committee of the Assembly.

The Rev. Clarence McKinnon, Winnipeg, was nominated for the Chair of Systematic Theology in the Presbyterian College, Halifax, and the Rev. W. D. Reid, B.D., Montreal, for the Chair of Practical Theology in the Presbyterian College, Montreal.

The Presbytery agreed to hold its next regular meeting in St. Paul's church, Port Hope, on the second Tuesday of July, the hour of meeting to be fixed by the Clerk at a future date.

The Treasurer reported re Synod and Presbytery fund, on certain matters regarding the levy which were satisfactorily adjusted.

The session records of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, and Centreville were examined and found neatly and correctly kept.

Mr. Pogue presented the report on Evangelism, which was received, and its recommendations considered seriatim, viz.:

1. That pastors be urged to keep in close touch with their Sabbath School teachers, and seek to imbue them with the evangelistic spirit, so that in all their teaching they may aim at bringing the young to definite decision for Christ.

2. That pastors be urged to consider the advantages of decision day in the Sunday School and to observe it wherever possible.

3. That in view of the expressed desire of nearly all the ministers of the Presbytery to co-operate in a simultaneous effort in the Presbytery, and the desirability and need of such effort, a strong committee be appointed to take the matter into consideration and if found to be feasible to make all necessary arrangements to carry through such a campaign in the Presbytery.

The Moderator appointed Messrs. McKenzie and Madill to audit the books of the Treasurer and the Conveners of the Home Mission and augmentation funds.

Standing Committees.

The committee to strike standing committees reported as follows:

The Rev. S. S. Burns, Convener of Home Missions submitted his report, a sketch of the territory covered by the Cardiff Mission field exhibiting a proposed change in the preaching stations. It was referred to committee for action.

The report of the Augmentation Committee was presented by the Rev. Mr. Skene, Convener. Grants were asked for Havelock $150, Rice Lake $125, Pontypool $50.

In connection with this matter it was moved by Mr. Potter, seconded by Mr. Thomson, and unanimously agreed, that the Presbytery strongly endorse the application for grants from the congregations seeking aid from the fund. In each case there are very special features so well known to the entire Presbytery that it feels confident that the cause of Christ, as well as the honour and usefulness of the churches, will be greatly advanced by such assistance.

A splendid report on Church Life and Work was submitted by the Rev. W. Beattie in which he set forth the advantages of Religon in the Home. It was received and adopted.

The report on Sabbath Schools was presented by Mr. Keith. It was received and adopted.

The report on Young People's Societies was presented by the Rev. D. D. McDonald, showing 17 organizations in the Presbytery, being an increase of seven during the year and also a strong financial increase.

The report was received, its recommendations considered, seriatim and adopted.

The report on Statistics submitted by the clerk was read, received and adopted.

Rev. J. A. G. Stirling submitted a glowing report on Foriegn Missions. The congregation of Keene stood at the top of the list with $1,210.43 given for Foreign Mission work.

The report on Systematic Giving was presented by Wm. McLeod. Mr. J. F. Clark would enjoin on every one uniting with the church the duty of contributing something to Church Ordinances and Missions. The report was adopted.

Rev. J. G. Potter submitted the report on Moral and Social Reform. It dealt with the questions of Sabbath Observance, Temperance, Gambling, Industrial Problems, etc.

The following recommendations were adopted:

1. That the Presbytery approves of the scope of the work outlined by the assembly's committee in this important department of the work of the church, and that we express our sympathy with the important and praiseworthy efforts being made by the church to further the interests of Sabbath Observance, Temperance, Personal Purity and Political Purity.

2. The Presbytery expresses its great delight in viewing the widespread influence and effect of Local Option, and looks forward with good hope to the complete abolition of the bar within the bounds of the Presbytery.

It was unanimously decided that the Convener should circulate as far as possible the later recommendation, and secure its publication in all the papers within the bounds of the Presbytery.

The Rev. W. H. Brokenshire made application through the Presbytery to be received as a Minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada at the next General Assembly.

Mr. Thomson was appointed to support the application before the Assembly's Committee.

The Clerk was instructed to write Rev. Mesars. Hyde and Ross regarding their position on the roll of Presbytery.

Mr. Skene gave notice of motion for the adjourned meeting on the 23rd regarding the printing meetings.

Certain expenses of Conveners were then considered and passed.

Before adjournment a very interesting conference took place regarding the value and importance of a Simultaneous Evangelistic Campaign.

The Presbytery then adjourned to meet in St. Andrew's Church at 9 a.m., March 23.

The Moderator pronounced the benediction.

LIVE MACHINES AT OTTAWA FAIR

New Process Department Promises to be Great Success.

The directors of the Central Canada Exhibition have been greatly encouraged at the manner in which their decision to establish a process department, commencing with the next Fair, has been received by the manufacturers. As the result of the personal solicitation of Secretary McMahon, a considerable portion of the space devoted to this purpose has been taken and the features promises to be one of the most successful ever tried by the Ottawa Exhibition.

The whole of Howick Hall, the largest and most important building on the grounds, has been set apart for the process exhibits, and manufacturers participating in the show will be provided with free space, free power, free gas and free light. They wil lalso be assisted in every way to make their exhibits attractive.

There is nothing more interesting than machinery in motion turning out articles in every day use, and it is certain that tens of thousands of people will pass through Howick Hall next September and give close inspection to the exhibits it contains.

Secretary McMahon is desirous of receiving correspondence from any manufacturers in the Ottawa valley who may think of securing space in this most important department of the Central Canada Exhibition.

FARMERS' DOGS MUST HAVE THEIR TAGS

Otherwise the Sheep Industry Would Practically be Destroyed—No Change in Practice.

Dog tax agitation is becoming quite general. Cavan Council has considered it in still another phase. A petition was presented asking that farmers be allowed to keep one dog free of taxes. Mr. C. J. Thornton, M.P., wrote disapproving of the request, and at its last session the Council slated the petition, because to grant it would be to discourage sheep-raising; which just now needs all kinds of encouragement. The council acted wisely.—Port Hope Guide.

ROYAL THEATRE

Mr. Beveridge Miller, whose fine tenor robusto voice has pleased many thousands of our citizens at the Royal Theatre concludes his engagement at that place of amusement on Saturday night. To-morrow night Mr. Miller will give a farewell series of high-class songs at The Royal. Mr. and Mrs. Miller, during their stay in the city have made many friends. Mr. Miller's departure will be a loss to local musical circles. We understand that when Mr. Miller leaves next Monday, it is to take an important engagement at a leading Chicago theatre.

SAYS HEPBURN CONFESSED

M.P.P. on Stand Testifies That Former Candidate Told Whole Story to Him and Wanted Protection From Perjury Charge—Mrs. Stringer Given Money to Go to Michigan—Hepburn Won't Come.

St. Thomas, March 10.—Once more the Orwell Hotel scandal is in the limelight. This time it is the key of an investigation being conducted by Eudo Saunders of the License Department into the administration of the liquor license laws by Inspector William Andrews of East Elgin, who asked that a commission be appointed. Yesterday on the stand he stated that he had been accused in political campaigns of conspiring to ruin the reputation of W. F. Hepburn, who was a Liberal candidate against David Marshall in the bye-election of 1906.

The story as told in court yesterday was that Hepburn during his campaign met two women of questionable character at the Orwell Hotel, which was complained against for disorderly conduct. The Liberals claimed that it was part of a plot to ruin Hepburn's reputation and he (Hepburn) denied the allegations when the trial was held in Aylmer.

Yesterday C. A. Brower, M.P.P., testified that Hepburn, whose innocence has been maintained all along by his friends, one night went to him with a Yarmouth Centre hotelkeeper named Wilcox and admitted everything, asking Brower's influence to prevent him being charged with perjury. The story was corroborated by his son George.

Hepburn, who is now in the lumber business in Winnipeg, was subpoenaed as the principal witness, but was not present. Commissioner Saunders stated that seventy-five dollars had been sent to him to cover expenses, but a telegram was produced from the sheriff at Winnipeg who said Hepburn absolutely refused to attend the investigation. A. Grant, barrister, was present to represent Hepburn, who, he explained, had a contract with the Saskatchewan Government to deliver telephone poles and could not leave his work.

Evidence taken at Port Huron by commission, given by Wilcox, his wife and Mrs. Stinger, one of the women implicated, none of whom would come to Canada, was presented. Mrs. Stinger charged Hepburn with intimacy with another woman, who had gone to the Orwell Hotel with her, where they met Hepburn by accident. Mrs. Stinger said she had got $100 to get out of the country, being paid the money by John Glover of Aylmer, who admitted making the payment, but said it was not Hepburn's money, but money he got from the late Lawyer Stevens, who was Hepburn's election financial agent. Glover said he had reasons of his own, wanting to get possession of Mrs. Stinger's chattels, on which he held a mortgage.

Dickson, a hostler at the hotel, swore to the events of the night and to being approached by George A. Tuttle of Aylmer and of making a false statement to him and taking $15 therefor.

Mr. Tuttle contended Dickson came to him with his story and admitted giving $15 for his affidavit, which witness had not seen. Lawyer Backuss wanted to find out why witness had spent the money for the affidavit, but witness would not tell.

MILLIONS OF CELLS.

The human body is composed of countless millions of cells. These cells are constantly dying and new ones are being created. Dead cells are removed from the blood by the bowels, kidneys and skin. These great eliminating organs filter this waste matter from the blood, and thus purify the blood.

If there is Constipation, or non-action of the bowels—if the kidneys are strained or weakened—if there is defective skin action—then the dead cells are not removed from the body. The blood thus becomes loaded with impurities, and we suffer for it.

The only way to purify the blood is to cure the skin, bowels and kidneys. When these organs are healthy and doing their work as nature intended them to do it, waste matter is promptly removed and the blood is kept pure and rich. "Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—act directly on the skin, the bowels and the kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" purify the blood because they keep the whole body strong, vigorous and healthy. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SMART ON TRIAL.

Indian Faces Jury on the Charge of Slaying Uncle.

Belleville, March 10.—"I expect to hang," is the way Thomas Smart, the young Mohawk Indian of Tyendenaga Township, views his chances with the jury in the case that is being tried before Justice Teetzel, starting at 9 o'clock this morning.

Smart is to be tried for the murder of his step-uncle, James Sero, about 60 years old, who was shot down in the night while on his way to his house after putting his horses out.

The above quotation is vouched for by William Hughes, who spent ten days in close companionship with Smart on a charge of petty theft.

Hughes swears: "If God should strike me dead, that's what he said."

Hughes further explains the motive for the shooting as received from the accused's own lips in the fact that the uncle was too intimate with the prisoner's 15-year-old sister.

Considerable interest is manifest in the trial, as it has been intimated that defence's counsel, W. L. Harrington, will dwell largely on the moral aspect of the case, and play up the unwritten law very strongly.

Quite a bit of speculation is going the rounds as to whether Dorothy Smart, the prisoner's sister, will stick to the story she told at the preliminary trial. She was married in January to Arthur Brant of the reserve, and on this account it is hinted she might be moved to pity, and alter her evidence in order to shield her brother.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Ruth Bryan Leavitt, eldest daughter of W. J. Bryan, was yesterday granted a divorce against W. H. Leavitt.

Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson are writing a play for Mabel Taliaferro, to be known as "The Return of a Soul."

The bill forbidding the purchase of lands in Cuba by aliens was defeated in the House of Representatives by a vote of 49 to 11.

Word was received here yesterday from Wanipaten, Ont., of the death of John McNabb, who was killed by falling off a bridge.

A Rome despatch says: The Pope, who has been suffering from a cold, is much better. The beautiful spring-like weather has had a good effect on the patient.

George T. Oliver of Pittsburg was named as the Republican candidate for United States Senator to succeed Philander C. Knox, by the joint caucus of the Senate and House.

The new St. Catharines City Council at its first meeting passed a resolution requesting the Provincial Secretary to instruct the city license commissioners to carry out the will of the people by cutting down the number of licenses from 19 to 12.

A Washington special to The New York Times says it is generally assumed that Whitelaw Reid will not continue as ambassador to England, and the presence in Washington of Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the Republican state committee of New York, has led to the coupling of his name with that post.

800 Off For West.

Toronto, March 10.—Two sections of C.P.R. train No. 59 carried over 800 people out of the Union Station last night, bound for the West.

The first section, which left the depot at 10.20, was composed of seven passenger coaches and sleepers, and four baggage cars. The second section left some time later, and was made up of seven colonist cars.

The passengers in the first section were the usual tourist passengers. In the second section, however, the passengers were settlers bound for the West to take up land. Probably 500 settlers went out.

Woman's Death by Fire.

Halifax, March 10.—With a hip broken and anchored to her bed with a heavy weight, used to keep the broken limb in place, Mrs. Wm. Bell of Wallace Ridge, was burned to death.

Neighbors had been in the habit of seeing that she was fixed up for the night and one of them stayed with her, but through some misunderstanding no one stayed Thursday.

Her house is some distance from the neighbors, and, after the flames were seen, help was some time coming. She was dead when found.

Jumps, and Then Jabs Throat.

Merton, Ont., March 10.—E. Young, attempted suicide by jumping from the upstairs window to the ground below.

Failing in this and when forced into the house, he then secured a knife by which he tried to cut his throat. The knife being forced from him, he then secured a pair of scissors, and before these could be taken from him succeeded in inflicting a deep wound in the neck.

His condition towards recovery is reported favorable. He has for some time been in poor health.

MISS KINRADE'S BODY HAS BEEN EXHUMED

Police Anxious to Find Out Number of Bullets Fired.

NEW CORONER IS NAMED

Evidence of Dr. McNichol Is Needed In Kinrade Inquest — Brother of Murdered Girl Gives Signed Statement In Which He Declares There Were No Family Affairs to Account for Crime.

Hamilton, March 10.—The body of Miss Ethel Kinrade was exhumed yesterday afternoon after resting in its grave since a week ago Sunday.

Aside from the fact that the crown wants to find out exactly how many bullets and wounds there are in the body, there is nothing sensational in this move, according to the explanations of the authorities. They say they want to use Dr. McNichol, the first medical man who saw the girl after she was murdered, as a witness, and as it would have been irregular for him to have acted as a witness and a coroner, too, it was decided by the Attorney-General's Department that it would be better to have everything done in a regular and legal manner.

Dr. McNichol is wanted as a witness by the crown, not altogether on account of his medical testimony, but because he was the first to hear Miss Florence Kinrade's story. Her story to him differed from her subsequent stories. Amongst other things, she told him that the man who shot her sister had red hair and a red moustache. Not long after, to Detective Bleakley, she said that the man was of medium dark complexion, and had a large wavy drooping black moustache. To the doctor, she said also that when the man entered the hall he forced her back to near the dining-room, and that her sister came downstairs, and that the man getting frightened turned around and shot her. She made no mention to him of going upstairs to get the $10.

Brother Makes Statement.

Toronto, March 10.—Earl Kinrade, in a signed statement given yesterday says in part:

"The man, I take it, was a common thief or burglar, armed, and a stranger to the city.

"From my knowledge of our family affairs I am quite positive that there was no situation which could lead to anyone wanting to get into the house and shoot any member of the family. Not only was there no quarrel or any jealousy between my sisters, but they got along all the time much better with each other than do most girl chums. Neither was in the least quarrelsome."

Shouldn't Mix Races.

Montgomery, Ala., March 10.—"There should be no admixtures of racial stocks," declared President Eliot of Harvard University yesterday in an interview:

"I believe, for example, that the Irish should not intermarry with the Americans of English descent; that the Germans should not marry the Italians; that the Jews should not marry the French. Each race should maintain its own individuality. The experience of civilization shows that racial stocks are never mixed with profit, and that such unions do not bring forth the best and strongest children. There is no reason, however, why the races cannot live together, side by side, in perfect peace and amity."

Three of Family and Nurse Are Dead.

Trenton, March 10.—Friends in this locality received word of an epidemic of typhoid pneumonia which prostrated the entire family of George Kyle at Harris, Sask., formerly of Picton, Ont., consisting of one daughter and six sons. At that time there were three deaths as a result—Arthur, aged 22; Ralph, aged 11, and a little later, Clare, aged 18.

Latest reports say that one of the nurses attending them succumbed to the same disease, and that one of the physicians in attendance was seized with the malady.

Fell From Window.

New York, March 10.—While delirious from illness, Walter H. Merriam, a lawyer, either jumped or fell from the window of his room on the fifth floor of the apartment house at 68th street and Central Park West, yesterday, and was instantly killed.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the ailing would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope, but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment. HENRY C. LOCUST.

"No Quarrel Or Jealousy," Says Brother—"My Sisters Got Along Better Than Most Girl Chums"

Earl Kinrade Makes Statement Giving His Own Opinions of the Motive Which Might Have Influenced Murderer of His Sister—The Most Likely Way of Escape.

FROM MEMBER OF FAMILY.

Motive.

So far as I have been able to learn and from I know of the case, the motive that lay behind the subsequent murder was robbery or burglary, pure and simple. The actions of the man indicate that pretty strongly. We had warnings a few days before that desperate characters were about. One night a jimmy was used in the endeavour to pry open the front window leading into the parlor. The man that tried to open the window may have been the one that did the shooting, or they may have been members of the same gang. My sister says that the man made a demand for money as soon as he entered the house. He knew evidently there were only the two girls in; probably he had been watching till he saw my mother go out. I do not think he had any but the burglary idea when he entered the house. The revolver he carried was to serve him if he got into a tight place, or perhaps to terrify the girls. I do not think it was intended to be used. That the man was a desperate character is shown from the fact that he came boldly in daylight, and that he was armed. Supposing for a minute that either of my sisters had an enemy desperate enough to commit murder, or suppose that any other member of the family was sought out to end some score, or for revenge—can any one imagine that the person would choose broad daylight as the time to enter the house and leave the house, and would risk discovery by firing seven shots once he was in? Common sense tells us that he would avoid daylight; otherwise he would take an awful chance on being caught. The house on Herkimer street is surrounded by other residences, and the occupants all know our family. If the man that shot Ethel was a resident of Hamilton, he would not have boldly marched up this street and gone in the front door. One cannot imagine any one possessing a motive strong enough to lead him to want to shoot a member of the family, thus leaving the door open for his ultimate detection. The man, I take it, was a common thief or burglar, armed, and a stranger to the city.

As to His Escape.

Going out through the front door offered the easiest method of escape for the murderer. He had only to turn sharply to the east, pass two houses on the south side of Herkimer street, and he would come to an alleyway that leads to the south, right up to the mountain, and in the other direction leads six or seven blocks north from Herkimer street. I think the statement of Florence that shots were fired at her merely proves that she was terrified at what she had come through, and also that she had when she was out in the back heard the sound of the last three shots fired. She could easily have imagined they were fired at her, in her state of nervous dread and excitement. Nothing has been discovered that leads me to believe anything but that the account of the shooting as told by my sister Florence will in the end turn out to be the correct version, in the main.

From my knowledge of our family affairs I am quite positive that there was no situation which could lead to anyone wanting to get into the house and shoot any member of the family. Not only was there no quarrel, or any jealousy between my sisters, but they got along all the time much better with each other than do most girl chums. Neither was in the least quarrelsome.

The case so far seems, as far as securing the murderer is concerned, a deep mystery. My great hope is that the number of police on the case and the great publicity that has been given it, will soon lead to the detection and apprehension of the man that comitted such a foul and wanton murder.

REMOVED ARTICLES FROM HOUSE WHILE BOARD BILL WAS OWING

Man and His Wife Charged With the Theft of Several Household Things Which Were Claimed for Board.

WERE FOUND GUILTY.

Bert Knapman pleaded not guilty at the police court this morning to the theft of a set of china dishes, a sewing machine, two boxes, two trunks and a quantity of bed clothes from an East City resident on Monday last. He elected to be tried summarily. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution.

It appears that the trouble arose out of Knapman, who, with his wife, had been boarding at the complainant's leaving the place owing a board bill and when ordered to leave the above named articles in payment of it, he refused to do so.

His Worship found him guilty, stating that it was quite evident, that there was money owing. He was sorry to see that the acount books kept by both parties differed so largely. He reserved judgment for a week in order to allow Knapman to pay the money. Mrs. Knapman intimated that the arrears would be paid right away.

The Evidence

The complainant was called. He lived at 662 Rogers St. He kept boarders, and the accused and his wife stopped with him for about 2 months and a half. When they left they were owing $24.50. Knapman was there eight weeks and his wife was there eleven weeks. He charged them $5.50 a week. Knapman refused to pay it, complained about the board and wanted to sub-let some of his rooms. On Monday last he was packing up his goods and witness told him to leave it alone until what was due him was paid. He did not deny owing the money. Knapman sent his wife out to telephone to the police. She came back with a note, saying that it would be all right to take the things.

The informant's wife said that the defendant and his wife had boarded with them. She had heard the transactions betwen her husband and Knapman. The witness kept the money. She corroborated her husband's evidence in reference to what had occurred on the day that they had taken the goods.

Bert Knapman said that the things they had taken away belonged to his wife. Richards ordered him out of the house on Saturday night, and refused to let him in on Sunday.

Mrs. Knapman was called. She produced an account book showing payments but denied that the entries had all been made at once.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

Result of Games in the Bowling Tournament Last Night—Belmonts Defeated the Iroquois.

There has been some good bowling at the P. B. C. alleys this week. The boys are out after the box of cigars. Tanny started the week with 204, then Sutherland rolled 217 which stood good until McIlroy ran up a score of 220. This looked like a winner but G. Ferguson limbered up and scored 224. It requires some bowling to beat that.

There were two games in the bowling tournament last night, resulting in the Examiner A's defeating the Examiner B's, and the Belmonts winning from the Iroquois. The scores were as follows:

Regulates Indigestion.

Digests All You Eat Leaving Nothing to Ferment in Stomach.

When your stomach is weak on lacking in gastric juice, anything that you eat, no difference what it is, will sour on your stomach, raise the bile and acids to cover your food like oil on water, causing indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach nervousness and belching of sour poisons, which produce foul odours, nasty taste, bilious headache, heartburn, intestinal griping and make you an object of misery. This is stomach trouble which can not be overcome with ordinary digestive medicines. It is caused by fermentation of your food, which will be remedied at once by Pape's Diapepsin, a pre aration pleasant to take and as harmless as candy, though it will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat.

Indigestion is a result, not a cause of your stomach. If your stomach is sour and unhealthy, your food becomes tainted, and that's what is caused the indigestion and gas on stomach and other miseries. Pape's Diapepsin is an antacid, most powerful digestive and thorough regulator for weak stomachs. These Triangles will digest any kind of food you eat and will cleanse the stomach and intestines in a natural way, which makes you feel fine five minutes afterwards.

Any good pharmacy here will supply you with a case of Pape's Diapepsin for fifty cents. Just reading about this remarkable stomach preparation will not help. You should go now and get a case. Put your stomach in full health and by tomorrow you will forget the misery of stomach trouble. Your case is no different from many others. It isn't stomach nerves or catarrh of the stomach, or gastritis, or dyspepsia. It is food rotting—food fermentation—that's all—and takes about five minutes to overcome.

THE PAINTER PED GIVES THE "BUNCH" A BRISK BRUSH

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

New York, March 10.—4:45 p.m.—Painfully limping over the sawdust covered track the surviving pedestrians in the six-day-race at Madison Square were to-day reduced to eleven and half teams. Louis Semeran, Brooklyn, composed the half team. He will replace the first man who drops out. Frenchmen Cibot and Orphe semed inexhaustible and had lead of over 16 miles on Davis and Methus with 333.2 miles. Hartley and Pollanti are in tenth place with 244.7.

New York, March 9th.—9 p.m.—Five teams succumbed to the stress and retired from the six-day international go-as-you-please race to-day, so that at 9 o'clock to-night only seven of the twenty-seven teams started Sunday night remained in the contest. Cibot and Orphee, the Frenchmen, showed good form all through the day, and to-night have a commanding lead ot over eleven mfles on their nearest competitors. Davis and Methus. The last named, late to-day succeded in passing Dineen and Prouty, the early leaders in the race, and several hours later Feegan and Curtis, the Irish 269.4; Feegan and Curtis, 261.6; Dineen, to-day plainly showed the wear of his team's first day's effort to retain the lead, and experts would not be surprised were he forced to retire.

The scores at 10 o'clock to-night, the 46th hour, are as follows: Cibot and Orphee, 280.5; Davis and Methus, 269.4ffi Feegan and Curtis, 261.6; Dineen and Prouty, 259.4; Looselin and Klubertanz, 248.5; Corey and Hegelman, 236.8; Shelton and Fraser, 237.1; Guignard and Revere, 236.6; Navoe and Kellar, 231.4; Hartley and Pallanti, 210.3; Quackenbush and Edelson, 198.5.

THE TROLLEY WHEELS WERE BURNED THROUGH

Four Removed by 9 o'clock This Morning—Heat From Flame Did it.

"That's the fourth wheel that I have put on this morning," remarked Mr. Jack Blackburn as he climbed down from the top of a street car after renewing the trolley wheel. The one he had taken off the trolley pole was cut in two at right angles to its face, having been burned by the arc that trailed behind it as it ran along the wire. This arc or flame was noticed at times to be almost a yard long and the heat generated was sufficient to burn the wheel as cleanly as if it had been cut with a knife. The water and ice on the wire caused the trouble.

LIVE WIRE CAUSED SMALL BLAZE TO-DAY

The fire brigade received a call this afternoon over the telephone to a fire that was started by a primary wire of the Peterborough Light and Power Company having fallen to the ground at the back of the Crown Hotel. The firemen were on the scent in a very few minutes and cut the wire that had grounded at the foot of the pole, but in so doing the end wire flewonto the transformer making a short circuit, burning the transformer out. A large crowd had gathered and when the transformer sent a blaze high in the air they thought that a comet had come to see them "duck" their heads,

FUNDS FOR NASH TWINS NOW CLOSED AND AMPLE

Further Contributions — Grateful and Grateful Acknowledgment by Kings's Daughters.

The liberal contribution to the fund for the maintenance of the Nash twins during their mother's detention in the hospital, now amounts to $61.40, ample for the purpose for which donations were solicited and the fund is now closed. In addition to the amount of $51.40 previously acknowledged in these columns the Examiner received on Tuesday two liberal anonymous contributions, one of $5.00 from "E. K.," Warsaw, and another of $5.00 from "A Friend," Keene. The King's Daughters, who originated the fund and have looked after its application, and assisted by Mr. Geo. Cochrane, found an excellent temporary home for the twins, desire through the Examiner to make the following acknowledgment:

The King's Daughters wish to thank the many kind friends, not only for the very generous response to their appeal for funds for the Nash twins, but also for the confidence which has been placed in their administration of the same.

The fund has now reached the sum of $61.40, and it will not be necessary to ask for any more, as work has been secured for the father, and it is to be hoped that before long he will be in a position to support his family.

The thanks of the Society is also due The Examiner, which has been of very great assistance in helping them, not only in this case, but whenever it is called upon.

LOST HIS HORSE IN PAYNE'S POND

Mr. Joseph Little of Warsaw Was Hauling Logs When Ice Broke.

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Jan. 9.—Mr. Joseph Little had the misfortune to have one of his horses drowned in Payne's pond on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Arthur Payne was driving the team and was hauling logs from the woods to the mill across the pond, and on this particular trip Mr. Little was riding behind. When about half way across the ice gave way precipitating the team and load into the water in such a manner that one of the horses' heads went below the ice and before it could be extricated it was drowned.

ORIGIN OF VOLUMINOUS WRITER DISCOVERED

It has been noticed that "Pro Bono Publico" is one of the most industrious contributors of letters to the public press and a great deal of curiosity is felt as to who he is and where he comes from. An old trade token, the size of an ordinary copper cent, dated 1792, left with the Examiner shows him to be of a venerable age. This token contains on its face the monogram comprising the letters "R. L. T. and Co." surrounded by the signature of "Pro Bono Publico." On the obverse is a female figure seated, the left hand resting upon an Irish harp. "Pro Bono Publico" was a prominent figure 120 years ago—1792 being the earliest record of his appearance.

It is doing so now and if not checked will result in the above conditions. No matter how serious your case may be, time afflicted, or the failure experienced in trying to be cured by medicine—free trials, or Electric belts—my Blotone system will cure. TRENT VALLEY LEAGUERS WILL BATTLE TO-NIGHT AT BROCK STREET

The Norwood and Stirling hockey teams arived in the city this afternoon, each bringing a strong contingent of rooters for to-night's game at Brock St. rink, to decide the championship of the Trent Valley League. The feeling between the two hamlets is of the keenest rivalry and both are out to win. Stirling has had a hard row to hoe in its district, winning out over the fast Madoc and Marmora teams. Norwood has had no cinch, but both got away in their groups and the sudden death go at Brock St. should well be worth seeing. Jack Thirnbeck has a fine sheet of ice which is practically guaranteed not to soften and it will be up to the Trent Valley League teams to keep going all the time at a fast pace. Mr. Harry Morgan has been chosen to referee and a good clean game is bound to be pulled off under his jurisdiction.

Norwood will likely be as follows:

Much interest is being taken in the game in the city as there has been considerable speculation regarding the brand of hockey that the Trent Valley teams have been putting up, and from all accounts they will give a good exhibition to-night.

LINDSAY WINS THE INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONSHIP IN DECISIVE FORM

Stratford, March 9.— Stratford lost the intermediate championship here to-night by 12 to 5, and the game by 5 to 3. This is the first occasion on which the locals have been beaten on their own ice, and from that standpoint the match was a disappointment to Stratford enthusiasts. It must, however, be admitted that the better team won.

While the locals could hardly be said to be outclassed, they certainly went up against a better combination of players. The ice was heavy, and this it is felt, was favourable to the visitors, in that chances for a big score were minimized. The visitors showed better team work, and their rushes were very effective. At no stage of the game were Lindsay's chances poor, as they were nearly always ahead. Their forward line excelled the locals, and the defence was also superior except for the almost phenomenal work of Rankin between the posts for the locals.

The game opened with desperate work on the part of the locals, who stormed the Lindsay goal for fully ten minutes, but without scoring. Lindsay played a strong defence, and saved their silverware. The first goal was scored after twenty minutes' play by Randall, and shortly afterwards Easson tallied for Stratford. Stoddard scored again just before the whistle blew, and Lindsay finished the half one goal ahead on the match, and six on the round. The visitors scored again shortly after the face off, Stoddard doing the trick. Stratford added two, which finished their scoring, while the visitors kept right on scoring and grabbed two more, oyl and Stoddard being responsible for the goals. Simpson was the star of the local forward line, playing the game of his life. He was always in the fray, and played a clean game throughout.

Lindsay's players were heavier and faster than the locals. Koyl repeatedly rushed the puck from end to end, and to this work is attributed much of Lindsay's scoring. Stoddard and Randall were very speedy. Brown, of Toronto was referee, and gave general satisfaction. The game was clean, there being few penalties. The lineup:—

The attendance was about 3,000, and Lindsay contributed about 150.

Morgan of Warsaw, from whom Mr. Pickens made the purchase.

TORTURED BY RHEUMATISM?

Zam-Buk Will Give You Ease!

Just at this season when the cold, dry winter is giving way to a milder yet more humid season, the germs of rheumatism, sciatica, and allied ailments come upon their victims with renewed force.

As soon as you feel any deep-seated pain in the joints, back, wrists, or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the palm of the hand, and rub it well into the part affected. The penetrating power of this 'embrocation-balm' is exceedingly great, and once having reached the seat of the pain it removes it speedily. It also ends the stiffness which is so unpleasant.

Frequent rubbings of the afflicted parts with Zam-Buk will not only drive out all pain, reduce swelling, etc., but will strengthen the skin and tissues and enable them to resist cold and damp. The following case will show how Zam-Buk brings ease to those tortured by rheumatism.

Mr. P. G. Wells, of 338 Ogden St., Fort William, Ont., says.:—"Following my duties in attending to passenger trains I often get wet through with rain and steam (the latter in winter). This with hours of duty in icehouses in summer was no doubt the cause of my contracting rheumatism in both knees, left arm and shoulder. This got so bad that I could no longer work, and was laid off on three different occasions for several weks, during which I was under the treatment of my doctor. I seemed to get little it any better, no matter what I tried, and this was my state when Zam-Buk was recommended to me. I laid in a supply, and to my great joy it began to cure me. to my great joy it began to cure me. I rubbed it well in every night, and when a few boxes had been used, found I was free again from the pain and stiffness of rheumatism. I have had no more trouble from the disease and unhesitatingly recommend Zam-Buk to all who suffer from rheumatism, muscular stiffness, etc.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for eczema, ring-worm, ulcers, abscesses, piles, bad leg, suppurating wounds, cuts, burns, bruises, chapped hands, cold cracks, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

THE SLIPPERY STREETS WERE WELL SANDED

The sidewalks this morning were very slippery. The Street Commissioners had men out at 7 o'clock sanding the walks, but this expenditure seems to be useless as it is swept off almost immediately after, by persons employed by the store-keepers. Perhaps they are not aware that should any accident occur the city, having taken this precaution, will not be responsible. There can be no objection to clean sand being sprinkled as it cannot be carried into the stores on people's boots.

FIGURES $500 AND $200 INSTEAD OF $50 AND $20

A regrettable error crept into yesterday's report of the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council. By dropping a cypher the printer made it appear that the amounts procured from the Provincial Government by Alderman Phelan towards the construction cost of the Normal School sewer and pavement were respectively $50 and $20. The amounts should have been $500 and $200 respectively. When "nought" is on any but the right side it amounts to a great deal.

A SURPRISED MINISTER

"For many years I have been a sufferer from bronchial catarrh, and had despaired of anything like a cure. Judge of my pleasant surprise when I first used Hyomei, which brought complete relief. Hyomei has been a veritable 'godsend.'"—Rev. Charles Hartley, Sardinia, Ohio.

Thousands of catarrh sufferers have given up in despair. They have tried stomach dosing, snuff, sprays and douches without success, and now believe catarrh to be incurable.

But Mr. Madill, the druggist, holds out hope to all distressed. He sells a remedy called Hyomei which is guaranteed for catarrh, colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is medicated air, full of the healthy virtues of the mountain pines. You breathe in the delightful antiseptic air, and as it passes over the inflammation, kills the germs, and drives out the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, costs but $1.00, and an extra bottle of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents. See Mr. Madill about it to-day.

ASSISTANT FIRE CHIEF GRANGE TELLS OF THE ASSAULT UPON HIM BY FIREMEN WHO REPORTED LATE

Preliminary Hearing of Craig, Hawes and Chapman, Who Were Charged With Assault, Opened This Morning.

THE CASE ADJOURNED.

Two Witnesses Testify to Having Seen Craig Strike Grange.

The preliminary hearing of the three ex-firemen charged with assaulting Assistant Fire Chief Grange, doing him actual bodily harm on Saturday, February 27th, was opened before Magistrate Dumble, at the police court this morning. The evidence of Mr. Grange and two other witnesses was taken when at half-past one, the case was adjourned until three o'clock.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for Craig and Chapman and Mr. G. N. Gordon for Hawes. No election as to trial was made.

Grange's Story

George Grange, the assistant chief sworn, said that he had been on the fire brigade six months. He was on duty on Saturday, the 27th of February. He received instructions from Chief Howard to report men who were late. That was done by marking it on the blackboard. On this day he had reported George Hawes, fifteen minutes late, at noon. In the evening there were three late, namely Hawes, Craig and Chapman. They were five minutes behind time. Hawes came in first. He asked who was on watch. He knew whose duty it was, but witness replied that (Grange) was. "Well mark me five minutes late," he said. "You are nothing but a dirty sneak. You reported me fifteen minutes late this mornig when I was only three. You are nothing but a dirty cur and if it wasn't for the law, I would fix you."

Witness made no answer to these remarks but merely told him that he could prove that he (Hawes) was fifteen minutes late by Fireman Bromwell. Hawes told him he was a G-dliar. Grange then turned to the blackboard to make the report. In the meantime Craig and Chapman came in, Craig remarking "you can mark us five minutes late too." Witness had just finished and was turning around when he received a blow on the head from one of the two. He could not say which one it was. The blow stunned him and he fell. When he recovered sufficiently to try and get away, he backed out into the apparatus room, Craig following him. Grange was entering the office door when Chapman struck him a body blow, and knocked him over against the table. A man then entered off the street and caught Craig and took him away. Witness went into Dr. Greer's office and telephoned for the police.

As to injuries he received he said that he was badly bruised about head and back, and had been confined to bed for nearly a week.

To Mr. Gordon, Grange said that Hawes did not take any part in the assault that he was aware of.

Saw Craig Hit Grange

Mr. Fred Dobbin called, said that it was about ten minutes to eight when he was at the hall. When he entered, Grange was running from the apparatus room to the office. Craig was chasing Grange. Chapman was in the office. Craig had a hold of Grange in a corner. He saw him hit Grange once with his fist. Witness took Craig out into the adjoining room. By that time Grange had gone outside. He did not see Chapman strike a blow. He did not see Mr. Hawes.

John Hetherington, a fireman, said that he was there when Hawes came in. He heard nothing said between Hawes and Grange until after the report had been made on the blackboard. He remembered signing a letter of Dec. 9th which was produced in court. It was signed by witness because he wanted another man to get the appointment. He heard Hawes call the assistant chief an uncomplimentary name. Craig and Chapman soon after came in. He saw Craig take Grange by neck, but heard nothing said. They backed up and Craig struck him. They fell down between the table and the sofa. Witness pulled Craig off and Grange got up and ran out. Chief Howard's son and another young man were sitting on the sofa. He did not see Chapman strike Grange.

The court then adjourned.

Young Bensfort Farmer Is Struck By Flying Fragment Of Iron, Dying From Shock

COUNTRYSIDE IN GLOOM.

Examiner Special.

Bensfort, March 11.—It is many months since this neighborhood has been cast into such deep gloom as has settled over the countryside upon learning of the death of Russell Morrison, following a few hours after being struck with a flying fragment of the fly-wheel of a circular saw, which burst while the machine was in rapid action.

Nine or ten of the neighbours had gathered at Mr. Morrison's home to help him cut a large pile of wood Wm. Morrison, uncle of the deceased, owned the machine, which was driven by horse power. The work was going merrily along and the wood pile was slowly but surely diminishing.

Fly Wheel Broke.

Suddenly, without the least warning the fly wheel which balances the circular saw burst, the fragments scattering in all directions. One is reported having struck the limb of a tree, lopping it off as cleanly as if chopped by an axe. Another piece of the iron hit Mr. Morrison, just above the left knee. The bone was snapped, but the blow did not cause him to lose his balance. The whole affair happened in a twinkling and a few minutes later several of the men were carrying the injured man into his house.

Died at 11 p. m.

Medical aid was called, but the shock of the affair seemed to have been to much for Mr. Morrison. He appeared to be sinking and at 11 o'clock last night he passed away, it is said, from the effect on his heart. The suddenness of the fatality has been the talk of the community and even now the eye witnesses hardly seem capable of giving a clear explanation of the occurrence.

Married at New eYar.

Russell Morrison is the son of Mr. David Henry Morrison. His home was near the Bensfort Bridge, at what is familiarly known as the watering trough. He was about 27 years of age and had lived all his life in South Monaghan, where the family is very highly respected. The father and mother survive with two brothers, Richmond and William at home, and one sister, Mrs. Howard Fallin, of South Monaghan.

The deceased was married on New Year's Day to a Miss Robinson, and they were just settling down in their comfortable home beginning to realize and enjoy the many wishes which their friends had extended to them on their bridal day, only two months ago. Heartfelt sympathy is extended to the bereaved family in their loss and particularly to the young wife.

The late Mr. Morrison was very highly respected in South Monaghan, having had a host of friends, who always regarded him with the highest esteem.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, leaving his late residence and proceeding to the Centreville cemetery for interment.

County Constable Cochrane Arrived With Seven Persons

Went Into Farthest Corner of Belmont on Children's Aid Society Work and Bagged Three Assyrians Peddling Without a License —Brought Them All to Peterborough.

APPEARED THIS MORNING

High County Constable Geo. Cochrane arrived on the local this morning from Havelock in charge of four children and three Assyrian peddlers, the result of a day's trip through Belmont yesterday. Mr. Cochrane's trip was occasioned by a confidential letter received from a woman living near Havelock to the effect that the children of Wilson Munroe had been distributed among the neighbours, who, in most cases, were none too well provided themselves. The letter requested that they be taken in charge by the Children's Aid Society. The mother died about a year ago. The father remained with his family a short time and then after distributing them among the neighbours he disappeared, supposedly to Dakota. Mr. Cochrane got four of the children with families named Wynn, E. Newhall, Bush and Munroe. There are two others with a man in Dunmer, but they are over the age at which they may be taken by the Society. Those brought to Peterborough ranged in years from 3 to 10. Mr. Henry received them at the station and they are now at the Shelter.

Got Three Peddlers. ... .

While driving to the home of Mr. Sam Munroe, grandfather of the children in the Northwest corner of Belmont, Mr. Cochrane bagged two Assyrian peddlers. He was aware of the fact that Norwood was their headquarters and that a large number was sent out into the neighbouring townships every day. When asked if they had a license they opened wide their eyes in surprise as if they had never heard of such a thing. Finally it was brought out that they did not have the necessary document and they were informed that they would have to go to Peterborough. They were about to make a run for it when they were handcuffed. Mr. Cochrane drove on to Munroe's house, and while there the third called at the house and was immediately told to fall in with the procession. The children were taken to Havelock in one waggon and the "peddlers three" occupied prominent positions in a second. The natives of the Dead Sea district were rather "seedy" looking characters. They could not spell their names, which sounded as follows: Killard Kuser, Sam Bitteres, and Alex. Mike.

The three men appeared this morning before Magistrate Edmison and were remanded until to-morrow. They were allowed their liberty, forfeiting their goods to answer at the required time.

THE WM. HAMILTON COMPANY GETS A BIG CONTRACT FROM THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT

The remarks of Dr. M. A. Morrison, ex-president of the Board of Trade, in his annual address at the Board's meeting on Tuesday night in reference to the Wm. Hamilton Company, would have borne more weight had that gentleman known at the time that yesterday the company would receive a contract from the Railways and Canals Department of the Dominion Government, a contract involving a large sum of money and necessitating the employment of an increased number of mechanics. The local concern with a number of other companies tendered for the supply of lock machinery for twenty-four locks on the Trent Canal, and their tender being the lowest, and their equipment sufficient for the work the contract has been awarded to them and yesterday the company received word of this fact and will start work at once upon the contract.

It includes the supplying of all the operating machinery, anchorage fittings and pivots for twenty-four locks made up of the following: Two at Trenton, three at Glen Miller, one at Frankford, five at Glen Ross, one at Raney Falls, one at Campbellford, three at Middle Falls, one at Healey's Falls, one at Hastings, one at Rosedale, one at Lindsay, three at Holland's Landing, and one at Newmarket. The contract amounts to about $100,000 with extras, and is of the greatest importance to the company and to Peterborough generally, as it will mean steady work for an increased number of hands. In all some forty new men will be added as the machine shop and moulding staffs will be increased.

MR. CHAIRMAN GILLESPIE

The election of Mr. Alderman Gillespie as President of the Peterborough Board of Trade gives that body and the citizens the benefit of the services of an actual business man. In this respect and in the possession of qualities of energy and business aggressiveness, which have created his own business success, Mr. Gillespie seems to possess all the qualities to make him a valuable presiding officer of a body which, in co-operation with the City Council, can be made a most valuable instrument in promoting the material advancement of Peterborough. Mr. Gillispie has had a large business experience, possesses judgment and enterprise, and the Examiner feels sure that the Board of Trade and the important interests it represents will derive great advantage from its new leadership.

EXTRAVAGANCE AND DEPUTATIONS

The deputation of the County Council to wait on the Provincial Government, was one of thirty-nine deputations that descended upon the Parliament buildins, on Wednesday, Mar. 10. If such an aggregation of demands upon the public treasury, many as in our own case, with legitimate claims to consideration, are an embarrassment to the Government, it has itself largely to thank for it. The Government and its friends have been boasting vainglioriously of its surplus and abundance of cash, thanks very much to the foresight and statemanship of their Liberal predecessors who provided a great deal of the sources of revenue, which in the light of succedeing events was perhaps not an unmixed blessing. The lavish expenditure of provincial funds indicates a spendthrifty spirit on the part of the Government which encourages demands. It is easily argued that, a government which has increased the annual expenditure of the province nearly a million dollars a year for four years—increased it $3,289,000—is "an easy mark," and will readily surrender to demands of deputations. The Examiner is not opposed to liberal expenditure of public funds on principle—if the public interests demand it—if reasonably good value is given, and if the money is available; it is the peoples' money and they have the right to enjoy the benefit of its expenditure to the best advantage. But we expected exemplary economy from Mr. Treasurer Matheson. When in opposition he was wont to picture the province on the verge of baukruptcy on account of the recklessly extravagant expenditures of the Liberal Government which closed its term of office in 1904, with an annual expenditure of about five and a half million dollars. But behold, the Conservative Provincial Treasurer forgot his preachments of economy and in less than four years swells the annual expenditure to something like eight and a half million dollars.

The virtue that withers in the sunlight of opportunity is not of a very stalwart quality.

DANGEROUS WEAPONS.

The bill now before the Parliament of Canada to regulate the sale of all weapons by license is not by any means premature legislation. We regulate the sale of poisons in the public interest and why not the sale and possession of weapons that have to their credit as formidable a roll of deaths and serious fatalities as poisons. The restriction of the sale of firearms is especially called for Out of a milion persons, 999,999 have as much need or legitimate use for a revolver as for a hundred-ton gun. The possession of these weapons—unnecessary for any legitimate purposes—is responsible for a terrible amount of crime and fatal accidents, if the consequences of crummal folly by "fooling" with firearms can be called accidents. Many lives are yearly sacrificed to the careless handling of firearms by fools; for a wise man will not be guilty of handling these dangerous weapons in a manner or under circumstances that involve the possibility of dangerous happenings to himself and others. The presence in the pocket of the ready revolver is chiefly responsible for its ready use in moments of passion or more deliberate purpose. Thus are accounted for crimes and murders arising out of altercation, which might otherwise have been merely misdemeanours, represented, at the worst, by a broken head or bloody nose. Crime upon impulse derives its greatest incentive from the convenient pocket pistol. If persons insist on carying these lethal weapons on their person or having them in possession they should be made to pay for the privilege and become subject to regulation and record, so that responsibility for criminal carelessness or criminal intent in the use of such weapons may be more easily placed. In cases of suspected criminal poisoning the researches of the authorities are greatly facilitated by the existence of a list of persons to whom poisons have been sold, as kept by every druggist.

Similar precautions might be taken with regard to other firearms, shot guns and rifles. The possession of them, by boys especially, or irresponsible and reckless persons, is responsible for the destruction of bird life. Every year thousands of our song birds and our insectivorous birds are shot by boys and adults who should know better, to the great injury of field, orchard, and garden crops. The imposition of a license would not prevent but it might lessen this deplorable slaughter. We issue licenses to hunt deer, we practically license deer hounds by means of a tax on dogs; and would a nominal license fee for carrying a gun or rifle be considered a hardship to any man who has actual use for it? It is not the proper use and care of fireams, but their misuse and careless use that originated the demand for regulation. If everybody who might have a revolver or shot gun used it without danger to himself or others, nothing would be needed in the way of regulation or license. This is a case in which, for the general protection the innocent and wise suffer for the misdeeds of the criminal and the folly of the unwise. It is a case where license begets license.

If all persons would use strong drink temperately; or if all the sellers of strong drink held to the requirements of the law, there would probably be no demand for prohibition.

PUBLICITY FOR PETERBOROUGH

It is a feature of the present time that live municipalities are devoting unusual attention to publicity movements—to advertise the resources of the town or city with a view of attracting industrial establishments. Brantford, which is, in one sense, a rival of Peterborough, is giving special attention to this matter. The Brantford Expositor, which is leading the campaign, cites the experience of Winnipeg as an example of what may actually be accomplished by a properly organized publicity department.

Two years ago an industrial bureau was established in that city and the annual report just issued proves that the field of operation has grown to considerable magnitude since that time. A synopsis of the more important work carried on in that time as given by the report shows that 312,172 lines of paid advertising were placed, from which a total of 3,874 actual requests for information from manufacturers, capitalists and others were received. These were personally acknowledged by letter, and including others received from various sources, 237,721 pieces of statistical and illustrated printed matter were sent out. The bureau offices handled 10,771 incoming communications, and sent out 35,722 letters in 1907-08. Over 60,000 lines of press matter were furnished with which 900 photographs were supplied as illustrations. A recapitulation of results shows that during the two years of operation, 33 manufacturing establishments started operations, 69 industrial and commercial incorporations were recorded in 1907, and 88 in 1908, with a total authorized capital of $28,616,600; bank clearings increased at a greater rate than any city in Canada; and population, building and real estate made gains along sound, sane and substantial lines.

Peterborough might well consider the question in the light of such an experience as that of Winnipeg. Here's something to occupy the attention of the Board of Trade and the City Council.

SETTING THE CLOCK AHEAD.

(London Advertiser.)

The "Daylight Saving Bill," which was almost laughed out of existence when introduced, has passed its second reading in the British House of Commons by a vote of 130 to 94. It was not made a Government measure, members being free to vote as they pleased.

In England the days during the summer season are very long. It is broad daylight as early as 4 o'clock in the morning and darkness does not fall until about 9 at night. In Scotland the range is even greater. There the twilight of the evening lasts so long that is is scarcely separated from the twilight of the dawn, with the result that when the sky is clear absolute darkness either does not occur or is of very brief duration.

If that were true of Southern England there would obviously be no need for legislation, but in the latitude of London there are even in June a few hours of obscurity, and as these do not coincide with the period during which the most sleeping is done, there is a waste of daylight which the projected legislation proposes to avoid. The idea occurred to a certain William Willett, a resident of the metropolis, that if all would agree to suit the clock time to the season not only could much of the money spent on artificial illumination be saved, but the opportunities for healthful recreation in the open air would be beneficially extended; and a pamphlet, in which he expounded his views, suggested the measure now being considered. The process described by the pending bill is extremely simple. On the first Sunday in April every clock in the country is to be set forward twenty minutes and on each of the three succeeding Sundays a similar advance is to be made. The effect would be that on the first of May, if not sooner, all clocks would be one hour and twenty minutes ahead of the sun. In September the process would be reversed.

There is much to be said for the change, and nothing to be said against it except that it is a change, which, of course, is a serious objection in the old land. The bill has been denounced as grandmotherly legislation, but it is obvious that people must co-operate if they are all to get up an hour and twenty minutes earlier, and that co-operation can be enforced only by law.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A day or two ago we referred to the attempt of the Whitney Government to restrict the power of the Provincial Auditor and to the extent of destroying his influence as a check on the payment of accounts without proper vouching. That this action is in opposition to the public interests is palpable, and it is made more so when a thick-and-thin supporter of the Government, like the Hamilton Spectator, has "no hesitation expressing the description of the man who is es of the measure have the effect of stfling the free and untrammeled action of the Provincial Auditor in the performance of his duty, which duty, as we see it, is to the people rather than to the Government."

MANY HARVEY FARMERS HAVE BEEN CUTTING WOOD

Concerts Given by Medicine Show Attracted Wide Attention.

Examiner Special

Harvey, March 11.—A great many of the farmers of this locality have been engaged in lumbering this winter. It seems surprising where the material comes from, but a great deal of wood and timber has been taken out. Some are having it cut at the sawmill at Bobcaygeon and others are selling it. Mr. Carew purchasing the greater quantity of it.

Quite a number attended the concert of the Shamrock Medicine Co., held in Bobcaygeon last week. They are advertising their medicine by holding concerts and selling sample packages of the medicine. They were a jolly crowd and the one who impersonated Pat could bring down the house with laughter. The hall was packed to the utmost every night, although it continued for over a week. A prize was given to the most popular baby, the one bringing in the largest load, and a gold watch was given to the lucky person having the lucky ticket drawn on the last night.

DOCTORS ADVISE MEDICATED AIR

It Cures Catarrh, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Throat Troubles, Hoarseness.

For diseases of the lungs, throat and nasal passages mountain air has always been deemed salutary because of its pureness and freedom from disease germs. The air of pine forests, laden with minute particles of volatile germ-destroying principles, has enjoyed an almost unexampled reputation in these diseases also.

A MARVELLOUS DISCOVERY.

After years of exhaustive study a chemist devised a means of supplying right at home a healing balsamic remedy that is even more effective in catarrhal diseases than the air of the pine woods. Of course, this remedy was copyrighted in every civilized country and was at once offered to the public under the name of "Catarrhozone." Its success has been phenomenal.

Just think of it! A healing, soothing substance capable of destroying these noxious organisms which excite and maintain disease. Capable, also, of allaying congestion and of stimulating the healing processes of nature, which are combined in that invaluable compound so well and so favorably known to the medical world as "Catarrhozone."

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

Catarrhozone is simply the concentrated qualities of the air of pine woods. If you breathe it you will derive more benefit in one hour than you could possibly get from the woods in a year.

This great advantage arises from the fact that, in addition to those healing emanations from pine, other ingredients distilled from the vegetable kingdom are so united as to give results that could not possibly be derived in the simple form in which nature supplies medicated air.

20,000 PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT.

For all diseases of the nose, ear, throat, bronchial tubes and air passages—for catarrh in every form—cure is certain with Catarrhozone, which is not a nostrum, but a high-class scientific treatment. Large size, sufficient for two months' use (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size 50c. at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

BILL TO BE BROUGHT IN AS AMENDMENT

Workmen's Compensation Measure to Be Modified.

"SOLONS" TOO PLENTIFUL

Mr. Proudfoot (Centre Huron) Declares That Legislature Could Do as Well With Half or Third as Many Members—Premier Whitney and Ministers Receive Forty-Three Deputations Yesterday.

Toronto, March 11.—Evan Fraser's bill to provide compensation for injuries to employes was supported yesterday in the Legislature by the Liberals in principle, but Hon. Mr. MacKay pointed out that the bill would take away certain existing rights from employes. Premier Whitney considered that it should be brought in as an amendment to the existing law. Mr. Fraser withdrew the bill, promising to revive it in a modified form.

Mr. Nickle's police magistrate bill got the hoist.

W. S. Brewster renewed the budget debate and defended the Government on account of the Cobalt Lake case. In this the Government held a brief for the people. While deploring the depletion of forest resources and other provincial assets, he trusted the Government to conserve them. He reminded the House that $2,000,000 of white ash and oak was imported from the south.

Mr. Proudfoot (Centre Huron) advanced the startling idea that there were too many legislators in the House and that the province could get along with a half or a third of the present number. He thought it should be possible to sue the Government just like a private individual. It was unfair and unjust, he considered, for the Government to take $1,000,000 for the province.

"I don't know how the Government came to have such a large majority in the House. They can explain that perhaps better than we can. We had not any funds to draw from. They had," was Mr. Proudfoot's view of the electoral sympathies of the province. He warned the Government that the House would be divided on the liquor question. He was prepared to vote for legislation to abolish licenses altogether, whether introduced by the Government, the Liberal party or Mr. Studholme."

R. R. Gamey, H. A. Mackim (Kenora), Valentine Stock (South Perth), and W. A. Preston (Rainy River) also joined in the debate on the budget.

Forty-three deputations made things lively in the Ministerial and committee offices at the Parliament buildings.

Premier Whitney received a London deputation opposing Sunday cars. No municipality will get Sunday cars until the people vote for them, said Sir James. The Ontario Shorthorn Association made a request for an increased grant. The Live Stock Association of Ontario asked aid to build a large arena in Toronto for live stock exhibitions.

Peterboro sent a deputation asking for an agricultural school at Norwood. Hon. W. J. Hanna received a deputation of architects regarding the proposed new Central Prison.

Fair Buildings Burn.

Brantford, March 11.—The agricultural buildings at the Paris Fair grounds were entirely destroyed by fire late yesterday afternoon. Owing to the high wind only a few cattle sheds were saved by the firemen. The main pavilion, owned by the North Brant Agricultural Association, and used as a roller rink in the summer, was lost. Insurance covering loss of $1,500 was carried.

"I can truthfully say that I believe that, but for the use of your Emulsion I would long since have been in my grave. I was past work—could not walk up-hill without coughing very hard."

THIS, and much more was written by Mr. G. W. Howerton, Clark's Gap, W. Va. We would like to send you a full copy of his letter, or you might write him direct. His case was really marvelous, but is only one of the many proofs that

SISTER STICKS TO ORIGINAL STORY

Miss Florence Kinrade on Stand For Three Hours.

FAMILY AFFAIRS PROBED

Mr. Blackstock Prepares For Long Case by Going Minutely Into Details — Miss Kinrade Went to Portsmouth With Wealthy Englishwoman — Says Now She Did Not Get Out of Window.

Hamilton, March 11.—The inquest into the death of Miss Ethel Kinrade continuing well into the hours of this morning, with Miss Florence Kinrade on the witness stand.

Telling the events of the tragedy, she has maintained that a burglar did the deed.

Questioned by Mr. Blackstock, she has replied to leading queries with a doubtful "I don't know."

She has told of her encounter with the man, being seized by him, escaping to the yard, returning, passing him and running through to the street, without mentioning that a shot was fired.

Reminded by Mr. Blackstock, "You heard no shots fired?" she has declared that she heard many, beginning as she first descended the stairs with the money, and that as she ran from the house he fired after her.

Leading up to the events of the tragedy, she was questioned closely concerning her visit to Virginia, as well as of a previous visit to Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo, when her companion was a certain Miss Elliot, apparently a woman of means.

Her father, Mr. Kinrade, the first witness, and who preceded her on the stand, was closely questioned concerning his relationships with his son Ernest, contractor. He denied that there had ever been any serious disagreements between them; that the families were quite friendly; that the night before the murder Florence and Ethel had spent the evening at a birthday party — he did not know whose—at Ernest's home; that Ernest came regularly to his house. Ernest paid no rent, he occupying houses that were built until they were sold. Last fall father and son had built a frame row of houses.

"Everything is settled up between us," said Mr. Kinrade. "I don't consider he owes me anything. I think perhaps if we were strangers I would have a lot of rent coming to me. But as he is my son, he owes nothing."

Concerning Florence and her visit to the south, little new transpired in his evidence. He admitted Baum had proposed marriage to Florence and that had been one reason why they urged her to return home, as she was already engaged to young Wright.

"Was Wright here on one single occasion during June, July and August of last year, when she was home from Virginia? Do you recollect him being here at any time?" asked Mr. Blackstock.

"I am not postitive. He was engaged as a fire-ranger in the north about that time, I think," was the reply.

Miss Kinrade denied having told certain versions of the murder mentioned by Mr. Blackstock, and gave a description of the assailant.

She was positive she would know him again.

She said she had a clear recollection of the man. He had a dark overcoat of medium length and a soft felt hat.

"Who was that man?"

"I didn't know him."

Miss Kinrade's voice broke and she sobbed a few incoherent words. It was the most dramatic moment of the proceedings.

Miss Kinrade sank into a chair and her counsel asked for an adjournment. Mr. Blackstock said that if Miss Kinrade was too unwell he would cease, but that it might be wiser for her to continue a few minutes so that she would not be called on again. He asked again whether she hadn't seen the man before. He impressed upon her the solemnity of her oath. In a trembling voice she repeated her denial.

Mr Blackstock then desisted, and the inquest was adjourned until eight o'clock this evening.

Mr. Kinrade, sr., made his appearance about eight o'clock. He appeared calm and composed. He was the first witness called, and when he got into the box he showed considerable emotion, speaking in very low tones.

George Tate Blackstock, K.C., represented the crown and examined the witness.

He had thirty houses or more in Hamilton. His son Ernest built a number of them, but was now building for himself. Ernest occupied one of the houses, the idea being that he should live in houses rent free until they were sold. Earl had started in a bank at Dundas and went to bank in Montreal last September. He was not back home between this time and the tragedy. His son received some monetary help from him.

Questioned as to the collection of rents, he said it was divided among Florence, Ethel and his wife, on a commission basis of 3 per cent. When Florence was away his wife and Ethel split up the work.

The accounts between Ernest and himself were all right.

Both Earl and Ernest were on most affectionate terms with the rest of the family, there being no estrangement whatever.

Questioned as to the temperaments of the girls, Mr. Kinrade was very positive in asserting that the girls were very affectionate and never exchanged angry words. They were called twins, although one was older, they being so much alike and so attached. Ernest also had a "sweet disposition," and, witness said, never had any altercation over business or anything else.

Coming to the day of the tragedy, witness said that the five members of the family had dined at mid-day together. He left about 1.10 for school. Mr. Blackstock asked whether there was anything unusual discussed at this dinner.

"Yes, there was," said Mr. Kinrade, readily. "We were talking about what had occurred the night before. About 6.30 p.m. there had been a ring at the doorbell. My wife went to answer it. There are two glass doors. My wife opened the first door and saw a man standing there. She cried out: "We can't give you anything; go next door." About 8.30 p.m. or 9 p.m. the bell was rang twice, after a pause twice more and again twice. My wife said: 'Tom, I will not go to the door. I am pestered with people begging and have turned out the lights in the parlors, so that they will think everyone is out.'"

"When there came a seventh ring, my wife thought she had better answer, as she thought it might be a telegram from Earl. We had received a letter that he was very sick in Montreal," said the witness.

"The two older girls were away at the party, and in the house with us there was only our younger daughter, Gertrude. She and her mother went to the door. I heard them both scream. They said they thought a man was trying to open the parlor windows."

Mr. Blackstock turned to Mr. Kinrade's reported exclamation on learning of the tragedy. "Is it true that when you came into your front hall that day you said, 'I have expected this would happen for a long time'?"

"No."

"Will you swear you did not use the expression?"

"I can't for sure."

"If you used an expression of that kind you cannot give me any reason for your use of it?"

"There are two reasons I might give if I did say it. In the first place, if I said it that was when I thought it was Florence who was killed. There arose an idea that the man who had been following her down south had been crazy enough to try to stop her marrying the young minister by shooting her. Then I thought, too, it might have been one of these tramps."

"But you cannot swear positively that you did not make that statement?"

"Well, not for sure."

Mr. Blackstock insisted on a direct answer, and Mr. Kinrade finally admitted that he had not gone out on account of the fears of his wife and youngest daughter.

It was 10.35 p.m. when Florence Kinrade was called. She came in looking very pale, but composed, and dressed in sombre black.

She told of her visit to Virginia and how finally she wished to leave Portsmouth.

Witness said she grew tired of life there, though it had no unpleasant features. She didn't mix with many people. Asked whether any one paid her any particular attention, she said Baum had proposed [illegible] to her. It was not agreeable [illegible] she took it more as a joke. He took it good-naturedly and there was no trouble, although he was very persistent.

INDIAN ACQUITTED.

Young Smart Found Not Guilty at Belleville.

Belleville, Ont., March 11.—If the roof had fallen in on the packed court-room the surprise would not have been greater than when, at 10.30 last night, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in favor of Thomas Smart, the young Indian on trial for the murder of his uncle.

Although the surprise was agreeable to probably every person here, since nothing but sympathy for the lad has been in evidence, yet everybody in the room was amazed. From the tone of Justice Teetzel's address, which, however, could not be considered partial, it looked very cloudy for the prisoner.

Blame Parties Unknown.

Stratford, March 11.—"That Alexander Sutherland came to his death by injuries and exposure, due to party or parties unknown to us," was the verdict brought in by the coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest into the death of the East Zorra farmer who was found in the ice at the rear of the residence occupied by Aloysius Guerin on Friday, Feb. 26.

It is quite certain that the crown will not allow the case to drop, but upon being asked last night, Crown Attorney McPherson was non-committal as to the next step to be taken.

Britain Needs Trade Agents.

London, March 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Ben H. Morgan, speaking on the development of Empire trade at the Royal Colonial Institute, said that the one bar to progress was in the self-governing colonies and India. There were considerably over 1,500 paid representatives of foreign nations who kept their Governments posted regarding openings for trade. Britain had less than ten. The time had come when Britain should make it her business to establish and maintain cheap, rapid transport by rail and sea.

Wireless For Sealing Fleet.

St. John's, Nfld., March 11.—Equipped with a wireless telegraph outfit and manned by 1,000 men, the Newfoundland sealing fleet of 23 steamers, sailed yesterday on its annual cruise among the dangerous ice floes of the North Atlantic.

His Majesty's Health.

Biarritz, March 11.—Col. Sir Arthur Davidson, equerry to King Edward, last evening authorized an absolute denial of the statement that His Majesty was seriously ill. He said the King had taken a long walk yesterday morning and had spent the afternoon driving in a motor-car.

LADS ROB MAILS.

Small Boys In Brockville Charged With Wholesale Thefts.

Brockville, March 11.—After post-office inspectors and the police were baffled for man ymonths, it remained for Clerk Wilson of the local post-office staff to catch a lad named Jas. Murray in the act of robbing a box in the postoffice lobby.

He was removing letters and parcels from the box of the B. & W. Railway Co., and when taken to task said he was a son of the superintendent of the railway. His identity becoming known, Murray, who is 13 years old, was handed over to the police. He named Gilbert Russell, Joe Laroque and J. Conlin as having practiced with him a system of robbing mail boxes for six months in search of parcels and letters containing money.

They conceived the idea of finding boxes open while loitering in the lobby. In several instances they came into possession of keys, which are frequently left in the boxes by subscribers. Taking note of the numbers the lads paid return visits, using the keys to open the boxes without creating suspicion.

Justice Murphy sent Murray, Laroque and Russell for trial. Conlin and two others, Gilmour Fox and Terrance McGuire, who were gathered in by the police on suspicion, were allowed to go.

STREET CAR MEN SAW FIVE ROBINS

Whole Flock of Them Flitting Around Smith Street Neighbourhood.

One of the motormen on the Street Railway states that yesterday he saw five robins. They were flitting around in the northern part of the city near Smith street. Mr. James T. Lang, of Lang and Maher, on Saturday last saw one robin, the first reported; but five! There is something strange about this. No one would like to doubt the men that control the electric cars, but a statement like the above seems to have been exaggerated. It might possibly be true, but there are only a few citizens who have yet seen the red-breasted songster that ushers in the Spring.

The County Council Ask Government For Assistance In Building A New Bridge

Waited Upon the Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works, and Supported Their Claim Yesterday—Were Given an Attentive Hearing and Action is Promised.

The County Council, of Peterborough County headed by Warden Scott and introduced by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., interviewed Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works in his department in the Parliament buildings yesterday seeking the assistance of the Provincial Government in helping to cover the expenses of a floating bridge over Ball Lake Narrows, and connecting North and South Harvey. Two weeks ago the county had waited upon the Dominion Government on the same errand and had been given the assurance that if they succeded in securing assistance from the Provincial Government that the Dominion Government would in all probability contribute their share.

The proposed bridge which it is expected will cost about $12,000 will connect the two parts of the township by a direct route and will reduce the distance to Bobcaygeon and the nearest railway communication by about fifteen miles. It is the aim of the county to secure $7,000 from the two governments and to supply the remaining portion of the cost.

The case for the county was presented in forcible and effective speeches by Warden Scott, Mr. Robt. Shaw, Reeve of Harvey; Mr. Coon, of Bobcaygeon; Mr. Graham, of North Harvey, and Messrs. J. H. Carnegie, M.P.P.; Sam Fox, M.P.P., and Jas. Thompson, M. P.P.

The speakers pointed out that the people of Harvey were paying a bonus to a railway that they could not use. The distance to Bobcaygeon as conditions are now, was twenty-five miles and the new bridge would shorten the distance to ten and would be of the greatest benefit to the people of the district. In the case of other bridges both governments had assisted in the work.

Hon. Dr. Reaume in reply, asked several questions of the deputation as to when they intended to start the work. It was his method, he said, when money was voted, to see that it was spent and he did not want to have an amount placed in the supplementary estimates that would not be expended. This had been done in several cases, and he was opposed to such methods of doing business.

On being assured by Mr. Shaw that there was no intention of commencing the work this year, and that an amount placed in the estimates next year wiuld suit the purposes of the county, Dr. Reaume assured the deputation that he would place the matter before his colleagues and would go into the matter with them. The bridge, he said, seemed to supply a missing link in the line of communication in the north country, and he would go into it just as soon as he was assured that they meant to go ahead with the work. When the grant was made, however, it would be conditional on the work being proceeded with and the Dominion Government assisting.

Grain Line To Be Built And C. P. R. To Be Double Tracked Smiths Falls To Peterborough

The Montreal Herald says:—

The progress that has been made in the deepening of Victoria harbour, the substantial provision made in this year's estimates for the continuation of the dredging operations there and the belief that now amounts almost to a certainty that the construction of the Georgian Bay ship canal involving, according to the latest estimates, an expenditure of one hundred and fifty million dollars, will not be witnessed within the next quarter of a century, are likely to have a stimulating effect on the company's policy with regard to the building of the grain route from Peterborough. The feeling of uncertainty that prevailed for a large part of last year has given place to confidence.

It is improbable, however, that any thing more in railway construction to that end will be done than was announced in the Herald over a week ago, when the statement was made that the completion of the double track from Montreal to Smith's Falls, a distance of about one hundred and thirty miles, would be this year's contribution. The work is already completed from Montreal to Dalhousie Mills at the eastern end, and from Finch to Peterborough on the west. This leaves only the Dalhousie Mills-Finch section, which is provided for in this year's appropriations.

The double tracking of the line between Smith's Falls and Peterborough—133 miles—and the construction of the direct grain route, about seventy-six miles in length, will probably be carried through next year. Meanwhile the construction of a two million bushel elevator will be proceeded with at Victoria Harbour in order that the new port may be thoroughly equipped.

Constructive Policy Outlined To Prevent Spread Of Socialism

Address on "Menace of Socialism" by Prof. Kylie of Toronto University Before Canadian Club Last Evening.

AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS

The fifty or more members of the Canadian Club who attended the meeting in the Hotel National last evening had the pleasure of hearing most interesting arguments advanced to show that Socialism was a menace to any country. Socialism is a subject which at the present time is arousing widespread interest. Probably not so much here in Canada but in the older countries the Socialist party is becoming a strong factor politically. The address last evening on the "Menace of Socialism" was delivered by Professor Kylie, of Toronto University. Professor Kylie has thoroughly studied the subject of socialism as was shown by the clear and lucid manner with which he dealt with it last evening. He believed that every man should give it earnest thought and consideration as it was one thing that was interfering with the public problems of the day.

The address was given after supper which was served in the spacious dining hall of the hotel, the repast being a sumptuous one and merited much favourable comment for Mr. Dennison. The speaker was introduced by the President of the Club, Mr. D. O'Connell, who occupied the chair.

Professor Kylie's Address

In his opening remarks, Mr. Kylie stated that socialism was not a great power in the Dominion. Canadians ran too many chances of getting rich. As a political force it was not strong. It was, he said, but as a thin line cast up on our shore from a great ocean beyond. In England and other European lands it was a great and growing power. He believed that almost every ordinary British man in the Old Country was anti-socialist.

"But probably you will not think it a menace," he continued. He considered Socialism of two kinds. It was robbery or religion. It preached nothing but confiscation of riches. Referring to Karl Mark's economic theory, the speaker stated that it argued that, over and above the value of labour put on it, there was a surplus value which was captured by capitalists.

There was no definite idea as to what labour meant. Did it mean manual or mental toil? And what was capital? Was it not the result of thrift and saving? All statistics went to show that capitalists were spreading out among the people. Professor Kylie characterized this kind of socialism as being weak on the economic side but strong on the moral side. It was the cry of the poorer classes who were educated only enough to be discontented. It identified happiness with material things. It was dangerous, he believed, but a fallacy could not be killed by persecution. It must be met by argument and dealt with charitably.

Socialism as a Religion

The learned professor went on to speak of the intellectual socialist, who believed that all men should have equal opportunities, with inequality of merit and reward. Present society ought to allow a man an equal opportunity with his neighbour, but quality of opportunity in the old world was restricted by class distinction. He believed that the pension fund in England should be done away with. "Would it not be better to start them back?" he asked, "and let them look after their own welfare." That was the idea of the intellectual socialist.

The intellectual socialist was prepared to take over property, control manufactories and deal with everybody alike. But here he came up against the economic side. He did not know how society was going to control wages. He would reward the lower classes. The question arose as to how was the rough labour to be done. The only way was to educate the people to do it voluntarily. Selfish motives must be sacrificed in the best interests of a community.

The socialist had a vision of the future of the race and in this was the menace of the second kind of socialism. He put faith in the spirit of man, believing in liberty and equality. The difficulty was, the speaker said, when anyone tried to make everything free and equal, that was the very time he could not succeed. "The socialist talks too much of the liberty of the state and we talk too much," he said, "of the liberty of the individual. The socialist exaggerrates on the state and we do likewise on the individual." The speaker said that socialism appeared to him a menace, as in time acquiring revolution.

Constructive Policy

In conclusion the speaker outlined a constructive policy as a remedy against this menace. First he suggested an extension of profit share. The workingmen should have greater interests in the concerns for which they work. Then secondly, consistency in the method and character of production. The millionaire who spent his money lavishly should consider whether or not his money was buying good labour. The responsibility was upon the man of wealth. The third remedy was in the spread and development of free education. Nothing but educational fitness could attain real merit. He did not believe that the people were demanding higher education as they should.

Then concluding the professor said that he knew of no one responsible to God and man but the individual. If manufacturers and employers were, dealing honestly by themselves and the public, and journalists refusing to prostitute their profession to gain, socialism will lose its force and victory will be achieved.

A Socialist Speaks

The chairman invited Mr. R. N. Beall, of Lindsay, and a socialist, to make a few remarks. He spoke from the standpoint of a scientific socialist. Socialism, he said, had nothing to do with individuals Human labour power created wealth, it assimilated the natural wealth of the earth. He agreed with the professor in the name he gave his address. Socialism was a menace and would be until all social wrongs were wiped out.

A vote of thanks was passed to Professor Kylie, on motion of Mr. R. F. McWilliams and Rev. Father McColl.

"CARMEN" PRODUCED AT HIS MAJESTY'S.

CARMEN—Music by Georges Bizet, produced by Italian Grand Opera Company. Caste:—

For those who attended His Majesty's Theatre on Saturday evening, Carmen, that splendid combination of a pastoral and a vigorous romance, had its usual fascination and elevating qualities. Saturday evening's production was distinctively an artistic triumph. The dialogue between Carmen and Don Jose in scene 10 of the first act, the long since familiar Toreador song in the second scene of act 2, and Don Jose's pleading in the second act were the artistic features of the performance. Carmen is a semi-tropical melodrama set to entrancing music. It possesses a perennial charm both for music-lovers and connoisseurs of historic art.

Madame Duce-Merola, as Carmen, maintained her high reputation as a singer of rare grace and charm. Measured by standards of Southern Europe her presentation of the role of the Cigarette Girl might, perhaps, be considered as lacking dramatic intensity; but before a Canadian and Montreal audience her interpretation was highly satisfactory. Her acting was sufficiently impassioned to convey to the audience an ample conception of the fiery character of Carmen.

Signor E. Torre, as Don Jose, sang in a manner highly pleasing to even the most fastidious. He has remarkable strength, and fine modulation.

Signor G. Zara, as Escamillo, and especially in the Toreador song, made an enviable name for himself as a singer with both power and artistic finish. His rendering of the Toreador song was highly pleasing.—Montreal Daily Star.

ROYAL THEATRE.

Mr. Victor Loftus, who is now singing every day at the Royal Theatre, has certainly made good with the patrons of that popular place of amusement. Mr. Loftus has a rich, clear voice, somewhat between tenor and baritone. His articulation is very distinct, so that every word sung is understood by the audience. Last night Mr. Loftus gave a very comic Irish song, set to a very catchy air, entitled "O'Brien has no place to go." The story of this song describes an Irishman with three daughters. Whenever O'Brien gets home at night one daughter occupies the parlour, another the sitting room, and Rose has her beau in the kitchen. On Saturday night O'Brien got "tight," and fired the beaux out of the house so as to put an end to his fix as a "wandering Jew." Mr. Loftus will assuredly become popular with local lovers of light tuneful melody.

THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE HEARD NORWOOD'S CLAIMS FOR AGRICULTURAL CLASS THERE

Big Deputation Waited Upon Hon. Mr. Duff in Toronto Yesterday —Strong Arguments Advanced.

WERE CORDIALLY RECEIVED

A deputation forty strong composed of the County Council, representatives of the Norwood Council and Board of Education, and other interested citizens from the East part of the county waited upon Hon. Jas. Duff, Minister of Agriculture for the Ontario Legislature, yesterday morning, and laid before him the necessity and desirability of establishing at Norwood one of the agricultural classes that the Government intends to locate throughout Ontario. The advantages possessed by Norwood in point of location and accommodation were carefully pointed out and the Minister of Agriculture seemed most favourably impressed with the arguments laid before him and promised in laying the matter before his colleagues to do everything in his power to have the wishes of the people of East Peterborough granted.

The object of the special classes in agriculture is to teach the theory of farming to boys and girls from rural communities, who cannot afford to go to the Agricultural College at Guelph, and to endeavour to keep the boys at home on the farm instead of allowing them to drift into other walks of life.

The deputation was introduced to the Minister by Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.P.P. for East Peterborough, and was given a cordial reception.

Mr. Thompson, in introducing the subject, said that the deputation represented the agricultural interests of East Peterborough, and he was sure the Minister would see the importance of their request. Mr. Thompson touched briefly upon the need of education upon agricultural lines for farmers.

Mr. J. L. Squire, chairman of the Norwood Board of Education, pointed out that Norwood was uniquely supplied with schools and equipment, considering its size. The Ontario Government, he said, had done the town an injustice in removing the Model School. Norwood had plenty of room in the old Model school for the agricultural class, and had a splendid teritory to draw from, as pupils from four contiguous counties came to the High School there.

Mr. F. Birdall, representing the Agricultural Society, and the Farmers' Institute, and Mr. H. O'Reilley, Secretary of the Agricultural Society, spoke of the necessity for doing something to keep the boys on the farm and of the importance of Norwood's claims for such a school.

Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, County Clerk and Treasurer, also endorsed the scheme. He pointed out that there were 17 cheese factories within a radius of ten miles from Norwood and an agricultural class would be decidedly beneficial.

Warden Scott spoke on behalf of the county, saying that he was sure that the county was in favour of the proposition.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., for West Peterborough, and Mr. S. G. M. Nesbitt, M.P.P., for East Northumberland, also supported the request of the deputation.

In reply Hon. J. Duff, expressed his great pleasure at having met the deputation. He regretted that Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, had not also been present, as he intended to be, but he was busy with another deputation. The minister then outlined the government's policy in regard to these agricultural classes. It was a case of going hand in hand with the County Council. The government proposed to appoint a competent teacher and to pay his salary, while the county would be expected to furnish the equipment. This was to create an interest among the people themselves and to cause them to appreciate the value of the education.

In conclusion the minister stated that he would place before his colleagues the arguments of the deputation and he would do his utmost to have the wishes of the people granted.

The delegation then adjourned to wait upon the Minister of Public Works.

LENTEN SERMONS BY TORONTO DIVINES

The usual Wednesday evening Lenten service was held at St. John's Church last evening, when Rev. A. J. Fidler, rector of Grace Church, Toronto, preached a most eloquent and inspiring address. In the course of his remarks he referred to the new religion which some people were adopting but he said that he preferred not to seek any new interpretation of the Scriptures, but to take them as they read.

He also spoke of Rev. Canon Davidson's Lenten letter. He urged his hearers to make this Lent a blessing, a special season for everyone to do some personal service in the spread of God's Kingdom.

At St. Luke's Church

Notwithstanding the very icy condition of the streets last night there was a large congregation for the mid-week Lenten service at St. Luke's Church. The special preacher was Rev. W. H. Vance, B.A., of the Ascension, Toronto. His subject was "The Temptation of Christ." His address was very much appreciated; it was well delivered, thoughtful, logical and instructive. The service to which the address was incidental was of a special Lenten character.

Sold Two Bottles Of Lager And One Of Whiskey But Not At Same Time

The case of a local hotelkeeper, charged with selling liquor in large quantities than a quart came up again before Magistrate Dumble, at the police court this morning. When asked by the defendant's council if the prosecution had any further evidence to offer, Chief Roszel replied in the negative.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, appearing for the accused, said that it had not been proven that his client was a tavern licensee.

His Worship intimated that if the defence put in that objection he would allow Chief Roszel to put in the evidence of the inspector.

Mr. Kerr said that he had been told twice that the case for the prosecution was closed. However, since His Worship would permit the inspector's evidence, he would admit the license.

A bartender of the hotel was called and denied that he sold any liquor to Handley on February, the 22nd. On Tuesday, the 23rd, he sold him two bottles of beer and one of whiskey. They were two distinct sales. Twelve bottles of lager were never mentioned and they were certainly never given Handley.

Chief Roszel asked for the amendment of the information to read Tuesday, the 23rd, to which Mr. Kerr objected but was overruled.

Another bartender was called and stated that he was not on duty when the liquor was said to have been bought.

Mr. Kerr in summing up argued that there were two separate sales, in each case the quantity being less than a quart. Two bottles of lager was bought at one time, while the whiskey had been purchased fifteen minutes before.

His Worship said that there was the evidence of John Handley. He clearly stated that 12 bottles were bought and when they arrived at Burleigh there were yet two full bottles. He said that they drank five on the way out. On the other hand he believed that there was only one purchase. He reserved judgment until to-morrow morning.

Prof. Shortt To Address The Canadian Club On March 30th

It was announced by the president at last night's gathering that the speaker on that occasion would Prof. Adam Shortt of Queen's University. His subject will be "Canada's Foreign Relations."

Prof Shortt addressed the Peterborough Canadian Club last year, when his remarks were greatly enjoyed, and his visit here again will be looked forward to with great pleasure.

Annual Meeting Of George Street Methodist Congregation

The anual meeting of the congregation of the George Street Methodist Church was held last night, being marked by a fairly large attendance. The reports were of a highly satisfactory and encouraging character, testifying to the advance the church is making. During the evening the following programme served to enliven the business proceedings:

Vocal Solo—Mr. Fred Myles.
Reading—Mr. F. C. Moore.
Recitation—Mr. R. W[illegible]h.
Vocal solo—Miss C. Reesor.

The ladies of the congregation served refreshments as an appropriate finale to a successful meeting.

Rev. E. A. Pearson occupied the chair and conducted the usual opening service. Mr. Felix Brownscombe the church Treasurer, presented a statement of the year's finances, as follows:

Regular sources	$5,612.19
Raised for St. James church	3,600.00
Special for repairs	3,636.00
Sunday School	935.15
Grace Sunday School	79.04
Ladies' Aid	234.38
Epworth League	244.34
Junior League	10.00
Benevolent Fund	52.00
Total	$14,405.10

The Sunday collections had averaged $105.00.

Mr. Geo. Robertson presented the Secretary's report. The total number of contributions to the consolidated fund was 365. Mr. B. Shortly referred to the decorations which had been made to the church during the year. Great credit, he said, was due the Ladies' Aid Society, who had raised $1,786.00, and thus deserved especial credit. A vote of thanks was passed to the Ladies 'Aid for their efforts in this regard.

The members of the committee and particularly Mr. H. C. Stabler, were also commended.

Rev. E. A. Pearson referred to the splendid strength of the Sunday School. Mr. Dumble remarked that great credit was due Messrs. Brownscombe and Robertson for their faithful services. In conclusion a vote of thanks was tendered the choir.

ARE NOW WAITING FOR THE TREATY

Premier Sending Cable to Hustle Waterways Pact Along.

SENATOR M'MULLEN'S BILL

He Would Make Drivers of Vehicles Stop Before Crossing Tracks — To Protect Public Against Themselves—Making News Sins by Law, Sir Richard Cartwright Calls It—Pauper Immigrants

Ottawa, March 11.—The recent press despatch to the effect that the United States Senate had not ratified the boundary waterways treaty until Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan had secured "a great victory" by having a rider attached regarding the disposition of the waters of the St. Mary's river at the Soo, was brought to the attention of the Prime Minister yesterday by Mr. Boyce (West Algoma).

"The treaty," said the Premier, "has been ratified, but a rider materially interferes, as I understand it, with the disposition of the water in the St. Mary's river. The question rests there at the present time. I may say that the treaty, though passed by the Senate, has not been ratified by the Sovereign of this country. We are this very day sending a despatch to England to have the treaty laid on the table of the House so that Parliament may know exactly what are its terms. I hope to have this before many days are over."

F. D. Monk referred to the defeat in the Senate by 19 to 18 last year of the co-operative bill introduced by him and taken over by the Government. That bill was before the Senate committee on banking and commerce for four months and a fight was made there by the Retail Merchants' Association, which was misled into the belief that the bill opened the way to the introduction of British capital to stifle legitimate enterprises in this country. There had been a strong lobby to defeat the bill in the Senate.

Mr. Lemieux declared he had not wavered in its support of the co-operative society plan, but there was such a thing as provincial rights, and the Governments of Ontario and Quebec had strongly opposed the measure.

Mr. Graham, replying to Haughton Lennox, said the suggestion for a submarine viaduct to replace the fallen Quebec bridge, was "impracticable." Disputes between the G.T.R. and the N.T.R. commission as to classification since April 28, 1906, had been referred to the Government engineer.

Joseph Russell made his maiden speech yesterday in calling attention to the reported arrival of a party of 300 immigrants in Toronto on March 8 of whom it was said there was scarcely $100 among the whole party, while some had stated they were lead to believe work was waiting for them in Toronto.

"I think," said Mr. Russell, "there is a Department responsible for this condition and the House is entitled to an explanation."

Mr. Oliver said an enquiry would be instituted.

Senator McMullen, in moving the second reading of his bill to compel drivers of vehicles to come to a halt before crossing a railway track on grade crossings, said his object was not to relieve the railway companies from responsibility for accidents, but to guard the public against themselves.

Sir Richard Cartwright objected to making new sins by act of Parliament. He was not certain how far this bill would interfere with the recovery of damages from a railway company by one who had suffered in an accident. Before the Senate committed itself to the principle of this bill he would like to submit the bill to the Minister of Railways.

The debate was then adjourned.

Would Save Daylight.

Ottawa, March 11.—E. N. Lewis has given notice of a bill to save daylight by moving forward the clock during the summer months. This is precisely the bill that has just passed its second reading in the British House of Commons.

General Suicides.

Constantinople, March 11.—Gen. Seifullah Pasha, who was Turkish chief of staff during the Turco-Greek war, in which he distinguished himself, committed suicide here yesterday by shooting.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 10.—(Special.)—Montreal Markets.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning the offerings consisted of 500 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 450 hogs, and 800 calves. Considering the unfavorable weather there was a fairly large gathering of buyers, and in consequence a good trade was done for this season of the year. There was a larger percentage of good useful cattle offered than usual, for which the demand was good, consequently the undertone to the market was firm and prices for these grades were well maintained, but the trade in the common stock was rather slow and values had to be shaded in some cases in order to make a clearance. Choice steers sold at 5 1-2c, good at 5c to 5 1-4c, fair at 4 1-2c to 4 3-4c, medium at 4c to 4 1-4c, good cows at 4 1-2c to 5c, common cows at 3c to 3 1-2c, and bulls at 2 3-4c to 4c per pound.

Supplies of sheep and lambs were a little larger than they have been of late, for which the demand was good and a more active trade was done at firm prices. Choice lots of lambs sold at 6 1-4c to 6 1-2c, and good at 5 3-4c to 6c, while sheep brought 4 1-4c to 4 1-2c per pound.

Receipts of calves were much larger and prices showed a sharp decline. The demand was good and sales were made at prices ranging from $2 to $5 each, as to size and quality.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for hogs, prices being firmly maintained at the recent advance, owing to the fact that supplies were not in excess of the requirements and a fairly active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $7.75 to $7.90 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

OIL TRUST NOT GUILTY.

New Trial Reverses Judge Landis' Fine of $29,240,000.

Chicago, March 11.—The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana yesterday was found not guilty of accepting rebates from the Chicago & Alton Railroad on shipments of oil from Whiting, Ind., to East St. Louis, Ills.

The verdict was returned by a jury in the Federal Court on instructions of Judge A. G. Anderson, who averred that he followed the Circuit Court of Appeal's decisions as to the verdict returned at the former trial of the same case and on which verdict Judge Keneshaw Mountain Landis assessed a fine of $29,240,000. Judge Anderson's decision was not unexpected, as he had, Tuesday, told the Government prosecutors that the proof relied on in the first trial was incompetent and that it must be complemented or fail.

It was with something of an air of hopelessness that District Attorney Sims and his assistants attempted to show the admissibility of the Illinois classification to prove the existence of a legal rate of 18 cents, which was a vital point in the Government's contentions.

I was after Assistant District Attorney James H. Wilkerson had argued for two hours and in the end admitted that the prosecution could not furnish the further proof deemed necessary by the court for a continuation of the case, that Judge Anderson announced his decision.

Mr. Wilkerson said that the Government could proceed no further and suggested dismissal of the case.

Brantford Factory Scorched.

Brantford, March 11.—Fire broke out early yesterday morning in the large building known as the Brantford Stoneware Factory. The origin of the blaze, which was a hot one, it is believed, was due to incendiarism, or caused by sleeping tramps. The building was badly scorched by the fire, which was first discovered in a large quantity of baled hay. Frankel Bros. of Toronto are the owners, and the loss is fully covered by insurance.

Had a Long Walk.

Selkirk, Man., March 11.—B. O. Meyer, T. O. Callaghan and W. B. Burnell, who went out with Hudson Bay survey party last fall, arrived here yesterday morning after a long and hard journey. The party was within 100 miles of Fort Churchill and salt water, and walked thence to Norway House, a distance of 350 miles; from there came by dog-sleigh to Iceland River, walking thence to Gimli, taking train there for here. They report that all the party who were working on the federal survey for the proposed railway will be in here shortly.

King Alfonso as a Horseman.

Madrid, March 11.—King Alfonso was visiting at Ceuta. A little girl approached him to present a petition on behalf of her imprisoned father. She fell beneath the feet of the King's horse. The King spurred his horse to jump, and the animal cleared the child. His Majesty then dismounted and caressed and comforted the girl, amid the applause of the crowd.

Budapest, March 11.—Julius Geney, a rich apothecary, has sued Emperor Francis Joseph in the royal courts here for 600,000 francs ($120,000). He has deposited papers and documents showing that his grandfather, in 1848, loaned to the Emperor's father, the late Archduke Francis, 6,000 ducats, and he asks for the principal and compound interest.

RUNNING ATHLETICS HOCKEY

STIRLING THE CHAMPIONS OF TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE WON EASILY FROM NORWOOD

Before a crowd of six hundred people, the greater part of which came from the two towns represented, Stirling captured the championship of the Trent Valley League by defeating Norwood last night at Brock street Rink by ten goals to three.

The figures indicate clearly the respective merits of the two teams. The red shirted youths from Stirling were in, around, and all over the green sweatered aggregation from the East Peterborough capital, and the latter never at any stage looked like winners. Stirling had the speed, the stick handling and the scoring ability, and when you have all that you have a pretty good hockey team. After the first fifteen minutes there was never any doubt of the result. Norwood held the ultimate winners safe up to that time, but then Stirling came with a rush that could not be resisted, and before half time they had unreeled five goals. Still another was added in the second half before Norwood found the nets, and then the East Peterborough team landed two in a row, and for the first time in the game their rooters began to sit up and take notice. It was but a flash in the pan, however, as Stirling came right back with four more. Norwood getting the last just before time was up.

It was a pretty husky aggregation that Stirling trotted out for the final battle, and they were class all through. While at first they gave promise of some excellent combination work, they soon dropped that stle of play, and afterwards it was all individual, the forwards and defence alternating in a series of one man rushes that kept the Norwood defence on the run all the way. And they were goal getters, too, that new champion team, and made the best of their opportunities when in close. Their main fault was that they did not check back close, but they again didn't need to, for their defence was quite capable of taking care of the Norwood attacking division without much assistance from their own line.

It was a splendid game, fast all the way, and although the teams bounced at first, they soon got used to the rink, and the play was brilliant throughout. It was not rough at any stage, although in the first few minutes there were several penalties. Norwood being the chief offenders. Both sides had big delegations of rooters with them, Stirling bringing several hundred on a special train, while Norwood was accompanied by a big crowd on the regular train. The Stirling fans and fanettes occupied the west side of the rink, while the Norwood cohorts lined up on the east, and may be both sides didn't root some. The west side was a sea of red and white colours and waving hats whenever Stirling scored, while at half time the enthusiastic rooters of the winning team climbed over on to the ice and enlivened the proceedings with a procession around the rink. Meanwhile over on the east side there was a gloom thick enough to cut.

The Norwood team was hardly up to last year's City League standard, and were never a factor after the first quarter of an hour. Their defence was weak although they worked hard and the forward line, although they tried consistently to play combination, found that they could not get away with it, as they lacked Stirling's speed. However, the losers never let up but kept hammering along, even when the tide of battle had turned overwhelmingly against them. Kennedy, Fletcher and Whitty were the stars for Stirling. The sturdy right wing played a beautiful game, getting a number of goals on splendid rushes followed by a hard fast shot at close range, that Doherty hadn't a chance to stop. He had speed to burn and showed himself a splendid stickhandler. Fletcher, the diminutive centre man, was another who was always in the limelight. He is a player of the Randall type, who wiggles through and around the defence until he is in a position to shoot advantageously. Whitty's rushes were a feature, and resulted in several goals. On one occasion he got the puck at his own goal and carried it the whole length of the ice for a goal ,with the assistance of Fletcher.

Alex Kempt was Norwood's star and did some excellent stick handling and splendid shooting, while Russell Pearce shone in spots, but he was not working all the time. Doherty, in goal, pulled off some clever saves, but had a habit of wandering from his nets too much and this proved costly.

Harry Morgan refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams and the crowd, and there was no complaint made as to his services.

The teams were as follows :—

The players bunched pretty well at the beginning, and it was a difficult matter for either line to get working right. Finally, however, Kennedy got the rubber and skating round the Norwood defence, carried right into the nets for the first goal in 15 minutes.

The next goal was one of the most sensational of the night. Whitty got the rubber behind his own goal and carried it to centre where he transferred to Fletcher, who fooled the defence and passed back to Whitty, who scored on a beautiful shot from close in.

The next one was easy, Saylor bouncing one in on a long lift from his position at coverpoint.

Grand work by Fletcher was responsible for the next two goals. The little centre man carried the puck from the middle of the rink through the Norwood defence for a score and repeated the performance from the face off. There was no further scoring until half time.

Kennedy opened the second half with another of his spectacular rushes from centre, completely fooling the defence.

Nothing daunted, Stirling came back harder than ever. Doherty started out on a rush after stopping a shot but was knocked over and Saylor slammed one into the empty nets.

Fletcher got the next two on individual stunts, and then, McMillan, carrying the puck up the ice from the face off, banged in Stirling's last goal.

The summary follows :—

1. Stirling — Kennedy, 15 mins.
2. Stirling — Whitty, 2 (mins)
3. Stirling — Saylor, 1 min.
4. Stirling — Fletcher, 30 secs.

Half-time.

6. Stirling — Kennedy, 4 mins.
7. Norwood — Kempt, 5 mins.
8. Norwood — Kempt, 1.30 mins.
9. Stirling — Saylor, 1 min.
10. Stirling — Fletcher, 2 mins.
11. Stirling — Fletcher, 3 min.
12. Stirling — McMillan, 30 secs.
13. Norwood — McNicholl, 3 mins.

PETERBOROUGH CURLERS CAPTURED CUP FROM THE LINDSAY RINKS

Peterborough curlers won the Peterborough-Lindsay Cup capturing the valued trophy after one of the best contests ever played for it. Lindsay held the mug last year and judging from the game they have been putting up this year all over the province things did not look particularly favourable for the locals. Still the Peterborough curlers are above the average and they went after Lindsay and with success. The game was close, Peterborough winning by only three shots.

Four rinks from Lindsay played here and four from the city played in Lindsay. The games here were all close except Messrs. Ray and O'Connor which was 22 to 16. Messrs. Connal and Little played a tie game 16 each. This was a hard battle every end and Little had a lot of luck with him too. In one end Peterborough lay five shots when Mr. Little played his last stone and by a streak of pure luck wiggled between two stones and went on in to the tee for shot. Both Skips put up a great contest.

Peterborough has been successful in capturing the Lindsay-Peterborough cup after one of the most warmly contested fights in the history of the competition for the trophy. Peterborough won the round by three shots, being four up at home and one down in Lindsay, four rinks from each club playing in each play. The games were hotly fought out and were interesting all the way.

Following were the scores:

Connal—16	Little—16
Lang—18	Watson—15
Ferguson—13	Cuthbert—18
Ray—22	O'Connor—16

Peterborough four up.

At Lindsay.

The four rinks left here yesterday morning for Lindsay and in the afternoon met their old rivals on their own ice. The ice was not in the best of shape, being uneven in some places and this was a decided disadvantage to the visitors. However, the Lindsay rinks were only one up on the total.

The skips and scores were:

Fitzgerald—17	Needler—9
Hicks—12	Sisson—18
D. Hall—10	Flavelle—23
Hay—19	Butler 9

Lindsay one up.

Peterborough three up on the round

GREAT ICE FOR TO-NIGHT'S BIG JUNIOR BATTLE AT BROCK STREET

There is the greatest interest being taken in to-night's game between the Collegiate Institute seven and the Peterborough Junior .H.A. team and one of the neatest and most hard fought little games of the season will be seen. Both play splendid hockey with lots of combination and clever stick handling, and whichever wins the spectators will have a game well worth seeing. Both teams expect to win, and it will be a battle royal, as they are pretty well matched in weight and in every other particular. Caretaker Jack Thirnbeck has one of the fastest sheet sof ice of the season waiting foe the players and as both teams excel when the going is good, they will have no cause for complaint. It will start at 8 o'colck and the full O.H.A. time wil lbe played. The fans cannot aford to overlook the game.

SOME GREAT SCORES AT THE P.B.C. ALLEYS

Nine Scores of Over 200, With 245 as Ties, Top Figures—Sutherland in Form.

There was some remarkable bowling done on the P.B.C alleys last night It is doubtful if ever so many 200 scores have been rolled in a single night since the alleys were opened and it shows that a keen interest is being taken in the game and also that the boys are out for the box of cigars that are offered each week. The record for this week was 224 bowled on Tuesday night but this was tied yesterday afternoon by Dusty. Then Sutherland broke loose and bowled 245, which is still the high score and looks good for the box of cigars. Sutherland's score for three consecutive games was 180, 192 and 245 or a total of 617 which is getting up near the record of the alleys, 661, rolled by Mr. Grey, a commercial traveller, who blew into the club rooms last fall. The 200 or over scores made last night were:

Sutherland—203, 245, 212.
Fryer—224, 216
C. Ford—200
H. Martin—202

This is pretty classy bowling and something which none of them need be ashamed of. In the American Bowling Tournament in Chicago last week the scores would not average anything like 200 and some of the best men in the game took part in the tournament. If the local boys keep going for a while they will be in a position to hold their own with any team.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Is without an Equal for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS and all Affections of the THROAT and LUNGS.

All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are in the beginning but colds or coughs. Too much stress cannot be laid on this fact, and neglect to cure the cold very often causes years of suffering and in the end comes "Consumption." Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe.

Mr. J. L. Purdy, Millvale, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled with a hard, dry cough for a long time, especially at night, but after having used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for a few weeks, I find my cough has left me. To any person, suffering as I did, I can say that this remedy is well worth a trial. I would not be without it in the house."

So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

THEY CAN ALL COME SAYS JACK JOHNSON

"I am willing to meet Jeffries—I am willing to meet any man in the world—and I don't think anyone can get a decision over me, much less put me out. It amuses me to hear this talk of Jeffries claiming the championship. Why, when a Mayor leaves office he is an ex-Mayor, is not he? When a champion leaves the ring he is an ex-champion. Well, that's Jeff. If he wants to try to get the championship back, I'm willing to take him on, or any other man." Jack Johnson landed at Victoria yesterday, on his way to Chicago and Texas, and made this statement:

"No, I'm not making any restrictions. What's the matter, though, in the talk of arrangements of a fight with Jeffries for what Johnson will In all the notices I have seen, it's it's all what Jeffries will take. What's the matter with what Johnson will take. In all the notices I have seen, I want a winner and loser's end, and I don't care what it is—60 and 40, or 75 and 25—but there's got to be a winner's and losers' end. That's how it was with Burns. I knew I could get him, and I followed him around the world before I got on with him at Sydney. And did it to show the people that I could do it. That's what. If Jeffries wants a go, as the papers say, he's got to see me, and there's got to be a winner's and loser's end."

It is doubtful, according to the arrangements made by Johnson, whether any fight could be brought on with Jeffries, Ketchell or any other man within six months. While his plans are not absolute, he hinted at his willingness to change them if anything big was hung up for a match with Ketchell. Johnson intends to devote several months to a theatrical engagement, signed with the Oxford and Paragon syndicate in England, for the London halls, and, after an English tour, France and Germany.

Johnson was asked regarding the story told in New York by George Bernard, an Australian sporting man, that before the fight at Sydney Johnson and his manager, Fitzpatrick, received an offer of $12,000 in cash to throw the fight to Burns, but that they turned the proposition down cold. The coloured champion said: "I don't think that's right. I don't know what they might have wanted to do, but, you see, they were afraid to come near me, and—well, I don't think that's right."

"They are good sports in Australia. They treated me fine, and I've got no kick coming. But, on the square, they seemed to think more of Tommy Burns after I had licked him, giving him such a licking as anybody ever had, than they did for me. And me the champion! That was a funny stunt about me finding comfort in Shakespeare's works and the "Pilgrim's Progress," but, on the level. I do read Shakespeare."

THE STRATHS AND ST. ANDREW'S TEAM

Will Come Together at Brock Street Rink To-morrow Night.

St. Andrew's have changed their mind about playing with the Strathconas and the game between the two clubs will come off to-morrow night at Brock street rink at 8 o'clock. The Church Leaguers will have their usual team, possibly strengthened somewhat, while the Straths will be able to send out a pretty strong lineup and feel that they can give the Church champions a hard battle. It should be an interesting game and no doubt a big crowd will be on hand to see the two teams go, as there has been much discussion over which League has been playing the best brand of hockey. St. Andrew's are heavy and fast and will give the Straths about all that they are looking for. The St. Andrew's team will be chosen from the following: (

SIMPSON TRAINING FOR THE BIG RACE

Is Working Out in Toronto and in Fine Shape—Shrubb Also Out.

Toronto, March 10.—Both Simpson and Shrubb, who are to meet in a twelve-mile race at the Armouries, on the 20th, were out working yesterday.

The Indian was up at the Central, "Y" track yesterday afternoon, where he tore off three or four miles, while Shrubb spent a couple of hours up at the Varsity track. Shrubb ran about three miles. The Englishman prefers running in the open, but it was too slippery and dangerous. Today, however, he is upon the cinder path.

The Men are Working.

Simpson will work out late this afternoon for another three or four miles, likely at the Armouries.

Immediately after this event Shrubb will leave for Montreal, where he will race three local men in a fifteen-mile relay race on March 24, just four days after the Toronto engagement. This race was planned some weeks ago, but the New York race and the Buffalo fiasco prevented it.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS LARMER

The death occurred last evening, after an illness extending over three years, of Thomas Larmer, at his late residence, 558 Water St. The deceased had been a sufferer with rheumatism.

Th deceased was forty-five years of age and was born in Cavan, being a son of the late Henry Larmer. He was married twenty-four years ago to his now surviving wife, her maiden name being Lucy Donaldson. He had been a resident of Peterborough for the past seventeen years, during which time he made a large number of friends who will learn with deep regret of his death. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

The late Mr. Larmer was a bookkeeper by profession. During the six years previous to his being compelled to abandon all work, he was the faithful employee of Mr. G. Walter Green. Mr. Green valued his services very highly as a man of sound judgment as well as a careful and conscientious accountant, and he has never forgotten his old employee during his protracted illness.

He leaves a wife, four brothers and three sisters to mourn his loss. The brothers were Messrs. William, Herbert, Percy, and Cecil, of Elk Horn, Man., and the sisters are Mrs. Scott, of Portage Laprairie, Mrs McFee, of New Liskeard, and Mrs. James Francy, of Millbrook.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the family residence, 558 Water St., to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JAS. MILLER.

The death occurred last night at St. Joseph's Hospital of Mrs. James Miller at the age of 86 years. Her late husband predeceased her several months ago. One son, Edward Ellemer, is now residing in Oakland, Cal. In religion the deceased was a Methodist. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of Mr. F. W. Miller, Water Street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

ELIZA RIGHTMYER

The death occurred in the Toronto General Hospital on Tuesday, Mar. 9, of Eliza Rightmyer, wife of Mr. Joseph Rightmyer, formerly of Downer's Corners, and well-known in Peterborough. The deceased was seventy-two years of age, and had lived in Toronto for the past three years moving there from Downer's Corners.

She is survived by her husband and thre sons, and two daughters. They are Mr. Stanley Rightmyer, 569 Sherbrooke St., city, Mr. W. C. Rightmyer, Carievale, Sask., Mr. Harrison Rightmyer, 222 Dufferin St., city, Mrs. John Grose, Bolivar St., city, and Miss Francis L. Rightmyer in Toronto.

NEWARK PRIEST IS FOULLY MURDERED

Newark, N.J., March 10. — The Rev. Father Erasin Ansion, rector of the Polish Church of St. Stanislaus, was shot and almost instantly killed by three men in his rectory early to-day.

Miss Antonia Sewrzyatka, housekeeper for the rector, who attempted to prevent the assassination, was slightly wounded, but will recover.

As there has been a dispute among the leaders of the church over its affairs, the shooting was at first believed to have been the outcome of that disagreement.

Three men who were unknown to the servants called at the rectory while the rector was holding mass in the church. They were admitted to the parlour and Father Ansion was notified of their presence as soon as he returned from mass. As the rector entered the parlour, the men opened fire on him. One bullet penetrated the breast near the heart, and the two others lodged in the abdomen. Father Ansion died in the ambulance while on the way to the hospital.

Other priests in the rectory, hearing the shots, rushed toward the parlour. The assailants fled from the house and escaped.

Four suspects have been arrested but the housekeeper was unable to identify any of them.

The tragedy is believed to be the culmination of a series of factional fights which have disrupted the church for many months. Father Ansion was assigned to the church by Bishop O'Connor last fall, after the former rector had been terrified into fleeing from the city. Strong opposition developed to Father Ansion and he was threatened many times. The police said that Father Ansion had been collecting funds for a new church and that this was the cause of the trouble.

LINDSAYITES WENT WILD OVER WIN

Procession Formed, Bands Played and Factory Whistles Blew.

The Lindsay Warder thusly describes how the news was received in Lindsay:

Another half-hour wait and shortly after ten the final score ticked out by the telegraph instruments was scattered over town.

With a prolonged roar the big whistle on Flavelle's mill burst into exultation. With its weird screech, now a deep bass and then quavering into higher notes, it alarmed the whole town.

It shrilled and tooted and gave a short bellow and then was still for a minute. Again it "gave tongue," and citizens were fearing that a terrific conflagration was in progress in town. To add to this fear flames from half a dozen bonfires cast a dull flare in the sky and from a short distance from the main street it would appear that the business part of the town was in flames.

"W-what's the matter—what's on fire," came in a breathless tone over The Warder telephone.

"Ah, wake up, old man; why, Lindsay's won the championship!" was the somewhat unceremonious reply.

The telephone kept up a continual jangle from ten until near midnight.

Down at the Benson and Simpson houses crowds were gathered, and the cheering rose in prolonged outbursts. The fire bell and the market bell were rung and the fire waggon brought out. A burst of music proclaimed the presence of the band and a procesison was formed down the main street. A hooting, howling, yelling and cheering multitude kept up the celebration until a late hour. Bandmaster Roenigk and his men crashed out victorious music, and everybody was sincerely happy.

It was long after midnight when the flames of the bon-fires had dwindled that the crowd gradually dispersed and went home to dream of the victory.

For miles around town, it is said, the flames of the bon-fires could be seen. Every spare packing case in town met an untimely fate in the endeavour of the crowd to swell the blaze. The snow melted and ran in little pools of water to the sides of the road, and the boxes crackled and blazed. The flare attracted everybody from all portions of the town, and it was worse than circus day on Kant St., for a time. Everybody was deliriously happy, too.

It isn't often Lindsay wins a championship, and the old town could afford to put on "glad rags" for once.

It was a big night!

HOCKEY

The Linlsay Warder says. The Midgets started out this year with a vim that meant business. From the start they looked like champions, and they won their district in championship style against the hardest teams in the province. Belleville, Peterborough and Cobourg all had splendid intermediate teams, and it was something to be proud of to win the championship of even the district, composed as it was of four such teams. After the district series, in which but one defeat was recorded against the Midgets, Peterborough winning a game, the team went up against the Toronto Rowing Club, a team which wouldn't have survived a decent district series. They were easily defeated, and St. Catharines proved victims also. Then came the finals with Stratford, a team which had battled its way on through a hard district and won great honor by overcoming a lead of six goals from Ingersoll. The result of the two final games was a decided win for Lindsay by the total score of 12—4.

The P.C.I. seven defeated St. John's all star team in a fast game of hockey at the Brock street Rink yesterday afternoon. The full time score was 4-2. For the winners Geale, Denison and Conroy starred, while Burritt for the losers was the shining light. Leo Derocher made a most satisfactory referee.

St. John's.—Goal, L. Giroux; point, S. Wade; cover, Halpany; rover, W. PPratt; centre, H. Burritt; right wing, Mills; left, Evans.

There are some good boys on that Stirling team which won the Trent Valley Championship last night. Fletcher, Kenny and Whitty are splendid skaters and stick handlers, and are plenty fast enough for Intermediate O. H. A. company.

Fred Doherty, the Norwood boy who played with the Galt professionals, champions of the Ontario Professional League this season, was in the city last night with the Norwood Trent Valley team. Fred looks well after his season with the "pros." and stated that he enjoyed the winter very much.

By the way, the hardest task that the Lindsay team had in winning the championship, was to dispose of Peterborough, which speaks pretty well for the Petes. The locals tied up the district with the Midgets and were the only team to defeat them either home or abroad this season. All of which is very satisfactory from a local standpoint.

The Midgets have won the Intermediate Championship of the O.H.A. fairly and squarely, and are entitled to all the credit that can possibly be given to them. The Midgets, rather a misnomer by the way, have played good hockey all the way, and their victories have been clean cut and decisive. There can be no claim on the part of any team that the Lindsay team has not won its honours on its merits, and Peterborough people will unite in congratulating the boys from Scugogville on their clever win. If the championship could not come to Peterborough, it came to this district, at least, so here's to Lindsay!

The news of the death of Mrs. John Wasson, which occurred at Peterborough on Saturday, came as a great shock to her many friends in this place, where she lived prior to taking up residence in Peterborough some five years ago. The late Mrs. Wasson, by her exemplary character and neighbourly generosity, won the hearts of all with whom she came in contact, and her enthusiasm in church work rendered her a great influence for that cause in the community.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS ARE EXPECTED TO COME OUT AT KINRADE INQUEST TO-NIGHT

Hamilton, Ont., Mar. 13.—Although several more witnesses including Mrs. Kinrade, mother of the murdered girl, were examined in the session of the Kinrade inquest last evening, very little of any new evidence was forthcoming and although Mr. Blackstock spent nearly twelve hours in faithful and persistent cross-examinations the tragedy is just as great a mystery as ever before, with but one point clearly brought out and that the fact that Florence Kinrade is not telling all that she knows of the affair. This was clearly proved by the evidence of Detective Bleakley, who proved beyond doubt that the dead girl's body had been moved after the deed was committed and that she had been shot while sitting on a chair, not while coming down stairs, as Florence would have the authorities believe, while the story that Florence was also shot at, has been disproved entirely. In her story she tells of having seen Ethel lying on the floor beside a pool of blood as she ran from the back yard to the front of the house, and yet when the police came on the scene, they were unable to see the pool of blood until the body had been placed on a stretcher. It seems that the body was so placed as to bring this pool of blood directly under the small of the back, a position in which there is no possible chance for the life fluid to gather if the body was always in the one position, as the wounds were too far removed from the location. The blood all came from the face in the first place and the face of the girl was not at all near the plot of blood. In addition several teeth and bullets were found in this pool proving that the face had at one time been in a position to allow the plot to form from the wounds in the mouth and head, as the wound in the heart would not cause the bleeding. Outside of this little new evidence was brought out. Mrs. Kinrade proved a very unsatisfactory witness as far as evidence was concerned, and all that can be said in her favour was that she emulated Florence's fainting act of the first evening.

The inquest will be continued this afternoon and evening, and the Crown is confident that by the time all the Crown evidence is in that there will be such a strong chain of circumstantial evidence brought as to involve at least one person actively figuring in the case to a great extent. In fact when this evidence is all in and Florence Kinrade is called back to the stand prosecutor Blackstock is very sanguine that he will succeed in getting a true account of the crime from the girl who so far has baffled both detectives and lawyers alike with her nerve and convenient memory at times for its formula. Sensational developments are looked for this evening.

Very Sudden Death Of Colonel J. Z. Rogers At His Home Late Last Night

Was Ill Only an Hour—Was in His Office Yesterday in Apparently Good Health — One of Peterborough's Best Known Residents.

FUNERAL ON SUNDAY.

With shocking suddenness came the death of Col. J. Z. Rogers last night at a quarter past eleven at his residence, 135 Hunter St., East. It came quite unexpectedly. Mr. Rogers having been ill about an hour. It was at ten o'clock that he was seized with heart trouble. Medical assistance was summoned but it was to no avail. He was surrounded by his family at his death. Colonel Rogers was out to business yesterday, returning home about six o'clock, apparently in his usual good health. In fact it had been remarked by some employees at the factory that the colonel was looking better than he had for some time.

Probably no one in Peterborough was any better known or more highly respected than the late James Z. Rogers. Born in the township of Otonabee on August 3rd. 1842, he was a lifelong resident of the county, but for the greater part of his life, his home had been in Ashburnham. He was a son of the late Robert David Rogers, one of the earliest settlers in Otonabee. When a child, the deceased moved into the village with his parents. His father built the East City flour mill and also a sawmill on Hunter St., which a few years ago was torn down. A general store where Mr. Wm. Collins' grocery business now is in East City was conducted by the late Robt. D. Rogers.

The late Col. J. Z. Rogers was for many years employed in his father's store and also managed the lumber business for a time.

It was about twenty years ago that he began the manufacture of canoes from a model of his own, in the Ashburnham factory which went under the name of the Ontario Canoe Co. Five years later, fire partly destroyed

LIEUT.-COL. J. Z. ROGERS
Who Suddenly Passed Away Last Evening.

the East City premises, and Mr. Rogers moved to the present building on Water St., and the name was changed to the Peterborough Canoe Company. At his death he was the president of the company.

He was beloved and respected by his employees and by all who knew him. His life was one that was identified with everything that pertained to the welfare of the community. His honour and integrity, his generosity and kindness won for him a high place in the estimation of the citizens in general and his death is a distinct loss to the city.

For many years, Colonel Rogers was prominent in military circles. He was identified with the 57th Regiment from its start. He commenced as a private in his father's company. Upon his father's retirement he was appointed captain. In 1866 he saw actual service and again he went to the front in 1867. He was for sixteen years commanding officer of the regiment, retiring in 1894. It is to the patriotic xertions and the personal popularity of the Rogers family the various corps of the Peterborough Militia are deeply indebted. The late colonel was a descendant of a remarkable race of loyal soldiers.

The deceased served in the village of Ashburnham council for several years. He was one of the founders of St. Luke's Church, and was always one of its most valued and consistent members. He was for many years one of the wardens and took an active part in church affairs until the last. It was only Wednesday night that he attended the special service and took up the offertory. As a churchman and as a citizen, the late Colonel Rogers will be greatly missed. To his family will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community for by his death Peterborough losses one of its best, oldest and most highly respected citizens.

His wife, one son, Claude, and one daughter, Miss Mamie, both residing at home, and three brothers and one sister are left to mourn his loss. The brothers are Messrs. R. B. Rogers, C. E., East City; E. R. Rogers, Toronto, and Alfred B. Rogers, of Calgary. The sister is Mrs. Samuel Price, of Otonabee.

The funeral will take place at two o'clock on Sunday from the family residence to St. Luke's Church and thence to the Little Lake cemetery.

THE LEGAL COMMITTEE HEARD CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES LAST NIGHT

At the meting of the Legal committee at the City Council last night, a letter was received from Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon on behalf of Dr. Gallivan, owner of the property at the northeast corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, claiming damages caused by the recent thaw and the flooding of surface water into his cellar, etc.

Several other claims for small damages were also read and they were all referred to the city solicitor to report on.

Mr. Johnston Greer's claim for damages caused by his falling on the sidewalk near the Auburn dam and fracturing his arm was considered. The walk is alleged to have been out of repair. City Engineer Hay reported on this matter, stating that ice had been formed on the walk at the entrance to the gravel pit.

Mr. Greer, wrote asking that he be reimbursed for his time and doctor bill. He was laid off for a month, $65, and $25 doctor bill or a total of $90. This was referred to the city solicitor.

W. G. Metheral's claim for $50 damages, caused by the building of Aylmer street bridge and blocking the street, was referred to the solicitor.

Street Commissioner H. Evans reported that Mr. Metheral had no claim whatever against the city as his business was in no way interfered with.

Burleigh Falls Hotel Case Was Dismissed This Morning

Three cases were on the County Police Court file this morning for Magistrate Edmison to give his attention to. The first was that of a charge against the proprietor of the Burleigh Falls Hotel of having on February 23rd committed a second offence against the Liquor License Act. There was a dance at the hotel that night and it was alleged that the bar was kept open after the specified hour. The charge was laid by Inspector Williams, of Havelock. Four or five witnesses were examined but practically no evidence relative to the charge was brought. The case was dismissed owing to the failure to bring forth convicting evidence.

Farmers Are Preparing For Opening Of Maple Syrup Season

Two farmers on the market this morning were overheard conversing about the prospects for the maple syrup manufacture. One of them stated that he had already tapped a number of his trees and intended to finish the rest of them next week. He was of the opinion that there would be a good run of sap if the present conditions were maintained. The hardware men are beginning to advertize their stock of utensils for the sugar season and it will not be long now before the syrup is again being sold on the market and from house to house around the streets.

Ottawa Man Changed His Mind Thus Minding His Change.

Ottawa, March 10.—Joseph Wadsworth, a well known Ottawa man, who disappeared from the Capital on Sunday in company with three strangers, said to be confidence men from New York, under circumstances that looked like kidnapping, turned up again last night at his home. It seems Wadsworth had in his possession at the time he met the strangers over two hundred dollars in cash, and a letter of credit for several thousands.

When he did not return home his family became alarmed and hearing of the men he had been seen with, the police were notified and the Attorney-General's department at Toronto was asked to investigate. A telegram was sent to catch the New York train, on which Wadsworth was thought to be, and a message was delivered to him in his berth when the train reached Troy. He promptly left the train, leaving the three supposed kidnappers sleeping in their berths and returned to Ottawa last night.

OUR SCHOOLS AND OUR TEACHERS.

Elsewhere in this issue appears the introductory of a series of articles on "Our Schools and Our Teachers," written by Mr. Barton Earle, coming at a time when there is so much agitation over disputed points of theological finesse, htey will be read with interest if not profit. While giving space to a discussion of the subject the Examiner does not commit itself to acceptance of the views of the writer any more than flocks uniformly endorse the opinion of their pastors.

LANDSCAPES AND LAWNS

To-morrow's Examiner will contain the second of Mr. Cutting's series of articles on the genral subject of "Landscape Gardening." The citizen about to plan or lay down a lawn and design its planting with a view to the best effect is advised to carefully read these articles. Even those with what are considered established lawns may read them with advantage, as may all who wish to join a movement to improve the streets and lawns of the city to make Peterborough as can be done my each doing his or her share, the most beautiful, attractive and homelike assemblage of homes in the province.

THE LEVEL CROSSING PROBLEM

The problem of dealing with the perpetual menace of the dangerous grade railway crossings develops extremist opinions. Legislation is proposed which arouses opposition on the part of both railways and the public. One bill, that of Mr. Lancaster, of Lincoln, among other things provides for trains slowing down or halting at all crossings. This is manifestly impossible. Applied to a transcontinental express it would lengthen the time for crossing the continent by two or three days. While the speed of trains in city or town streets is already regulated, it seems to be impossible to require trains to halt at every level crossing. The public would thereby be greatly inconvenienced and travelling rendered repellantly slow. Another bill requires drivers of vehicles to come to a full stop before crossing a railway and investigate to discover the possible proximity of trains that would be dangerous. This proposal has raised an outcry of objections in some quarters and is rejected as a tyrannical requirement. It is declared that such a precaution should not be enforced. "And what for not" as Meg. Dods would say. Why not make obligatory a precaution now practised thousands of times a day all over the province, by sensible persons who refuse to run the risk, which accounts for nine-tenths of the accidents fatal and otherwise which occur at level crossings? To require such a precaution is no more than to ask a passenger alighting from a street car on the track side to look both ways to make sure that no car that would make crossing the track dangerous is coming from either direction; or to ask a foot-passenger to make sure that there is no danger from an approaching vehicle before venturing upon a crossing. With proper care on the part of the public there would be few accidents at level railway crossings. But the public needs to be protected against themselves—against their own contributary carelessness, such as the law regards as a bar to the collection of damages for accidents. Both extremes of remedy may be avoided by making level crossings reasonably safe, and this matter may safely be kept in the hands of the Railway Commission, which is equipped with means for carrying out its directions. The Minister of Railways and Canals proposes setting aside annually a sum of $200,000 to be the chief contribution to a fund to which the railways will of course have to contribute—for the purpose of making level crossings safe It is probable that the Provincial Governments and municipalities which helped to create the railways whose operation is indespensable to their convenience and prosperity will have to do their share as they should do. With reasonable co-operation on the part of those concerned, with greater care on the part of the public, the terrible death roll due to the level crossing can, and doubtless will, become a thing of the past.

BRITISH TARIFF REFORM.

Mr. Asquith, the Imperial Premier, has made known the discovery of a condition that will militate against the policy of tariff reform—high taxation—which it is now proposed to substitute for free trade. He has discovered that the first stage of tariff reform would involve the plasing of a tax on colonial products that now enter free, and he seems to think that Canadians and others will not be glad of that. Naturally. Neither will the people of Great Britain rejoice over a tax on food stuffs that will make the loaf dearer than it is now and still harder to get. That will be the result of a tax on foodstuffs. Logically the effect of a protective tariff is to make the consumer pay higher prices for the commodities and articles produced under its operation; that is what protection is for; if it does not do this it is no protection to the theoretical beneficiary. A manufacturing industry which claims that it cannot exist without being empowered to force the people to pay prices that will yield profits is, if its claims are met, practically compelling the mass of the people who buy its wares to contribute to its profits and dividends. This is done almost as directly and as urely as if parliament voted a sum from the public treasury to be devoted to the payment of dividends. Taxation is a necessary evil; the necessity that justifies it is the public service, which demands a sufficient revenue. Free trade, as it is in Britain, is the natural theory of trade. Protection is the artificial condition wihch will be found hard to graft on the old stock.

GOOD EVERYWHERE

We don't yet know all there is to know regarding the resources of Canada. The building of the C.P.R. was an eye-opener in this respect and the construction of Ontario's Provincial railway was another. The results in both cases justified the construction of these great enterprises. This experience amply justifies the building of the Transcontinental railway to disclose and assist in the development of our latent national resources. We know already what the construction of the western section means and justification for the eastern section will be found in the wealth of forest and mineral resources it will bring under development. In the benefits of the eastern section are not generally included agricultural development. But a letter written to the Manitoba Free Press by Mr. Frank Moberly, the well-known civil engineer, discloses the fact that in the vicinity of Lake Abitibi, within the most northerly sweep of the Transcontinental the great clay belt comprises a large area of land suited to agriculture. According to Mr. Moberly the local flora of this district indicates a climate corresponding to that of the lower Gatineau, capable of ripening wheat and other grains of the common field variety. This is no mere speculation. Mr. Moberly cleared land to the northward of Lake Abitibi and demonstrated his claim by actual and successful experiment.

It is probable that there is not a square mile of Canada which cannot be subjected to productive development.

CANADIAN EVOLUTION

(Le Canada, Montreal.)

Little by little, without noise, by almost insensible degrees, the evolution is being accomplished of Canada towards that plentitude of autonomy which is fitting to a true nation. The other day an English statesman was telling how the old English colonies were becoming "independent nations under the same sovereign." From our autonomy in internal affairs, which dates from the Confederation, we are progressing towards autonomy in external affairs. The ground won in this direction, won, too, with the full concurrence of Great Britain, forms a basis on which an embryo department of external affairs has been established, coming under the control of the secretary of state. The question is not for the moment one of independence. Canadians of both languages, and especially of Quebec, are satisfied with their present relations with Great Britain, and the position they occupy in the British Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Winnipeg gets a per ahead of the world in enterprise and resourcefulness and in a way that rouses the envy of local option centres. The Prairie Metropolis furnishes hard drinks for its water mains. It is complained that the city water is so hard that a damaging crust of lime forms in boilers, water fronts and domestic utensils. Some means of softening the water is demanded and the city engineer says it is costing more to supply new water fronts than it would cost to soften the city water.

MAGISTRATE AGAIN RESERVES JUDGMENT

In the charge against a local hotelkeeper for selling liquor in larger quantities than a quart. Magistrate Dumble intimated yesterday that he would give judgment to-day, but this morning said that he would further reserve judgment until to-morrow.

HE HYPNOTIZED AN INSANE MAN BACK TO SANITY

New York, March 12.—"Now close your eyes, and listen to me and believe me; for I tell you only what is so. You will be well; let trouble roll away: it will roll unless you try to hold on to it; let it roll away and you will be well; let it roll away—you will be well—let it roll—you will be well"—Following this strain in a low, firm monotone, dwelling ever on the thought of rest and the needlessness of worry, William E. Davenport, an assistant in the post office at East Orrange, has restored to normal condition a young man in Newark whom specialists in mental diseases had pronounced beyond cure. The subject was Charles McVeigh, who for three months had been in the Essex County Hospital for the Insane. The hospital physicians had tole his widowed mother that her son would be afflicted for the remainder of his life with melancholy. Now she is very happy for he is strong and rugged and looks as if the burden for future support of their little home at No. 29 Bruen street would rest lightly upon him.

"When the hospital doctors warned me that Charlie could not be cured," Mrs. McVeigh said yesterday, "a neighbour told me Mr. Davenport had cured by mental suggestion. I went to him and he said he would try, but that he could not visit the hospital unless the doctors there consented. The doctors there would not hear oyt hear oy it. I then bronght Charlie home and het Mr. Davenport see him here. All the doctors there scoffed at the idea that hypnotism could touch a case like this. Mr. Davenport came to see us nearly every day. After ten visits the cure was complete.'

"I Could Feel My Worries Leaving Me."

"All that Mr. Davenport seemed to do with me," said they oung man, "was to talk very quietly of rest and advise me to drop trouble. As he talked I could really feel my worries leaving me, and then I would sleep. When I was at the hospital, and for a long time before that I worried always.

"An attack of typhoid fever two years ago put me out of work, and when I got well there were hard times and I could not find work. I tramped the town looking for a place, and nobody wanted me. Then I began to lose sleep and appetite. There was very little to eat that tempted me, but when I wanted to drink, it seemed impossible to get enough water. Once I topped off with a bottle of Worcestershire sauce. Eating nothing I became weak and could not sleep. After that I didn't much care what happened. The doctors at the hospital treated me well enough, but a sane man would soon become insane in an asylum."

"McVeigh's case showed unique symptoms," said Mr. Davenport yesterday. "It seems that he felt himself to be a central receiving station for the ills of all his friends. When they described to him their ailments, the same ailments developed in him. Probably he was suffering from hypochrondria and auto-hynosis, besides graver afflictions. Everything seems to have yielded to hypnotic suggestion. The young man needed to have his mind made restful and to be persuaded to cease from worry. If those ends were gained pretty much all the battle was won. He proved a very ready and willing subject."

While Mr. Davenport was talking the doorbell rang, and a man in working clothes entered.

"Say, boss," began the visitor, "I smashed my thumb down the street, where we are building a house. Some of the boys said you could take away the pain, and there's a lot off t'totalke away. Would you mind trying?"

Made His Thumb Feel "Bully"

"Certainly, we will try," and Mr. Davenport led his caller to an easy chair, directing him to close his eyes. He pressed the visitor's temples, placing one thumb between the eyes. Then he began to talk gently. In a few minutes the man was asleep, dropping off easily. Mr. Davenport continued to talk for about twenty minutes. When he stopped the visitor arose and left, declaring that his thumb felt "bully."

"There is a typica fcase of hypnotic suggestion," Mr. Davenport said as the caller went away. "It is usually of great benefit in the relief of pain. I suppose I have treated a thousand such cases."

BUDGET DEBATE CLOSED

Liberal Leader Introduces Resolution Condemning Lavish Expenditure of Provincial Funds—Premier Ends Debate With a Roast For Methods of Mining Companies—Will Go Into Details Later.

Toronto, March 12.—The first division of the session took place yesterday on the conclusion of the debate on the budget, when Mr. MacKay moved an amendment to the motion to go into committee of supply, only sixteen Liberals being in the House at the time. The motion, seconded by Mr. McDougal, was to the effect that under a proper classification the current expenditures exceeded the current receipts and strongly urged curtailment of expenditure. The resolution also expressed regret for the large expenditures made without the annual vote of the Legislature.

Hon. A. G. MacKay said that in the seven sessions in which he had been in the House he never knew the Opposition to have acquitted themselves more creditably than in this debate.

The most important things the Government had to deal with now were forest conservation and education. Dealing with technical education, should not the sum of $3,200 spent last year be supplemented, in order that the young men of the workshop and factory may be benefitted? Night school should be established.

Coming to the budget proper, Mr. MacKay criticized the Provincial Treasurer for placing the income from municipal debentures in current revenue, when that income was less than the expenditure, and in capital account when it was greater. The Provincial Treasurer of to-day was a different man than when he was in opposition. Following his reasoning of 1903, instead of a surplus to-day the Government would face a deficit of $2,024,829.

Dealing with the increase in general expenditure Mr. MacKay pointed out that the increase in expenditure in four years had averaged 50 1-2 per cent., while the revenue had only increased 10 per cent. The per capita increase of expenditure from 1872 to 1904, during the 33 years of Liberal rule, was equal to the increase during period from 1904 to 1908 under the present Government.

The Premier, in closing the debate, said the state of affairs which existed in the Legislature at the present time was unique in the history of British institutions. The Government were thankful for the confidence expressed by the people of the province. He was willing to make every possible allowance for hon. gentlemen opposite, but could not help reproaching them for the conclusions they had arrived at in connection with the debate.

They had no apologies to make for the increase in expenditure. True, the expenditure had increased, but such increase was necessary and advisable, but, in addition, during four short years, they had practically increased the revenue of the province from four to eight millions of dollars, and to-day the pockets of the Provincial Treasurer were "jingling with a surplus of three millions," and if that did not suit hon. gentlemen opposite, it was impossible to imagine a condition of finances that would meet with their approval."

"Now," declared the Premier, "I want to say that the gentlemen associated with the Cobalt Lake syndicate are the commonest of ordinary swindlers, and when I hear that one is 3,000 miles away, I am not at all surprised. It was actually published in a newspaper of this city that the LieutenantGovernor and four members of the Government had a three hours' quarrel over this bill, and the Lieutenant-Governor refused to sign it. Sir, every act of Sir William Mortimer Clark in connection with this Government has been and might be placed side by side with credit to him, with every act of her late Majesty Queen Victoria." The Premier stated that he would go into the details of this question more fully later in the session.

In conclusion, Sir James said that the Opposition in their criticism had not been guided by wisdom, but had let inclination run away with them. "So," he said, "we will go on our own quiet way, trusting the people because the people will trust us."

Predicts Earthquake.

Alicante, Spain, March 12.—The prediction of Emile Marchand, director of the observatory of the Pic Du Midi, in the Pyrenees, that an earthquake would occur on Feb. 21, having proved correct, the inhabitants of this district are now in a state bordering on panic, as a second severe shock is predicted March 20. Many people are leaving the city and others have already begun to offer up prayers for deliverance in the churches.

Special Car to Effect an Arrest.

Held-Up English Clergyman.

New York, March 12.—Rev. John A. O'Neill, an English clergyman, here on his way to Hamilton, Ont., whither he is called to fill a pastorate, reported to the police last Wednesday night that two men wearing black masks had held him up at the point of a revolver in West 39th street, a few doors from Broadway, and robbed him of $800 in sovereigns.

The hold-up, the minister declared, was committed at 11.30 o'clock, when Broadway and Sixth avenue were crowded with theatregoers.

Rev. Mr. O'Neill did not explain how he happened to carry such a bulky wallet as would contain $800 in gold.

Print Names In Papers.

Victoria, B.C., March 12.—The warring parties on the election bill for the cleaning of voters' lists are now considering a settlement by compromise and prorogation is promised this week.

One of the new amendments to the election bill provides for advertising in the newspapers in the district for two weeks the names of absent and other voters proposed to be struck off the lists.

Ridgetown to Sarnia.

Chatham, March 12.—Important extensions to the northern and southern ends of the Chatham, Wallaceburg and Lake Erie electric road are announced, subject to the decision of American financiers who are interested in the proposition. The towns of Blenheim and Ridgetown on the south and Petrolia and Sarnia on the north will be tapped his summer.

Judge Is Indicted.

Toledo, Ohio, March 12.—As a result of the probing into the affairs of the defunct Ohio German Insurance Co., the Lucas County grand jury on Wednesday returned five indictments against Judge Michael Donnelly, president of the company. Two of the indictments charge perjury, two embezzlement and obtaining money by false pretences.

$25,000 Without Claimant.

San Francisco, March 12.—That someone in this city is so careless of his wealth that he can lose $25,000 without making any enquiry for it was the astonishing discovery of J. J. Samuels, who two days ago picked up a package in the dry goods store with which he is connected, containing a small fortune in negotiable securities.

EMPIRE GROWING.

Three New Siamese States Are Ceded to Britain.

London, March 12.—Fifteen thousand square miles of territory have been added to the British Empire by the treaty just signed at Bangkok, Siam, under the terms of which Siam cedes to Great Britain the States of Kalantan, Tringano and Kedah, which hereafter will be administered with the Malay federated states.

Under the treaty British capital to the extent of $20,000,000 will be furnished for the contruction of railroads south from Bangkok. These lines are to be controlled by a new department quite distinct from the present railroad administration of Siam, which is administered by Germany.

There will also be a gradual abolition of British extra territorial rights in Siam.

Bail Bond Not Acceptable.

Montreal, March 12.—W. S. Reed, the thermos bottle promoter, who was arrested Monday on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences, was released on bail Wednesday night, but was taken into custody again yesterday morning. Upon investigating his bail bonds it was found that Reed had put up an accepted check for $10,000, but that the money really belonged to the company, which he is accused of defrauding, although the check was signed by himself and purported to be his personal bond.

Protection For Women.

Halifax, N.S., March 12.—Chaplains stationed at landing piers here will petition the Social and Moral Reform League executive to urge on the Dominion Government the passing of an act to afford immediate protection to female immigrants landing at any Canadian port similar to the act now in force in the United States. It is alleged that young women coming to Canada from Europe alone are lured to houses of ill-fame in upper and Western Canadian cities and that some seem to disappear from view altogether.

Winter Causes Skin-Torture

WINTER'S trying conditions so affect the skin that at about this period it oft n breaks down. Skin "breakdown" is shown by the appearance of pimples, rashes, ulcers, or red patches. When you go out, does your skin itch or smart? Have you red blotches under the skin, which give your face patchy, unpleasant appearance?

Or perhaps you have some skin complaint not on the face or neck—hidden from sight, yet which causes you hours and hours of pain? Some patch of rash, or sores due to blood-poisoning, which hitherto have defied all your attempts at cure? If so, don't delay in applying Zam-Buk.

The herbal medicinal properties of Zam-Buk are so perfectly and uniquely blended that the skin can absorb them at once, and thus the cells are stimulated to healthy activity. Zam-Buk attacks and eradicates disease germs directly, and stands on guard, as it were, holding off all germs which, if admitted, would set up festering, until the healing process is complete. Rashes, tetter, ulcers, face blemishes, old sores, eczema patches, Spring eruptions—all these are removed by Zam-Buk. Mothers will find it the ideal balm for children's sores and babies' rashes. Herbal, healing, and health-producing, it is without equal as a family balm.

DOCTORS SAID "NO CURE."

Sores Defied all Remedies for 7 Years.

DON'T think because some eruptions or sores which afflict you have defied all remedies, that Zam-Buk cannot overcome them. Mrs. J. M. Mecormick, of Invermay Station, says:—"About seven years ago, my face broke out in rough red blotches, which burned and itched, and smarted in turn almost beyond endurance. I commenced to try every known remedy I could get for face and skin troubles. Some of them gave a little relief, some none; but no matter how much I used them, as soon as I went out, the trouble started all over again. I consulted doctors, and they told me there was absolutely no cure for me, but that I should have to wait until I outgrew the disease.

"Finally, my husband sent for a supply of Zam-Buk. We applied a test sample to a small patch of the disease. To our delight, the portion treated with Zam-Buk very quickly healed. We then obtained a proper supply, and began the Zam-Buk treatment.

I am now delighted to state that, after having used a few boxes, I am free from the old trouble, and completely cured. I will never be without Zam-Buk in the house as long as I live, and to all who are troubled with skin disease in any form I would say, 'waste no time in obtaining a supply of Zam-Buk.'

Since proving it in my own case, I have obtained a supply for an old lady who had an ulcer on her leg for thirty years. Three boxes of Zam-Buk were sufficient to heal the wound."

ZAM-BUK IS PARTICULARLY RECOMMENDED FOR

Cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, festering sore ulcers, scald, blood-poisoning, eczema, scabs, chapped hands, cold cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bad leg, diseased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price

IRISHMEN FEEL HURT BY PICTURE POST CARDS

Call on President Taft to Bony Cards Passage in U. S. Mails.

New York, March 12.—The Irish societies of New York and its vicinity, more than two hundred in number, have protested against the sale of offensive postal cards reflecting on the Celtic race. These cards bloom every year just before St. Patrick's Day. They are extravagant caricatures and in many cases indecent presentations that the Irish societies feel should not find facilities for distribution anywhere, much less in Uncle Sam's mails.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians which is directing the great parade in honour of the Irish national holiday on March 17 has made the indecent postal card issue its special objective consideration this year. Its County President Thomas Kelly has written to President Taft calling his attention to the scurrilous and abusive nature of the cards.

The Hibernians request that the postmasters throughout the country be instructed to throw out of the mails such cards or circulars as libel a creed, nationality or an individual. This was done last year. A section of the postal regulations makes this action obligatory.

Anthony Comstock will be invited to help the crusade this year because some of the anti-Irish picture cards, while not of the character that would invite his special activities, are issued by houses that publish salacious cards.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE NOW?

GIVES THIS RECIPE TO YOU

Recent hospital reports show that the dread disease, rheumatism, is steadily increasing throughout the country. All known means of relief are being suggested to save the great amount of suffering this winter, especially among those who are not in a position to pack up and visit the noted health resorts to be treated. Recent tests prove rheumatism not exactly a disease in itself, but a severe symptom of kidney trouble, a condition caused by clogged up pores of the eliminative tissues in the kidneys which fail to filter the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, permitting these substances to remain in the veins and decompose, usually settling about the joints and muscles, causing the intense pain, swelling and stiffness of rheumatism.

The following simple home treatment will cure rheumatism and is harmless and inexpensive, and so simple that anybody can mix it at home.

The ingredients are: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Go to any good prescription pharmacy and get these three harmless ingredients and mix them by shaking in a bottle, taking as a dose a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is nothing better in the world for backache, kidney and bladder trouble, too. Such symptoms are frequent and painful urination, soreness, weakness, general and nervous debility are caused by certain acids and poisonous waste matter, decayed tissue, etc., in the blood, which the kidneys will clear and purify after a few doses of this prescription.

PRESENTATION OF LIFE MEMBERSHIP

To Mrs. W. J. Scott at Annual Meeting of St. Luke's W. A. Yesterday Afternoon.

The annual meeting of St. Luke's branch of the W. A. was held yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large and the reports presented were exceedingly encouraging and manifested a year's active work. After the routine business a pleasing event took place. Mrs. W. J. Scott one of the most effective and zealous workers in all the organizations of the church, was presented with a life membership, her daughter, Miss Edith, on behalf of Mr. Scott and the other daughters, making the presentation. The Rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt being called upon, spoke of Mrs. Scott's most loyal and faithful services in all departments of the church, and complimented her family on the nice manner in which they spent their money to do honour to their beloved mother. Everyone present was deeply touched by this loving act of family devotion. After receiving the reports from the several office holders the election of officers was proceeded with. The result was as follows:

Hon. President—Mrs. E. A. Peck.
Hon. Vice-President, Mrs. J. Phillips.

On Sunday next the members of the W. A. will attend corporate communion at 8 a.m. Every member is expected to be present. The members of the Girls' Auxiliary are requested to attend.

The meeting closed with devotional exercises, conducted by the President, Mrs. S. Gaskins.

BOARD OF TRADE FOR HAVELOCK

Meeting for That Purpose—Horse Runs Away and Has Not Yet Been Found.

Havelock, March 11.—A public meeting of the citizens will be held in the town hall on Monday night of next week, 15th inst., when an effort will be made to organize a Board of Trade to be composed of our leading business men, professional men and citizens generally.

It is felt by those who have the interests of the village at heart, that such an organization would be of substantial advantage to our village in many ways and it is to be hoped that a large representation of our citizens will attend this meeting and help to further their own interests by seeking to advance the welfare and commercial possibilities of our fair little town. Make it a point to be present.

Colt Disappears

Dr. Holdcroft's horse ran away on Sunday morning about 4 o'clock, some twelve miles north of town, throwing the doctor out and bruising him severely. The runaway was the result of the cutter slewing on a piece of sidling road and upsetting. The Doctor was thrown against a stonepile and lost his grasp of the reins. The cutter was found a few miles nearer town practically uninjured, but the shafts were missing and apparently are still with the horse. Up to the present no trace of the animal has been discovered. It is a valuable young black mare with white face and white feet. Needless to say any information as to its whereabouts will be gladly received by the doctor.

Schoolboy's Prank

Some one, presumably a pupil, stuck a nail into the lock of Principal Nelson's room in the school on Tuesday noon, and as a result the door could not be opened for some hours, giving the scholars in that room a holiday for the afternoon.

MR. B. LASTAR GOES BACK TO SHOP-KEEPING

The store will be restocked with new and seasonable goods, and extraordinary bargains are promised Mr. Lastar states that he has enjoyed a good rest from business and goes back into harness again determined to put lots of "go" into it. His old customers will be glad to welcome him back again.

Presentation Of Prizes To Salvation Army Scholars

Enjoyable Evening Spent Last Night —Tea Served by the Ladies— Orchestra's Special Programme —One Hundred and Twenty Books to Pupils Who Merited Them.

ENJOYABLE CONCERT.

The annual presentation of prizes to the scholars of the Salvation Army Sunday School was held last night, and not only was a fine success, but was also an inspiration to the young people to continue their interest in the work, and to attend regularly throughout the year. There was a large attendance, a good programme, and everything that goes to make a successful evening.

The ladies of the Army served tea from five to eight o'clock, and were kept busy all the time. The tables were daintily decorated and were laden with good things. For half an hour before the concert began the Army orchestra entertained those who had visited the dining hall with a splendid impromptu programme of selected music. This newly organized addition to the Army's musical life is making rapid strides, and can now give a good account of itself.

The following programme was presented:—

Opening song: "Around the Throne."
Prayer: Sergeant-Major Braund.
Song by children: "We'll be the Army bye-and bye."
Recitation: "W[illegible]ation."
Sydney Staunton.
Duet: Messrs. W[illegible]en and Harrison.
Recitation: "Naming Baby." Aileen Braund.
Selection by the youngsters.
Dialogue: "Mother Hen." 10 little girls.
Recitation by Miss Laura Thomas.
Duet: "We have no home." Misses Payton and Card.
Recitation: "The Gunner and the Bird." Gerald Greene.
Selection by the Band.
Recitation: "The All Round Man." Jack Dawson.
Solo: "Tommy." Walter Elliott.
Recitation: "Try Smiling." George Walton.
Dialogue: Lois Braund and Alice Cunningham.
Violin Solo: Herbert Leader.
Recitation: Miss May Taylor.
Solo: "It's not the house that makes the home." Emmie McGirl.
Recitation: "Somebody's Mother." Harry Parnell.
Selection by the orchestra.
Recitation: Vincent Miller.
Song: "The Yellow, Red and Blue." The Teachers.

The presentation of prizes greatly pleased the little ones. One hundred and twenty out of a class of two hundred received prizes. Sergeant-Major Braund was all that could be desired in making the presentations of the prizes. He is Superintendent of the Sunday School and had a large pile of books for the scholars who attended most regularly during the past year.

RECEIVING HELP FOR NEW ADDITION

Capt. Walker of Salvation Army is in the City in Connection With This Work.

Captain Walker of the Salvation Army, who is in the city for a time for the purpose of soliciting assistance to cover the cost of the proposed addition to the barracks reports that in most cases, where he has yet asked for subscriptions the assistance has been very encouraging. There is still an amount to be secured but Mr. Walker believes that he will soon have the amount required.

"The people of Peterborough recognize the fact that the Salvation Army's work in their city is most praiseworthy and deserving of assistance in order to help it increase its present efforts." Everybody looked up to the Army for what it was doing and its past successes have been lauded by practically all those whom Captain Walker has visited. He will remain in the city several weeks yet continuing his solicitations.

"Who Was That Man?" Asked Mr. Blackstock Very Dramatic Moment

Examiner Special.

Hamilton, March 11.—The closing part of the cross-examination of Florence Kenrade, just before the girl collapsed was very dramatic. Mr. Blackstock suddenly attempted to get from the girl some information as to the identity of the murderer.

"Who was that man?" deliberately asked Mr. Blackstock.

"I don't know," Florence Kinrade murmured.

"You never saw that man before? You'd know him if you saw him again?"

"I couldn't say as to that," the girl sobbed. When restoratives were administered Blackstock continued.

"Did you ever see that man before?"

"No."

"Never?"

"No."

"You never saw that man before?"

"Never."

"You never saw that man before? You have no idea who he is? Do you understand the solemnity of that question? Do you understand the obligation that is upon you to tell the whole truth? You never saw that man before?"

"No," wailed the girl, in a whisper.

"You're perfectly sure you have no idea who he is?"

"Yes."

"You are sure you can give us no light on that?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, I won't trouble you any more to-night."

Two Sent Up For Trial And The Other Was Allowed To Go

Evidence taken Yesterday Afternoon in the Preliminary Hearing of Firemen Charged With Assault—Hawes Dismissed.

BAIL WAS RE-GRANTED

George Hawes was allowed to go, but Bert Craig and Harry Chapman were committed for trial at the adjourned preliminary hearing at the police court yesterday afternoon. Bail of $1,000, in two sureties of $500 each, was granted Craig and Chapman was allowed out on bail of $500 in two sureties of $250.

Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution, Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Hawes ,and Mr. F. D. Kerr for Craig and Chapman, the case re-opening at 3 o'clock.

Other Evidence.

Clifford Howard ,son of Chief Howard was called. About twenty-five minutes past seven Hawes came in. He told Grange to report him late. Hawes used considerable abusive language towards Grange. Craig told Grange that he had better mark him five minutes late, too. The assistant chief had not finished when Craig hit him with his fist. They fell on the floor and while down Craig punched and kicked Grange several times. Hawes, during the first part of the fracas, stood in the doorway.

There were present in the room, Grange, Craig, a visitor, Hetherington and the witness. When Hetherington went to interfere, Chapman shoved him out.

To Mr. Gordon witness said that he did not know whether Hawes stood in the doorway or went out. But he saw the first blow struck, but took no part whatever in the struggle.

Another young man stated that he was at the hall about fifteen minutes before the row commenced. His evidence was practically the same as given by the previous witness.

Fireman Alf. Brownlee was called in reference to a document made out in December, protesting against the appointment of Mr. Grange as assistant chief. He admitted writing it. Hawes took it to Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee. He was in the office on February 27th. He saw Hawes leave the room just as Craig and Chapman came in.

Mr. Gordon submitted that there was no evidence to show that Hawes was a party or implicated in the offence.

Mr. Kerr said that all the evidence Chapman had taken any part was that told by Fireman Grange. He said that he received a blow from Chapman on entering the door, but all the other Crown witnesses did not see him do anything.

Crown Attorney Wood thought that Chapman should be sent up for trial. He was equally as guilty inasmuch as he did not try to prevent the row.

His Worship thought that it had been a very serious assault. There was no evidence connecting Hawes with it, but he committed both Craig and Chapman for trial.

JAS. BAUM WILL NOT SPEAK YET

Says Things Florence Kinrade Told Him Might Point to Something.

Portsmouth, Va., March 11.—James Baum, the actor-mechanic who was on very intimate terms with Miss Florence Kinrade while she was at the Orpheum Theatre here, was seen at Scott's undertaking rooms this morning, where he is working as an assistant at present. He inquired if there was any word of the inquest at Hamilton last night.

"If Miss Kinrade is concealing anything I don't believe that it is for the purpose of shielding any man," he said.

"Then why should she conceal anything?" Baum was asked.

"She might be shielding herself."

"Was she ever bothered by anyone when she was down here?"

No Need to Speak

"I'm not going to say anything about that. If her family know about it there is no need for me to speak. If she has not told anything, and she should be arrested or charged with the thing at Hamilton, I would speak out, and say what I know. I don't really know anything for sure, but there were some things she told me and a number of little things that I know about that might, perhaps, point to something."

"Would whatever this is be concerned with her stay in Portsmouth?"

"Yes."

"Not with her visit to Richmond or Virginia Beach?"

"No."

"Do you think it is possible that she might be shielding herself in regard to some serious matter?"

"I could not say."

Some Little Things

"But you said before that she was as good a girl as God ever made?"

"Yes, I know; but there are just these little things that I know about."

"Had the sending of the box of flowers to Miss Kinrade anything to do with what you are thinking about?"

"Yes, that was one of the things."

"But Mrs. Butler, the wife of the manager of the theatre, who lived at the same hotel, states that the card inside the box said that the flowers were from an old college friend?"

"I didn't know that; I used to know the name of the man who sent them, but I can't remember it now."

MORE ABOUT THE LEVEL CROSSINGS

Hon. G. P. Graham Outlines Government's Policy.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF B. C.

Serious Charge of Negligence Made Against Him in the Senate—Hon. Mr. Foster Attacks Civil Service Salary Schedule — Railways to Protect All Crossings In Future—To Contribute $200,000.

Ottawa, March 12.—Mr. Graham's resolution to contribute $200,000 a year for five years to the expense of eliminating the deadly level crossings of Canada was before the House yesterday afternoon. The board of commissioners is empowered to fix the amount the Dominion shall pay up to 20 per cent. of the cost of elimination and not exceeding $5,000, each crossing not to exceed four tracks, and where there are five or more tracks it shall be regarded as two crossings; and not more than three crossings in one municipality in one year shall be contributed to. There is no provision as to the percentage the municipalities must pay.

The Minister of Railways will also bring in a bill to amend the Railway Act, and in addition to giving the board power to assess the federal power for the elimination of grade crossings.

Mr. Graham declared that it was not necessary for him to argue that a situation requiring a remedy existed. There were conditions where all the expense should be borne by the railways and the municipalities and the board would be left free to deal with those conditions. Crossings to be constructed in the future shall be protected at the expense of the railway alone. When highways are constructed after the railway the board shall have the authority to fix the amount. Municipality is defined as city, town, incorporated village, township or parish.

Mr. Borden was inclined to think that a contribution of $1,000,000 would not go very far. Was it proposed that the grant should be made perpetual? Or beyond the next five years?

"I'll leave that to the Government," said Mr. Graham.

The resolution passed and the bill was read a third time.

Hon. George E. Foster, in a two hours' speech in the House last night, made a slashing attack on the system of re-classifying the outside civil servants under the act of last session, which brought them into the inside service. In the three Departments of Public Works, Agriculture and Interior, there had been 146 new appointments at a combined salary of $104,237, while there had been 508 increases of salary aggregating $71,890.

Mr. Borden declared that the action of the three Ministers was a "deliberate fraud" on the Civil Service Act in that these Ministers had assumed the functions of the Civil Service Commissioners.

That the wheels of justice in British Columbia are clogged through indisposition, "engagement at the club" and other delinquencies of Chief Justice Hunter, was the substance of charges made in the Senate yesterday by Senator Bostock, in moving for papers.

On one occasion, the judge not appearing, eight jurymen had resolved themselves into a board of arbitration, with the consent of both parties. Another time the chief justice began the hearing of a case and forgot to come back.

No passengers were among the injured. An investigation showed that a switch had been thrown and spiked while the signal light had been turned so as to show white.

Charged With Bigamy.

Cobourg, March 12.—A. E. Lewis, a resident of Campbellford, was arrested here on Wednesday on a charge of bigamy and was taken back to the northern town for preliminary trial. W. F. Kerr, crown attorney, will prosecute, and Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., will defend the prisoner.

NOTHING OF IMPORT WAS DISCOVERED

Several Witnesses Examined at Kinrade Inquest.

GIRL FROTHED AT MOUTH

Witness Says Florence Kinrade Showed Extreme Signs of Excitement When She Came to Give Alarm—Sisters Were Friendly and There Never Were Revolvers In the House—Concludes To-night.

Hamilton, March 12.—Suggestions as to possible mental disorders on the part of Miss Florence Kinrade were the only new features in the resumed inquest, which was adjourned at 12.40 this morning, to be resumed at 3.30 in the afternoon. It is hoped to conclude the enquiry to-night.

When Coroner Anderson called the court to order at 8.15, the police court room was filled to overflowing. Among occupants of seats were to be noted many of the foremost medical men of Hamilton, indicating that the case has aroused keen interest as a pathological study.

Mrs. Kinrade's name was first called. She entered on the arm of a nurse, walking very unsteadily and exhibiting agitation. Her features were drawn and her face very pale. Mr. Blackstock, after courteously suggesting that she sit down, commented on her apparent weakness and assured her of every consideration.

The examining lawyer took her over the preliminary part of her testimony regarding the family and had her recount the episodes of the visits of strange characters to the house before the murder. She also told of Florence's trip to Virginia. The girls were the best of friends, and the utmost amity and affection existed among the members of the family.

Mr. Blackstock asked if Mr. Kinrade had any brother, and witness replied that there were several.

"Was there ever any trouble?"

"There was some trouble over the father's estate," she said. Hiram Kinrade, a brother, a carpenter in Hamilton, had begun a law suit about five years ago. They were not now on speaking terms.

"Was there anything the matter with this brother, was he afflicted with any mental weakness?" asked the examiner.

"Not that I know of."

"He wasn't subject to any fits?"

"Not that I recollect," said Mrs. Kinrade, who remarked that the brother was all right, except when under the influence of liquor.

"Was there ever anything in the manner of your daughter that made you apprehensive of any kind of mental trouble?" "No."

"She always seemed a person of strong mind and character?" "Yes."

Mr. Blackstock, in conclusion, asked her if there was anything she wished to say, as he didn't want her to feel that she was being misrepresented.

"No, I am not keeping anything back," she assured earnestly.

"Then your representation to us is that you are not able to give us any information as to who the guilty party was?"

"Very well, that will do."

Gertrude, the youngest member of the Kinrade family, 16 years of age, was next examined. She had been at school at the time of the tragedy.

Ethel, she said, did not like the idea of her sister Florence singing in a theatre. Florence had never told her that when she was on the stage she was accustomed to shooting with a pistol.

"Did you sister bring home a revolver from the south?" enquired Mr. Blackstock.

"I don't think so," was the answer.

Neither her brothers nor any member of the family were familiar with a revolver.

Ernest Kinrade, the married brother, and the oldest member of the family, was the next witness. There had not been any business relations of importance between him and his father for some time. He could not suggest any motive for the crime, or give a suggestion as to the person who might have committed it, or of any one who had any malice towards the murdered girl. So far as he knew, there was no knowledge in the family as to who committed the crime. He had never known his family to keep a revolver.

Mrs. Hickey was next called. She said her house on Herkimer street was opposite the Kinrade home. She didn't hear shots fired or see anyone go in or out of the house that afternoon. She heard a scream and someone calling her name. She started downstairs and saw Florence at the foot of the stairs, who screamed "Ethel is shot six times," and fell forward. She was very much excited.

"Did you notice anything about her mouth," asked Mr. Blackstock.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Hickey readily, "the saliva about her mouth was very thick. It seemed to be almost like a froth."

It was about four o'clock when Florence came flying to her. Florence did not afterwards say anything more to her about the affair. When Mrs. Kinrade arrived at her house, both she and Florence gave every demonstration of acute anguish.

Mrs. Akers, D. M. Brown, the grocer at the corner, were also called.

Dr. McNichol was then called. Mr. Blackstock resumed examination. He lived one block south of Kinrade's house. He went at once to the Kinrade home on getting a 'phone call. Both front and rear doors were open. Ethel was lying in the dining-room with her head southwest by west. There were signs of blood on the hair. He didn't notice any on the floor until the body was moved. He then saw a pool of blood. He noticed several bullet holes, three near the left breast, as though directed at the heart. They were evident from the outside.

The clothing was burned to the skin, showing that the weapon had been held close to the body. One bullet had entered the left side of the mouth as it lodged in the upper jaw, and another bullet had entered directly in the jaw at right angles. Another was in the left cheek. There were three bullet holes in the chest and three in the face. He discovered another later on. Florence wasn't present at this time.

Several people asked him to see Florence at Mrs. Hickey's. He had nothing but an impression as to how long the girl had been dead. No medical man could tell within an hour. She might have been dead fifteen minutes to an hour. He thought the hands very cool, however.

Asked whether there was any disorder, he said the dining-room table was pushed to the south side. A fur muff was lying on the floor near a window. There was nothing to indicate a fight.

Florence had described the man as of medium height, with a slouch hat and of rather lightish complexion.

Detective Bleakley told of having responded to a call which came about 4 p.m. He had noticed a small pool of blood, about six or seven inches long and a few inches wide. There was a chair near the body.

"Supposing she had been sitting in a chair when shot and had fallen forward, could her body have fallen in that way?" was asked.

"Her body would fall in that way."

The pool of blood was a few inches from the head. In it he found a bullet and a portion of a tooth. On Saturday, March 6, he found the root of a tooth where the stain had been.

"If this is correct, then the position of the body must have been changed by some one?"

"Yes; it must have been."

Mr. Kinrade, he said, came in about twenty minutes later. He said, "I just expected something like this would happen," said witness, who said that Kinrade passed into the room where Ethel was lying, her head covered with a cloth. He raised it and stooped down, he said, "So it's Ethel," and kissed her.

Blakeley, on his arrival, had been told a tramp had done the deed. He accordingly searched the house from cellar to garret, but found no trace of him, nor of revolver cartridges.

"Did you see any other bullets?"

"I found another one since, on March 6. It was imbedded in the floor below where the pool of blood was. It had passed down through the head."

He then told the two versions of the story Florence had given him. The first was that she and Ethel were both upstairs, and the second was that she was downstairs and Ethel up in her room when the intruder entered.

The detective examined the yard and had found that the foot tracks from the house to fence were made by dragging both feet. She could easily have escaped over the fence, because there was a large scantling running along it, and a stand by means of which she could have climbed over.

Another Election In Manitoba.

Winnipeg, March 12.—Commenting on the departure of Premier Roblin Wednesday night for Ottawa, where he goes in response to a request of the Ottawa Government, in regard to the proposed boundary extension. The Free Press (Liberal) says that the Manitoba Government will undoubtedly refuse the terms offered and that a special session of the Legislature will be called for that purpose immediately, following which—that is to say, in the early summer—the issue will be made the pretext for an appeal to the electorate.

Servia Peaceful.

Berlin, March 12.—The latest Servian note, in which that country sets forth that she does not desire to provoke war with Austria-Hungary, but maintains that the question of the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina should be regarded by the powers, was delivered at the Foreign Office here yesterday afternoon.

The impression created by Servia's renunciation of territorial compensation is favorable and is regarded officially as a peaceful sign.

Many people are at sea on the question of painting. And it's small wonder—there are so many different painting materials to confuse the man-who-wants-to-paint-his-house that he scarcely knows how to avoid getting one of the numerous poor materials on the market.

RUNNING ATHLETICS HOCKEY

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE'S CLEVER WIN OVER THE O. H. A. JUNIORS WERE IN FRONT 5 GOALS TO 2

It is to be feared that the minds of thepupils of the Collegiate Institute were on other things than Virgil or problems in Euclid to-day and if such was the case the teachers no doubt knew just how it is. For didn't the hockey team wearing the garnet and gray of the school win a decisive victory over the Peterborough junior O. H. A. team at Brock street rink by a score of 5 goals to 2. The half-time score was 3-2 in favour of the Collegiate. It was no light task, the pulling off of such a win and the boys from Central Park are deserving of all kinds of credit upon their victory. To trim the team that represented Peterborough in the junior O. H. A. series and which defeated Whitby the group winners shows that the students are class all the way from goal right through. True the young Petes had not been together since the district games were played in January and were not perhaps in as good shape for the game as they would have been at that time, but in spite of that fact the victory of the schol was earned and well deserved.

It was about as nice a little exhibition of hockey as you would care to watch and was fast and exciting all the way. Both sides worked their heads off and it was rush and counter rush with both lines coming back like demons when they lost the rubber and the defence men relieving with spectacular rushes whenever their goal was in danger. At no time was there a let up in the furious going and the crowd found the battle between the two splendid little teams always exciting and interesting. The checking was close and hard, but the game was never at any stage rough, considering the pace at which both teams travelled. The ice was in splendid condition, suiting the players to a nicety.

The school team won the game because they kept their positions better, played better combination and checked back faster than the O. H. A. team. Outside of those points there was little or nothing to choose between the two teams. Both were fast and clever stickhandlers, gritty and determined, but it was system against individualism, and the team work won out. Then again the school stayed on the ice better.

That there is plenty of junior O. H. A. material in the city was the unanimous decision of the fans as they watched that Collegiate Institute seven at work. Fast and heady they played pretty combination and never sacrificed the team's chances of success by hugging the puck when a pass was needed. The students, too, made good use of their opportunities and shot hard and accurately, while the O. H. A. seven were off in their marksmanship and threw chances away by wild shooting.

It would be hard to pick the stars of the Collegiate team as all seven played uniformly good games. Meldrum, in goal, took care of nearly everything that came near him in finished manner, while out in front of him Dennison and Wallis were a splendid defence. Both checked hard and effectively, while their rushes were well timed and always relieved the pressure when danger loomed up. With the Collegiate line coming back so fast, and Wallis and Dennison checking so well the Petes had troubles of their own in attempting to move goal wards.

Ken Crane, at rover, played his usual brilliant, effective game. He was always in the thick of the play carrying the puck nicely and feeding his wings while his checking back could not have been improved upon. Geale was reliable and decidedly useful in centre, never letting up for a moment while Fortye and Conroy, on the wings, were there at all times. Both took the passes from centre in great fashion and got away from many telling runs down the side while their shooting helped some.

As in the case of the Collegiate so it was with the losers that there was no one who was particularly brilliant over his team mates. In fact there wasn't a weak man on either lineup. Len Giroux pulled off some splendid saves in the nets, although he had hard luck with a couple of long ones that got away from him. Wade checked splendidly and his rushes, especially in the second half, were always dangerous. Pentland played his usual steady hard checking game at cover. Short was particularly good on the forward line, playing a grand game at left wing. He got away fast, handled the puck nicely and was conspicuous at all times. Cyril Giroux was good as usual, and did a whole lot of hard work as did Coughlin, at rover, the latter's stickhandling showing splendid promise. Gus Rose was effective and speedy over on the heart side of the rink.

The Petes got the first goal, but the ultimate winners were not long in tying up matters and then forging ahead and once out in front they were never headed. They led at the half by 3-2, and gathered in two more in the second period, while the Petes failed to find the nets at all.

The teams were as follows:

Referee, F. D. Craig.

The play was close and fast from the start with both teams fighting hard for victory. Both goals were in danger frequently, but the defences were cool and reliable and the checking back on both sides was so persistent that to score was a very difficult matter. It was nip and tuck all the way with rush following rush and neither team having much advantage over the other. It was only after eleven minutes of hard going that Giroux followed in on a long lift and slamming one past Meldrum scored the first goal for the Juniors.

O. H. A. Juniors 1; Collegiate 0.

Nothing daunted, however, the Collegiate came back with a rush and forced matters so hard that in three minutes they tied the score. A pretty combined rush was pulled off, and although Giroux headed off the shot, the rubber came out to Geale, who drove on through a tangle of legs and sticks into the nets.

Collegiate 1; O. H. A. Juniors 1.

With the score tied both teams worked if possible harder than ever and some of the fastest playing of the night was witnessed in the next few minutes. The Juniors were working like demons, but the back checking of the Students, coupled with good defence work and aided by poor shooting on the part of the losers, prevented scores. Several times they worked well in, only to shoot wild or have Meldrum pick off the shots. Meanwhile the School were countering with rushes that were equally dangerous, and it was the Students that finally broke the tie, Dennison doing the trick in eight minutes after a combined rush.

Collegiate 2; O. H. A. Juniors 1.

This looked good from the School standpoint and the situation was better a minute afterwards, when Wallis broke up a rush, and carrying the rubber down, skated around the Junior's defence and beat Giroux with a shot from close in.

Collegiate 3; O. H. A. Juniors 1.

The Juniors came back with a rush and forced matters until half time. Short and Coughlin rushed together prettily and shot, but the heave on goal was blocked. The puck shifted back to Pentland, however, and the Junior cover point taking chances on a long shot landed the rubber in the nets, and the Juniors were but one goal behind, looking like anybody's game at the stage—half time.

The Juniors started the second half two men short, Giroux and Pentland, who were ruled off just before half time, having failed to complete their sentence. The Petes, however, were enabled to prevent a score until their men were back and then they commenced a desperate effort to pull down the lead. They rushed repeatedly, but the Collegiate defence was too strong, while the Students' line came back in grand fashion and all the efforts of the Juniors were thrown away. For twenty-two minutes the tide of battle raged backward and forwards with neither side having anything on the other. It was not until Crane slammed one behind Giroux after a combination rush that either team scored.

Collegiate 4; O. H. A. Juniors 2.

With eight minutes to play the Juniors' chance of scoring three goals did not look bright, and although they did not let up any they found it impossible to score. The Collegiate finished strong and cinched the game when Fortye beat Giroux from well out with a nice shot in six minutes.

Collegiate 5; O. H. A. Juniors 2.

STRATHCONAS AND ST. ANDREWS PLAY TO-NIGHT AT BROCK STREET

The Strathconas and St. Andrew's come together to-night in a game that should prove decidedly interesting. Both teams expect to win although the chances favour the Church Leaguers, who are in better shape than the Strathconas. The latter, however, are certain that they can make it interesting for the aggregation representing St. Andrew's and it should be a fine game. It will serve to show the relative merits of the two leagues and will be well worth seeing. Harry Morgan will referee and the game will start sharp at 8 o'clock.

The St. Andrew's team will be picked from the following: Patterson, Glover, Stanton, Flanagan, Rae Brothers, Dormer and Currie, while the Straths' line-up will be selected from this list: Wilson, Smith, Dobson, Seymour, Ray, Weatherstone, Hall, and Short.

SPECIAL NEW YORK ACCOUNT OF THE PROGRESS OF SIX-DAY RACE

New York, March 11.—The score for the 71st hour is as follows:

	Miles	Laps
Cibot-Orphee	410	2
Davis-Metkus	396	1
Dineen-Prouty	377	6
Feegan-Curtis	375	8
Loesbein-Klubertanz	369	2
Corey-Hegelman	355	9
Shelton-Frazer	342	2
Guignard-Rovere	327	3
Navez-Kellar	310	4
Hartley-Pallanti	298	8
Semaran-uackenbush	261	2

All kinds of ginger was pumped into the six-day whirligig at the big Garden last night when a six and ten mile relay race was injected into the grind.

The plodders were doing their best and getting a hand here and there, for grit, even if it doesn't glisten nor glitter, will always pull the appreciative plaudit, but the enthusiasm broke loose from the well-filled boxes and upper tiers when Bob Hallen and Jack Sapifor, of England, lined up on the pistol. They were to go six miles with Jim Curran, of Scotland, as Sapiford's relief. Hallen is a New York lad, and a pretty piece of athletic architecture as one would want to look at. And as a runner he was as graceful as a thoroughbred and swift withal.

Alongside of him, or rather at his heels, Sapiford looked like a coal barge lumbering in a heavy sea. The delegate from England might as well have been anchored and trying to pull the hook out of the mud. Hallen lapped him with ridiculous ease. When the American was two laps to the good Sapiford took a tumble to himself and quit. Then the Scot came on. Curran was an improvement. He stuck to the graceful Hallen round and round, and occasionally passed him, but he could not shake off the machine-like Yankee.

A couple of laps preceding the finish the Scot went out in a desperate effort to make up the difference and gained about thirty yards, but Hallen was strong and fresh and crossed the tape an easy winner. The time was 34 minutes and 32 seconds.

Hartley, the diminutive Canadian, has put up a game exhibition since the time the race began. He has been unable to stay up with the leaders, apparently his age being unable to cope with their vigour. He has been changed three times with partners Higgins having dropped out in the early stages. Hartley is one of those who catch the crowd's eye. He has been doggedly hanging on during the last hours of yesterday and will hardly be in the money at the close of the race.

Frenchmen Keep the Lead.

It looks as if the French team, Cibot and Orphee, had a cinch on the big six-day race. They are old-timers at the six-day grind and have the others faded in the headwork of a struggle of the kind. And headwork has a lot to do with it. It isn't altogether a case of picking up and putting down their feet. Most of the men are in pretty fair shape so far, although some of them don't look it. Eleven teams are still sticking it out—that is, eleven and a half. The half is Jules Edelson. They tried to chase Edelson from the track, as he has such a chance as a German at the head of an Irish orchestra, but Edelson wouldnt' be chased. He is still sticking, and if he doesn't do anything else he furnishes the clown to the show.

Once more the necks rubbered and the enthusiasm broke loose when Svansberg butted into the play. Svansberg was to run a ten-mile relay against Ettere Ferri and Percy Smallwood. The men who furnished the relays in the special events were recruited from the teams which had dropped out of the six-day grind.

Svansberg is a Swede who had just landed in this country with Marathon aspirations. It was his first appearance here, and as Martin Sheridan had stood sponsor for him he got a big hand. Sheridan says the Swede is one of the best Marathon runners in the world, and when it comes to judging a track athlete Martin is there with the dope. And, the Swede made good. He disposed of Ferri in the first five miles of the race, easily beating him four laps in 28 minutes 18 2-5 seconds.

Then Smallwood took up the chase. The Welshman did a bit better. He made up some of the distance Svansberg had opened up between himself and Svansberg, but was beaten by two and three-quarter laps in the fast time of 58 minutes flat.

HARTLEY IN RACE STILL

Struggling Along in Last Place in Six-Day Grind Without a Partner.

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

New York, March 12.—With Cibot and Orphee twenty miles ahead of their nearest competitors, ten and a half teams of plodders were represented in the six-day race to-day. David Hartley, who had made 346.4 miles at 8 a.m., was struggling along in last place without a partner, waiting for some one to drop out and give him a place.

DREW COLOUR LINE ON JACK JOHNSON

Six Vancouver Hotels Had No Room for World's Champion.

Vancouver, B C., March 12.—Vancouver hotel proprietors drew the colour line strictly when Johnson attempted to get accommodations. Coming from the steamer, Johnson, with his white wife and friends, went to the St. Francis Hotel. Johnson was politely told that the hotel was filled. The pugilist took the "turndown" with good grace the first time, but when it was repeated in five other hotels, especially in cheaper houses, he became angry. Johnson said little, however, and late in the evening he obtained accommodation in the Dominion Hotel. Johnson spent part of the night at the home of George Paris, a boxing instructor.

BANKERS LOST ONE OUT OF THREE

Were Beaten One Game Last Night by the Lock Works.

The Lock Works surprised the bowling talent last night in their league game with the bankers at the P. B. C. alleys, by taking the last game of the three from the men of money. The latter were away up on the first two games, but fell down badly in the last and the Lock Works trio captured the game by 14 pins.

The score follows:

PETES LOST GAME AT LAKEFIELD

The Petes Hockey team travelled to Lakefield last night with a bunch of their supporters to play the return game with the Shamrocks of that town. The game war started about half-past seven and was a disastrous one for the Petes, who were beaten by a score of 1 to 6, making the total for the series 15 to 11. The Lakefield line-up was considerably changed and strengthened. The boys got home about 11 o'clock. The line-up was as follows:

Referee—W. O'Brien.

BOWLING

Josh Craig has been doing some great stunts at the P. B. C. alleys this wek. He started out with the idea that he might win the box of cigars if he practised hard enough and long enough. He might at that because yesterday he rolled 212 and 206. If Josh doesn't speak to you on the street now the cause will be understood.

• • • •

It is likely that a challenge will be issued by local bowlers for a match with the best five-man team that can be picked from the Toronto ten pin fans. It is felt that the Peterborough boys have improved to such an extent that they are justified in sending out the defi. Besides the many 200 scores made previously there were several more added last night by:

Fred Craig—212, 206.
Norman Perry—216.
Gene Hurtubise—204.
G. Ferguson—206.

HOCKEY

The Knockers challenge the P. C. I. to a game of hockey.

• • • •

The Examiner printers made their first appearance of the season last night, when they took the famous Cressman team and succeeded in administering a decisive trimming to the drygoods men. There was nothing to the contest but the ink spreaders, who won by 6-4, and should have gathered in the game with a larger majority had not the luck been with the Counter Hoppers. Every man on the winning team was a star, but Maynard, in goal, was the right shining light of the collection. He stoped many shots and cleared in startling fashion. George Barrie refereed and the teams were as follows:

THE DEMAND OF COMMISSIONERS

Mr. McWilliams Writes Another Letter in Regard to the Matter.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In the Review of the 9th inst. there is reported a conversation with Mr. W. H Moore, chairman of the City Trust Commission, in which Mr. Moore takes me to task for stating in my letter of the 6th inst. that the Commissioners had consented to the proposition of the City Council to apply a part of the Citys' assets on the deficit in last year's current account. Mr. Moore states that the Commissioners had not consented to the proposition, nor taken any action whatever on the proposal. I am most willing to withdraw this part of my letter and shall be delighted to express my appreciation of the Commissioners' action if they stick to that course.

My information as to their action in the matter was derived from the newspaper reports of the representations made by the Finance Committee through their Chairman to the Committee of the whole Council, these reports being unanimous and being confirmed by individual members of the Council. The reports upon this point were as follows:

The Review.—The Finance Committee had a joint meeting yesterday afternoon with the City Trust Commission and the latter decided to reduce their request on the City for 1909 by $8,500.

The Examiner.—Alderman Morrow, Chairman of the Finance Committee, stated that the Committee had been successful in inducing the Commissioners to reduce their demand by $8,500.

The Times. — Alderman Morrow, Chairman of the Finance Committee, notified the aldermen that his Committee had met the City Trust Commissioners and induced that body to reduce their demand upon the city by $8,500.

The question is one of fact, which must be settled between Alderman Morrow and Mr. Moore, and of which I have, of course, no personal knowledge. To such fault as is involved in assuming that the representations of the Finance Committee to the Council were true in fact, I plead guilty. I trust that the little day light which I have endeavoured to let in on this transaction will be sufficient to make impossible any such questionable dealing with the City assets.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

Sir William Davenant was born at Oxford in 1605, the same year as Sir Thomas Browne, Waller, and Gauden. Of Waller we have already treated. Davenant was the son of an inkeeper at Oxford and was made poet laureate on the death of Ben Jonson. He was an ardent Royalist, and on this account suffered exile and confinement in the Tower. It is believed that Milton was instrumental in obtaining his release, and that when the Restoration placed a different complexion on their fortunes, Davenant acted the part of a good friend to his whilom benefactor and kept him from being persecuted by the Royalists. So far as can be seen, his claim to the Laureateship was founded on a lengthy poem entitled Gondibert. At any rate, it is with this monument of prolixity that his name is chiefly associated. His main occupation was the management of a theatre in London in which he doubtless received a helping hand from Shakespeare, who was his godfather. He died in 1668. Leigh Hunt seems to have thought well of him, for he has designated him as "the restorer of the stage in his time and the last of the deep-working poetical intellects of the age that followed that of Elizabeth."

Davenant certainly deserves the credit of having been the earliest person to discover the advantage of providing beautiful settings for plays. Under him, scenery and stage accessories were brought to a great degree of artistic beauty and finish.

Eikon Basilike

John Gauden, who was born at Mayfield in Essex, was made by Charles II. Bishop of Exeter, and was subsequently translated to the Bishopric of Worcester. His claim to notice arises from the fact that he was the real author of a work, which probably more than any other raised Charles I. to the status of a martyr in the minds of a large portion of the people of England. This work was none other than the famous Eikon Basilike (The Royal Image). The work was a wonderful composition. At the time, it was supposed to have been written by the King himself, as it was published by the King's bookseller, Richard Royston. It is not known whether any copies were in circulation before the King perished on the scafford, but they certainly were very shortly afterwards, and created a furore throughout the country. M. Guizot, the historian, thus characterizes the Eikon Basilike. "The manuscript had probably been perused; perhaps even corrected by Charles himself during his residence on the Isle of Wight. In any case it was the real expression and true portraiture of his position, character and mind as they had been formed by misfortune. It is remarkable for an elevation of thought which is at once natural and strained, a constant mingling of blind royal pride and sincere Christian humility; heart impulses struggling against habits of obstinate self-consciousness; true piety in the midst of misguided conduct; invincible though somewhat inert devotion to his faith, his honour, and his rank; and as all these sentiments are expressed in monotonous language, which, though often emphatic, is always grave tranquil and even unctuous with serenity and sadness it is not surprising that such a work should have profoundly affected all royalist hearts, and easily persuaded them that it was the King himself who addressed them." Lord Macaulay says of it, "the appearance of a work professedly by his own hand (the King's) in which he is represented in the constant exercise of prayer, asserting the integrity of his motives before the great Searcher of Hearts, and urging a fervent appeal from the injustice and cruelty of man to the justice and clemency of God—was eminently calculated to agitate the public mind in his favour and to make every tongue vibrate in execration of his enemies." Nearly 50,000 copies of the book were sold in England, and the Puritans alarmed at the clamour caused by its appearance prevailed on Milton to write an answer to it. Milton accepted the task, and the result was the appearance of the famous Eikonoklastes (The Image-breaker), in which the poet thundered mightily but not altogether successfully against the hostile production.

Sir Thomas Browne

Sir Thomas Browne, whom some writers on English Literature have unaccountably omitted from the category of notable authors, was not the least of the literary worthies of the epoch in which he lived. Southey said of him that were his library confined to a dozen English authors, Browne should be one of them. DeQuincey describes Donne, Chillingworth, Jeremy Taylor, Milton, South and Sir Thomas Browne as "a pleiad or constellation of seven golden stars, such as in their class no literature can match." Sir Thomas Browne was the son of a London merchant. His father died leaving him a fortune of £6,000, out of a great part of which Dr. Johnson says: "He was defrauded by one of his guardians, according to the common fate of orphans." He was educated at Winchester and Oxford, and after practising physic for a time he set out on a long tour through Italy, France, and Holland, in the course of which peregrination he studied for a time at Padua. In 1636 he settled in Norwich as a physician, and passed in that city the remainder of his life.

The Religio Medici (the Religion of a Physician) was his earliest work. It had been handed about for some six years in manuscript amongst his friends, before it was given to the public and when published in 1643 it at once excited attention. If the author meant to mystify his friends and the world at large as to the exact drift of his meaning in this work he certainly succeeded admirably. Even yet, critics are at sea over the precise manner in which it is to be treated, whether as the lucubrations of a humourist or the vapourings of a visionary. Coleridge describes the work as "a fine portrait of a handsome man in his best clothes. "I have never read" says he "a book in which I have felt greater similarity to my own make of mind—active in inquiry, and yet with an appetite to believe—in short an affectionate visionary! It is a most delicious book" The Religio Medici was translated into several languages, and its success probably tempted the author to launch out into another work, entitled, to give it its English equivalent "Vulgar Errors."

Pseudodoxia Epidemica

It is a curious work and treats of all sorts of queerly conceived notions, discoursing on them in a highly pedantic and diverting manner. Amongst others, he discusses whether "Jews stink"; if the forbidden fruit was an apple; whether storks live only in republics and free states; if the flesh of peacocks is incorruptible; if elephants have joints; if a pot full of ashes will contain as much water as it would without them; if men weigh heavier dead than alive, and before eating than after, etc. But little as he suspected it, Sir Thomas Browne, was a prey himself to fallacies as crude as some of those which he condemned. "Natural diseases," he wrote, "are heightened to a great excess by the subtlety of the devil co-operating with the malice of those we term 'witches' at whose instance he doth these villanies." He did not believe in the motion of the earth. His opinion of women also was not particularly exalted. Of them, he wrote, "the whole world was made for man but only the twelfth part of man for woman"—and again "man is the whole world, but woman only the rib or crooked part of man." These eccentric ideas, however, did not prevent him marrying in 1641, a Mrs. Mileham, who bore him ten children and lived happily with him for forty years.

In 1658, the discovery of some urns in Norfolk induced Sir Thomas Browne to write probably his best known and certainly most erudite and pleasing work "Hydriotaphia." As one writer has stated: "In this treatise Browne's style rises to a pitch of sustained grandeur, which not less than its learning, originality and boldness insures it a place among the immortal writings."

It is a plea for cremation in preference to other forms of disposition of the dead, and really is, despite the tedious Latinity in which the author indulges, an entrancingly interesting disquisition on the burial customs of various nations.

Next week, one or two extracts will be given from Hydriotaphia in concluding the survey of Sir Thomas Browne's life and works.

The Novel-Ti Company's Latest Designed Tie For Spring And Summer Has Interesting Origin

The De Joinville Nouveaute is the Name of the Sporty Addition to Men's Newest Furnishings—Peterboro's Tie Factory Keeps Increasing its Output—Enjoying Splendid Prosperity.

A TIE THAT WILL REMAIN

Probably the busiest of Peterborough's smallest manufactories at the present time is the Novel-Ti Co., Limited, Water street. This is one of the business enterprises that greatly advertises this city, as the ties sent out from their factory are sold in all the principal towns and cities throughout Canada. There are, no doubt, a great many local persons who are not aware of such an establishment here as the Novel-Ti. In their premises on Water street, they are working quietly, carrying on an immense business. They have been established in Peterborough about four years, and under the able and capable management of Mr. Atwood, Novel-Ti Company, Limited, promises in the near future to become one of this city's leading industries. They now employ about thirty persons and have eleven travellers calling at all the busy centres in Western and Eastern Canada.

Their business has steadily grown, and although during the past year a large number of manufacturers has found trade dull, Novel-Ti made a substantial increase in their output.

A representative of The Examiner learned to-day that their present premises were becoming very crowded, for it has been found necessary to increase their staff in order to execute their orders. The great enterprise of this company is again evidenced when it is known that they have secured the sole right to manufacture in Canada the latest and most up-to-date tie. It is called "De Joinville Nouveaute."

De Joinville Nouveaute.

The local concern controls the output of one-sixteenth of the looms in the world, which can make this scarf. Every other loom of the remaining fifteenth-sixteenths are controlled in the United States and no other man in the Dominion can bring one yard of their production into Canada, while the contract of the Peterborough Company exists. Of course in this way it can be retailed at a price cheaper than it could be brought in from the States, after paying duty charges.

De Joinville Nouveaute is threefold, namely, De Joinville, Semi de Joinville, and folded four-in-hand. It differs from the old-time De Joinville in many respects. It is not made in broad silk (which means that every scarf would leave what is known as split edges) but each one has jacquered pearl edges. Both ends of it are finished off in the weavng. Every thread of "De Joinville Nouveaute" is pure silk, and at the same time it will be sold at half the price of scarfs made on cotton warps and which are not finished in an as up-to-date way. The price of "De Joinville Nouveaute" places it within the reach of every admirer of smart neckwear, for, notwithstanding the fact that tie silks are now subject to a heavy duty this novelty is being sold to the trade at a figure so that the Canadian public can buy it at exactly the same price as it will be sold for in the United States. It is a Spring and Summer scarf, and while the samples are now in the travellers' hands, it is understood that it will be about five or six weeks before the goods will be delivered to the local dealers.

Real Origin of Scarf.

It is difficult to give the real origin of the "De Joinville" scarf, which Novel-Ti are placing on the market in an improved and up-to-date make. It is said to have come into use, first, in France at a time known as the De Joinville period, when the Duke de Joinville was one of the most prominent characters in that country. The Duke was born in 1818, and was a son of King Louis Philippe. He was later exiled from France with other members of the Orleans family, and during his banishment served in the American army under General McClellan in the war between the North and the South.

Irish Crown Jewels Safe Again In Dublin Castle

Discovered in an English Pawn Shop--Their Restoration Brought a Knighthood to Baron Pirrie, Belfast—An Interesting Account

WAS KNIGHTED IN PRIVATE.

Dublin, March 13.—The comedy of the theft of the Irish Crown jewels more than a year ago from the safe in Dublin Castle has had an amusing sequel. As announced at the time there was never much doubt about who had taken the jewels, and it was soon discovered that they were reposing safely in an English pawnbroker's shop. The question was how to get them back. It is true that the authorities might have taken them by force, but the pawnbroker was not disposed to lose his money without a fight and he threatened revelations which would have been decidedly uncomfortable, so it was decided that they must be quietly redeemed. The problem of finding the money for the purpose still remained. It was about $150,000 and it could not be taken from the public funds without more awkward inquiries.

It will now be necessary to go back a couple of years to make the story intelligible. At the time there was in Belfast a Mr. Pirrie, who was head of the great shipbuilding firm of Harland & Wolff. He had raised himself from the position of a penniless farmer's boy to that of a millionaire and at the head of the greatest shipbuilding firm in the world, and he was anxious for further honours. Soon after the Liberal Government came into power, Prrie, who, like most Belfast business men, had been an Orangeman, suddenly saw a great light and declared himself a Liberal candidate for one of the divisions of Belfast and thus secured the defeat of the Tory, and a few weeks afterwards his name appeared in a list of new peers of the realm, and he became Baron Pirrie.

Lord Pirrie, however, was anxious for more honours. He became controller of the vice-regal household, and he cast his eyes on the Knighthood of St. Patrick, which is the highest honour that can be bestowed on an Irish nobleman. His opportunity came when the theft of the crown jewels was discovered. Lord Pirrie provided ed the money to take them out of pawn, his reward being the promise of the next vacant Knighthood of St. Patrick, and he received the honour a few days ago. The bargain was so distasteful to the other members of the order, who had won their knighthoods by distinguished service to the state, that not one of them would consent to attend the investiture, which is usually a most gorgeous ceremony, and the Lord Lieutenant was forced to invest the new knight with the insignia of the order in private.

It is also known that it has been arranged that Lord Pirrie shall be raised to an earldom and shall succeed Lord Aberdeen as viceroy should that nobleman decide to retire into private life during the existence of the present government.

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown. A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 28th, 1907.

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

He looked at her. Something in her face appeared to strike him as strange. A sort of quiver ran through his body. He seemed to pull himself together with an effort. As he spoke to her his voice sounded faint and ever so slightly blurred.

"You've heard Lepage, and I know that you'll speak the truth to me on your oath—the truth about the thing nearest to the heart of a dying man—nearest to the heart of your dying husband. You wouldn't lie on oath to a dying man, your husband and your king, for I am dying. You have years still, but they'll end. You believe that some day you and I will stand together before the throne. As you shall answer to heaven in that day, is this true? Was it in your heart and in the heart of these men to keep my son, the heir of my house, from his throne? Is it true? As you shall answer to God for your soul, is there any truth in it?"

The woman went gray in the face—a sheet of gray paper seemed drawn over her cheeks. Her narrow lips showed a pale red streak across it. Her prayers—those laborious, ingenious, plausible prayers—helped her nothing here.

"I protest! At this time, sir! The countess will be upset!"

Stenovics had been driven to this. He feared greatly. Not a soul heeded him. Every eye now was on the woman. She struggled—she struggled to lie. She struggled to do what she believed would bring perdition to her soul. Her voice was forced and harsh when at last she broke silence.

"As I shall answer in that day"—

"As you shall answer to God for your soul in that day"— the king repeated.

She gave a wild glance at Stenovics, seeking succor, finding no refuge. Her eyes came back to the king's face. "As I shall answer"— Every word came forth by its own self, with its separate birth pang—"As I shall answer to God for my soul"—

She stopped. There was silence while a man might count ten. She threw her hands above her head and broke into a violent torrent of sobs. "I can't! I can't!" they heard her say through her tumultuous weeping.

"I can't! I can't!"

The king suddenly started back in his chair as though somebody had offered to strike him. "You—you—you, my wife! You, Stenovics! You, whom I trusted—trusted—trusted like— Ah, is that you, Lepage? Did I hear rightly—wouldn't she swear?"

"With the utmost respect to Mme. la Comtesse, she could not swear, sir."

The king sprang to his feet. "Go!" he cried.

They all rose—the countess shaken with unconquerable sobs. But the next moment the king made a quick indrawing of the breath, like a man suddenly pricked by some sharp thing. He dropped back in his chair. His head fell to meet his hands on the table in front. The hands were palms downward, and his forehead rested on his knuckles.

There was a moment's pause. Then Lepage darted from the room, crying: "Dr. Natcheff! Dr. Natcheff!" Stenovics wiped his brow. Stafnitz raised his head, with a queer look at the king, and his mouth shaped for a whistle. The countess' sobs seemed as though frozen; her whole frame was rigid. The king did not move.

Natcheff came rushing in. Lepage, who followed closely, shut the door after him. They both went to the king. There was silence while Natcheff made his examination. In a couple of minutes he turned round to them.

"Something has caused his majesty strong agitation?"

"Yes," answered Stenovics.

"Yes," said Natcheff. He cleared his throat and glanced doubtfully at the countess.

"Well?" asked Stenovics.

"I regret to say that the effect is the worst possible. His majesty is dead."

Silence again—a silence strangely broken. Stafnitz sprang across the room with a bound like a cat's and caught the physician by the shoulder.

"No!" he said. "Not for twenty-four hours yet! His majesty dies tomorrow!"

Chapter Twenty-four

"HIS majesty dies tomorrow!" Stafnitz's words seemed to freeze them all stiff where they stood. Even Countess Ellenburg's sobs, which had threatened to break forth again, were arrested in their flow.

"Markart, lock the door leading to the king's apartments. Dr. Natcheff and Lepage, carry the king into his bedroom. Lay him on the bed. Stay there till I call you. Countess, general, I invite your earnest attention."

Stenovics' mind excelled in the waiting game, the slow, tortuous approach, the inch by inch advance of leisurely diplomacy. For him this crisis was at first too sudden. The swift and daring intellect of Stafnitz naturally and inevitably took the lead. His strong will fascinated his confederates.

"Is this to be the beginning or the end?" he asked. "For us and our friends—which? If we send a courier to Praslok to call King Sergius to his capital—what then? For you, countess, and your son oblivion and obscurity at Dobrava for all the rest of your life, just that! For you, general, and for me and our friends—yes, you, too, Markart—our conge, more or less civilly given. There won't be more insignificant men in all Slavna on the day King Sergius enters. But there's no King Sergius yet!"

Stenovics was regaining the use of his brain. His eyes grew distant in deep meditation. Countess Ellenburg looked eager and grim. Her lips could not swear a false oath—well, she was not asked to swear any oath now. Markart could not think. He stood staring at Stafnitz.

"In half an hour that courier must start for Praslok if he starts at all. Of all things, we mustn't hesitate."

He had painted the result to them of the coming of King Sergius. It meant the defeat of years of effort. It entailed the end of hopes, of place, of power or influence. There was no future for those three in Kravonia if King Sergius came. And Markart, of course, seemed no more than one of Stenovics' train.

"And if the courier doesn't start?" asked Stenovics. He took out a cigar and lit it, asking no leave of the countess. Probably he hardly knew that he was smoking it.

Stafnitz looked at his watch. "Five o'clock! We have twenty-four hours. It would be risky to keep the secret longer. There's not much time. We must be prompt, but we mustn't sacrifice anything to hurry. For instance, it would look odd to present the king's orders to Baroness Dobrava in the middle of the night! She'd smell a rat if she's as clever as they say, and so would the prince, I think. I could have a hundred men at Praslok by midnight, but I shouldn't propose to have them there before 11 o'clock tomorrow. Well, they could be back here by 5 in the afternoon! In the course of the day we'll occupy all the important points of the city with troops we can trust. Then, in the evening, as soon as we see how matters have gone at Praslok, we proclaim King Alexis!"

The countess gave a little shiver, whether of fear or of eagerness it was impossible to tell. Stenovics drummed his fingers on the table and turned his cigar quickly round and round in his mouth. Markart had recovered his clearness of mind and closely watched all the scene.

"I—I can't bear it," she said.

The countess rose suddenly in strong agitation. "I—I can't bear it," she said. "With him lying there! Let me go! Presently—presently you shall tell me—anything."

Stenovics laid down his cigar and went to her. "Wait in there"—he pointed to Natcheff's room—"till you're quite composed. Then go to your own room and wait till I come. Mind, countess, no sign of agitation!" He led her out. Stafnitz shrugged his shoulders.

"She'll be all right," he said to Markart, with a passing smile.

"I think she was fond of the king," said Markart.

Stenovics returned. "Now!" he said, seating himself again and resuming his cigar. "You suggest that we still use that order for the arrest of Baroness Dobrava?"

"It's signed 'Alexis,' and King Alexis lives till 5 tomorrow. Moreover, if all goes well, King Alexis lives again for many years after that."

Stenovics nodded slightly. "The baroness comes willingly or you bring her? At any rate, one way or the other, she's in our hands by this time tomorrow?"

"Exactly, general. I fail to perceive that this lamentable event"—he waved his hand toward the king's empty chair—"alters the case as regards the baroness one jot."

"Not the least, unless you consider that risking our heads on the throw has any such effect," replied Stenovics. And for the first time he smiled.

"Once you wanted to play the big stake on a bad hand, general. Won't you put it on the table now, when you've a good one?"

"I'm thinking of a certain strong card in the other hand which you haven't mentioned yet. Baroness Dobrava is to be in our power by this time tomorrow, but what will the Prince of Slavna be doing? Still drilling his men at Volseni, still waiting for his guns?"

Stafnitz looked him full in the face. "No," he said. "The prince had better not still be drilling his men at Volseni nor waiting for his guns."

"I think not, too," Stenovics agreed, twisting his cigar round again.

"General, do you think the prince will let Baroness Dobrava come to Slavna without him?"

"I don't know. He might have confidence enough in you. He wouldn't wish to annoy or agitate the king. He might await his summons to an audience. On the whole, I think he would submit and rely on being able to induce the king to alter his mind when they met. I'm not sure he wouldn't advise her to go with you."

"Well, yes, I confess that struck me, too, as rather likely or at least possible."

"If it happened it wouldn't be convenient," said Stenovics, with a patient sigh, "because he would come after her in a day or two."

"But if I were detained by urgent business in Slavna—and we've agreed that there's work to be done tomorrow in Slavna—another officer would go to Praslok. The order, which I have here, mentions no name, although the king designated me by word of mouth."

"The order mentions no name?"

"No; it directs the baroness to accompany the bearer. True, at the foot my name is written, 'Intrusted to Colonel Stafnitz.' But with care and a pair of scissors"— He smiled at Markart again, as though taking him into the joke.

"Well, well, suppose another officer goes to Praslok. Why shouldn't the prince trust the baroness to the care of that officer as readily as to you? You don't—how shall I put it—monopolize his confidence, colonel."

Stafnitz still wore his easy, confidential smile as he answered, with an air of innocent slyness: "Suppose the officer were Captain Mistitch? I think it's just the job for Captain Hercules!"

Even Stenovics started a little at that. He laid down his cigar and looked at his friend the colonel for some seconds. Then he looked at Markart, smiling, seeming to ponder, to watch how Markart was taking it, even to sympathize with Markart on having to consider a rather startling proposal, on having possibly to do some little violence to his feelings. Certainly Captain Markart gathered the impression that Stenovics was doubtful how he would stand this somewhat staggering suggestion. At last the general turned his eyes back to Stafnitz again.

The king's body lay on the bed.

"That's as ingenious a bit of deviltry as I ever heard, colonel," he remarked quietly.

"Captain Mistitch is restored to duty. He's of proper rank to perform such a service and to command an escort of a hundred men. After all, an officer of my rank made a certain concession in accepting so small a command."

"The prince would regard the sending of Mistitch as a deliberate insult."

"I'm afraid he would."

"He's hot tempered. He'd probably say as much."

"Yes, and Mistitch is hot tempered. He'd probably resent the observation. But you'll remember, general, that the escort is to be large enough to make the officer commanding it secure against hindrance by any act short of open and armed resistance to the king's command."

"He'll never believe the king would send Mistitch!"

"Will that make his peaceable obedience more likely?"

"In a moment they'd be at each other's"— He stopped. "Markart, go and see if they need anything in there." He pointed to the king's bedroom, where Natcheff and Lepage were.

Markart rose and obeyed. His head was swimming. He hardly yet understood how very ingenious the ingenious deviltry was, how the one man was to be sent whose directions the prince could not submit to, whose presence was an insult, to whom it was impossible to intrust Baroness Dobrava. He was very glad to get out of the room. The last he saw was Stafnitz drawing his chair close up to Stenovics and engaging in low voiced, earnest talk.

The king's body lay on the bed decently disposed and covered with a large fur rug. Lepage sat on a chair near by, Natcheff on another in the window. Both looked up for a moment as Markart entered, but neither spoke. Markart found a third chair and sat down. Nobody said anything. The three were as silent and almost as still as the fourth on the bed. A low murmur of voices came from the next room. The words were indistinguishable. So passed full half an hour. A strange and terrible half hour it seemed to Markart.

The door opened, and Stafnitz called Natcheff. The physician rose and followed him. Another twenty minutes went by, still in silence, but once Markart, looking for a moment at his mute companion, saw a tear rolling slowly down Lepage's wrinkled cheek. Lepage saw him looking and broke the silence:

"I suppose I helped to kill him?"

Markart shrugged his shoulders helplessly. Silence came again. Very long it seemed; but, on looking at his watch, Markart found that it was not yet half past 6.

Again the door opened, and Stafnitz called to them both. They followed him into the next room. Stenovics was sitting at the table, with his hands clasped on it in front of him. Stafnitz took up a position by his side, standing as though on duty. Natcheff had disappeared. Stenovics spoke in calm, deliberate tones. He seemed to have assumed command of the operations again.

"Captain Markart, I'm about to intrust to you an important and responsible duty. For the next twenty-four hours and afterward until relieved by my orders you will be in charge of this man Lepage and will detain him in these apartments. His own room and this room will be at the disposal of yourself and your prisoner, but you must not let the prisoner out of your sight. Dr. Natcheff remains in his room. He will have access to the king's room when he desires, but he will not leave the suit of apartments. Beyond seeing to this you will have no responsibility for him. The door leading to the suit will be locked by me and will be opened only by me or by my orders. I remain at the palace tonight. Under me Captain Sterkoff will be the officer on guard. He will himself supply you with any meals or other refreshments which you may require. Ring this hand bell on the table—no other bell, mind—and he will be with you immediately. Do you understand your orders?"

Markart understood them very well. There was no need of Stafnitz's mocking little smile to point the meaning. Markart was to be Lepage's jailer; Sterkoff was to be his. Under the most civil and considerate form he was made as close a prisoner as the man he guarded. Evidently Stenovics had come to the conclusion that he could not ask Markart to put too great a strain on his conscience. The general, however, seemed very kindly disposed toward him and was, indeed, almost apologetic:

"I've every hope that this responsible and, I fear, very irksome duty may last only the few hours I mentioned. You put me under a personal obligation by undertaking it, my dear Markart."

In the absence of any choice Markart saluted and answered, "I understand my orders, general."

Stafnitz interposed, "Captain Sterkoff is also aware of their purport."

Stenovics looked vexed. "Yes, yes, but I'm sure Markart himself is quite enough." It seems odd that in the midst of such a transaction as that in which he was engaged Stenovics should have found leisure or heart to care about Markart's feeling. Yet so it was—a curiously human touch creeping in. He shut Markart up only under the strongest sense of necessity and with great reluctance. Probably Stafnitz had insisted in the private conversation which they had held together. Markart had shown such evident signs of jibbing over the job proposed for Captain Hercules!

Lepage's heart was wrung, but his spirit was not broken. Stafnitz's ironical smile called an answering one to his lips.

"It would console my feelings if I also were put in charge of somebody, general," he said. "Shall I, in my turn, keep an eye on Dr. Natcheff or report if the captain here is remiss in the duty of keeping himself a prisoner?"

"I don't think you need trouble yourself, M. Lepage. Captain Sterkoff will relieve you of responsibility." To Lepage, too, Stenovics was gentle, urbane, almost apologetic.

"And how long am I to live, general?"

"You're in the enviable position, M. Lepage, of being able, subject to our common mortality, to settle that for yourself. Come, come, we'll discuss matters again tomorrow night or the following morning. There are many men who prefer not to do things, but will accept a thing when it's done. They're not necessarily unwise. I've done no worse to you than give you the opportunity of being one of them. I think you'll be prudent to take it. Anyhow, don't be angry. You must remember that you've given us a good deal of trouble."

"Between us we have killed the king."

Stenovics waved his hands in a commiserating way. "Practical men mustn't spend time in lamenting the past," he said.

"Nor in mere conversation, however pleasant," Stafnitz broke in, with a laugh. "Captain Markart, march your prisoner to his quarters."

His smile made the order a mockery. Markart felt it, and a hatred of the man rose in him. But he could do nothing. He did not lead Lepage to his quarters, but followed sheepishly in his prisoner's wake. They went together into the little room where Lepage slept.

"Close quarters, too, captain," said the valet. "There is but one chair. Let me put it at your service." He himself sat down on the bed, took out his tobacco and began to roll himself a cigarette.

The Luckiest Day of My Life.

Mr. Thomas Wylie (Box 384), Galt, says:—"It was the luckiest day of my life when I struck PSYCHINE, for I truly believe I shouldn't be alive now but for that.

"A neglected cold was the beginning of my trouble, and what seemed to be a simple ailment, soon developed into a serious and dangerous condition. I got so low that it was scarcely possible for me to walk around, and I lost so much flesh that I looked like a skeleton. I was just about ready to "hand in my checks," although only 20 years of age. The medicine the doctor gave me made me worse and I got disgusted and hopeless. Then I struck PSYCHINE.

"PSYCHINE did miracles for me. The first bottle gave me new life and courage, and in less than no time I began to put on flesh rapidly, and felt I was on the high road to recovery. My appetite returned and I "eat like a hunter," as the saying goes. My friends were surprised, and hardly knew me. In three months I was as strong and well as ever, and returned to work in the mill. I have not had a days' illness since. Nobody could wish for better health than I enjoy, and it is all owing to PSYCHINE. It should be in everybody's hands."

USE PSYCHINE EARLY

Too often PSYCHINE is used as a last resort, when doctors have failed to relieve or cure, and frequently when they have abandoned all hope. Under these unfavorable conditions, let hope be not abandoned, for PSYCHINE will prove an unfailing friend. How much better and surer would be the results if PSYCHINE were used in the early stages of the illness!

Use PSYCHINE for COUGHS, COLDS, WEAK LUNGS, LOSS OF APPETITE, WEARINESS and that TERRIBLY RUN DOWN FEELING. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c, $1.00, and $2.00 Bottle.

Connaught Line, Douro, March 10.—The snow-storm of Saturday night and Sunday has greatly improved the sleighing.

Mr. W. Charlton did a couple of days' splendid work last week with his sawing machine for Messrs. M. Kennedy, S. Miller and J. Mahoney. The pieces were hurled some distance with great violence but fortunately no one was hurt, though the onlookers say that a fatality would have occurred had anyone been struck.

A number from this vicinity attended the Fancy Dress Carnival in Warsaw on Wednesday evening of last week and report that it was a splendid success. More than eighty skaters were in costume and the costumes were both varied and beautiful.

Every "Caloric" lower burner-cup, besides being deep, is made with an air-mixer, which latter section has nickel-plated cover for air adjustment. Upper face of burner being corrugated causes a current of air to pass between the corrugations and intermix with the gas. The air and gas are thus thoroughly blended before ignition takes place, which prevents the escape of gas.
Every burner automatically drilled, hence the uniform flame. The "Caloric" system stands for rigid gas economy, great velocity of flame, and safety of operation.

Field Crop Competition Will Be Inaugurated In Peterboro

White Oats Will be the Crop—Good Prizes and Many Advantages Generally---Under Auspices of West Peterborough Agricultural Society.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

A new feature, and one that should appeal strongly to the farmers of this district, will be the annual field crop competition that will be held this year in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Fair. It has been decided by the directors that white oats shall be the competition crop and five prizes will be given of fifteen dollars, twelve, ten, eight and five.

A great advantage beside the possibility of securing the prize offered by the West Peterborough Agricultural Society is that the competitors will have a chance of exhibiting their grain at Guelph and Ottawa. The way for doing this without expense is paid by the Government which will supply bags and ship the grain for the competitors or ship it back as may be desired.

The demand for good oats is a constant one, and at the sales at both Guelph and Ottawa have never brought less than $1.00 per bushel. Some of the first prize oats sold at $2.50 per bushel and other prize winners received 30 per cent. above the market price and that without leaving their homes, showing the great demand for grains free from weed seeds.

The Main Objects.

The main objects of the competition may be enumerated as follows:

1. To stimulate a greater interest in the growing of first-class seed grain.

2. To encourage the practice of growing seed for next year's crop, in a field by itself using only the best obtainable seed, sowing it on the cleanest and best prepared land, allowing it to ripen, and threshing and storing it separately.

3. To obtain pure seed, i.e. free from other varieties the presence of which can best be detected when the crop is growing.

4. To encourage the use of seed from heavy yielding strains.

5. To promote the sowing of seed from clean, vigorous crops of uniform stand with bright stiff straw.

6. To encourage careful and intelligent farming and the production of seed from weeds.

The competition will be carried on by the co-operation of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. It's great value can readily be appreciated by the progressive agriculturist. If the oats he raises are of a superior quality he will have an opportunity of establishing himself as a producer and will also be able to realize quite a handsome sum in prize money at no expense to himself or may have the oats sold as well at the highest figure. It is to be hoped that the farmers of this district will be encouraged by the prospects of the competition. It will also give them an opportunity of showing what quality of oats can be grown in this part of the province.

Nature of Competition.

Competitions shall be limited to one crop, to be selected by the Society, which should be the one of most importance to the farmers of the district. Entries for competition must consist of a field of not not less than five acres, and where beans and potatoes are entered, the minimum plot not less than one acre.

Competition shall be limited to members of Agricultural Societies, and the fields entered must not be allowed to make entry in only one Society and but one entry can be made by each competitor.

Crop for Current Year.

The oat crop of Ontario for the current year has been estimated at approximately 100,000,000 bushels and that of wheat at 18,800,000 bushels, and the annual total value of all the field crops in Ontario at $140,000,000. If the yield at the present time under what are, to a considerable extent, crude, and unsatisfactory methods of farming, balks so largely (although the average yield per acre is far below what it should be) it can be easily seen how the income of the Ontario farmer would be largely increased if by better methods of land cultivation and seed selection he secured an increase of yield in his crops of even a few bushels per acre.

CLANRICARDE NEWS.

Clanricarde, March 8.—The weather continues fine. Roads are in splendid condition.

Many of the young men have returned home from the camps. Consequently some of the young ladies feel rather down-hearted. But cheer up girls there is still a few left.

Mr. James Trotter, of Clydesdale, is spending a few days in the village, the guest of his uncle, Mr. R. Trotter.

Miss. M. Bullied, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. Elley for the past month returned to her home in Peterborough last Tuesday.

A number of our young ladies and married women attended a quilting bee at the home of Mrs. A. Dane last Thursday and spent a very enjoyable afternoon.

Miss K. Bullied was the guest of her sister, Miss J. Weir, of Lasswade, last Sunday.

Miss K. Tucker has been spending the past few days with her aunt, Mrs. Z. Tucker, of Apsley.

This has been the most successful winter for lumbering in this vicinity ever known. There being six large camps and several small ones within nine miles of the post office.

The largest drive ever known to go down Eels Creek will go down in the spring and will consist of hundreds of logs.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

As every newspaper man very well knows, some of the most interesting stories and the strangest have been those which his newspaper could not print; queer things and happenings that the reporter comes to know as a moral certainty, but which present no edifice of evidence to bring them within the court chambers of the law; tales of machinations so skilfully, privily and secretly executed as to defy exposure. This story is of that sort. It happened years ago. Names and geography are necessarily changed and other facts are paralleled for the greater freedom of the telling.

From a Reporter's Recollections

The Case of "Melodeons" Unger

By CHARLES SOMERVILLE

OFFICIALLY on the Coroner's books the death of "Melodeons" Unger stands to this day characterized as a "suicide." He was found with a bullet in his head and a revolver clutched in his withered old hand—found stretched on a costly Persian rug in a bedchamber of his suburban mansion near—let us say near Chicago.

The officials said he had killed himself, the while they looked in vain for any motive for self-destruction. Scrutinized for reason that he might have had for desiring to end his life, the veil of mystery remained utterly opaque. "Temporary insanity" was trotted out, a stock explanation of the Coroner's office when it has nothing else to say.

Obviously in the case of wealthy old "Melodeons" Unger the explanation was unusually poor. In all the man's life no other act of his had ever hinted at mental aberration of any kind, violent or latent.

Moreover, it would seem clear that he had possessed everything that might be regarded as contributing toward the happiness of an aged man. He had started life on a mechanic's bench, coddling a dream of wealth. He had realized this dream. Out of the manufacture of those wheezy, squeaky toy organs, invariable ornaments in the "parlors" of rustic homes, he had profited immensely. His fortune was rated at more than a million dollars. There had been no falling off in the demand for melodeons; the factory hummed as busily as ever. His health was good, and his friends declared his disposition to have been jovial and content.

To be sure, his first wife had died—the stocky, sturdy, simple Flemish peasant woman who had by her early economies aided him in the building of his fortune. But to make up for this old "Melodeons" had taken to himself a young, very beautiful and accomplished wife—twenty wedded to sixty-five—the nearest to an irrational act that had ever occurred in his life, if so it could be considered. Comfort, luxury, prosperity and, presumably, love he had; surely a full portion in happiness for any man, young or old.

Here Is the Case.

"Came to his death by his own hand," the Coroner's jury declared in its verdict, but—I wonder what you will think of his degree of responsibility for that bullet in his head when I have laid the whole case before you, when I have disclosed the whole queer, subtle, sinister, psychic tragedy; when I have drawn into it, as best I may, the portrait of the strange dominant figure that haunted old "Melodeons" to his end. A strange character indeed he was—a man still in his early twenties, yet one so skilful in the manipulation of psychic tortures, stings and cruelties and compelling suggestion that, so surely as fantastic wraiths and shapes of horror have driven conscience stricken criminals to surrender or suicide, he drove the wholly innocent, good and kindly "Melodeons" Unger to his death.

Even as I write this now there strikes vividly across my mind the memory of his uncanny eyes—clear, livid green eyes; luminous yet cold; with a fascination stronger even than the repugnance that they stirred.

My city editor urged me to do my very best to get all the facts in the matter of the wealthy manufacturer's death, recognizing the existence of a large public interest in the affair, for old "Melodeons'" name in letters of gold was familiar in many households of America as it appeared on the instruments of his manufacture; and in the year since his old wife died he had become a familiar figure at the fashionable restaurants and had seldom, if ever, missed gala nights at the opera. And then, the year before his death, his romance had attracted public attention to him; his marriage to one who had scarcely passed girlhood. The old man's love of music as well as her youth and beauty had brought about the match. When in town he had maintained apartments at a modest but very excellent hotel and there he was introduced to her, the niece of the proprietor. She played the piano superbly and was gracious in the matter of performing for old "Melodeons." She could sing sweetly, too.

She Wins His Heart.

In the twilight hours of winter afternoons she would sit at the instrument in the big, old fashioned hotel salon and play to him his favorite airs; the aged man huddled in an armchair, his white haired head to one side, his whole attitude that of one entranced. Finally old "Melodeons" decided that life would not be worth living without this charming and accomplished girl and he laid his fortune at her feet. She accepted readily.

This much of the case I knew when I alighted from a train at the suburban station, got into a carriage and a little while afterward stood at the door of the old fashioned, broad mansion, where he had met death.

An old man with haggard eyes came to the door. He took my card, glanced at it, and while admitting me to the old, wide hallway, said:—

"I am afraid I cannot ask you into the parlor, sir. There's a strict order against reporters being admitted to the house at all. But I'll take in your card."

A door opened sharply, and down the hallway there came with rapid, decisive stride a man who was young, slender, dapper. But there and then his face, for all its youthful freshness and undeniable good looks, impressed me harshly. His features were clearly cut, defined even with a certain feminine delicacy. The mouth was older than the face—a straight lined, thin lipped, cautious, unsympathetic, selfish mouth. But his eyes—livid, green eyes, the pupils of which I noticed even in that little brief interview, had a habit of contracting and expanding in the constant effort of their scrutiny; forceful, keen, compelling. I could feel their searchingness as literally as if his hand had pushed me from him.

But his manner was wholly courteous.

"I am sorry," he said, "that you have made your trip all the way out from the city for nothing, but we really cannot say anything. My sister is prostrated over her husband's deplorable act; that's all that can be said."

I expressed my sympathy, but suggested the widespread public interest in the matter, and added:—

"As your sister's representative could you not make a statement clearing the whole thing? The coroner's jury has rendered a verdict of suicide, but there are many who—"

"Why, you old fool—where the devil do you think?"

"WHY, YOU OLD FOOL!"

"Melodeons" recoiled and then old age reclaimed him. He whimpered like a hurt and hopeless child. He tottered out of the room and down the hallway, paused by the balustrade post with his old hand on the bronze image there, and, after a pause, began the ascent of the stairway.

John Hellman would have followed but Andrew got between.

"Get me a small bottle of champagne," he ordered. "I'll help Mr. Unger up stairs."

But he did not. John Hellman had turned and saw the young man standing there under the full glare of the hallway chandelier, the light on his crisp golden hair and bringing fully into view his baleful face, with its tight, thin mouth and bloodless lips, and the strange, livid green eyes gleaming steadily upon the figure of the old man creeping up the stairway. Twice old "Melodeons" had turned and looked back, and each time he encountered the compelling, contemptuous, pitiless stare of the livid green eyes.

John Hellman turned to go back, to follow his old master against even the queer, strangely powerful young man, who stood in the hallway, with hands at his sides and expectantly raised face.

But just then for the third time in this sinister mansion a shot rang out. Andrew watched coldly as John Hellman rushed up stairs. And as he bent over his old master, imploring him to speak, a voice said curtly, coldly, near him:—

"I guess this time he did the trick."

Such is the "inside" story of the "suicide" of "Melodeons" Unger, the story that the old servant told me and the Coroner's jury never knew.

Three months afterward the widow of "Melodeons" Unger married the tall, curly haired, handsome, big boy sort of a man. But long before that Andrew, as you know, has assumed full control of the million dollar factory.

ONE OF THE LABOUR SAVERS.

From Farm and Dairy.

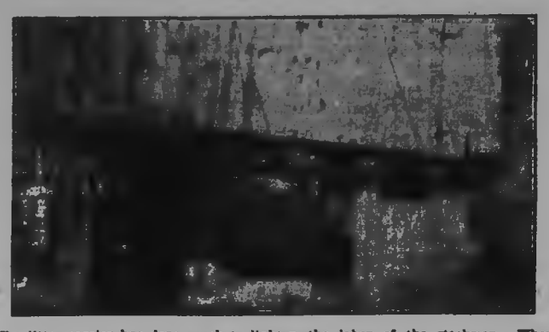
Ivan M. Law, Durham Co., Ont.

Among the great labor-saving machines now placed upon the market to lessen the heavy labor of the farm probably none are so much and so constantly used as a good litter-carrier. Several times every day it is brought into use in cleaning out the horse stable, byre and pig pens. On a large farm without a litter carrier the work is slow and heavy.

The carrier shown in the illustration on this page has been in use upon our farm for six or seven years. It is a crude production compared with the neat malleable and steel carrier of to-day, but it was built for hard work and plenty of it. It has a larger capacity than those placed upon the market now, the box being four feet, three inches long, two feet, six inches wide, and two feet nine inches deep, inside measurements. A boy of 15 has used it with all kinds of loads.

Three loads from the carrier fill a large sleigh box full enough for ordinary teams. With heavy wet manure we often take out 1,000 pounds at one filling, though we do not make a practice of loading it quite that heavy. We could never clean out the litter from our cows at a load, as some makers claim, with cars having a box of far less capacity. We use considerable straw in bedding and thus have three carrier loads and one team load of manure from 15 cows, steers and young stock and four calves each day. This with the litter from three horses and 20 or more pigs makes nine loads of manure a week. We aim to draw it out each week and spread it upon the field.

The carrier complete with one switch and two hundred feet of track cost us less than $50. The carrier however, advanced in price shortly afterward. It was made by Lyman C. Smith of Oshawa, Ontario. About a year ago he sold his patents to Wartman & Ward of London, Ontario, who now make the carriers. Farmers with considerable manure to handle should think seriously of purchasing a large capacity litter carrier.



The litter carrier has done much to lighten the labor of the stockmen. Wherever it has been installed it has made friends. The illustration was taken on the farm of Mr. Ivan Law, Durham Co., Ont. Read the adjoining article.

GOOD ROADS SUGGESTIONS

From Farm and Dairy.

The Ontario good roads system, the results it has produced, the cost of putting roads in proper shape, the machinery necessary to do the work at the least possible cost, these were some of the questions discussed at the Seventh Annual Meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association held last week in Toronto. The meeting was honored by the presence of His Honor, the Lieut-Governor, Hon. J. M. Gibson, who in the course of his address remarked that every mile of good roads constructed by a municipality is an object lesson to the other municipalities to do the same thing and thus give the people ideal highways.

In the course of a brief address on "What Country Roads Have Accomplished," Mr. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works, said that the improvements in roads, bridges and culverts had been something marvellous. Mr. Campbell declared that there was too much taxation at the present for road improvement purposes. In his opinion there was a heap of carelessness and unnecessary waste, which comes from so many causes, in the expenditure of money for road improvement in some parts of the Province. He did not believe in expending large sums of money and threatening the people with dangerous taxation unless they were given good returns.

"Whereas, the Province has, with a lavish hand, aided our privately owned railways which provide the long haul to market for our farm products;

"Resolved, that the province now provide more liberal aid for the equally important short haul of the same products from the farm to the railway station over our publicly owned highways by increasing the present grant from one-third to one-half the cost for good roads under county system."

This resolution was moved by Mr. J. F. Beam of Welland at the close of his address on "The True Solution of the Good Roads Problem." The resolution was carried.

"The first and foremost piece of machinery in road building is, in my estimation, a good, intelligent man, a man with brains," said A. J. Davidson, superintendent of streets, Galt. One of the most important features in good roads is good drainage.

Papers were also read by Reeve G. L. Telfer, Paris; Messrs. G. W. Bennet, Peterboro,; W. D. Annis, Scarboro'; J. D. Evans, Islington; Jas. A. Bell, county engineer of Elgin; Charles Talbot, county engineer of Middlesex; Frank Barker, county engineer of York; C. L. Hicks, Humber; R. H. Jupp, Simcoe; J. W. Gage, Warden of Wentworth county; R. E. Taylor, Picton; A. McG. Rankin, Collin's Bay; W. B. Rittenhouse of Beamsville and others.

K. W. McKay read the auditors' report, showing that a balance of $233.07 remained. The receipts of last year were $305.93, and the expenditure $72.86. He moved that the secretary, Col. J. E. Farewell, be presented with $50 in recognition of his services.

Officers were re-elected.

AIR CARRIES HEALING MEDICINE

That Cures Colds, Catarrh and Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Bronchial Tubes.

About the healing power of the oils of the pine woods everybody knows but to supply it in the form of medicine seemed almost beyond realization. After many years of careful study a scientific remedy, now known as Catarrhozone, has been produced, which enables the sufferer to breathe into his lungs all the healing properties of the balsamic pine woods air. This marvellous remedy has conquered catarrh. It unquestionably does cure it permanently.

CURE IS GUARANTEED.

You cannot fail to be cured by Catarrhozone, because it reaches and destroys the cause of the disease. You simply inhale the antiseptic vapor. It instantly spreads to every part of the breathing organs. The micro-organisms infecting the diseased tissues of your nose, throat, and lungs die instantly. There is nothing left to cause inflammation. Any spots that are raw and sore are quicly healed by Catarrhozone, and you soon are completely cured.

IT RELIEVES INSTANTLY!

It is impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without at once feeling better. Your head is cured of mucous discharge, your nostrils are cleansed of all putrid matter, the phlegm is removed from your throat. Every trace of catarrh is searched out of the system by Catarrhozone, which thoroughly disinfects and purifies every organ of the body.

Catarrhozone is the only natural remedy for catarrh. It cures by cleansing and purifying all diseased tissues, not by deadening the stomach with drugs.

MINISTERS AND DOCTORS USE "CATARRHOZONE."

It is a clean, simple, and satisfactory remedy that is endorsed by the clergy, and universally prescribed by the medical profession because it is scientific and absolutely certain to effect lasting cures.

Don't be misled into accepting a substitute for Catarrhozone, which alone can cure thoroughly. It is so powerfully healing that colds disappear in an hour, coughs in two hours, and even bronchitis, asthma, and chronic catarrh in a comparatively short time. Two months' treatment, $1.00. Small size, 50c.; all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ontario.

GETTING RID OF WIRE WORMS

From Farm and Dairy.

What can I do to prevent yellow wire worms from destroying my oat crop?—M. M., Glengarry Co., Ont.

These are the grubs of long, narrow beetles which have the habit of springing up into the air when they are laid on their backs and on this account are called Click Beetles. A great variety of experiments have been tried but no satisfactory means has yet been discovered for getting rid of wireworms. They breed for the most part in old pastures. It is therefore important to practise a good rotation of crops and not allow land to remain for any great length of time in grass. When a field has been broken up, during the first year the worms feed on the remains of the grass that has been ploughed under, but in the second year they have nothing left except whatever crop may be grown and therefore they attack it. The grain that is hurt least of all is rye, barley comes next, and clover also is not much affected by them.

As these worms do the most damage the second year after sod has been broken up, after rye or barley has been harvested, the land should be plougehd up so as to break the pupa cases of these worms and also to expose them to birds and other enemies. If clover has been grown and there are any of these worms in the soil it should be ploughed under in the fall in a similar manner. This will have the additional effect of fertilizing the ground. As these worms work entirely beneath the surface of the soil it is impossible to get at them with any sort of poison. Salt has sometimes been recommended but it would take such a large quantity that sufficient to kill the worms would destroy any vegetation. Clean cultivation and short rotation of crops are the best means of keeping under control both Wireworms and White Grubs.—Charles J. S. Bethune, Entomologist O.A.C., Guelph.

BUTTERCUPS—A NEW BREED.

From Farm and Dairy.

J. S. Dumaresq, in "Industrious Hen"

Three hundred eggs a year per hen. That is the record of this remarkable breed. For the production of eggs there is no other breed that touches them. The Leghorns, Hamburgs, Wyandottes, even the Rhode Island Reds "are not in it with them." Buttercups are non-setters, and lay practically all the time, even when moulting. They lay large pure white eggs. This new breed is extremely unique, totally unlike all others.

Some of them have legs of a willow-green color, while others have them of a yellowish color. The comb is their peculiar characteristic. It is neither rose, pea or single, but is formed like a cup or saucer on top of the head with points resembling a flower, hence the name "Buttercup."

Plumage of the cock is a butterish red, to a red, with black main, tail and wing flight feathers, very much the color of the Rhode Island Red. weight from 5 to 7½ lbs.

Hens are solid buff or somewhat spangled or laced after the manner of Golden Spangled Hamburgs. Weight of hens 4½ to 6½ lbs. They lay as well at two and three years of age as they do when pullets, and are good layers until six years old. They mature very early from three to four months, are very small boned, and have a great deal of meat as yellow as gold.

The gentleman from whom I procured my eggs writes of them as follows: "Unlike the crazy, wild, untamable Leghorns 'Buttercups' are extionally gentle and friendly. They are active and good foragers, and what is more important, they are light feeders. It does not require any more feed to keep in good condition twenty-five 'Buttercups' than it does a dozen Leghorns, and if given free range they require no feeding except during the winter months.

"They are extremely vigorous and hardy. The chickens feather and mature quickly, and are unsurpassed as broilers. Unlike Leghorns and the other egg-producing breeds, they are as plump as a partridge and the meat is of the very highest quality for the table.

"They have exceedingly small bones, and there is more meat on a 'Buttercup' than on any other breed of the same weight. Although of such excellent quality as broilers, on account of their size, they are not recommended as roasters, but for eggs, eggs, eggs, every day and all the time, without the shadow of a doubt they are the best and most valuable breed on earth."

"Buttercups" were brought from the Island of Sicily by the captain of a vessel, who brought a cargo of oranges, raisins, and figs to this country.

When ready to sail he bought a coop of fowls that he might have fresh meat on the voyage home, but they laid so many eggs he concluded to bring them all home instead of eating them, feeding them as well as he could during the voyage.

I have a pullet hatched May 1st, that laid August 15th, 3 months and 15 days, showing how early they mature.

I have given up Wyandottes so that there will be no chance for a mixture in breeds, and I am able to give the Buttercups more freedom than formerly.

HOW TO TREAT A MAN.

From Farm and Dairy.

By A. Horse.

When a man drops from sheer exhaustion or illness, promptly seize an end-board or a cart-stake, and pound him on the head and on the ribs. If this does not fully recuperate him, kick him violently in the stomach. This treatment will restore him if persistently adhered to.

If a man finds his load too heavy, and feels that it will seriously strain him to proceed, kick off a fence board and knock him down and then hammer him thoroughly. This will give him renewed energy, and he will make no more fuss. But do not on any account reduce the load.

If a man refuses to drink when you give him water, do not give him any water for two days. That will "teach him" to be thirsty at any time you find it convenient to attend to him. It is a good plan to ply the whip frequently on a man who is at work. No matter if he is doing his best, hit him now and then on "general principles," and to prevent him taking any comfort. If his load is not heavy, oblige him to go much faster to make up for it.

Tie your man's head back in an unnatural position with his eyes toward the sun. This will give him a "fine appearance" and prevent stumbling. In winter remove his clothing to "prevent his taking cold." He will also dry quicker when you overwork him. Men thus treated are "much healthier" than when allowed winter clothing.—W. R. Gilbert in "Rider and Driver."

WHY WE INTRODUCED HOLSTEINS AT RIVERSIDE

From Farm and Dairy.

J.W. Richardson, Haldimand Co., Ont

From the time the first acre was purchased by Mr. Richardson of what is now "Riverside Farm," some 40 years ago, we aimed to farm well and to add to the fertility of the farm. The soil previously had been heavily cropped and nearly all the grain and hay sold. The importance of using live stock as a medium between the farm crop and the saleable products, received proper recognition. In place of selling grain, we fed it to beef cattle, hogs, and cattle of dairy type. A pure-bred sire of one of the large beef breeds was used. The milk production of the herd year after year decreased, although better care and feed was being given the cows. At the same time it was found, that the dairy end was returning the largest revenue. The steers that were raised and turned off to beef, we found did not bring returns equal to the pasture, hay, and grain consumed, when valued at market price.

About this time we started to weigh and test each cow's milk, at least once a week. We found that a number of cows were making good returns, others were kept at a loss. This was a serious state of affairs, as in the meantime more land had been purchased, and a mortgage now stood against the farm. For several years at the end of each 12 months it was a fact that the farm had barely paid expenses and interest on investments. Under these conditions we were forced to make a change. The dairy end of the business had been paying most so we decided to place a dairy sire at the head of our herd. We found that we must specialize in our business. We noticed that almost all other successful commercial enterprises were run on some special line, and concluded it was time we cut out the unprofitable part of our farming operations.

We selected the Holstein, because she was the largest of the dairy breeds, strong in constitution, able to consume large quantities of rough, cheap feed, and she responded at the pail. We began a systematic weeding out of our beef cows. We selected one of the best pure-bred Holstein sires that we could purchase, and began crossing with our beef and dairy cows. The returns from this cross were very marked. As soon as we were able, we made a selection of pure-bred females from several of the most noted herds in Canada and the United States. About this time we had a sale of 12 head of grade Holsteins, that in the season had produced from 8,000 to 10,000 lbs. of milk. At this sale these grade Holstein cows sold at an average of over $10 each more per head than what other grade cows were selling for in our neighborhood. This was a surprise to many, who thought we were foolish in going into Holsteins. We also set about to raise the standard of our pure-breds, and commenced to officially test our cows for milk and butter production.

It is now 17 years since we commenced breeding Holsteins. The mortgage, which was a monster, at that time, and which had continued so long as we kept the general purpose cow and her offspring on our farm, has disappeared since we selected the special purpose cow in the Holstein-Friesian.

"Its Only a Cold, A Trifling Cough."

Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptive grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Sore Throat, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. It contains all the lung healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other pectoral remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucous, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be humbugged into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

"Mrs. J. Brewster, Grafton, N.S., writes:—"Two winters ago I suffered severely with a very bad cold and asthma. I was so bad I could not get my breath, and very often thought I would choke. My husband became very much frightened, and got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and it gave me almost instant relief. I can recommend it to anyone having the least kind of a cold."

At a recent meeting of the Kilkeel Board of Guardians, the master reported that an inmate came into the house some nights before and about 11 o'clock he was awakened by the sound of crashing glass, and on going to investigate the matter he found this newcomer, who was accompanied by a child, had smashed seven panes of glass, alleging that there was a ghost in the house, and demanding to get out, a request which he granted.

A large force of police recently made a general search through the townland of Ballintample, Co. Galway, for the purpose of discovering firearms. Every house in the townland was visited, but although it was believed that several persons in the district had guns the police failed to find any firearms except in a few cases.

Equinoctical Storms Are Due Within The Next Fortnight

Copyrighted 1909.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 10 to 14, warm wave 9 to 13, cool wave 12 to 16. This disturbance was expected to cause a great rise in temperatures, a warm wave of short duration and rapid eastward drift and be followed by a cold wave in northern and a cool wave in southern states. The intensities of all the weather features of this disturbance was expected to be greater than usual. Severe storms are probable about or immediately following March 13.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific Coast about 15, cross Pacific slope by close of 16, great central valleys 17 to 19, eastern states 20. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 15, great central valleys 17, eastern states 19. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 18, great central valleys 20, eastern states 22.

This disturbance will inaugurate a long period of unusually warm weather, but in a few localities the storms will be severe. Not much rain and very little snow anywhere on the continent. Not much cold weather anywhere for balance of March.

The traditional equinoctial storms will come during the passage of this disturbance across the continent. The equinoctial storms are very much misunderstood and orthodox scientists seem determined they shall not be understood.

The March equinoxes occur about 20 to 22 and the records indicate unusual activities about that time in the earth's magnetic forces. These magnetic activities are favourable to severe storms, which, about that time, may be called equinoctial.

But this increased force of the storms will not occur everywhere. Storm centres, on March 21, will be moving eastward across the continent and the increased equinoctial forces will take effect wherever those storm centres may be located and not at other localities.

My calculations say there will be two storm waves on the continent March 21, one of these in the eastern states and one on Pacific slope and I say that these storms, wherever they may be on March 21, will greatly increase in force within one day of that date. Watch it and judge for yourself.

Not because it will be the equinoctial day but because the moon and the planets Jupiter, Mars, and Mercury will be located so as to greatly increase the earth's magnetic activities on that day.

In other years these planetary positions may be such as to add most to the earth's equinoctial forces at any time from March 14 to 28 and therefore the equinoctial storms may occur in other years at any time during those two weeks but this year they will occur near March 21 and probably on Pacific slope and in eastern states and eastern provinces.

I am expecting a drouth in part of the United States that will somewhat affect crops. These bulletins will contain forecasts of that drouth.

The Methods And Principles Of Landscape Gardening

The Place of Imagination in Planning Landscapes and Lawn Planting---Detailed Instructions as to the Best Procedure---How to Grade and Shape a Lawn.

Written for the Examiner by Mr. A. B. Cutting, editor "Canadian Horticulturist."

NUMBER II.

In the practice of landscape gardening, man's imagination plays a most important part. It works wonders. Given a grain of sand, a drop of water and a leaf of a tree, man, in imagination, can construct the entire scheme of landscape effect. He can make the lawn, the terrace, fountains, ponds; he can group the trees and the shrubs and the flowers effectively — the greater the imagination, the greater the probability of achievement. In the sentiment of home improvement, the imagination is a stage whereon are enacted and depicted scenes of commonplace things and of things beyond the commonplace: it is a canvas whereon may be sketched the whole picture of a mature landscape. The imagination must be exercised in laying out and planning the home grounds. One must see in his mind not only immediate results, but also he must look beyond the present and plan and plant to produce the effect desired in the future.

In the planning and arrangement of the grounds around and about the home, the lawn - next in importance to the house itself. In landscape effect, the lawn is the heart of the picture and all other factors perform their special functions only when they serve to develop and improve the attractions of the lawn. The lawn is the fundamental consideration — the basis of the whole scheme of decorative gathering. Without a good lawn, one cannot complete the work of landscape gardening. There would be nothing upon which to build one's ideal, nothing upon which to work out the scheme that has been pictured in the imagination for the adornment of the home surroundings.

The acme of perfection in lawns is found notably in England. Some authorities on landscape architecture, particularly English ones, state that a similar state of perfection cannot be reached in this country. This is a mistake. In former times, perhaps, lack of attention (not fault of climate) made the comparison unfavourable to our country. Since then there has been a change. To-day, no finer lawns can be found than many of those that form a part of the urban and suburban homes and of the parks of Canada. The turf of English parks requires less care than ours, however, as plenty of moisture in summer and comparative mildness of climate in winter give England the advantage.

(In the penultimate sentence of the preceding paragraph the word "home" is used in its broadest sense. Compare a residence in the town or country that stands bleak and alone on a bare lot or plain, or stark and cold against the sky, with one backed by a few trees or a grove and surrounded with well chosen shrubbery and flowers tastefully arranged. The contrast is obvious. The former is nothing more than a "house"; the latter may be fittingly termed a "home.")

Planning the lawn

The lawn lends dignity and gives a rational and admirable setting for the house. To get the greatest possible results from a lawn, one must begin well; the after-care will then be much easier. On very small lots, the lawn should be level. On larger areas, it should slope away from the buildings. It is wonderful how, on even a fairly small place, the landscape idea being kept strictly in view, the most picturesque effect can be obtained by a skilfully graded lawn combined with a proper arrangement of trees and shrubbery. Character to the place is given by the contour of the surface. A lawn that gradually slopes away from the buildings or one separately located but with a slightly crowning centre has a more pleasing appearance than a low-lying lawn with a depression in the centre.

In nature, more delight is given by hills and valleys than by level stretches of country. The same effect may be produced on the home grounds, modified, of course, to suit the situation and the size of the area. Undulations should be produced when the size of the grounds and other circumstances will permit. On small lots, straight surface lines may be more in keeping with the surroundings. On steep hillsides, the grounds may have to be terraced. This will add much to the appearance of the place, but it is expensive.

Keep the lawn open in front of the house. An open expanse of green gives an air of breadth and extent that cannot be secured by other means. Have the lawn as wide as possible and group the trees and shrubs on the borders. These borders should be planted irregularly with grass running into the openings between and apparently behind the clumps of shrubbery. This makes the lawn appear as though it extended much farther than it really does. By preserving these openings, we may appropriate to ourselves distant scenes that may be made to appear as a part of the completed picture. The expanse of turf should broaden and increase as it leaves the house. This factor is secured likewise by grouping and arranging the trees and shrubs with the purpose in view. Generally speaking, the outline of the home-landscape idea is to have a properly located house, an open lawn and plantations of trees and shrubs at the back and on the borders.

Depressions and low-lying places in the centre of a lawn should be filled with soil, with a few inches of good surface soil on top. On the character of the soil depends the luxuriance or the poverty of the turf. Low, marshy ground on large areas, that are intended for parks and extensive private estates, may often be drained dry instead of being raised higher with earth filling. They may then be seeded. These may also be turned into ponds of water gardens. The next article of this series will discuss the general arrangement of trees and shrubs.

THE REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

Cold, Wet Weather Starts the Pain But the Trouble is in the Blood.

Cold, damp weather brings on the twinges and pains of rheumatism, but is not the real cause of the complaint. The trouble is rooted in the blood and can only be cured by enriching the blood and driving the poisonous acid out of the system. This is a great medical truth, which every rheumatic sufferer should realize. Liniments and outward applications can't cure the trouble—they can't reach the blood. The sufferer is only wasting valuable time and good money in experimenting with this sort of treatment—and all the time the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted—harder to cure. There is just one sure way to cure rheumatism — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the impure, weak blood. They purify and strengthen it, and so root out the cause of rheumatism.

Mrs. S. Bailey, Newcastle Creek, N. B., says:—"In the summer of 1906 I became lame in my ankles, but thinking I would soon get over the attack I did not seek medical aid, but used liniments to allay the pain and swelling. Instead of getting better the trouble increased and I then consulted a doctor who pronounced it articular rheumatism, and treated me for this trouble. Instead of getting better the pain and the swelling became worse until I was hardly able to hobble about the house. On rising in the morning I was unable to bear my weight, except with extreme pain. Having tried so much medicine without benefit I began to think I was doomed to be a cripple. One day a cousin advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She said, 'I take them every spring as a tonic for my blood, and they make a new person of me.' After some persuasion I decided to try them. I had taken three or four boxes before I noticed any change, and then it seemed my ankles were less painful. By the time I had used a few more boxes there was a wonderful improvement in my condition. Not only did my ankles get well, but I felt like a different woman and had not been as well in years. In speaking of this to a doctor afterward he said that no doubt Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had enriched my blood thus driving out the painful disease."

Not only rheumatic sufferers but all who have any trouble due to weak watery blood or impure blood can find a cure through the fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MANAGING TURKEYS.

From Farm and Dairy.

Mrs. M. Ryan, Peterboro Co., Ont

Last year I raised 50 good turkeys. I had my losses, however, and while I raised this number, I lost about 35. From the information at my disposal I judge that the loss was due to cholera and at that time I did not know how to treat them.

For the first two weeks, I feed young turkeys on bread soaked in water and dusted with pepper. We give them plenty of room and air at night and keep them clean by using plenty of insect powder. The turkeys are allowed to roam around freely when it is dry; in wet weather they must be sheltered while young.

When the turkeys are two weeks old, I feed them a mixture of ground grains composed of equal parts of barley, wheat, corn and buckwheat. This is ground finely together mixed with water and fed lightly three or four times a day. In addition to this I use a little herbageum or poultry food when they are young.

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS OFFERED BY CITY

A reward of twenty-five dollars, will be given to the person who will produce such information as will lead to the conviction of anybody for tampering with the alarm boxes and sending in false alarm. This was decided upon last night at the meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, on motion of Ald. Turner and Morgan. A notice to this effect will be printed on cotton and tacked over each fire alarm box in the city. This was arranged for in view of the false alarms which it is stated are being continually sent in and from all accounts from a malicious motive. The committee will do all in their power to find the parties who are doing this and will press the charge if they ever succeed in obtaining the necessary information which will lead to a conviction.

MISS ELLIOTT KNOWN TO POLICE

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Toronto, March 13th.—The mysterious Miss Elliott of whom so much has been heard and who has been so frequently referred to by Miss Florence Kinrade, in the witness box during the inquest has at last become known to the authorities and they will probably act upon their knowledge. Some evidence has already been secured concerning visits made by this Miss Elliott in company with Miss Kinrade to a number of places both in the United States and Canada as the girl has repeatedly told in her evidence. This woman it is learned had a great influence over the young girl and appears to have been able to make her do pretty much as she wanted.

DAVE HARTLEY STILL PLODDING

New York, March 13—(Special to the Examiner at 2.45 p. m.) With only fourteen hours remaining to the finish of the six day race, Cibot and Orphee the French team are still holding their lead of twenty-one miles and they are conceded the winners, barring accidents. Outside of their great performances, the chief interest centres in the pluck and determination shown by David Hartley, the veteran Canadian ped, who cannot be persuaded to drop out, although he is plodding along without a partner and without the remotest chance of getting near the money. The little Canadian says that he will be on hand at the finish, and he undoubtedly will, as he seems able to hang on for the balance of the race. At 8 a.m. to-day the leaders had travelled 681 miles 7 laps, while Hartley had put 381 miles 4 laps behind him.

BOYS SENT TO SHELTER

Willie Jordan and Stanley Hartley Taken Over by the Children's Aid Society—Were Charged With the Theft of Brass Fittings From Launch.

WERE IN COURT TO-DAY

Willie Jordan and Stanley Hartley were given over into the care of the Children's Aid Society, at the Police Court this morning. They appeared before the Magistrate, charged with stealing a quantity of brass from a gasoline launch and afterwards selling them to D. Florence. The boat was in winter quarters, along the river front, off Water street. The boys, the older of which is not yet fifteen years, and the younger, only ten years, it is said, entered the yacht yesterday and took the brass, afterwards disposing of it, for 25 cents.

Mr. F. L. Goodwill, solicitor for the Childrens' Aid Society, appeared for the youths. As both have been in court before for theft it was thought advisable to keep them at the Shelter until Monday, when it will be definitely decided what will be done with them.

WHO IS JAS. MORRISON?

Is He Mike Carlin the Man the Lindsay Police Are After?—Mr. Cochrane Has a Suspicion and Will Make Enquiries.

GUILTY OF VAGRANCY

Is James Morrison Mike Carlin?

Carlin, it will be remembered, assaulted Constable Short, of Lindsay, some time ago, and, according to the local police, he was last seen in the neighbourhood, or at least a man that closely tallied with the description of Carlin as sent out by the Lindsay authorities.

Constable Cochrane has a man named James Morrison, whom he arrested in Smith Township, near Lily Lake, in a little shack, which he had just built. Morrison had been there only a short time and his appearance suggests the missing man.

Morrison appeared yesterday before Magistrate Edmison on the charge of vagrancy, pleaded guilty, and was remanded until Tuesday to enable Mr. Cochrane to make further inquiries about Morrisons past. His appearance is none too prepossessing and the facts connected with his case are considered suspicious.

FINED TEN DOLLARS

For Purchasing Brass From a Boy Under the Age of 18 Years—D. Florence, a Junk Dealer, Before the Magistrate This Morning.

THE BOYS WROTE NOTE

David Florence was fined ten dollars at the police court this morning for purchasing brass from Willie Jordan, a boy under the age of eighteen years contrary to a by-law of the city. He pleaded not guilty.

Willie Jordan said that he was 15 years of age. He knew the accused, who was a junk dealer on Simcoe street. Yesterday he first went to Lowe's to sell some brass, but could not. Then he went to Florence's, where, after procuring a note, he sold it for for twenty-five cents. Stanley Hartley was with him. They did not get the money as P. C. McGinty came along at the time and stopped the transaction. Witness said that Stanley Hartley wrote the note. It read: "Please you are allowed to buy this brass," and was signed, "Mrs. Hartley."

Stanley corroborated what Jordan had said.

Florence said that he was a licensed junk dealer. The boys came along with the brass. He told them that they had to have a note before he would buy. They went away and about fifteen minutes later returned with the note. He showed it to P. C. McGinty. He took the boys and brass to the police station.

His Worship read a portion of the by-law to Florence and imposed the above fine to be paid in five days.

PLUGGING UP HOLES

Says Mr. G. T. Blackstock, in Speaking of the Inquest Proceedings in the Kinrade Case—Are Getting All the Evidence.

IS NO INSANITY PLEA.

Toronto, March 2—"We are plugging up the holes to prevent new evidence being sprung at the trial," said Mr. Blackstock, K.C., who is representing the Attorney-General's Department at the Kinrade inquest.

"Were you disappointed at the evidence given by the family?"

"No, we got all from the family we expected. But we were probably not prepared for such incessant assertions of the lovely relations of this angelic family. The absolute state of felicity that seems to have existed has not a parallel.

"We dont' want any willo'-the-wisp being brought up. We don't want to be confronted with any theory of insanity, or fits, or anything else that might tend to cover up the truth. We are giving them the chance to tell everything at this inquiry, and when an attempt is made at the trial to introduce anything new we will be able to say, 'We gave you every chance at the inquest, but you said nothing about it.'

"It is impossible to tell, of course, what more the coroner and jury may wish to find out, but all the evidence the authorities have at their command, including the autopsy, will be in this afternoon. Whether the jury will take long to deliberate as to a verdict I cannot tell.

"Dr. Bruce Smith and Dr. Clark are retained by the Crown to advise us in case of any emergency that may afterwards arise."

AN OUTLET IS IN SIGHT

Says the Representative of the Attorney-General's Department About the Kinrade Case—Full Particulars Expected To Come Out Soon.

JUST AS WAS EXPECTED

Hamilton, March 12.—Mr. G. T. Blackstock, K.C., representing the Attorney-General's Department at the Kinrade inquest, was seen at one-thirty this morning in the rotunda of the Royal Hotel.

"Things are developing," he said, "and all very nicely."

"Is everybody under police surveillance in this case?"

"No."

Mr. Blackstock said that whatever person the detectives had in view as the murderer of Ethel Kinrade before the inquest began, that person is more strongly believed to be the guilty one as a result of the evidence so far brought out at the inquest.

"The evidence is going just as we expected it would, he said.

"Would it be right to suppose that the detectives had someone in view all the time?" he was asked.

"Not exactly. Everyone connected with the case has an open mind. However(the evidence so far has confirmed certain ideas held before the hearing began.

"Do you see any outlet?"

"Oh, yes," began the lawyer. And then he added. "The case is by no means finished yet."

"Will you be through to-day?"

"We ought to have a verdict by 10 o'clock to-night."

Is anybody under the surveillance of the police? was the question asked of Inspector MacMahon when the inquest was adjourned at ten minutes to one this morning.

"Not that I am aware of," said the Inspector.

IS FLORENCE KINRADE NOW UNDER SUSPICION?

"She Can Go Wherever She Likes, But One of Our Men Will Always Go With Her," Said Detective Bleakley This Morning---The Ordeal---The Witness Box.

A WITNESS FOUND WHO HEARD SHOTS FIRED.

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Hamilton, Ont., March 13.—Florence Kinrade is under police surveillance. This was the announcement made at the conclusion of the trying ordeal which she went through for four hours yesterday afternoon and evening. The girl has been under the eye of the police more or less ever since the tragedy, but from now on a systematic watch is being kept over her and until the inquest is finished and the jury have returned a verdict the girl will be continually in the sight of the law.

Crown Attorney Washington acknowledged last night that the police were positive of the identity of the murderer and this coupled with the fact that T. G. Blackstock, the prosecutor on the case is evidently of the opinion that Florence Kinrade knows of the whole affair has resulted in the close watch which is being kept over her.

In the box yesterday, the girl withstood the trying ordeal in wonderful style and proved beyond doubt that she is a girl of more than ordinary ability with unlimited nerve and self-control. She stood up to the severe cross-examination in brilliant style, and there is no doubt in the world but that she forced the sensational finish herself.

Dr. Bruce Smith, the expert alienist employed by the Government to watch the girl, has been a very keen observer of her acts while she was in the witness box and after the collapse yesterday, he followed her into the witness room, where she was placed on a table. For several minutes she continued to yell and moan, waving her arms and kicking her feet until the doctor went over to her and in very sharp tones said: "Here, stop that racket, stop it I say, what do you think you're doing." The girl immediately sat up and was herself in a moment.

The police will not believe she is as hysterical as the many endeavours to make out and pay but little attention to these fainting spells, even though they do come after the relaxation following a very trying ordeal of several hours in the witness box. So positive of this and suspicious also of the fact that the girl is not telling all that she knows are the authorities that the whole inquest as far as the girl is concerned savours more of a trial than a mere investigation. She has been on the stand twice in two days now, and although Mr. Blackstock stated last evening that the testimony to be given next Friday night, would consist chiefly of medical and police evidence, there is no doubt but that the girl will be put on the rack once again and subjected to an even more trying examination than the one of yesterday. Mr. Blackstock is evidently bent upon gaining admissions from the girl's own lips and he fully intends to endeavour to wear her down with a series of cross examinations or so tangle her up in the stories that she tells of the crime, that she will be forced to tell all that she does know of the happenings in the Kinrade home of Thursday, February 25th.

The authorities can build up some nice circumstantial evidence, but they must have a story from the girl to fit in with the truth of the case as presented by the evidence given by other witnesses and gained by their own investigations. Until this is done, they hardly hope for a conviction or arrest of the author of the deed, and of whose identity they claim to be aware of.

The latest development in the case was made public this morning when it came out that the police possess a signed statement from C. S. Wilcox, who lives five doors east of the Kinrade home. Wilcox says that between 2.10 and 2.30, on the afternoon of the murder he heard 3 shots. He thought at the time that they were far away blasts, but after the crime came out he connected them with the murder. Mr. Wilcox left for Jamaica last week, but before doing so signed this statement for Crown Attorney Washington.

"Florence Kinrade can go wherever she likes, but one of our men will always go with her," said Detective Bleakely, this morning when asked to confirm the report that Florence was under police surveillance.

FOUND THEIR MOTHER LYING DEAD ON COMING HOME TO NOON-DAY MEAL

Had Dinner Practically All Prepared When Death Came—Sudden Demise of Mrs. William McGregor, Patterson Street, Yesterday—Daughters Left Her in Good Health on Going Out to Work in the Morning.

STARTLING EXPERIENCE

Coming home from work to their dinner yesterday, Matilda and Hessie McGregor, whose residence is at 505 Patterson street, were startled to find their mother lying on a couch in the dining room, quite dead. Their father was lying upstairs, having been confined to his bed with illness for some weeks. He knew nothing of his wife's death until told by his daughters. Three little sons, attending school, came in shortly after their sisters, and were equally shocked to find their mother had passed away. A doctor was summoned and stated that Mrs. McGregor had died suddenly, her demise being due to heart failure.

It is thought that her death occurred between eleven and twelve o'clock, as she had the noon-day meal practically all prepared. Evidently after finishing up her household duties, she had gone and laid down to have a few minutes' rest when she passed away. When she arose in the morning, she was in her usual good health, and in the thought her children when they went out in the morning that on returning home to dinner, they would find their mother as they did.

The family are stricken with grief over the sad affair. They have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement.

The late Mrs. McGregor was forty-four years of age and was born in County Derry, Ireland. She was married in the Old Country, 28 years ago, and came to Canada two years later. She had lived in Peterborough twenty-six years, during which time she made

There were also representatives from the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association and Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of the Farm and Dairy magazine, who has been behind the scheme, doing all he has been able to further it. The plan is to have a competition among the farmers of Ontario for the purpose of encouraging them in keeping their farms in the best condition.

A certain number of points will be allowed for each condition on the farm, according to the manner in which it exists. A similar competition was held in the neighbourhood of Toronto, and proved a splendid success, and the gentlemen who are advocating the extended competition are of the opinion that it, too, will be a success. They ask the Legislature to appoint judges and to make provision for the payment of their expenses incidental to visiting the farms that are entered in the competition. It is expected that the plan will be supported and will be carried out this summer.

Assyrians Wanted To Be Sent To Jail, Board Was Cheaper

"Ah, no pay de fine; Ah gotta no money. Bah, not a one a cent in de bank. Ah, no pay; Ah, go to jail."

In this manner Sam Bitteres (this is probably his name) one of the Assyrian peddlers arrested in Belmont for peddling without a license, gave a monologue in the county police court yesterday afternoon, which, alas, was lost on the empty benches rising tier after tier without a single "regular" to witness his outburst. Alex. Mike, a second of the trio, was just as determined to go to jail.

"I like gaol," he said. "I can get board there for nothing."

The County Constable remarked that they were going to have these men reversing the general order of things. They might attempt to break into gaol instead of breaking out. The last man, Killard Kuser, took things quietly. He could speak English rather fluently and was receiving instructions from Magistrate Edmison regarding the payment of the fines which amounted to $12.10 each.

Sam Bitteres, in the talk line, was all that could be desired. His effusive Assyrian lingo was as uninterrupted as a robin's song on an April morning. Mr. Cochrane now and then answered "That right," and Sam's hands spread out like a Hebrew comedian's, were pivoting in time to his overworked tongue.

Looked Like a Bandit.

Sam's appearance must have proved a detriment to his business. His hair was matted. A dark grey shirt wide open at the throat, his trousers kept in place by a leather strap, a moustache that turned up at the ends a la Kaiser William, and a short stubby gray beard, combined to present the appearance of a bandit or a buccaneer of the type that forced captives to walk the plank. Mr. Cochrane remarked that Sam must have terrified farmers' wives by his appearance.

The packs of goods belonging to the men were held by the court until they paid their fines. They stated that Abraham Aboud, of Norwood, gave them 20 cents out of every dollar's worth of goods they sold. They left the court to return home, hoping Aboud would pay their fine and reclaim the packs.

Drummond & Duffus Secure Agency of Ford Automobiles

The firm of Drummond & Duffus, with characteristic progressiveness, have secured the agency of the Ford automobile, one of the foremost machines on the American and Canadian markets to-day. All the agencies secured by this firm are for the best articles in the particular lines which they handle. The result has been that the confidence of the people for a strong line of goods has been secured, and in taking over the Ford automobile they have one of the most popular and favourite machines in use. Messrs. Drummond and Duffus will put the same aggressiveness into their new venture as they have in all their others, thereby practically assuring success.

The Canadian factory of the Ford "auto" is in Walkerville, and the American factory in Detroit. Mr. Ford, the founder of the firm, is a millionaire and a man who is keeping his money safely behind the business. The estimated output of Ford machines for this year is 25,000, and the amount of business done this year is already $500,000.00. All the favourite types of cars are turned out by this Company, from the touring car to the taxicabs with all the various intermediate styles.

In taking over this agency Messrs. Drummond & Duffus will open a garage for the convenience of users of the Ford car, and a competent workman will always be present. A complete line of supplies will be carried including gasoline and the general necessities and fixtures.

The Ford touring car's sale price is $1,000.00, this low figure being secured through the financial strength of the company, and its capability to buy right, thereby saving an amount which the user shares in. A Ford car will be placed on exhibition in the show room of Drummond & Duffus in a short time and a general invitation is extended to all to examine it.

WATERWORKS IMPROVEMENT.

Any attempt to complicate the new Waterworks dam enterprise with the Auburn or any other power proposal is not in the public interests nor in the interests of either proposal. The water works dam is the outstanding feature; it stands by itself. The suggested power production plan connected with that of the dam as a structural matter, is merely incidental and optional, and effectively a distinct proposal to be voted upon separately from the other by-law.

The by-law to be submitted on behalf of the Water Commissioners to authorize the raising of $120,000 to build a new waterworks dam will be voted upon on its merits separate from every other consideration. In this connection two or three points are to be borne in mind.

This new dam and new pump house are considered necessary to provide increased pumping capacity—to 10½ million gallons per day, a quantity that the rapid growth of the city will soon render absolutely necessary. The alternative to this course is to incur a cost of from $70,000 to $80,000 to repair the existing dam, and enlarge the pump house, etc., and still have a patched and unreliable system.

A new dam erected, as is proposed, about 500 feet below the existing dam and more at right angle to the flow of the river will be 100 feet shorter than a new dam on the site now occupied. This new dam will, at low water, produce 1,200 horse power.

The new dam being completed the old dam will, of course, be removed and the present power house and intake used in connection with a steam auxiliary plant. In view of winter conditions—frasil and anchor ice—it is necessary in order to make the city safe and satisfy the requirements of insurance underwriters, to either build a high level reservoir with a capacity for several days' independent water supply, or provide a steam auxiliary plant. The latter can be very economically done by utilizing the present pump house and intake.

As stated the proposed new dam will develop 1,200 horse power at low water with a corresponding increase at flood. The pumping plant of the water system will require 500 horse power, leaving a minimum of 700 horse power available for the purposes of the city; to do its own lighting or to dispose of in the interests of our industrial development.

It is to be remembered that the expenditure of the $120,000 called for under the by-law to be voted upon, will not add one penny to the general tax rate. The annual surplus revenue of approximately $10,000 will suffice to meet interest and provide a sinking fund for redemption of debentures on maturity. The commissioners have given the public as cheap water—having twice reduced rates—as any city or town in the country; yet sufficient revenue is produced to permit them to provide a first-class new dam and its associated works costing $120,000 without asking the ratepayers to contribute one cent additional through the collector of taxes

One of the speakers at the Board of Trade meeting on Tuesday night combatted a statement to this effect. He declared that the $120,000 would come out of the ratepayers' pockets. This is misleading in the sense intended. Materially the money will come out of the pockets of the ratepayers, but they get value for the money paid; they get value and the Commissioners give value and there is no obligation on either side. It would be just as reasonable to argue that the cost of a building a successful merchant may erect, comes out of the pockets of his customers. They paid their money to the merchant, but they received value; got back their money in another form.

Thus the $120,000 by-law of the Water Commissioners stands distinct and alone, and should not be confused in the public mind, with any other consideration.

Quite distinct, too, is the $15,000 by-law which the city council has properly decided to submit to the people. This is to provide an electric power plant at the eastern end of the proposed new dam.

If this is done in connection with the construction of the new dam it can be done more economically than under other conditions. This $15,000 will provide foundations, forebays, wheel pits, tail races, and power house for three dynamos for electric purposes. It is estimated that in undertaking this work in connection with the building of the new Water Works dam the cost to the city for power at the wheels will be be $2.00 per horse power per year.

It is also to be remembered that the present is an opportune time for building; labour is plentiful, employment needed; wages earned would benefit the employee and improve business.

The acquirement of additional power by the city as represented by the Auburn dam, is quite distinct and apart from the new water works dam, and its being put into prominence only tends to complicate a simple, straight situation. Whatever merits consist in the acquirement of additional power by the city they will not suffer by later consideration. If, after the water works dam is completed, and the electric power it will develop is appropriated or approximately appropriated, the other proposal will come in for consideration. Mixing the two proposals now will only tend to muddle both.

It is not to be forgotten that insurance rates will be advanced if increased pumping capacity is not provided.

THE GROWING WEST

The new provinces of the Northwest are not only advancing in material development, but they are not neglecting higher matters. Mr. James McCaig, formerly of the Collegiate Institute staff, now occupying the prominent position of superintendent of provincial schools, Alberta, in an interesting letter to the Globe tells a fine story of educational advance. The number of schools in the province has increased from 566 in 1905, to 1,070 in 1908. These figures present an admirable showing in the way of progress. It is probable that they will hold the same relative increase in the future, judging by the way in which the country continues to fill up. Friday's despatches inform us that at this early date in the season, settlers from the United States with abundant household and farm effects are pouring into Alberta and Saskatchewan. These speak for immediate good conditions; these settlers are ready-made farmers, experienced in the ways of the west, and ready to be incorporated into the backbone of any country, a thrifty and prosperous farmerhood.

The Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, became members of Confederation in September 1st, 1905.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES

The Government speakers in the budget debate in the Ontario Legislature grew eloquent not to say enthusiastic over the asserted thriving state, and the masterly administration, of the finances of the Province, speaking of the surplus and growing revenue, boasting as loudly as if the Government was really entitled to credit, after the manner of a barnyard cock, who cackles more loudly over the laying of an egg than the modest hen which negotiated the achievement. Hon. A. G. McKay, Opposition leader, in closing for his side the budget debate, neatly pricked the bubble of boasting. He showed that if Treasurer Matheson's argument, used when in opposition were applied to his boasted surplus it would disappear. He also showed that the vaunted increase in revenue—approximately $2,500,000 in four years—was made up of increases in revenue from sources originated by a Liberal Government and bitterly opposed by the Conservative opposition, with the exception of the increase in Dominion subsidy, granted by a Liberal Government at Ottawa. Mr. MacKay crystallized his criticism of Conservative financial administration under which the annual expenditure of the province had increased over three and a quarter million in four years in the following resolution:

"That this House regrets that, when a proper classification of current, as distinguished from capital, receipts and expenditures has been made, it clearly appears that the current expenditures for 1908 exceeded the current receipts, and this House views with alarm the large increase in the ordinary controllable expenditures of the Province during the past four years, particularly those under the heads of civil government and miscellaneous; the expenditure under civil government having risen from $344,006 in 1904 to $518,826 in 1908, and that under the head of miscellaneous from $139,077 in 1904 to $468,131 in 1908; and this House, especially in view of the deficit of last year, strongly urges a curtailment of expenses, particularly under the heads mentioned. This House further regrets the tremendous increase in the expenditures of the Province that are made without the annual vote of this Legislature, which expenditures last year amounted, under three heads of special statutes, Treasury Board minutes and special warrants to the large sum of $1,486,804, or seventeen and a half per cent. of the total expenditure."

The last clause in the above indictment has a very serious aspect—indicating a tendency to autocratic Government—a lessening regard for taking the people, through their representatives into confidence; a disposition further exemplified in the proposal to dehorn the Provincial Auditor and weaken his power to check improper expenditure, by making a minister his own auditor in respect to certain expenditures in his own department. It goes without saying that Mr. MacKay's resolution was voted down, which is no proof that its declarations and inferences are not justified by conditions.

There is not wanting evidence to show that an unduly large parliamentary majority is a menace to good administration and a temptation to abuse of the power of government.

"MUZZLING THE WATCHDOG"

Under this heading the Ottawa Free Press reasons as follows on the proposal to clip the powers of the Provincial Auditor:

A bill introduced into the Provincial Legislature by Treasurer Matheson to curb the powers of the Provincial Auditor is one of those measures which should be fought to the last ditch by Mr. MacKay, Mr. McDougal and the rest of the Liberals in the Legislature. It is, in fact, an attempt to remove the Auditor from the position which he should occupy, that of an officer independent of the Government of the day and responsible to the Legislature alone, and place him under the complete control of the Ministers. That is a decided step backward.

It seems that at Toronto, as at Ottawa, the Auditor has had difficulty in securing detailed statements of travelling expenses from the officials whose duties compel them to do a good deal of travelling. Mr. Clancy, like Mr. Fraser here at Ottawa, insists that when a man goes out on public business, whether he be Minister or official, he shall be bound to give an accounting of his expenses; but such a ruling is not pleasing to the men who now control the Provincial Civil Service and the result is that the Treasurer has introduced a bill to curtail the powers of the Auditor. It amends several sections of the Audit Act of last year and adds some new clauses. Here is one of these new clauses:

Where the account of any official for transportation, travelling and incidental expenses does not exceed the sum of $100, such account may be certified by the Minister, or acting Minister, to whose department such official belongs, and when so certified shall be sufficient authority for the issuing of a cheque by the Treasurer of the province for the amount thereof, and the Auditor shall countersign the cheque, and shall also countersign all cheques issued under the authority of section 17 of this act.

Under this clause the Auditor will be rendered powerless to check expenditures when the amounts involved are under $100; and when one considers how many small items can be grouped together in one account under $100, one can readily see how the door might be opened to very serious abuses if any Minister should be given the power to pass such accounts without any check by the Auditor.

That is bad enough; but there is worse to follow. Here is another addition:

The Treasury Board may direct in what manner and with what detail the Public Accounts and statements therein are to be prepared and may make regulations in regard thereto for the guidance of the Auditor, who shall carry out the same.

The Treasury Board may in like manner make regulations with regard to reports and statements to be made by the Auditor under section 17 of this act and the detail with which the same shall be printed in the Public Accounts, and it shall be the duty of the Auditor to conform to any regulations so made.

In brief, the bill proposes to deprive the Auditor of the right to discuss in his annual report his reasons for declining to approve of any expenditure. Now he has the right of appeal from the Treasury Board to the general public. But it is proposed to take this right of appeal from him, and to leave the electors of the province in ignorance of the reasons which may actuate him in censuring official transactions. When the Auditor in future objects to the payment of an account, the Treasury Board will overrule his objection and suppress all records of the objections of the Auditor.

Such legislation is not only retrograde and wrong; it is dangerous. It ought not to be permitted. It removes the power of independent audit and rivets upon the province the vicious principle of partizan finality in financial administration. It is a deliberate violation of the understanding made when the office of Auditor was created, and a complete abandonment of the principle that the Auditor shall be independent of the Government of the day.

It is, in fact, a carefully conceived plan to muzzle the "watchdog of the treasury" and should be opposed by all good citizens.

Cy Warman has been telling Chicagoans that Canada will surprise the world in the next twenty years. Naturally; hasn't Canada been surprising the world for the last ten?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The resolution of Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, providing that the sum of $200,000 annually, for the period of five years, be set apart for the purpose of protecting level crossings, is a move directly in the interests of the farming community, and one that all classes will approve. There has been a stirring up of public sentiment in this question and the action of the Government in this regard will be popular.

The Vancouver Province expresses the view that public opinion will be satisfied with nothing but a clear explanation by the Victoria Colonist of the garbling of the Borden telegram. "After all, no matter how it occurred, the fact remains that the forgery was committed, that the garbled telegram was published by The Colonist, and that the whole affair was a very nasty one—nasty journalistically as well as politically. Nothing could be more desirable than that it should be completely cleared up."

Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia and Defence, presented his estimates to the House and made a comprehensive statement as to the standing of the militia and what was intended for the future. The minister has reduced his estimates this year by some $600,000. He explained that the cost of sending 10,000 or 11,000 troops to Quebec for the Tercentenary was $230,000. Like other branches of the public service the militia estimates had been cut down considerably to conform with the falling off in the national revenue. The cut has been chiefly made in the item for annual drill. This will operate by sending fewer men from each unit to drill. The minister expressed the hope that the revenues would soon justify the sending of the full complement of men to annual drill.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

March 14th, 1909.

Aeneas and Dorcas. Acts 9:31-43.

Golden Text.—And Peter said unto him: Aeneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole, arise, and make thy bed. And he arose immediately. — Acts 9:34.

Verse 31.—Do darkness and light, fighting and victory, sorrow and joy, persecution and "rest" alternate and enter into every normal Christian life to-day, as in the Christian Community in the beginning?

When a church walks in "the fear of God," and "the comfort of the Holy Spirit," is it always multiplied?

Verse 32.—Was there any institution, in the Apostolic age, to correspond with our settled pastorate?

If preachers were to follow the Apostolic plan, of "passing throughout all quarters," would the final conquest of the world be hastened?

To whom did the name "saint" apply, in those days, and should we continue the use of it in these days?

Verses 33, 34.—Is all sickness of the Devil?

Are people sick by the special dispensation of God?

Does not God take most people to heaven through sickness?

What proportion of sickness is avoidable?

Are we to assume that God wants to cure everybody from their sickness, the same as he does from their sin?

Was Aeneas cured through his own faith, or by the power and I pleasure of God, without faith?

What is the difference in this cure and modern faith healing methods?

Is God's ideal for us, sickness or health?

Does God cure some people to-day in a similar way to the cure of this man?

Is faith for the cure of sickness a special gift of God, and are we not instructed that God will cure the sick in answer to such faith?

Verse 35.—When God does cure some cases of noted sickness, what are the results in the community?

If the Church should have the power restored of healing sickness, would that produce a permanent revival?

Verses 36-38.—Is it as a rule possible for a Christian to live without doing good?

How do you classify those who content themselves with going to church and prayer meeting, and talking and praying, and are not following Jesus in "going about doing good?"

Why did God permit Dorcas to die?

Why does God sometimes permit those to die upon whom so much depends: the bread-winner of the family, the mother of little children, the pillar in the church, or the "Dorcas" in the community?

Verse 39.—Should a Christian always be ready to go to the home of sorrow, to render help and impart comfort?

It is a beautiful custom to speak of the good deeds of the dead, and it is well kept up; but is there not almost criminal neglect in speaking of the good deeds of the living? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 40-43.—Is there any use today in praying that the dead be raised?

Why did God raise the dead in those, and not in these days?

What great purpose has that miraculous age served?

Even if these miracles should prove to be but legends, will it affect one iota, any essential truth of Christianity?

THE TREATY MAY BE REJECTED

Waterways Compact Has Been Altered Says Premier.

WILL BE DOWN NEXT WEEK

E. N. Lewis Introduces His Bill to Save Daylight Amid Applause of the Members — Senator Clorin Would Make Re-marriage of Guilty Party to Divorce Suit Bigamy —Separations Asked For.

Ottawa, March 13.—The much-talked-of waterways treaty, which the United States Senate tinkered to suit themselves after it had been agreed to by the plenipotentiaries, will be given out next week, but the Government may not accept it in the amended form.

"As enquiry has been made in the House several times in regard to the waterways treaty," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday, "I have to inform the House that a despatch has been received from the Colonial Office, and the treaty will be laid on the table on Monday."

"Will there be any announcement at an early date as to the acceptance by this Government of the changes made in the treaty?" enquired R. L. Borden. "I do not ask for an answer at this moment as to the Government's view, but only whether or not there will be an announcement at an early date."

"I may say," the Prime Minister replied, "that we were prepared to accept the treaty as it was. The changes made in it have reference to St. Mary's river, and we require some local information, which we are now trying to obtain, before we make up our minds whether or not we can accept it."

Mr. Edwards (Frontenac) tried hard to get the attention of the House yesterday afternoon while he discussed what he called "the excessive cost of the new buildings erected at Kingston for quarters for the servants of the military school. This was on the motion to go into supply, and as he wished to quote some of the remarks of Mr. Pugsley when the item was before the House, in conjunction with answers to questions on the order paper, he was ruled out, the subject having been previously debated.

The burden of his complaint was that the Minister had given misleading and incomplete answers, but as Mr. Speaker ruled the matter out of order he did not get very far. Mr. Pugsley, in his reply, was "all het up" and resented strongly the allegation that he had endeavored to conceal information from the House.

At another time Mr. Foster enquired about some returns ordered by the House that had not been brought down. "The committee," he said, "has been very lenient in the voting of money, but I want to give fair warning that unless these returns are forthcoming it will not be so lenient." The Premier promised to hurry the returns.

Mr. Currie introduced a bill to amend the adulteration act by abolishing the requirement that the complainant must deposit costs of analysis, and the provision by which the informant shares in the fine.

The House broke into applause yesterday when E. N. Lewis rose to introduce his bill to save daylight.

After informing his fellow-members that most people lie in bed the best part of the day, he explained that his proposal was "to move the usual hours of work an hour nearer to sunrise," and thus reduce the expenditure on artificial light.

The bill provides: "That from April 30 to Oct. 31 there shall be a local one hour in advance of standard time; that Greenwich time, for the purpose of navigation and astronomy, is not to be interfered with; that the local time shall not apply to the Yukon, and that the new system shall not come into force until one year from the passing of the act."

The Senate railway committee yesterday morning took up the bills of the Huron & Ontario Railway, a line to run from Toronto to Owen Sound. The company was incorporated in 1898.

Alex. Smith of Ottawa told the committee that the increase in bonding powers from $25,000 a mile to $40,000 for single, and $50,000 for double tracks asked for was endorsed by the Deputy Minister of Railways. The company was asking no municipal bonds, and, moreover, would have to pay heavily for entrance into Toronto and Owen Sound. It was intended to get as near the Union Station in Toronto as possible, and this would involve a big expense. The line has not been surveyed in the city, except in the northern part.

The committee gave the bonding power asked for and a two and five year extension of time for construction.

Senator Clorin introduced a bill to restrict the evils of divorce by providing that the guilty one of a divorced couple shall not re-marry in Canada, and, if he does so, he or she is to be liable to the bigamy provisions of the criminal code. To give religious societies and churches opportunity to consider the bill, he had the second reading deferred until March 24.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell gave notice for the production of any petition to place the Intercolonial under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission.

Senator Kirchoffer, chairman of the divorce committee, presented reports from that committee, recommending that the request of Frank Parsons of Westbourne, Man., for divorce from Ellen Weller, and the petition of Hannah E. Tompkins of Coaticook for divorce from Edward Charles Tompkins be granted.

Nervous, Tired, Anxious, Thin

What causes nervous collapse? Most people say worry, anxiety, brooding, but these are simply the outcomes of a lowered physical condition. When strong we throw them off, but when run down they hold us as by chains.

The true cause of nervous collapse is in the blood. When thin and watery it contains no nourishment for the nerves, no support for the muscles—result is collapse.

The truest food for the nerves is the nourishing blood that Ferrozone forms. Ferrozone builds up the nervous and depressed, not by stimulation, but by the surer way of adding flesh, blood, and strength. The whole system is vitalized, the nerves are fortified—you can sleep, work hard, and be free from brooding anxiety.

FERROZONE Makes Health

No health winner so certain as Ferrozone, no nerve strengthener more potent, no system tonic so well adapted to the wants of the rundown, nervous, or sleepless. Ferrozone is certain to cure if you give it a chance. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Willie Woodward, 13 years old, a worker in the Gibson Planing Mills, London, was caught in the shafting yesterday afternoon and almost instantly killed.

There is a rumor in New York that Hetty Green has bought a $700,000 residence on Fifth avenue, and that her recently-married daughter will live with her there.

Donald Sutherland, ex-M. P. P., South Oxford, has been appointed head of the colonization branch of the Ontario Agricultural Department, in succession to Thomas Southworth.

Frank O'Brien was yesterday morning sentenced by His Honor Judge Chadwick at Guelph to seven years in the penitentiary. He had pleaded guilty to five charges of theft at Mount Forest.

Sam Baird, 80 years old, who was Lucky Baldwin's side partner in the days of Virginia City, and associate of Flood, MacKay and Fair, was buried in a rude coffin on a Californian desert last Tuesday.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier told the deputation of Ottawa Liberals yesterday that unless he obtained the consent of Quebec East constituents he would not elect to sit for Ottawa. He did not expect that consent.

To Celebrate Anniversary.

St. Thomas, March 13.—The Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West declined to reduce the per capita tax of primary lodges raised some time ago to 2½ cents, and also refused to increase the grand treasurer's salary.

Capt. Wallace, M.P., denied the report that Dr. Sproule, M.P., would not seek reelection as Supreme Grand Master of British America in May at Peterboro. The 50th anniversary of grand lodge will be celebrated July 12, 1910, with special ceremonies.

These officers were elected: E. T. Essery, London, grand master; Harry Lovelock, Toronto, deputy grand master; Fred Dane, Toronto, associate deputy grand master; William Fitzgerald, Toronto, secretary; W. M. Hewitt, Toronto, treasurer; Rev. William Lowe, London, chaplain; W. J. Thompson, Toronto, D.O.C.

Next year's meeting will be at St. Catharines.

TO COVER THE PETTY EXPENSE

Col. Matheson Would Eliminate Small Vouchers.

MINISTERS CAN AUTHORIZE

Amendment to Audit Act Is Introduced to Allow Payment of Sums Under $100 to Officials on Cabinet Member's Word—MacKay and Studholme Raise Protest—Several More Bills Moved Along.

Toronto, March 13.—The budget debate disposed of, the Legislature settled down to routine business yesterday.

The House passed a resolution increasing the salary of the provincial auditor to $3,500.

Col. Matheson explained to the House that the proposed amendments to the Audit Act, contained in bill 125, were not designed to limit the powers of the auditor, but to make the present act more workable.

Another amendment provided that sundry accounts up to $100, when certified to by a Minister, should be passed by the auditor.

In the committee of the whole, some discussion took place in regard to this amendment. Hon. Col. Matheson complained that it was altogether impossible, in many cases, to secure vouchers for small items of expenditure, and it was often advisable, as in the case of detectives, that this should not be done.

The Premier stated that the Government could hardly ask officials to get vouchers for every imaginable item. The bill was the outcome of observations regarding the utter impossibility of working the present act. In reply to a remark by Allan Studholme, he said that there was very little suspicion on the part of the public with regard to public expenditures.

Hon. Mr. MacKay thought that instances might arise, as were indicated by the Government, but he thought it was a dangerous principle to introduce to allow the certificate of a Minister to sanction payment on an account, and he would be inclined to ask that the amount be reduced from $100 to $50.

The Provincial Treasurer replied that it was not the intention of the Government to use this clause unless compelled to do so.

Allan Studholme objected to the amendment on the ground that at every street corner you could hear talk of graft and charges of dishonesty.

"The hon. gentleman's remarks are altogether gratuitous," said Sir James Whitney. "There is no document or account in possession of the Government which cannot be produced. The Government assumed responsibility for the amendment."

The clause was passed by providing that where exceptions were made by the auditor, they would appear in the public accounts.

Hon. Mr. Duff's bill to amend the Stationery Engineers' Act was given a second reading. This bill provides that certificates shall be granted to stationery engineers who have resided three years in Canada or are British subjects. Difficulty had been found at such points as Windsor, where American firms, who have large contracts in Canada, would bring over engineers, who could get a license under the present act. This bill would be a protection to Canadians.

Hon. Mr. Duff's other bill to confirm the transfer of the Ontario Veterinary College to the Government was also given a second reading.

Dr. Downey moved the second reading of bill 145 to enable municipalities to purchase and distribute electrical energy under the control of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

A bill to enable municipal councils to undertake certain public works by the issuance of debentures will apply to sewage disposal works, which might be ordered by the Provincial Board of Health, and would have to be approved by that body, the work to be done to the satisfaction of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

The Attorney-General made an exception in the case of Kingston, where the police magistrate will be allowed to continue legal practice while holding that office.

Will Act as Arbitrator.

The Hague, March 13.—Deputy Desaverin Lehman, a member of the court of arbitration, has accepted the invitation to act as one of the foreign members of the arbitration court, to which it is intended to submit the Newfoundland fisheries question between Great Britain and the United States.

Pope Avoiding Fatigue.

Rome, March 13.—Following the advice of his physicians the Pope was not present yesterday morning at the Lenten sermon, it being desired that he avoid fatigue. He has, however, held in his apartments the audiences necessary for the conduct of Vatican affairs.

Influx From States.

Montreal, March 13.—Fifty-eight thousand people went from the United States to Western Canada last year, and the number will be greatly increased during 1909, was the statement made yesterday by A. C. Shaw, the general passenger agent of the C.P.R. in Chicago.

He declared that the farming classes in the Western States were taking a greater interest in Canada than ever before. One reason for this is that th boom in Texas lands is over, and the only new land left in that state is too dry for general farming unless irrigated.

Witness Punished.

Brantford, March 13.—John McMullen, an employe at the Canada Glue Works, sustained a broken leg and badly smashed thigh as the result of a steam evaporator machine blowing up. McMullen was repairing the escape valve when the accident happened.

Isaac Foster was convicted of perjury yesterday, while giving evidence on his own behalf, and fined $25, with one day's imprisonment. Foster contradicted the oath of three witnesses, that he had not been peeping into windows of a house on Bridge street.

British Naval Estimates.

London, March 13.—The eagerly-awaited British naval estimates, about which there has been so much controversy inside and outside of the Cabinet, were issued last evening.

A compromise won the day for the estimates provide for a total expenditure of $175,713,500, an increase of $14,169,000 over the estimates of 1908-09.

The new building program provides for four Dreadnoughts, six protected cruisers, twenty torpedo-boat destroyers and a number of submarines, the latter to cost $5,000,000.

Not Gain of Three Japs.

Ottawa, March 13.—In January and February the number of Japanese passengers from Japan to Canada installed 34. Thirty-one returned from Canada to Japan.

.PE-RU-NA AS A TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

In Spring and Early Summer a Tonic is Needed.

The source of good blood is fresh air and well-digested food. If anything interferes with digestion the blood becomes impure.

A catarrhal condition of the stomach prevents perfect digestion. Such a condition allows the food to ferment and decompose in various ways, instead of digesting. The blood is thus contaminated with various materials that do not belong in the blood.

This gives rise to spring fever, eruptions on the skin, general lassitude and constipation.

Peruna corrects all these difficulties by striking at the source of them. By eradicating the catarrhal condition of the stomach Peruna at once restores digestion, the blood is thereby purified, and the whole machinery of the body is put in working order.

Peruna has probably made a more remarkable record in cases of catarrh of the stomach than any other medicine. These cases are very frequent, and we have a host of testimonials in which Peruna has received lavish praise for prompt and permanent relief in cases of catarrh of the stomach

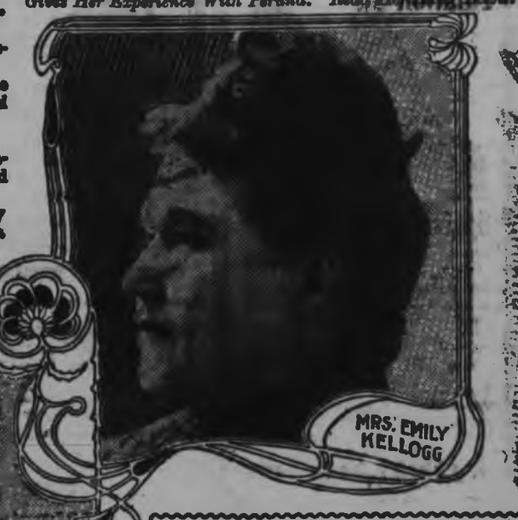
Mrs. Paul Casavant Writes From 219 Monroe Street, Topeka, Kansas, Concerning Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

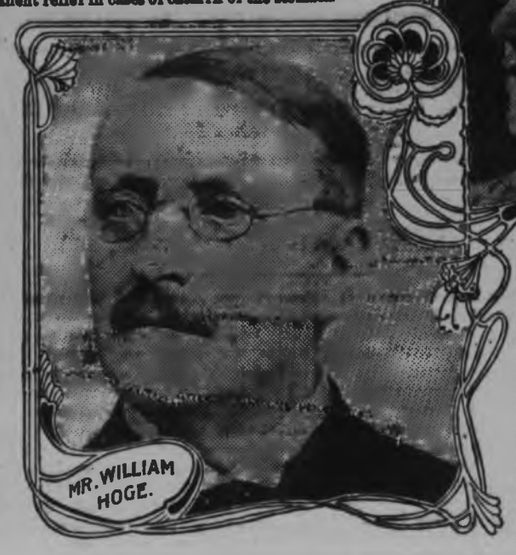
Mrs. Paul Casavant, 219 Monroe street, Topeka, Kansas, writes:

"I have found Peruna very effective in restoring my health and strength after I had been worn out and run down for a long time. I began to use it about six months ago when I was unable to leave my bed. My nervous system was shattered and I was daily losing flesh and strength. This condition was completely altered after a few bottles of Peruna had been used and I kept on using it until I was finally restored to perfect health and had gained about fifteen pounds.

"I feel so grateful for what your medicine has done for me that I am pleased to give it my hearty endorsement and shall always be glad to speak a good word for it."

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., South Tacoma, Wash., Gives Her Experience With Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:





Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., S. Tacoma, Wash., member of Ladies of the Maccabees, writes:

"Three months ago I had an attack of biliousness which threatened to undermine my health and strength. Luckily for me, I tried Peruna at the suggestion of my friends before it was too late. I found in a few days' time that I did not have the usual sick headache, neither did food nauseate me any longer. In two weeks' time Peruna had completely rid my system of the poison and bile, and I was in a much better condition. My skin assumed its normal color, I had a splendid appetite and I was in every way improved in health. I used Peruna for a month longer and it wrought a wondrous change in my entire system."

Tones up the System.

Mrs. William McRoberts, Waverly, Minn., writes:

"I am perfectly well of the catarrh. I took Peruna and Manalin. I recommend your medicine to every one and cannot praise it enough. It is a fine medicine to take any season of the year. Taken in the spring it tones up the system and acts as a gentle stimulant."

A Good Tonic.

Mr. Joe Leonard, Flat 3, 233 Allen St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"I have good reason to endorse Peruna as I have found it a good tonic, stimulating the system and sustaining it under great pressure, imparting unusual endurance and enabling me to work much longer and harder than the system could possibly do were it not for the great powers with which it endowed me. It gives one nerves of iron."

Mr. Caleb H. Bortell, Police Officer, 219 North Paca street, Baltimore, Md., writes:

"For several years I was troubled with catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. Many times I would vomit before and after eating.

"I took seven bottles of your Peruna, and I am glad to say that it has cured me.

"I feel more like living and working, and am not bothered at all with my old troubles.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh, and I thank you for what you have done for me, for none but those who have suffered as I have can appreciate a great cure as I have found Peruna to be."

Splendid for La Grippe.

Mr. Frank H. Fielder, 218 Pleasant Ave., Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe, and a good tonic for building up the system."

Pain in Chest.

Mrs. A. W. Gustin, 5209 Lake Ave., St. Joseph, Mo., writes: "When I began taking Peruna I had quite a severe pain and ache in the left of my chest. I suffered a great deal with it.

"I wrote to Dr. Hartman and asked him what I should do. He advised my taking Peruna, which I did. I took three bottles, and I can say I am cured.

"Thanks for kind advice and Peruna."

Mr. William Hoge, President Commercial Travelers Association, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y., writes:

"I endorse Peruna as the most effectual remedy for catarrh I have been able to find in my travels in this country or Europe. I can truly say that I have spent thousands of dollars in this country alone trying to find a cure, and it was not until I was induced to give Peruna a trial that I obtained anything like permanent relief. As a tonic it is simply great. It ought to be in the grip of every commercial traveler on the road. It cured my wife as well as myself. We have not had the slightest symptom of catarrh for a long time."

In a later letter Mr. Hoge says:—"I have used Peruna for many years, never without a bottle in my grip. I am the youngest feeling and youngest looking man of my age in New York, which I think is entirely due to Peruna."

Hay Fever and Catarrh.

Miss Mayme E. Smith, 444 East Mound St., Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

Eyes Red and Watery.

Mr. William S. Hearn, 1063 Segal St., Camden, N. J., writes:

"For about two years I was troubled with my eyes being red and watery, and my general health was very poor.

"Finally a friend advised me to try Peruna. I had tried almost everything else, so I purchased a bottle of Peruna and commenced to take it at once, and before I had finished the first bottle I found I was improving.

"I wrote you for special advice concerning my eyes, which I received. I continued to take the Peruna until I had used six bottles.

"Now my eyes are absolutely well, and I feel like a new man in every way.

"I honestly advise any one similarly afflicted to try Peruna."

Better than for Years.

Mrs. Mahala Reid, Corbyville, Ont., Canada, writes that she had constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble. She took Peruna and Manalin, and is now completely recovered, better than she has been for years.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN PROGRESSING.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

TEMPERANCE HOTELS.

Fear has been expressed in a few quarters, that if Peterborough carries local option, as seems to be the general expectation, the hotels of the city may deteriorate. This, it is claimed, would injure the city with the travelling public.

There is little reason for fear on this score. There are 38,000,000 people in the United States living in prohibition territory. This includes many large cities. And yet they have hotels and good ones. In several states the hotels, whether they have bars or not, are licensed. The hotels are inspected and are required to provide suitable accommodation. It is reported that the Ontario Government purposes enacting legislation of a similar nature in this province. The following article from The Pioneer bears on the subject:

"Temperance hotels will pay if properly conducted, in places where there is a necessity for hotel accommodation.

"Assertions to the contrary are often made by men interested in the liquor business, who attempt to defend that business by arguing that a liquor license is necessary to enable a hotelkeeper to derive sufficient profit out of his bar to make up what he loses by his hotel business proper.

"The supplying of meals, lodging and other conveniences and comforts to travellers must be reasonably self-supporting. If the service is necessary, it is right to charge a reasonable price for it. A reasonable price can only be a price that is profitable. The plan of giving a man, for fifty cents, a dinner worth a dollar, and then expecting him to buy fifty cents worth of liquor to balance his account, is too absurd to be either advocated or carried on.

"The unsoundness of the theory of impracticability is, however, sufficiently exposed by the fact that in nearly every part of the world temperance hotels are operated successfully, and in many places hotel-keeping is entirely dissociated from liquor-selling, the hotel and the saloon being separate institutions, meeting separate wants and patronized by separate constituencies.

"A good illustration is to be found in the Mills hotels, of New York, established some years ago by Mr. D. O. Mills, a wealthy philanthropist, for the purpose of giving plain, substantial hotel accommodation to men of limited means. The enterprise was at first looked upon as a charity, and its failure, from a financial standpoint, was predicted. The predictions did not come true. There are now three of these hotels, large, handsome, fire-proof buildings, with hundreds of rooms rented at very low figures, well warmed and ventilated. They have proved to be a good paying investment, and if such an enterprise, on a cheap plan, can be made a success, it is certain that a hotel business on a more luxurious scale would be equally profitable to those who engage in it.'

Funds for The Campaign.

Evidence of how thoroughly in earnest are the temperance people of Peterborough in the present campaign is furnished by the fact that contributions to the campaign fund are already being received. One prominent ratepayer in the city recently contributed a cheque for $50.00. The ladies of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church have voted a similar amount which is considered a very generous contribution. One gentleman has offered to give ten dollars a month. Others have volunteered to give smaller sums monthly. These contributions have been offered although, as yet, no systematic canvass for funds has been made. When people are willing to put money like this to drive the bar out of Peterborough it shows how anxious they are to see the cause of Temperance win a great victory in this city.

A Typical Result.

Ashtabula County is in Ohio. It went under prohibition a little while ago through the operation of the county Local Option Law. Here is what the American Issue reports as the police recorded the result:

"The total number of arrests in Ashtabula in January, 1908, with saloons, was 68; January, 1909, no saloons, 17. Arrests for drunkenness, January, 1908, with saloons, 39; January, 1909, without saloons, 4.

"Most of the crooks, criminals, and bums have left Ashtabula. Certain streets that were unsafe for a lady to pass are now as unobjectionable as any of our business streets."

Notes.

People who claim that even if local option carries in Peterborough it will still be possible to purchase liquor, should watch what is happening to hotel keepers who try to sell liquor in local option centres. At Baltimore, near Cobourg, and not far from Peterborough, which is in a local option district, Geo. Cockburn, a hotel keeper, was recently fined $50.00 and costs for having liquor for sale on his premises. It was his second offence. The liquor laws are being enforced as never before and the liquor sellers are finding it out.

At the Crystal to-morrow afternoon at 4.15 the address that was to have been given last Sunday afternoon, but which was withdrawn to make way for Rev. Mr. Fee, will be given by Mr. Richard Lees. Mr. Lees will review the address given at the Dominion Alliance in Toronto recently by Hon. Seaborne Wright on the campaign in Georgia.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight.'

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

OUR SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS.

No. I.—Introductory

It is my intention to write a series of short articles on this subject. They will all be short, a merit of which no adverse criticism will be able to deprive them. They will, also, have the merit, of a more doubtful character, of containing an expression of the honest convictions of an old man, not altogether without knowledge of the subjects on which he presumes to speak. Every man is interesting, if he is even moderately true to himself. I say "moderately," for I do not think it possible for a man to be true to his actual self. The most we can expect of him is to be true to what he takes himself for.

Though I shall aim,in these articles, to avoid writing anything unnecessarily offensive, I shall not be deterred, by any consideration, from writing what I honestly believe to be necessary truth, however objectionable it may be to some of my readers. I shall, to the best of my ability, make a plain straightforward statement of what I believe to be facts, and shall not be carried away by any desire for rhetorical effect.

Holding, as I do, some very decided views on this subject, I shall take the liberty of expressing them strongly and decidedly. If I am opposed, as I expect to be, I shall either acknowledge my errors, or, if I still think I am right, defend my opinions as best I can. I shall, however, refuse to notice any opponent who lacks the courage to write over his own signature; nor shall I permit myself to be drawn aside from the course I have marked out until that course is completed.

In the treatment of my subject I shall not confine myself to secular, but shall include religious, teachers. I am one of those who believe that no system of education is complete which does not make provision for the development of the child's whole nature; but I certainly do not believe that reading portions of the Bible, learning catechisms, or isolated verses, made to mean something different from what they were intended, can ever satisfy the longings of the soul, or, indeed, be of any value worth mentioning.

Our day-schools and colleges cram the minds of the young with what is called knowledge, most of which is worthless, and only a very small part of the money and energy expended on these institutions goes towards building up either useful or noble characters. Instead of being the outcome of a desire to aid in the development of the purest and best manhood and womanhood, our schools owe their character chiefly to the prevalence of the money-grabbing propensity of the day. Of our Sunday-schools I know very little; but judging from what the children say, and from some of those to whom they are entrusted, I should think that the good effected by them is very limited. I believe that the children from some of the best homes are not permitted to attend these institutions, and one gentleman told me the other day that his wife thought it necessary to try to counteract the impressions her children received in one of the largest and best Sunday-schools in the city. I can only say that I believe I have stated the simple truth about these institutions, and that I sincerely hope that it can be shown that I am mistaken.

I come now to speak of the clergy and, while I cannot say truthfully that I have any special regard for the fact that they are in what they call orders, I do have a special respect for them as a body of educated men who, as a rule, lead well regulated lives, and whose influence, on the whole, is exerted on the side of what they believe to be for the good of the people. So far I mean what I have said to apply to the clergy of all denominations. In what follows my remarks obviously apply to Protestant clergymen only.

The Protestant clergy, especially at the present time ,though they may not want it, and may even scorn it, have my most sincere sympathy. To say that we are living in a transition age is the merest truism. The same might be said of any past period. But events move rapidly in the twentieth century, and in no other department more rapidly than in religious matters.

I believe I am right in saying that at the Reformation the Bible was accorded a position, if not of a more sacred, at least of a more authoritative character. It was accepted by the Protestant bodies of the Reformation period, and has been accepted by at least most of those which have sprung up since, as an infallible standard of faith. From its real or supposed teaching Protestant creeds have been framed, and, as was natural, a very large measure of the infallibilty claimed for the book came to be claimed for the creeds. I believe that every attempt that has been made to revise these creeds has met with strong opposition. In religious, as well as in secular, teaching, "veneration for the past paralyzes action in the present and faith in the future."

That doubts should arise in the minds of thinking men as to the infallibility of the Book, and, especially, as to the infallibility of the interpretations of its teachings, was to be expected. That such doubts did arise in the minds of many able and honest clergymen none will deny. The doubts were increased and intensified by the revelations of natural science, and the investigations of Darwin. Fortunately these investigations have led, not to a repudiation of the teachings of the Old Testament Scriptures, but to a saner interpretation of their meanings.

The best minds among both the clergy and the laity look upon our whole civilization, including what we call religion, as the result of evolution, and cannot see how this view interferes with a belief in the fatherhood of God. For myself I can say that the teachings of The New Theology, a badly chosen name, have not lessened but increased by respect for the Bible.

But, since religion is the result of evolution, it is, necessarily, progressive, and cannot be indefinitely fettered by creeds which nobody understands; which, if they did understand, they would not believe; and, by which, if they did believe them, they would not be benefitted.

The great mistake in the Reformation movement, and the reason why Protestantism has made no substantial advance since that time, but has rather lost ground, is to be found in the fact that, instead of recognizing a continuous and progressive revelation, of a general, not of a particular character, differing in degree rather than nature, the Protestant sects have committed themselves to an infallible Book and infallible creeds, apparently oblivious of the facts that doubt means life and dogma is death.

In this introductory article, I have aimed at covering the whole ground; but I have, necessarily confined myself, mainly, to general statements. In my next, which, the state of my health permitting, will appear in next Saturday's Examiner, I shall go more into particulars.

STARTLING STATEMENT

It's Statements Like That of H. Heyman, Kingston, Ont., That is Making Mi-o-na World Famous For Obstinate Stomach Complaints.

Mr. H Heyman, 132 Colborne street, Kingston, Ont., says: "Mi-o-na is worth its weight in gold as a remedy to quickly cure long-standing cases of dyspepsia. For years I had suffered with my stomach and could find no cure nor even relief. I could not eat anything, as it would sour and form gas on my stomach that had a pressure on the heart. Heavy pains would come around my sides and pit of my stomach. I was unable to sleep for this and there was nothing to relieve my miserable condition. I was weak and languid and would feel as tired in the morning as on going to bed and perspiration would break out all over my body. I would be so weak from vomiting that I would fall to my knees. My head would ache and spells of dizziness would leave me unable to see. Doctors had termed the trouble gastritis, but failed to benefit me. I tried Mi-o-na, of which I procured a bottle on the advice of a friend, which has cured me when all else failed. I am sound and well and feel grateful to Mi-o-na for my present health."

It's the known results obtained by Mi-o-na that places it far and away above all other remedies and confirms Wm. MacH in offering to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure stomach trouble. 50 cents a box. Relief in twenty-four hours.

'Twas St. Patrick himself, sure, that set it;

On and Off Chat About Fat

The society reporter picked up the following gem at Madame Brewster's not twenty-four hours ago. One of her millionaire customers struggling into a new gown, asked the famous costumer how she kept her figure in such superb shape. "You habitually eat and drink heartily and even thoughtlessly, not to say riotously at times," she complained, "whereas, I live like a hermit. Yet I cannot keep slim, and apparently you can't get fat. "Guilty," replied the fashion czarina. "I admit I don't fatten up nor do I thin down, but it is because I have the power, my dear Mrs. ——— (the name almost slipped out), to say to my fat "Thus far and no further." I don't exercise nor diet nor run any danger of wrinkles nor stomach trouble either. Here is the secret." She wrote a few words on a piece of paper and handed it to her questioner. "Get that filled at the druggist's," she concluded, "take a teaspoon after meals and at bedtime and you will never get any fatter than you want to be. You can take off a pound a day with this receipt, if you want to

Being fat herself and fully alive to the tremendous value of these statements to fat folks everywhere, the society reporter committed an unpardonable social sin; she peeped over the lady's shoulder—and this is what she saw; For excess Fat, simplest, safest, cheapest, most helpful receipt of any; One-half ounce Mar-

"Either That Man Killed Her Or"--- Was Startling Question Put To Florence Kinrade Last Night

Miss Kinrade Faints After Gruelling Examination.

DID NOT LEARN TO SHOOT

Girl Denies Story That She Practiced With Revolver In the South—At the End of Testimony She Breaks Into Hysterical Cries, Shouting "I See That Man; He'll Shoot Me."—Adjourns Till Friday.

Hamilton, March 13. If truth is stranger than fiction reality can outclimax all art.

Screaming: "I see that man, he'll shoot me, he'll shoot me," Florence Kinrade was carried from the court room at 8 o'clock last night, after Mr. Blackstock had announced that he was through with her. The request was then adjourned until Friday next.

A report that Miss Kinrade would be under police surveillance in the meantime was later denied.

The dramatic scene at the close of the session here has never been surpassed in the intensity of its absorbing interest, the fascinating character of the leading actors in the scene, and the engrossing and tragic problem around which the scene centered.

Miss Florence Kinrade, sister of the murdered girl; the only member of the family in the house when the act was committed, and the only witness with any explanation of the mystery to offer, had sat for three hours and a quarter on the witness stand before the terrible insistent inquisition of George Tate Blackstock, K.C., the crown examiner.

He had once more gone over the whole ground of the tragedy, probed every circumstance and with circumscribed latitude gone into every detail of the within life for two years or more.

A pretty girl, not in the merely conventional sense but attractive in a way that no portraits have done justice to, cool, self-possessed, keenly attentive, always avoiding the gaze of the counsel, with eyes upcast towards the top of the distant door; with gentle voice and quiet ways, clever, having taken first-class honors in music at Toronto University, she sat throughout the last-affected until the close of the scene.

She was the real centre of the enquiry. The coroner never interfered. He hasn't asked a question since the enquiry began. Mr. Hobson, counsel for the Kinrade family, also sat dumb and let Mr. Blackstock ask whatever he wanted to know about, relevant or irrelevant.

The crier called for silence. The policemen listened. The reporters scribbled. The small crowd shuffled its feet and repeatedly called down anathemas from counsel.

Mr. Blackstock probed on and on and on. How did she sleep? What did she do in Toronto? Where had she traveled? Did she stay at Savannah or Atlanta? When was Miss Elliott married? Had she ever fired a revolver? Did she travel alone? How often did she stay at the Queen's Hotel alone? What was Mr. Baum like? Where did she sing on Spadina avenue? Who collected the rents? All manner of questions led up to the recapitulation of the story of the tragedy itself. In the most intense stillness Mr. Blackstock led up to the climax.

"Miss Kinrade," do you know anything about the revolver with which this deed was done" "I don't."

"Do you know anything about cartridge shells after your sister was shot?" "I don't know."

The responses at this juncture were given in very low and quiet tones, and the stillness in the court room approached a dramatic intensity. The questions were put with slow deliberation.

"What became of the revolver?"

"I wouldn't know what he did."

"Do you know?" "No, I do not."

"You do know the awful solemnity of these questions?" "Yes."

"You know it would be an awful sin to vary a hair's breadth from the truth?" "Yes."

"Do you tell me in these solemn moments and under these solemn circumstances that you do not know who killed your sister?"

"I do not know that man," came the quiet reply.

"Either that man killed her or else—"

"If no man was there only you two were alone in the house?"

"Yes".

"That will do."

The sympathy of a large part of those present had been with the witness up to this moment. There were contradictions and conflictions and difficulties, but the excitement of the time, her fright and nervousness might have explained these.

Instead of rising to go, she slowly closed her eyes, swaying slightly, but not changing color. A moment or two was lost while a constable came to her assistance. She settled quietly back into his arm. The nurse was called and an attempt was made to lift her from the box. The chair prevented and was discarded and borne by nurse and constable an attempt was made to pass behind the coroner from the room. Her fiance, Mr. Wright, also came forward. Then she began to shriek.

"I see that man."

"Ah—" that man."

"He'll shoot me," and with these dismal shrieks she was conveyed to an inner room.

The inquest to suit the jury was adjourned to next week and this having been decided Dr. Hay could was chosen to visit the town, which expects to have important evidence by that time.

Harry Woodbridge, a coachman, testified to having driven a lady to house near Kinrade on the fatal Thursday, and that he had waited there from 3.52 to 4.10 p.m.

"What did you see?" asked Mr. Blackstock.

"I saw a lady come out of the house a few doors away from Mrs. Kittson's. She looked as though she had a shawl over her head and a baby in her arms. Then I saw Brown, the grocer, come out of his shop and come toward me. He went into Mrs. Kittson's. Mrs. Kittson came out of her house. The doctor came in, then the patrol wagon."

He had heard no shots, nor had he seen any suspicious character.

Detective Bleakley recalled, was asked by a juror whether, if Ethel had fallen face forward from a chair when shot, her face would not have shown bloodstains.

"Of course," said Mr. Blackstock, "you don't know whether she was sitting on the chair?" and the detective said not.

Earl Kinrade said he had been transferred by the Bank of Commerce from Montreal to Hamilton the day before the tragedy. "Emphatically" was his reply when asked if he confirmed the other members of the family as to the harmony of the household. There were no estrangements, and the feelings between the sisters "could not have been better."

"Had you heard anything about a revolver being brought back from the south by your sister Florence?" "No."

"Never heard that in your home?" "No."

"Are you sure about that?" "Positive."

"Did you hear anything about her using a revolver in the south?" "May I ask for what purpose?"

"For any purpose." "Yes."

"When did you hear of that?" "I don't remember."

"You heard of her using a revolver in the south, but you did not hear for what purpose?" "Exactly."

"Was that in one of her letters?" "I heard my father say something about it."

"What did you hear your father say?"

Earl said that his sister went to Savannah, where there are a lot of colored people. She practiced with a revolver before going there, not as a means of injuring anyone, but just for protection.

"That's what your father told you?" "That's what I derived from what he said."

Earl said Florence had gone to Savannah with Miss Elliott, whom he had never met. He did not know of any others of the family had ever met her, or if she had ever been at the Kinrade home. He did not know where she was now.

That the family had objected to Florence's handling a revolver, lest with her nervous temperament some harm would result, was a question by Mr. Blackstock, to which witness assented to, but later revised, saying he didn't mean it if he had said it. The court reporter's notes finally showed that his reference had been to "their" temperament. Florence, he said, "had the ordinary temperament that a girl would have." Others in the family were more nervous.

In conclusion, witness affirmed he could not, and to the best of his knowledge no member of the family could furnish any further clues to the solution of the mystery.

"You are not able to throw any more light on it?" asked the examiner, and he replied "none at all."

Miss Florence Kinrade was the next witness called. After several questions Mr. Blackstock asked:

"While you were down south did you have occasion to familiarize yourself with the use of firearms." "I remember that Mr. Warburton told us that he would have to be armed."

"What did he tell you about how you would have to be armed?" "On account of there being so many colored people. He said he would have to be armed."

"Did you intend to be armed?" "Oh, no; he was with us."

"Did you practice with a revolver at all?" "Not at all."

"There was never any talk at any time about your practicing with a revolver?" "No."

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted.

Or again, you have, a sinking sensation, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps, you wake in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and rest leaves you for the night. If you allow these conditions to continue for a short period even, you will begin to feel your health declining. It is the nerves and heart not acting rightly, and they can only be set right by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action.

Mrs. E. Natt, St. Mary's, Ont., writes:—"I can gladly recommend your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as I was greatly troubled with my nerves. I was so bad I could not sleep at night without the lamp burning, but after taking four boxes of the pills I became all right again."

Price, 50 cents per box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In the past few years Mrs. Miller has given $125,000.00 in sending medicine to afflicted women.

Several years ago, Mrs. Miller learned of a mild and simple preparation that cured herself and several friends of female weakness and piles. She was besieged by so many women needing treatment that she decided to furnish it to those who might call for it. She started with only a few dollars capital, and the remedy, possessing true and wonderful merit, producing many cures when doctors and other remedies failed, the demand grew so rapidly she was several times compelled to seek larger quarters. She now occupies one of the city's largest office buildings, which she owns, and almost one hundred lady clerks and stenographers are required to assist in this great business.

Some time ago it was announced that she would give to women who suffered from female diseases another $10,000.00 worth of her medicine. She has fulfilled this promise, but as she is still receiving requests from thousands upon thousands of women from all parts of the world, who have not yet used her remedy, she has decided to give away $50,000.00 more to those who are suffering and unable to find relief.

Mrs. Miller's wonderful remedy is especially prepared for the speedy and permanent cure of leucorrhea or whitish discharges, ulceration, displacements or falling of the womb, profuse, scanty or painful periods, uterine or ovarian tumors or growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feelings up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness and piles from any cause or no matter of how long standing.

How To Cure Any Case of Piles.

I want to tell you flatly and plainly that any woman, or man either, for that matter, who suffers from any form of piles, may place their faith absolutely in my treatment. They won't be disappointed. It is intended for piles as well as the diseases peculiar to women. It heals diseased membrane surfaces, no matter where located, and I verily believe that this remedy has cured more bad cases of piles of all kinds than all the so-called "pile cures" and doctors in the country. A cure with my remedy is speedy. It's safe, and it's lasting. The intense torture, the burning, smarting and itching stop at once and you feel better right from the start. Send for my free treatment at once and see for yourself.

Why Men Desert Their Wives.

Eighty Per Cent of the Wife Desertions and Divorce Due to Female Weakness.

I should have taken better care of myself, I suppose. I was sick and suffering. No one but a woman can ever know how I suffered. I was irritable. I couldn't be to my husband the wife that I ought to have been. He, being a man, couldn't understand. We drifted apart. He sought his pleasures elsewhere. Finally there was nothing but the divorce court that could settle our differences.

That's the sad story that eight out of every ten women who have passed through the ordeal of the divorce court, as well as the countless thousands of deserted wives who are not divorced, know deep down in their heart was the real cause of her trouble.

A sick wife, a neglected home, and the publicity and disgrace of the court room to end it all. There wouldn't be half as much talk of the divorce evil in the world if only every wife and mother would realize her duty to preserve her health and strength.

No woman has the right to expect her husband to devote his leisure hours to his home and her when she is leading a dragged out, hopeless, down-in-the-mouth existence that would discourage the greatest optimist on earth.

Mrs. Cora B. Miller's marvellous home remedy has done more to prevent divorce than all the messages to congress and conventions in the world. The woman who is bright and cheerful and well has a home that reflects her own good feeling and discontent finds no place therein.

Mrs. Miller's aid and advice is as free to you as God's sunshine or the air you breathe. She wants to prove to you her common-sense home treatment will cure you just as surely as it cured her years ago in her humble cottage.

If you are a sufferer from any female trouble, no matter what it is, send the coupon below to Mrs. Cora B. Miller at once.

Put Your Faith In Mrs. Miller

My word that my home treatment should unfailingly relieve you of female diseases or piles doesn't necessarily mean anything. But when my word and medicine is backed up by over a million ladies, that's evidence you cannot doubt. There is hardly a country or small village in the land that does not number some poor sufferer cured. I didn't force them to use my medicine. They took it of their own free will and it cured them. You can put your faith in that sort of remedy every time. Just cut out the coupon, send it today, and prove what this marvellous treatment will do for you.

THIS NOTED DIVINE SAYS:

"I am personally acquainted with Mrs. Cora B. Miller. I most cheerfully and voluntarily testify that myself and family have been greatly benefitted by the use of Mrs. Miller's home remedies and heartily recommend them to the general public."—Rev. P. G. Roscamp, D. D., Presbyterian Minister.

The offer is made to return the same to their resting-place in the tomb near the quaint old Mohawk church graveyard, where Jos. Brant and a relative were buried.

Enquiry yesterday revealed the information from Capt. Ashton that the tomb was broken into, but it was not thought robbery was committed. The Brant Historical Society intend to take up the matter.

STRATHS HAD EASY VICTORY OVER CHURCH LEAGUE WINNERS

ST. ANDREWS BEATEN BY 7 TO 3

The St. Andrew's team, Church League champions, failed to show much class in their game with the Strathconas last night and the High Commissioners with a patched up team from which six of the regulars were missing had no trouble in romping away with a 7-3 victory.

The half score was two all.

The City Leaguers should have won by a bigger score and their victory was easier than the count would indicate, as Connie Halpin, of the West Ends, who was in the nets for the Saints, robbed them of several goals by splendid stops of shots from close in. Mg. Williams, Dusty, Ray, Long, Weatherstone and McMillan were absentees from the Straths' lineup, and Short and Rose, of the West Ends, and Curtis, of the "Tame Banties," were called in to fill up the vacancies. At that the Straths had little trouble in putting away the champions, and had it on the Saints in everything but condition.

St. Andrew's were ahead twice, leading at one stage by 2-0, and being ahead 3-2 immediately after half time, but the Straths slammed in five in a row after that and put the game on ice. The first two goals for the Church Leaguers were scored when the Straths wer playing five men to seven, and they were a man short when the third counter was bagged.

The winners, considering the patched nature of the team, played good hockey getting away with a lot of useful combination, while they had too much speed for the losers and covered up their checks so that the Church Leaguers had little chance to break away.

Wilson was reliable and accurate in his goal work, and little fault could be found with the defence. Curtis checked well, although he was the lightest man on the ice, and his rushes were useful, while Seymour's shooting was a feature. All played well on the forward line, Gus Rose being especially prominent by his great back checking. Hall shot nicely from left wing.

The St. Andrew's team lacked speed and found it a pretty difficult matter to shake off their checks. Then, too, the passes of the losers were ill-timed and not effective, they losing chances to score when close in by passing out to the wings.

Halpin played a star game in goal, his work at all times being brilliant. Stanton and Flanagan were a heavy defence, but were slow in their methods. Currie was about the pick of the forward line, although the others all worked hard and did good work at times.

Harry Morgan refereed the contest to the satisfaction of both teams.

The Straths pressed from the start and kept the puck hovering in the neighbourhood of the Saints' citadel, but they were seemingly not able to score, although they had all the best of the going. Then Seymour and Dobson were sent off nearly together, and with two men to the good St. Andrew's suddenly became dangerous. Currie rushed nicely up the left side of the rink and hammered one past Wilson for the first goal of the night and repeated the feat thirty seconds afterwards, putting the Church team two goals to the good.

The Straths got them back quickly, however, as soon as their men were back on the ice. The forwards pulled off a nice combined run and although the shot was blocked, Rose secured the rubber and slipped one by his erstwhile team-mate. Seymour tied up the score a few minutes afterwards on a pretty shot from centre ice which fooled Halpin completely.

The beginning of the second half saw a desperate combardment of the Saints' goal in which Halpin was called upon to pull off a number of pretty stops. Half a dozen times a score seemed certain, but the rubber was headed off. Finally the Saints broke away and Rae went down the ice for a score that put St. Andrew's once more in the lead. It was for the last time, however, as the losers never had a look-in from that period on.

Seymour got away for a nice rush up the side and scored on a shot which hit Stanton on the shoulder and carromed into the net.

That tied matters up, but the Straths forged ahead a moment afterwards, when Seymour following one of his long shots behind the St. Andrew's goal, passed out in front to Short, who had nothing to do but tip the rubber into the nets, leaving the score 4-3 in favour of the Straths. Rose made it 5-3 shortly afterwards by slipping one past Halpin from close in and then the Straths broke away for the prettiest combination rush of the night, which culminated in Hall heaving one past Halpin so fast that he never had a chance to stop the rubber. Seymour scored the final goal on a neat rush and shot from well in. The Straths were pretty tired when the final whistle blew and for some time before were content to play a defence game. Seymour saved a likely goal just before time was called by throwing his stick and was penalized. The teams and summary were as follows:

St. Andrew's 3.—Goal, Hulpin; point, Stanton; cover-point, Flanagan; rover, Rae; centre, Dorner; right wing, Currie; left wing, Rae.

Half time.

5 St. Andrew's, Rae; 6 Strathconas, Seymour; 7 Strathconas, Short; 8 Strathconas, Rose; 9 Strathconas, Hall; 10 Strathconas, Seymour.

EARTH ROADS AND THEIR MAINTENANCE

From Farm and Dairy.

W. B. Rittenhouse, Beamsville, Ont.

A mistake that has heretofore been generally made in road construction is by making them too wide, thus costing too much in building and maintenance. Narrow them down to from 18 to 24 feet depending upon the amount of traffic. Besides the saving in maintenance, by centralizing the traffic, you have a firmer and consequently a better road. A road I undertook to improve a few years ago was 20 feet wide. The first season I turned two furrows with the plow on each side towards the fences, thus narrowing it about four feet. The next year I turned one more, so that now I have a road about 24 feet wide.

Many of our roads as we find them to-day have received more or less attention from time to time by grading, perhaps every five, ten or fifteen years, and during these periodic intervals, little or no attention has been given them, except perhaps in the spring, when the leveller was passed over them once or twice. The results of such a system must be evident to all, namely, that after the grading was done the grass and weeds finding a favorable "spot" on this newly cultivated ground take unmolested possession of the road, from the wheel tracks to the gutters. The grass and weeds, adjoining the travelled portion of the road make an ideal lodging place for the mud and dust, thrown up by the traffic, so that soon an elevation or shoulder is formed, thus preventing the free escape of water from the ruts and the depressions formed by the traffic. You then have all the conditions that could be desired to do the road with the assistance of the traffic the greatest possible injury. This system left the roads almost invariably in far from ideal condition during the greater part of the year.

A newly graded road (unless special attention is given by repeated rollings, draggings, etc.) is not generally left in good condition the first year, and therefore has a tendency to force the traffic whenever possible to the sides, whereas it should be directed at once to the centre to make it firm and compact. A plan I have sometimes adopted on a newly graded road with good results, to induce the traffic to the centre, is by making a few rounds with a wide-tired wagon, after which they all fall in line. Such a road will need careful and frequent looking after the first season. As soon as it becomes the least rutted with use, which it is certain to do with the first traffic, use the split-log drag repeatedly whenever indications show an uneven road surface, and you will soon have a road that is worthy of its name, and not hear of such uncomplimentary remarks that one frequently hears, of the abominable condition of the roads. My plan of operation is that when a road is once graded, it can ever after be maintained with far less expense, and a very much better road at all times as a result, and never a general "tear up" at any time.

The good old adage "a stitch in time saves nine" is specially applicable in road maintenance, and if observed more would save many dollars and give us better roads. It is necessary to pass the drag occasionally over the road from gutter to gutter, thus never allowing any grass or weeds to grow, as such would be, not only unsightly, but also prevent the judicious use of the drag, and have a tendency to check the free escape of water, and retain moisture in the soil to the injury of the road. By this method of procedure you have at all times an even, uniform road surface from gutters to centre of road, hence no water permitted to remain on the road, with which the traffic can create an elongated mud puddle so universally to be met with.

Many of our roads, are already sufficiently graded, that is they have enough drop from the centre of the road to the gutters, and yet they are in bad condition, on account of the shoulder at the sides, which must necessarily be removed in order to put the road in proper shape. When the sod and earth is not too stiff or firm, this can be cut off with the grader, as well as the grass and weeds right down to the gutters. When it is done in that way, it will be necessary to use the disk harrow to cut up the sods after having been carried on to the road, and then by applying the roller and the split-log drag, you have it in good shape for future maintenance at a nominal cost.

Another way less expensive, and I think preferable to accomplish the same results, is to first cut up the sods with a disk harrow and cultivator, or by shallow plowing and then cutting up the sods and moving them on to the road with the drag. One man and team will do nearly as much in a day as two men and teams with the grader at such work, thus leaving the grader free to do the work on new roads being constructed, and where more earth is required to be moved. When our earth roads are once got in that condition, then and not until then, can we expect to have good and cheap roads during the greater part of the year.

Indigestion Is Very Easily Cured

Five Minutes After Taking Some Diapepsin all Distress Will Go

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep a case of Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and regulate a sour stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why they cure indigest on, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and prevent at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion with the common everyday cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe theirs is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which will putrefy in the entire digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

One candy-like Triangule, taken after eating, will promptly digest all your food, the same as a strong, healthy stomach would do it.

FAVOUR AUTOMOBILE LEGISLATION.

From Farm and Dairy.

In the February 25th issue of Farm and Dairy, we offered to print a petition form asking the Ontario Legislature to pass some stringent form of legislation, which will effectually protect farmers from reckless parties who race their automobiles on the country roads without regard to the rights or convenience of others. This petition was to be printed on condition that at least 20 of our readers will write us that they will undertake to circulate the petition. As yet we have failed to receive the number of replies asked for. Can this mean that our Ontario farmers have no interest in this matter? Are they content to allow autos to drive them and their women folk from the roads, as they have done for some time past?

Some of our readers have come out strongly in favor of petitioning the Legislature for legislation stringent enough to regulate the automobile nuisance. Here are a few extracts from their letters:

Mr. F. Birdsall, Peterboro Co., writes: "Farmers should have at least two days in the week that any member of their families can drive on the roads without risk of being hurt or killed. As it is now, my wife, who used to be very fond of driving, will not venture on the roads in the summertime, for fear of meeting an automobile. We have built most of the roads, and it is not right that we should be driven off them. Send me a petition, and I will get you many signatures."

Mr. J. W. Robbins, Prince Edward Co., writes: "If you send me a copy of your petition concerning automobiles, I wil see what can be done in this locality towards securing signatures to it."

Mr. B. W. Hynchman, of Thunder Bay District, writes: "If you will send me a petition form, I will do my best to get it well filled in. While we have a lot of men here using automobiles with from reasonable to great care, still we have others that should be serving a term at Kingston."

We received a letter from Mr. J. H. Caldwell, Carleton Co., who was so unfortunate during the past summer as to be seriously injured in a mix-up with an auto on the highway near Ottawa. Mr. Caldwell was driving a team when the auto approached. He held up his hand, signalling them to stop. They took no notice of it, however. His horses reared, broke the neck-yoke, and in the fracas which followed, Mr. Caldwell received injuries that have necessitated his being under the doctor's care ever since. Those in the auto took no notice, whatever of the accident, but sped by at a terrific speed. Mr. Caldwell decided to have them brought up in court. There were five in the automobile. All five swore that their machine was running about 15 miles an hour, that they slowed up on meeting Mr. Caldwell, that Mr. Caldwell did not hold up his hand to signal them to stop, and that his horses showed no fear, and were standing like lambs. After the facts were all in, the magistrate imposed a fine of $10. Mr. Caldwell, in his letter, continues. "I had spent the most of two days in getting this case ready, and had employed a first class lawyer, without which the case would have been dismissed with costs. The case cost me nearly as much as it did the motorists. Had I been alone, I could never have shown up in court. As it was, they had five witnesses against my three, and they were utterly reckless of their word or oath."

More might be said. All farmers are more or less familiar, many of them from sad experience, with the recklessness of automobilists. If anything is to be done in the matter of obtaining legislation to regulate this nuisance, it should be done now. If you are interested in this matter, and will circulate a petition, write us to this effect at once. As soon as we receive 20 replies from those who will circulate the petition, we will have them printed, and the good work can be started forthwith. If you wish anything done in the matter, write today. Do not wait for some one else to do it.

Rev. J. G. Poter and Rev. H. J. Keith left this afternoon for Toronto, where they will preach to-morrow.

Mrs. Robt. Hamilton, of Hamilton, is home, called here by the death of her mother, Mr. Wm. J. McGregor.

Mrs. C. S. Griffith and baby, Guthrie, Okla., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. McNicholl, Stewart street.

Miss K. Hart, of Deseronto, Ont., niece of Mrs. Thomas Embury, 244 Simcoe street, is enjoying a holiday outing in the city.

The many friends of Mr. Dawson Kennedy will regret to learn that he was taken suddenly ill on Thursday last. His condition and ailment require a surgical operation, and he was removed to the Hospital to-day for that purpose, which it is hoped, will accomplish all that is desired.

Hon. Mr. Stratton has presented to the Collegiate Institute, the Normal School, and the Ladies' Literary Society, of St. Peter's T. A. S. copies of the handsome atlas issued by the Department of the Interior of the Dominion Government. This atlas is without doubt the finest, most comprehensive and most informing atlas of the Dominion ever issued and will be of very practical service to the recipients.

'ROUND THE STORES.

There must be keen enjoyment to men in the comfort to be found in the new W. G. & R. Coat Shirts, which have come into use recently, and which are to be found on sale with all first class dealers in men's furnishings. With these handy shirts, it's pretty much "off with the old style and on with the new." Men milliners seem to be working just as hard to spring surprises on the shopping public as the women milliners, as this last innovation has evoked enthusiasm amongst fastidious dressers. A description of these coat shirts would read something like this: Just slip it on like a coat — not a rumple to the bosom; fits snugly over the shoulders; comfortably roomy under the arms; correctly proportioned sleeves; conforms to every part of a man's figure; costs no more.

Mid-season cuts in price still continue to be of live interest to women shoppers. Those who desireto indulge their inclination for end-of-the-season bargains have had abundant opportunities offered them this week.

Among the items listed at Robert Fair & Co.'s, are some of the new Spring dress goods, in rich new shades and weaves at 50c per yard. These consist of plain satin cloth, wool poplins, mohair and wool stripes and plain Venetians. The Golden Lion is certainly specializing in new dress goods.

Cressman is running quite a shoe event this month. The price attractions have proved an incentive to early Spring buyers. Fresh new lines of 1909 styles in both women's and men's natty footwear are bringing new business. A range of women's Oxfords. Blucher cut, Gibson ties and colonials, rated at $3.50 and $4.00 per pair, are selling this week at $2.95. Men's $4.50 shoes at $3.59, and $5.00 shoes at $3.79. This seasonable shoe sale goes on all next week.

Price reductions in heating stoves have had a big run at the store of Messrs. F. J. R. MacPherson & Co., Limited. This firm have taken this wise method of clearing the balance of their Winter lines. They have still a number of these heaters to be sold at end of the season prices, all modern stoves, of which the firm have their records and can recommend as bargains worth securing for future, if not for present, use.

Adams' Store for Women has been featuring new Spring muslin blouses the past two days. Friday and to-day the store has been busy supplying the demand for these dainty Spring waists, at price concessions entirely unexpected by the ladies at the beginning of the season. They are daintily made up with lace edge and insertion, tucked, with Gibson collars, and are sold at 98c. A demonstration of the Bias filled corsets has also been a leading feature at Adams' this week. Miss Eccles, an expert corsetiere, has had numerous callers who have been fitted with and had the comforts and special wearing qualities of this corset explained to them.

A cultivated appreciation of dress is no indication of a frivolous mind, as some badly dressed women would try to make out. On the contrary a woman who dresses becoming and well within the limits of her purse, gives much pleasure to all who look upon her. Moderns pay homage to beauty, but beauty must be correctly garbed. Added attractions have been coming forward this week in the dress goods department of Richard Hall & Son, which have elicited much pleasurable comment from the ladies. The showing of silk and wool and cotton dress fabrics makes a charming display and keeps the feminine mind looking longingly for Spring to hurry on:—

"When's the green a'comin' back?'
Mother sighs; they got the knack,
Wimin' have, o' now an' then,
Thinkin' thoughts denied t' men."

Cubitt's bookstore has some very enticing Saturday offerings, and is bidding strongly for extra trade in various lines. A fountain pen, for instance, for 79c; 10 Peterborough post cards for 5c; 4 packages of toilet paper for 15c; 5 sheets of music for 10c, and a pad of notre paper and two packages of envelopes for 10c — Values that will be found pretty hard to beat in the city.

Naturally, Lent is causing a pretty big demand for whitefish and salmon. There are several varieties of whitefish, and the red and the white salmon which, when deftly sliced is fresh and prim. Lake and haddock and halibut also sells well. The fish trade just now keeps the Oke sales people pretty constantly round the fish tanks.

Saturday at Turnbull's was a busy day, as usual. The store was thronged with people from the country, and there did not appear to be any scarcity of money either. This firm had gathered together a great collection of remarkable offerings in the various sections of their store, including lace curtains, Scotch floor oilcloths, tapestry rugs and stair carpets, silk waists, art muslins, flannelette, balck sateen underskirts, etc. Next week, this firm expect to open up another remarkable range of offerings secured from the sale of a leading Toronto wholesaler's stock, which has been in the market.

The Millinery openings are announced to take place next Thursday.

SECOND LINE OF PIPES TO CONNECT FIFTH WARD TO CITY BY WATER

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last night with Ald. Buller in the chair, and Ald. Morgan, Hick, Turner, and Mayor Rush around the Board.

A communication was received from Mr. Jas. Owen, Campbellford, stating that he had a fine team of horses about 16 hands high, 5 years of age, and about 2,700 lbs. in weight, which would be suitable for fire department purposes. Moved by Ald. Turner and Morgan that Ald. Hicks go to Campbellford with a Veterinary Surgeon to examine the horses and report to the committee.

From Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, asking for a new gong at the pumping station in the fire alarm equipment. The present gong, it was stated, was not satisfactory. Moved by Ald. Turner and Morgan that they visit the pumping station and inspect the bell.

A request was received from Gilmour street residents for a better distribution of lights on that street. The present arc lamps were asked to be replaced by a number of incandescent lamps.—Received.

A communication was received from residents west of George street and south of Rink street, asking for improved water service in that section. —Received.

Second Main Over Otonabee.

The report of the Inspector of the Fire Underwriters' Association was read. One of the recommendations was the provision of a second main across the river to the East Ward. At present there is only one. On motion it was decided that the committee take up the question with a view to laying another main.

From residents in the East Ward, asking for fire protection of the city north of Smith street. This was included in a former motion.

The Fire Underwriters' Association reported that the electric wiring at the fire hall was not satisfactory, and must be remedied before March 8th.

The chief was by motion authorized to have the wiring attended to at once.

It was moved by Ald. Morgan and Ald. Turner that the fire chief hand over to the city treasurer the $25.00 received from the C. P. R. for work done at the fire of the wreckage some time ago. The committee to decide later what to do with it.—Carried.

Members Of Fire Water And Light Committee Say Things

When the Fire, Water and Light Committee, at their meeting last night arrived at the report from Chief Howard regarding the alleged assault on Deputy Chief Grange, on February 27, it lead to the reintroduction of matters connected with Chief Howard and the Fire Department, which had been brought up at the late examination of Chief Howard. Things were said which did not serve to harmonize the meeting and before the next communication was dealt with Alderman Hicks left the committee room, after having told Chairman Buller that he did not think he had been treated fairly in regard to the report from committee to the Council giving the result of their investigation into the charges made by ex-Alderman Johnston.

The meeting last night was running along as harmoniously and peacefully as a woodland brook on a bright afternoon in June. Alderman Buller asked the committee what they would do with Chief Howard's report. This gave Alderman Morgan his cue and immediately the illuminations were started on their way. He stated that he did not consider it fair to the city that the chief should be continually taking on raw men to fill the places of those he "fired" because they would not 'swear by him." The chief was getting his knife into the men for personal reasons because they had told the truth at the investigation.

Alderman Turned replied that the chief was responsible to the committee and the men were responsible to him. Alderman Buller gave an account of what he knew regarding the assault stating that he was perfectly satisfied with the chief's dismissal of the three men.

In reply to a question from Alderman Morgan the chairman stated that one of the worst things the department had to deal with were the agitations stirred up by outsiders and even members of the Council. Alderman Buller sa requested, specified the men he had in mind mentioning the names of Alderman Morgan and Alderman Metherall. He considered that the Council should support the department and not oppose it. Alderman Morgan remarked that the "whole thing is wrong" and the city had not got the protection they expected and were paying for.

Alderman Turner remarked that a reduction of 5 cents in the key rate has been promised by the Underwriters' Association.

Alderman Hicks told the chairman that he considered that he had not been treated fairly or courteously by the chairman of the committee (Ald. Buller) in the matter of the resolution to the council as a result of the examination of ex-Alderman Johnston's charges. Alderman Hicks further said that the rider that was read in Council was a total surprise to him. He would move no more resolutions in the future as a safeguard against being treated in a similar manner. Cross fires were exchanged and with the meeting practically at a standstill Alderman Hicks left the room.

NORWOOD WOMAN DIES SUDDENLY

Mrs. Jas. McLaughlin, Although Ill for Some Time, Was Not Considered In Serious Danger.

Examiner Special.

Norwood, March 15.—The death occurred here yesterday of Sarah Anne Foster, relict of the late James McLaughlin, after an illness that was first noticed about Christmas. The deceased was in her 66th year and from the age of four years has been a lifelong resident of this village. Although having been ill for several months her demise came as a shock as her condition was not thought to be so serious. It is learned that the immediate cause of death was an affection of the heart. The late Mrs. McLaughlin came to Canada from Ireland when she was four years of age and has lived at Norwood since that time. She is survived by four children and by two brothers and one sister. During her life the deceased was a devout Methodist and always took a deep interest in the church's welfare in this village.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence, Peterborough and proceed to the Norwood cemetery.

FIRE BRIGADE WAS SENT WRONG WAY

Fire at the Residence of Mr. W. O'Brien This Morning Caused no Damage.

The Fire Brigade was given a call at 10 o'clock this morning to the residence of Mr. W. O'Brien, 249 Stewart St., where a chimney fire had caused trouble. A boy named Kenneally gave the alarm over the telephone, and getting a little excited gave the firemen the wrong number so that the brigade had a long run in the wrong direction. The boy told the firemen that the fire was at 249 George St., and they of course, went directly for that number, only to find their mistake. No damage was done to Mr. O'Brien's residence.

A regular meeting of K.O.T.M. will be held in the Lodge Rooms, Simcoe Street on Wednesday Evening, March 17th. Business of Importance.

BOLD THIEF GETS 7 LBS OF BUTTER

He Entered the Residence of Mr. S. A. Oke Sometime Yesterday.

While Mr. S. A. Oke and his family were away from home yesterday, some one entered the house and seizing upon a basket containing seven pounds of choice butter, made his escape with the spoils, leaving no clue as to his identity. The inmates were absent from 2 until 10 p.m., and the theft was committed sometime between those two hours, although just when it is hard to say. There were no signs as if anything else had been taken.

THE FIRE HALL CASE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I would like the public to understand that now that the Grange affair in the fire hall has been before the courts that I have been acquitted and that I was not drunk on the occasion at issue. I am not a drinker. I did not act as the people at first supposed and I don't want to be blocked in search for employment.

Yours, etc.,
GEORGE HAWES.

NINE SHOTS IN ALL WERE FIRED IN THE KINRADE HOME, SAY THE AUTHORITIES IN CASE

Hamilton, March 15.—Nine bullets, not 8 or 7, as previously reported—were fired by the murderer of Ethel Kinrade.

That is the number that the police authorities have assured themselves of.

Between the police and the doctors who conducted the autopsy, the crown are in possession of eight bullets and there is one bullet wound in the dead girl's body, which has not been probed far enough to recover the lead which inflicted it.

This would indicate beyond doubt that the murder was very deliberately and leisurely done, as there is no one-hand firearm made that will carry 9 chambers or bullets. The weapon must have been emptied and reloaded and fired again in the Hergimer-street residence, unless, indeed two revolvers were used.

It might account for Florence's alleged exclamation to Mrs. Hickey: "Ethel has been shot six times," and for the elder sister's own evidence on the stand that "He fired three shots after me as I was escaping from the front door." Just whether the latter was really the case or not is not a certainty, as the young lady's memory is not clear on that point, and the location of the bullets would hardly indicate such a circumstance; but it would go to show that she had a recollection of nine shots, having been fired.

The nine shots are accounted for thus: The police found one bullet in the pool of blood with a broken tooth, one at the foot of the body, and one imbedded in the floor that had gone through the carpet. The doctors recovered five bullets from the body, and declare that there was one wound through the heart from which the bullet was not taken because it had dropped into a muscular cavity at the back, and would require a great deal of cutting to locate.

A six-chamber revolver is ordinary. Miss Kinrade told Mrs. Hickey "Ethel has been shot six times."

The doctors' postmortem is said to reveal three bullet wounds inflicted after death.

When Dr. McNichol arrived at 4 p.m. there were still fumes of powder in the air.

These are facts or alleged facts on which the theorists are piling up all sorts of conjectures, more or less plausible.

Waggon Badly Damaged And Letter Box Torn From Post In Runaway

One of Wm. Stock & Son's Delivery Horses Made Exciting Run in East City This Morning—Wheels of Vehicle Smashed to Pieces.

CAUGHT AT GEORGE STREET

As a result of an exciting runaway this morning about half past ten, a delivery waggon belonging to Wm. Stock and Sons, bakers, Sherbrooke street, was so badly damaged that it will require considerable repairing before it can be again put in use. The front wheels are torn completely off and in one of them there is not a spoke that is not broken. For some time to-day the box of the waggon was lying across Hunter street, at the top of the mill hill.

Tore Mail Box off Post.

Mr. Fred Cunningham, the driver, was delivering some bread to a house near the East City School on Mark street. The animal evidently became frightened at something and started off at a mad gallop towards Hunter steet. At the corner it turned West, continuing its fast pace. In front of Mr. D. Conroy's residence it took to the sidewalk and collided with a telegraph post, striking the letter box and severing it as if someone had tools. Across the street it ran into another post and here the horse broke away from the waggon. At the sight of this runaway, a horse going up Burnham street became terrified and galloped down Burnham street. However, it is learned that little damage was done.

Caught at George St.

Mr. Stocks' horse kept its wild gallop up, going along the sidewalk and terrifying the passers-by. It created removed it with the assistance of a lot of amusement for the spectators as it ran from Water to George streets, where it was finally caught. The sidewalk being very slippery it had a difficult time to keep on its feet.

The damage done was principally to the waggon, which was badly demolished.

Cottage At Chemong Park Was Burned To The Ground

Mr. A. A. Hollingshead's Summer Home Was Totally Destroyed by a Blaze Early This Morning.

ORIGIN OF FIRE A MYSTERY

Mr. A. A. Hollingshead's handsome summer home at Chemong Park was burned to the ground and totally destroyed with its contents as the result of a fire which broke out early this morning. The origin of the blaze is somewhat of a mystery. Mr. Hollingshead with another Peterborough gentlemen was at the Indian vill e yesterday and on the return trip st ped at Mr. Hollingshead's cottage. They had a fire in the fire place, but it was carefully extinguished when they left for home at five o'clock. There was no sign of any fire at that time, but this morning at seven o'clock some of the people of Bridgenorth discovered that the cottage was on fire, the blaze apparently having originated in the front part of the cottage in which was stored a quantity of furniture used by Mr. Loomis who occupied the cottage last summer.

The people who arrived on the scene did everything in their power to extinguish the blaze but their efforts were in vain and the building which was erected two years ago was totally destroyed, together with the furniture and a number of sails, paddles, etc., which were stored there.

The loss which will be considerable, will be partially covered by insurance.

Twenty Witnesses To Be Examined In Kinrade Case

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Hamilton, Ont., March 15.—It is understood Florence Kinrade, her mother, and father will be recalled at the adjourned inquest on Friday night. It is said to be also the intention to call Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons, and Dr. Clarke, o Toronto Asylum, as alienists to testify regarding Miss Kinrade. It is not likely the inquest will be concluded on Friday night as the police say some twenty more witnesses have yet to be examined. There is a report that an effort will be made to bring witnesses from Virginia. The search for the revolver with which the murder was committed is to be resumed this week. So far no attempt has been made to open the sewer leading from the street to the Kinrade home.

Cashed A Cheque But Found Out That He Had Been Duped

A young man who thought he was doing a charitable act on Saturday when he cashed a cheque for five dollars, was very much disappointed when the bank which it was drawn on, returned it, saying that the party whose signature was attached had no account with the bank. The result was that his trust in mankind has dropped back another cog and the next person who presents a cheque to him will possibly be looked upon with suspicion. After getting the cheque cashed the man left town, and there is but little chance if ever getting the money back. Just a case of being bitten "good and strong."

NO DECISION IN APPEAL CASE

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Ottawa, March 15.—Owing to continued illness of Mr. Justice Girouard, the expected judgment in West Peterboro election case was not handed down in the Supreme Court this morning.

Men! Here!

Listen to what an outsider says of our Shoe values. A well dressed commercial man, representing a large and well known dry goods house in Toronto, stepped into our Semi-Ready Wardrobe on Friday and said he wanted a pair of those shoes on display in the window at $4.39 (the regular $6.00 kind). When he examined them, tried them on and paid for them, he said: "This is the greatest value I have ever seen given in footwear." We believe it and so will you when you look over our stock. Choice is good now—COME.

PETERBORO' WOMAN DROWNED IN RIVER AT MORRISBURG

Examiner Special.

Morrisburg, March 15.—Mrs. James McCreary, of Peterborough, is supposed to have been drowned in the St. Lawrence, four miles west of here, on Friday evening. She had been at the home of her father, Mr. James Graham, farmer, since Thanksgiving, and had been acting strangely. Her footsteps were traced to the water's edge.

The above despatch refers to Mrs. James McCreary, 548 Gilmour street. The deceased lady was well known in the city, where she has resided for about the past nineteen years. For a considerable time she has been in ill health, and for several months been living with her father on the banks of the St. Lawrence, as stated above. She was a sister of the late Mr. T. H. Graham and Mr. Allan Graham, former residents. She was a most amiable lady in every way, a good wife—a home-maker in the highest sense—of large-hearted and kindly disposition. Her bereaved husband, Mr. McCreary, late principal of the West Ward school, will receive the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in Peterborough.

A NORFOLK MAN TO BE ARRESTED

Examiner Special (3:30 p.m.)

Hamilton, Ont., March 15.—(Special.)—The following despatch has been received from Portsmouth, Va., Norfolks' Detective Bureau has been asked to arrest a man in connection with the Kinrade case. This information comes straight, although the bureau does not make a practice of letting matters of this sort leak out. A description of him is in the hands of the detectives together with his name, it is learned.

ALBERTA'S ENTERPRISE

The growth of the Canadian West is a subject of perpetual interest, for its development reacts more or less directly upon the industrial conditions of the east. Alberta is rapidly filling up and its productiveness is being proportionately realised. Production argues a market, and in the interest of a market transportation is a necessity. Alberta is not standing still and the Rutherford government is seized with a sense of its responsibility and is meeting it with an energy and enterprise characteristic of Liberal Government and the active spirit of the West. The Dominion Government is doing its share in providing the main arteries of transportation. To give these the fullest effect branch lines or feeders are necessary. This necessity is being boldly met. The abiding faith of the Government and people in the future of Alberta is shown by pledging the large sum of $27,00,000 either by guarantee or bond issues for purposes of railway extension. This seems to be a gigantic undertaking, but it seems also to be as safe as it is bold. One or two crops at the present rate of growth would more than meet this large expenditure, and the increase of production, the all-round developmena that will come for the operation of the proposed railways will rapidly double and treble the producing capacity of the province. The programme of construction to be aided is thus outlined:

The Canadian Northern is to construct 900 miles of branch lines, and the Grand Trunk Pacific 500 miles of branch lines. Government aid to these will take the form of guarantees. Important among the projected railways is a line from Edmonton to Fort McMurray, a Hudson Bay post on the Athabasca River, nearly 250 miles directly north, the subsidy for which will be $20,000 per mile, or $5,000,000 in all. There is said to be excellent navigation on the Athabasca from this point to Lake Athabasca, a body of water 230 miles long, with an average breadth of 30 miles. It is expected that the railway will be the means of opening up a rich area, the resources of which are as yet only partly known.

It is pointed out that it is only about twenty-five years since the first transcontinental railway on Canadian territory was built. At that time what is now the progressive province of Alberta contained but a handful of settlers scattered many miles apart. Today that province is able to aid railways to an extent which then would have staggered even the Federal Government.

Alberta grain production last year amounted to thirty-seven million bushels.

CANADA'S TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM.

Very few persons in Canada have an idea of the amount expended in money or equivalent in land by the Government of Canada upon transportation. Hon. Mr. Emmerson presented to the House, when advocating that the Government consider the subject of leasing feeders to the Intercolonial, some very interesting figures.

What is known to-day as the Intercolonial railway cost the country on capital account $82,755,937.

Up to the time of Confederation there had been expended on canals about $20,000,000, since then the Dominion Government have expended in canal systems the sum of $91,734,718.

Upon the Canadian Pacific railway the Government of Canada expended in subsidies and constructed lines, the sum of $87,425,000.

In addition to this the Canadian Pacific railway company received from the Government 27,924,190 acres of our best farming lands. This land has been reasonably estimated at $5 an acre, much of it is worth $25. At $5 per acre this land would be worth the sum of $139,620,950, making a grand total for the Canadian Pacific railway and its branches of $227,045,950. Canada's investments in these three instances amount to—

In canals, $92,000,000.

Intercolonial, $83,000,000.

Canadian Pacific, $225,000,000.

Bonus of land and money to other railways adds $57,000,000 to the above, making a grand total of $457,000,000 which Canada has contributed towards solving the great problem of transportation.

The mileage of Canadian railways is approximately 23,000 and they employ 124,000 men. Their gross earnings last year were $147,000,000, equal to $403,000 a day for every day of the year. They employ more men than the total population of Prince Edward Island, with that of Halifax, N. S., added.

The business of the railways equals the total money circulation of the country, and of every hundred dollars, earned in Canada by railways, over $41 are directly and immediately paid out to employees.

These figures show the importance of developing the transportation facilities of Canada. They prove that the Government acted wisely in embarking upon the National Transcontinental. That in the very near future even this great national line will be overtaxed, and that the vast territory to the north of it will in turn demand that railway facilities be provided.

The creation and operation of a railway system means prosperity to the people. Canada would not have advanced to the proud position in the commercial world she occupies today were it not for the foresight of the Government in providing means of communication from the remote places in the west to the markets in the east.

It must not be forgotten that the canals of Canada were made free by the Liberal Government, and that their maintenance costs the government about $1,500,000 a year.

In years gone by every assistance was given to the Canadian Pacific Railway, although the people of Canada had no beneficial interest in the road. The Government have been criticized for extending a helping hand to the Grand Trunk Pacific. The people will approve of it. The road should be completed at the earliest possible moment, the people of the West demand this, and it is the policy of the Government, endorsed by the people of Canada, to finish this great railway at the earliest possible moment. In these circumstances anything the Government can do which will further the enterprise should be done promptly and willingly.

Every dollar the Government puts in transportation brings back several more for the people. A country having such great distances to connect one portion of the Dominion with another would be greatly handicapped without competing lines. The fact of building the Transcontinental has added millions of acres to the wealth of the Dominion. The fact that the road traverses a country that had never had any population and that the 1,000 miles which are in operation have been taxed to accommodate the traffic is eloquent in praise of the policy of the Government. When this railroad is finished through from end to end, Canadians will begin to appreciate the possibilities of the country of which they are citizens.

BRITAIN'S MONEY WEALTH

Britain has for a century been declared by her enmies to be on the down grade and Macaulay's New Zealander has taken passage several times to assume his perch on the crumbling arches of London bridge; but the end is not yet. Whatever be his conditions in other respects—and they seem to be good—the bottom of John Bull's purse is not visible yet. Great Britain scatters her money not in a mere golden shower, but in a broad yellow stream to all points of the world, to help in realizing the progress represented by British civilization in all its varied elements. The investments represented by British capital are not always extremely profitable but the British lender seems to be satisfied if his investment is reasonably safe and reasonably permanent. The returns from these investments are large. While of course it is impossible to get at all the details, the known returns, according to the London Economist, amount to 400 millions a year and the value of the foreign or quasi foreign (colonial) British investments reach the tremendous figures of 8,750 millions of dollars to which may safely be added 400 million to 1,000 million dollars not revealed.

Taking these different figures as outside estimates, the Economist concludes that the total British capital invented abroad amounts to a sum between 10,750 and 15,000 millions of dollars. This financial authority is inclined to think, in view of the rapid increase of recent borrowing in England, that the latter figure is nearest the truth.

Another authority estimates the amount of foreign investments at 17,250 millions, and still another places it at 17,750 millions of dollars. The first of these estimates is elaborately worked out. The United States is credited—or debited—with the largest share of British investments, 2,425 millions; India second with 2,350 millions; then Australia, 1,605 millions; Canada, 1,525 millions; Argentina, 1,270 millions, and the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, 1,120 millions of dollars. The total for Latin America is very large and indicates a close business connection between those countries and Great Britain. South America's share of British capital includes, besides the sum credited to Argentina, 505 millions in Brazil; 210 millions in Chili and 125 millions in Uruguay. Mexico's figures are placed at 255 millions, and Cuba's at 105 millions. The Orient is credited with 875 millions, of which 575 millions is invested in Japan, 225 millions in China, and 85 millions in the Straits Settlements. The amount placed in Egypt is given at 485 millions ,and in Russia 225 millions.

Commenting on these estimates the Economist concludes that both indicate very clearly that British capital has been mainly used for the development not of countries which compete with Britain in manufactures, but of those which provide her with food and raw material, and are the largest markets for British manufactured markets for British manufactured goods.

There is no doubt that London is the financial centre of the world.

MEETING WAS ADDRESSED BY MR. R. LEES

At the Crystal yesterday afternoon Public School Inspector Lees gave an account of some of the features of the recent convention of the Dominion Alliance in Toronto, dealing chiefly with the address of the Hon. Seaborne Wright, of Georgia. The chair was occupied by Mr. A. B. Cunningham, who in introducing the speaker, made reference to the fact that the meetings of the Alliance form a sort of parliament of temperance for the province, in which plans are made and arrangements carried out for directing the campaign over the whole field.

A Dry South.

At the convention the last address was a very eloquent and forceful presentation of the argument in favor of prohibition, based on the experience in the State of Georgia. There are now five states in the south that are extremely dry, and one can travel from the Atlantic to the Mississippi and almost from the Gulf of Mexico to the State of Ohio without seeing any open saloon. The abolition of the saloon there has been a marvellous blessing. In Georgia crime has decreased by 70 per cent., and there are now in the state 10,000 women in homes with some of the comforts of life, who were formerly deprived of these blessings, by the drink traffic. During the past five months 1,600 saloons have been put out of business in Illinois and 2,100 in Ohio.

High License.

When the campaign against liquor began in Georgia, a quarter of a century ago, they first tried high license. Licenses were put up as high as $5,000. Every possible restriction was put on the traffic. There could be no other business done in the building in which liquor was sold. There were no blinds or screens, and no back door. The hideousness of the whole business was made as conspicuous as possible. But it was a failure. The trade became a monopoly; the poor man and small dealer was forced out. Cheap and inferior liquors were sold at high prices. The degradation and misery resulting from drink became greater than ever. Crime increased till Atlanta, the capital of the State, had the highest percentage of criminals of any city in America.

The Gothenbourg System.

The Gothenberg or Dispensory system, in which the element of private gain is eliminated, was then tried. Liquor was sold by officers of the State, who are paid stated salaries. There could be no sale in small quantities, and no lingering or drinking on the premises. This was an improvement at first, but soon the percentage of crime was as great as ever. Then there were great evils connected with it. Though the element of private gain was eliminated, the element of public gain became even a greater evil. In a small city in which there had previously been eight saloons paying a license fee of $1,000 each, the net profits for the first year were $60,000. This was estimated at 10 per cent. of the sales, so that the people, and mostly the poorer people, of that city were paying over $600,000 annually for liquor. The community profiting so largely, and in this way becoming a partner in the ruin and degradation of the citizens, was the most serious evil of all.

Prohibition the Only Remedy.

Gradually people come to see that the evil lay in the liquor itself, and would exist as long as people continued to drink, no matter under what system of restriction it might be done. The people came to realize that by sharing in any way in the profits of the trade they became responsible for the drunkard. Under our own system at least half of what is paid for drink goes into the public treasury, and so the public becomes a partner in the evil. The revenue denied from the traffic is not gain. The liquor dealer gives nothing to the community. People in other lines of business, even if they are in for the profits, are contributing toward the industrial welfare of the community. The saloon-keeper not only makes no such contribution but by his business takes away from the efficiency of the others. Then the few dollars of his immense profits that are paid over to the public treasury are not earned by him. They were simply taken from the people, and a few of them handed back as a bribe to the community to allow the process to continue. Can Christian people, members of our churches, pledged followers of Him who gave himself to save mankind, afford to be partners in a business like that of the saloon? It is the duty of every one who loves his fellow men to make all possible efforts to "get out of the business" as speedily as possible.

FRAUDS REPORTED ON THE INTER. C. R.

Charges Are Made Against Railroad Officials.

SYSTEM OF UNDERWEIGHTS

Series of Operations in Which Government Has Been Cheated by a Process of False Billing—Lumber Shipped From Montreal, Found to Be Thousands of Pounds Heavier Than Paid For.

Montreal, aMrch 15.—There was a great scurrying amongst the higher I.C.R. officials Saturday evening over the report that a long series of irregularities had been discovered on the line during the past few days, the statement being made that many cases of overweight have been reported to the head offices, both here and at Moncton.

It is understood, in fact, that thousands and thousands of dollars have been lost to the revenues of the Government road and that now that the proper authorities are naturally aroused, it is more than likely that suspensions and arrests may be in order as soon as further investigations will have taken place.

Not long since, a high official was overlooking a couple of cars of lumber destined from a down-country station for Nicolet in this province, and thinking that the bill looked somewhat light, he had the cars re-weighed, discovering that the Intercolonial was carrying the lumber 63,000 pounds light, or in other words the cars had been marked to contain that number of pounds less than the exact figure, hence a very considerable loss of freight, and the statement is made that this kind of work has been going on on a very large scale.

It is said, in fact, that a good many shippers of lumber have gone so far as to bribe men at the different scales to report the weight of cars many thousands of pounds lighter than they should have been and that the I.C.R. has suffered the loss.

It is understood, however, that a severe investigation is about to take place.

Wins 20-Year Game.

Traverse City, Mich., March 15.—A card-playing contest which has raged continuously for twenty years came to an end at Mancelona, Saturday night, when John W. Wallace scooped in D. W. Lazelle's pedro and remarked: "That puts me out."

Twenty years ago, while at a social affair, Lazelle and Wallace each claimed the village pedro championship. The contention resulted in a challenge, the championship to go to the one who first won ten straight games. Every day or evening, Sundays excepted, the men have met at either home. In those twenty years of continuous play, through spare time study, they acquired an inner knowledge of the game that has frightened off all other players from engaging with them.

Several times one man got six or seven straight games, but not until Saturday did one succeed in getting ten.

Brake to Stop Ships.

Washington, March 15.—Theodore Roosevelt's aid to Louis Lacoste, a Canadian inventor, has resulted in a brake to stop ships. One is now building in Philadelphia, and is being tried on a battleship.

Womanly Health

How to Preserve It

The good looks of every woman depend largely upon the proper working of her stomach and other internal organs.

If your stomach is strong and digestion is good, the cheeks flush with color, eyes dance and sparkle, breath will be pure, and your hair smooth and glossy.

Let indigestion creep in, and the skin becomes sallow and rough, pimples break out, eyes get dark circles, ill-breath is all too apparent.

Get the stomach toned up with Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they increase the secretion of the gastric juices, promote vigorous digestion, increase the supply of blood, and thereby invigorate the entire system.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills

CURE WOMAN'S ILLS.

The system is quickly won back to a normal healthy condition by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and every girl or woman who uses this remedy will show it in a clear, wholesome complexion and a sound healthy body. Sold in 25c boxes by all dealers.

HAIR SLAUGHTER; KILLED BY NEGLIGENCE

Hair must have nourishment or die. If it does not have proper nourishment it will lose its vitality, grow weak and become an easy prey to the ravages of the vicious and destructive germs of dandruff.

Parisian Sage is a hair nourisher; it is the result of sincere study and experiment by one of the world's leading scientists.

It should be used regularly as a hair dressing by everyone with healthy hair, because it never fails to prevent dandruff, falling hair, or any scalp disease.

But Parisian Sage is not only as preventive it is a certain cure for dandruff; it stops itching of the scalp instantly; it makes hair grow thick and luxuriant. It is especially in demand by ladies, because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and fluffy. Wm. Madill, the druggist, sells it under a positive guarantee to do all that is claimed for it, or money back. 50 cents for a large bottle.

Says Roosevelt Will Die.

New York, March 15.—Dr. Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago repeated Saturday night at the dinner of the New York Schoolmasters' Association the assertion which he made a few days ago, that former President Roosevelt would not survive the malarial climate of the country through which he purposes to travel on his African trip. Dr. Starr said in part:

"One of the trips which I made across Africa was over a route corresponding closely to that of the President. But I was thoroughly acclimatized. I had spent nearly a dozen years in the country and was still a young man. I could not withstand the dangers of it now.

"Roosevelt will never survive the fevers which are bound to afflict him if he reaches the interior. The country's only hope of seeing him again is that he may be stricken before he reaches the interior. A comparatively light touch of these tropical fevers might lay him up for several months and perhaps induce him to abandon his plans for the trip."

Slain by Black Hand.

New York, March 15.—Lieut. Jos. Petrosino, head of the Italian bureau of the New York police department, Friday was assassinated in Palmero, Sicily, according to a special cable despatch to The Herald on Saturday. His assassins fired four shots.

The assassins, the despatch says, are unknown.

Lieut. Petrosino went to Italy on a special mission to investigate the so-called Black Hand, with a view to bringing about better protection for peace-abiding Italians in this country.

Petrosino was the Black Hand expert of the New York police department and a terror to Italian criminals. He went to Italy more than a year ago to work on a plan, the object of which was to be the adoption of means to check the tide of undesirable Italians and Sicilians to America, and particularly to New York City.

Must Doff Hats In Church.

New York, March 15.—A Boston despatch to The Times says:

The First Baptist Church of Somerville has officially barred from public worship all women who refuse to remove their hats before entering the church auditorium. The church is one of the important ones of New England.

"The fancy millinery of the present time attracts so much attention," said one of the trustees, "that women spend more time examining hats than they do listening to the sermon."

Brodeur May Retire.

Montreal, March 15.—The fact of Mr. Willard, private secretary to the Hon. Mr. Brodeur, being appointed secretary of the Marine office in this city is taken to indicate that the Minister will retire from the Cabinet and from public life as soon as the session is over, either to become a judge of the Supreme Court or chief of the Superior Court.

Killed His Friend.

Malone, N.Y., March 15.—Charles Devlin of West Bangor, drove up to the home of the sheriff here Saturday night and asked that the officer arrest him. He said he had just killed a friend, Henry Brooks of North Bangor with a hatchet, and left the latter's body lying beside the road two miles back.

Arm Amputated.

Winnipeg, Man., March 15.—Saturday afternoon John Dunlavy, aged 35, was crushed while coupling cars on the transcontinental, north of Culver. His arm was amputated at the shoulder, and he is doing well. Dunlavy came last year from Dugald, Ont. His wife is in Ireland.

Jack London a Wreck.

San Francisco, March 15.—Jack London, the noted author, who started from this city some time ago in his yacht Shark, for a cruise around the world, is a physical wreck in the southern seas, and because of continued illness he has abandoned the long trip to return to California.

German Princess to "Come Out."

Berlin, March 15.—"The little princess," as Berliners call Emperor William's only daughter, is beginning to "come out." She will not be 17 until next September, but already preparations are being made for her independent life. Her confirmation has been postponed beyond the usual age, as the Empress wishes that immediately after that solemn ceremony the "little princess" shall begin housekeeping on her own account.

Hitherto the princess has been leading rather a retired life with her books, her painting, her needlework, and, it must be added, her dolls.

Millionaire Accused.

Pittsburg, March 15.—John M. Roberts, millionaire jeweler, churchman and publicist, was yesterday afternoon required to give bond for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court to answer the charge of attacking Mrs. Rose Earl Doyle, a widow of striking beauty.

TOOK MENTAL TREATMENT.

Vancouver Man Suicide Blamed on Christian Scientists.

Vancouver, B.C., March 15.—A coroner's jury bringing in a verdict that John J. Harrison committed suicide, added a rider that from the evidence it was evident that one Varey, an alleged Christian Science leader in this city, was largely the cause of Harrison's despondency, and recommended that the Attorney-General investigate.

Harrison, aged 54, came from Winnipeg fifteen years ago, was worth $150,000 and until last November lived apparently happily. Thursday morning he visited Chief of Police Chamberlain, saying he had been taking Chas. A. Varey's treatment, and that the latter wished him to sign over all his property to the church. In a written statement to the chief Harrison stated:

"Varey brought me up to a state of mental treatment, where it would seem that I had to renounce all my connection with any society or party, either political or religious, also cancel all insurance policies, wills and other unnecessary encumbrances that would injure my spiritual recovery.

"When I think of my will and refuse to destroy it, as he asked me to, the depression and effect of his treatment is so severe it is almost unbearable and should it continue to be so, I will only have to put an end to my existence. I cannot stand the effects of the treatment much longer."

Harrison was soothed by the chief temporarily, but two hours later secured a bottle of carbolic acid and was found dead in the evening.

Evidence corroborating the chief's was given. Harrison had told Varey in the presence of his wife, he would give a large amount to be rid of his influence.

The police believe they have unearthed one case in a series in which peculiar methods under this guise have been applied to persons with peculiar and horrible results.

Ontario's Man's Suicide.

Buffalo, March 15.—Matthew Benedict on Saturday night drank carbolic acid and died in a yard adjoining 72 Day's Park, where his wife roomed.

They separated two weeks ago, Mrs. Benedict told the police, because she had been told he had another wife at St. Regis Falls.

Benedict came to Buffalo from Brantford, with the intention of effecting a reconciliation. The couple were married in Detroit four years ago.

Benedict was 32 years of age and was born in Cornwall, Ont.

Suicide at Parry Sound.

Parry Sound, Ont., March 15.—J. Frank Mosley, a prominent citizen and merchant of this town, shot himself dead at nine o'clock Saturday morning.

He had shown symptoms of mental peculiarities for some time.

Mosley was the eldest son of the late Rev. D. Robt. Mosley, formerly Anglican minister here. He was a prominent member of Masonic and Oddfellows societies.

He is survived by his widow and family of one son and five daughters.

Butter Is Good.

Ottawa, March 15.—"It is quite apparent that butter is essentially genuine and of high quality, as offered for sale in Canada," is the conclusion arrived at by the chief analyst of the Inland Revenue Department, from the test of 256 samples collected through the Dominion last autumn.

Excess of water was found in three samples sold in Peterboro, but in none of the samples were foreign fats found.

Kick Likely to Kill.

Brockville, March 15.—James Regate, aged 10 years, lies in a precarious state at the hospital with a fracture of the skull, as the result of a kick from a horse. He was stealing a ride on a cutter, standing on the runner and clinging to the back of the seat. The rig passed close to a horse being led by the halter and the animal shot its heels into the air, sinking the shoe of one foot into the boy's head.

Paris Strike Soon Ends.

Paris, March 15.—The strike of the telegraph operators in this city ended late Saturday evening, as suddenly as it began.

The operators yielded before the energetic attitude of the Government, which threatened instant dismissal unless work was resumed, with the loss of state servant privileges.

Schlatter and Hetty Green.

New York, March 15.—Francis Schlatter, a "faith healer," and spectacular "religious" leader, announced yesterday that he would convert Mrs. Hetty Green to his doctrine, and that within a few days he would restore life to several dead persons. Mrs. Green intimates that Schlatter is suffering from delusions.

One Man, One Vote.

Montreal, March 15.—Friends of the Quebec Government, who came up from Quebec on Saturday, say that a bill will soon be introduced into the Legislature establishing what is known as the one-man one-vote principle, preventing electors from voting in more than one constituency at a local election.

Hanged Himself.

Red Deer, March 15.—Geo. Brooks, 25 years of age, employed a few miles east of town, committed suicide by hanging himself in the barn. He was subject to fits. It is said his home was in Newark, Ont.

Woman Up For Double Murder.

Paris, March 15.—The preliminary investigation into the charge against Mme. Steinheil, accused of having murdered her husband and her stepmother, has ended in the formal accusation of premeditated murder.

She will probably be tried for her life in the Assize Court, not as an accomplice but as the principal.

Marriage Is Off.

London, March 15.—On the highest authority it may be said that there is not the slightest chance of a marriage being arranged between King Manuel of Portugal and Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg. The King must marry a Catholic, and the princess firmly declines to adopt that faith.

Lineman Electrocuted.

St. Johns, Que., March 15.—John Forant, aged 38 years, in the employ of the St. Johns Electric Light Co., was electrocuted yesterday afternoon. He grasped a wire with his bare hand, causing his death. The deceased leaves a widow and two small children.

City Council One-Sixth Women.

Copenhagen, March 15.—Out of 48 members of the Municipal Council of Copenhagen, elected yesterday, seven are women. They vote for the first time. Single woman over 25 and married women whose husbands are taxpayers were entitled to vote.

Leading Citizen a Safe Blower.

Galena, Kansas, March 15.—Harry Davis, a merchant, was shot and captured yesterday while blowing open the safe in the Miners' State Bank. Davis' confederate escaped. Davis was a leading citizen. His family is wealthy.

Everything She Ate SEEMED A BURDEN TO CARRY.

HAD STOMACH TROUBLE FOUR YEARS.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The conditions of the gastric juice have been confided entirely to removing the unassimilated undigested portions of food which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, thereby only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health and strength to the debilitated system.

Mrs. D. A. Francisco, Rossland, B.C., writes: "I was suffering from stomach trouble of the worst kind for about four years. Everything I ate seemed a burden to carry. I always arose in the morning with a sickening and feverish taste in my mouth and was also troubled with swellings in my hands and feet, which my physician said was due to the disordered state of my stomach. I tried everything that was purchasable, and also consulted two or three physicians, but could find no relief until one of my neighbors told me of a wonderful cure by Burdock Blood Bitters. I used altogether ten bottles and am now perfectly cured. I wish to recommend B.B.B. to anyone who may be so unfortunate as I was.

CHRONIC COUGH

Kingston, Ontario, Mother Tells How Her Son Was Cured of a Bad Cough and Run-down Condition By Vinol.

"My son, Edward Lennon, after taking two bottles of Vinol has been thoroughly cured of a bad cough that he had nearly two years. He was much run-down and had lost his appetite. Vinol not only cured his cough but it built him up and greatly increased his appetite. I believe Vinol to be a splendid tonic." Hanah Lennon, 149 Raglan Road, Kingston, Ontario.

This is because Vinol is a genuine tonic and body-builder which contains peptonate of iron together with every one of the body-building medicinal elements of cod liver oil, but without one drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. Vinol acts directly upon the stomach, creates a healthy appetite, and enables the digestive organs to obtain the necessary elements from the food eaten to make rich, red blood, healthy flesh and muscle tissue and create strength.

Your money back if Vinol fails to benefit. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets, also Payne's Drug Store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

FROST CRACKS CEMENT WALL

Four Fissures Have Been Made During The Winter.

The cement wall that was erected last autumn along the west bank of the river north of Smith St., is reported broken by the frost in four places. It has been heaved upward in different places and wide fissures have been formed, one of the results of winter. This was intended as a guide wall to keep children while bathing from going out into deep water. This place along the Inverlea Park shore is much used in summer time.

Y. M. C. A. Directors Plan A Religious Campaign Noted Speakers Coming

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. was held at Hooper's Restaurant at 6.30 on Friday evening, to continue the discussion of plans for the religious work of the Association, which had been introduced at the regular meeting on Tuesday evening.

The plans adopted call for the presentation of the Foreign Work on Sunday and Monday, April 4th and 5th. An afternoon meeting will be held on Sunday, when Mr. C. V. Hibbard, of Japan, will speak to men on the subject "With the Japanese Army in Manchuria," and on Monday evening Mr. E. T. Colton, of New York, who is associated with Mr. John R. Mott in Foreign Work of the International Committee, will be present with Mr. Hibbard at another meeting in the interests of the Association's Foreign Work.

Another feature of the meeting was the decision to hold a six-day campaign in connection with the Association, with the co-operation of the churches of the city, to strengthen the religious work. To direct and assist in the campaign Mr. Charles R. Drum, of Syracuse, N.Y., has been secured for April 14th to 20th. Mr. Drum possesses rare executive ability, as well as strength as a speaker. Until recently he was Principal of one of the High Schools of Syracuse, but has recently been added to the staff of the International Committee to co-operate with local associations in their religious work.

The details of the campaign that have to do with the public will be made known later.

It was decided by the Directors that they would make special individual contributions to the funds of the Association to cover the expenses of this campaign.

Sermon At St. Peter's Cathedral To Ancient Order Of Hibernians

A Plea to Irishmen to Keep Their Characters in the Mould of Their Ancestors, Remembering Those Virtues Which Are the Race's Brightest Adornments.

A LARGE CONGREGATION.

After a careful and intelligent review of the history of the Irish race from its golden era to the present day, and after incidentally emphasizing the virtues which have stood out most prominently in the character of Erin's manhood and womanhood, Rev. Father Cavanagh, in a sermon at the evening service at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday evening, made a strong appeal to the assembled members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians to always keep fresh in their memories those excellent traits which have hallowed the Irish people through all the centuries. Not only, however, did he urge a remembrance of those good qualities that they might be kept fresh before the mind, but that by their recollection, Irishmen should always endeavour to emulate them, and to realize that it is their duty to keep pure and unsullied those traditions which every son of Erin holds in highest regard.

Rev. Father Cavanagh, of Corkery, Ont., was listened to by a very large gathering, among whom were the members of the A.O.H., who attended in a body. The suoject of his sermon was the part that Irishmen have played in working out the destiny of Canada, and especially the influence which her sons may yet indirectly bring to bear upon Canadian national life. Nations, like individuals, have callings. They are left to work out their own destinies and the history of the world shows that the Irish race has played no inferior part. True, in one sense, she has as a nation been a practical failure, but from the viewpoint of Christianity she has been a great success. Continuing, Father Cavanagh stated that a nation's success was not to be judged entirely by the acquisition of territory, by glorious battles fought and won, or by the triumphant return of victorious armadas. Ireland had remained true, as a nation, to the religion which St. Patrick had implanted at a time when the little Green Isle had waxed to its zenith.

Reviewed History

Rev. Father Cavanagh reviewed briefly the history of the Irish nation from the first dim records that have been handed down from the close of the era of myth and legend. St. Patrick's advent as a slave, his escape and subsequent return to Christianize the country from coast to coast was referred to. The ancient culture of the Irish, their lofty pedestal among European nations as a seat of learning, to whose colleges the best of the continent's youth were sent for their education, and the effect of Christianity upon the Irish were all dealt with in the course of the sermon. The web of the nation's subsequent history with its many broken and wundered strands was briefly taken up, and the present reaction was also considered.

The history of Ireland is like the history of the public life of Christ. Father Cavanagh stated, reviewing the points he contrasted. The characteristics which Irishmen should strive to follow were pointed out. Fidelity was one of them. Not until the coming of foreigners was there one case of infidelity recorded among the priesthood. Her priesthood had kept alive the Irish faith, and had remained with their people in spite of every opposition and persecution. Irishmen had shown themselves to be among the bravest on many a battlefield. Honesty and charity were two virtues which had been attributed to the race, and respect for womanhood was an outstanding quality. The purity of Ireland's womanhood was one of the brightest gems in the nation's crown and Father Cavanagh appealed for the continuance of the inculcation of highest ideals of purity in the minds of the children of Irishmen to-day.

The virtue of a nation's people was one of its greatest assets, and Hibernians, by living up to every manly virtue and true religion, would exert an influence that would be felt in Canadian life. The important positions men of Irish birth have held in Canada, and the United States was mentioned, and a feature of the representatives in the latter country was the fact that a very small proportion of them had appeared in the divorce court, thus demonstrating that they have still retained the old respect for women and for the religion that teaches that there is no separation of a man from his lawful wife.

By thus living up to the traditions of the Irish race, Irishmen of to-day can still wield an influence which will have an effect upon the country in which they live, and Father Cavanagh strongly urged the members of the A. O. H. to always remain true to the cherished traditions of their ancestors.

CITIZENS PAID LAST RESPECTS TO MEMORY OF LATE COL. J. Z. ROGERS

Funeral Yesterday Afternoon Was Largely Attended — Last Sad Rites Conducted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, Assisted by Archdeacon Warren and Rev. Canon Davidson.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD

The great respect and high esteem in which the late Colonel J. Z. Rogers was held in the community in which he had lived all his life was evidenced yesterday afternoon by the immense throngs of citizens that turned out to pay their last tribute of respect to his memory. The funeral of Col. J. Z. Rogers took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, 135 Hunter St., East, to St. Luke's Church, and thence to the Little Lake cemetery. It was one of the largest corteges that has ever passed through the streets of Peterborough and no man was more worthy of the people's respect than was the late Colonel Rogers.

The officers of the 57th Regiment, of which the deceased was in command for sixteen years, drove in cabs. The veterans of '66 and the employees of the Peterboro Canoe Company were in attendance, the latter also being present in a body at the memorial service at St. Luke's Church yesterday morning, occupying the first five pews in the centre aisle. The pall bearers were Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, Col. Miller, and Messrs. T. A. S. Hay, J. H. Burnham, R. E. Wood and W. H. Hill. The floral offerings were beautiful and numerous, including a Union Jack pillow from the officers of the 57th Regiment, "Gates Ajar" from the employees of the canoe factory, wreaths from the different societies of St. Luke's Church and many others.

At the church, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt was assisted in the reading of the service for the burial of the dead by Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's Church and Venerable Archdeacon Warren. Before removing the body from the church an opportunity was given those desiring to take a last look at the remains to do so.

Memorial Service.

The morning service at St. Luke's Church yesterday was of a memorial character. The chancel and pulpit and the pew in which the deceased always sat were draped in black and a large floral wreath was also placed in the late colonel's seat. Hymns for the burial of the dead were sung and the lessons read were in keeping with the solemnity of the service.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt preached a beautiful sermon, basing his remarks on the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth verses of the eleventh chapter of St. Matthew and particularly on the words "Even so Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight." The speaker believed that the words of the text were the holiest and truest words ever uttered. They were higher than "Not my will but Thine be done." For these latter ones spoke not only of a victory but a struggle, while in the text was expressed a will absorbed. "The greatest thing we have to do is to learn the words," "'Even so, Father; for so it seemed good in Thy sight,'" said Dr. Langfeldt. "There are times when we are surrounded by many sorrows. It is then that faith and trust will have its reward. Especially in these times when religion is presented in so many aspects, when things may seem inconsistent, let us rest assured that the Bible is God's word and that it can never lose its comforts by attacks of the foolishness and conceits of men."

Referring to the death of the late Col. J. Z. Rogers, Dr. Langfeldt said that one had gone from their midst who was an essential one. In the life of the church and the community he was the least of all that could be spared. As he thought of the death of their beloved brother, and as he looked back upon his spiritual life in particular he thought of the words of Hadad to Pharaoh, "Let me depart unto my own country." The late Mr. Rogers, he said, although surrounded by dear ones, happiness and affection longed for his blessed home with his Saviour. His generous acts and they were many, were always done quietly and in an unassuming manner. Dr. Langfeldt had had many conversation with the deceased of late and he was always wanting to go home. He was ready to go at any time. "But is it not pathetic" the speaker asked, "to think of how only last Wednesday at the Lenten service the late Colonel Rogers had taken up the offertory and twenty-six hours later he was called to his rest? Did not that impress us with the uncertainty of Life?" The preacher urged men to follow the example of God's blessed servants and watch their souls.

There were always the best and most friendly relations betwen the deceased and his employees. He had often thought that a "strike" in the late Colonel's factory would be an impossibility.

In conclusion Dr. Langfeldt said that to continue further in eulogizing the deceased would be contrary to the late Col. Rogers' desires, as he was utterly opposed to the idea of any manifestation. But as his pastor, the speaker felt it his duty to bear testimony to Colonel Rogers' life. The hearty sympathy and prayers of the congregation went out to the widow and family in their bereavement and he hoped that each one would gladly and submissively practise the words of the text, "Even so, Father for so it seemed good in Thy sight."

Dr. Langfeldt was assisted by Venerable Archdeacon Warren and Rev. Mr. Soward.

HOTELKEEPER WAS FINED $20 JUDGMENT WILL BE APPEALED

Magistrate Dumble Finds Defendant Guilty of Selling Liquor to John Handley in Quantities Greater Than a Quart.

HIS JUDGMENT IN CASE.

Judgment in the case of the hotelkeeper charged with selling liquor to John Handley on the 23rd of February in quantities larger than a quart was given to-day by Magistrate Dumble.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defendant, who was fined $20 and costs, amounting to $25.55. Mr. Kerr gave notice of appeal.

The Judgment

His Worship's judgment is as follows:—

This is an information charging the defendant with having on Tuesday, February 23rd, 1909, unlawfully sold to one John Handley, a quantity of fermented or spirituous liquor in quantities greater than one quart, the defendant being a holder of a tavern licence.,

Handley swore that he and one Sothern were going with a woman to a ball at Burleigh, twenty miles distant, that a cab was coming for them. Sothern and he were in defendant's tavern. Handley purchased a large bottle of whiskey to take with them. Having bought the whiskey he suggested that it would be a good thing to take some lager beer. He thereupon ordered two bottles of lager (pints), and presently he said he would change the order by taking a dozen of lager. He very positively swears that he paid the bartender for the dozen of lager. The whiskey and the lager were put in a basket and, the cab having arrived, the driver took the basket and put it in the cab. Handley swears further that on the way to Lakefield (10 miles) he drank five bottles, and Sothern drank some, helping himself from the basket. They appear also to have drunk from the whiskey bottle. On arriving at Lakefield Handley was hopelessly drunk. At the bar at Peterborough, Sothern and Handley had several drinks, but not from the bottles purchased.

The driver of the cab swore that about four miles from Peterborough, the two men got out and that he was handed a bottle of lager about half full, which he drank. He also swears that at Burleigh he found, in the cab, two full bottles of lager.

For the defence the bartender was called. He swore that he sold a bottle of Imperial whiskey to Handley, for which he was paid an American dollar, and that Handley in about fifteen minutes bought two bottles of lager beer; that he put the whiskey and lager in a basket and gave it to the cab driver; that Handley was not too drunk to know what he was doing, and that he would not give liquor if drunk. It is urged that these were two distinct sales, each being paid for separately, and that the whiskey was less than a quart, and the two bottles of lager were less than a quart.

Under Sec. 2 of the Act the tavern keeper is allowed to sell liquors in quantities less than one quart, which may be drunk in the inn.

It evidently is intended to limit the quantity a person may drink in an inn. If it is permitted that a man may buy a bottle of whiskey and pay for it, then buy another bottle, perhaps of another liquor, and pay for it, and so continue drinking what was bought, the evident intention of the Act would be defeated, for it would insure drunkenness.

In this case Handley first bought the whiskey, then in a few minutes the lager, and assuming that he only got two bottles of lager, the quantity of the two purchases, according to the bartender's evidence, was more than a quart, but if he got one dozen of lager, that would be a breach of the law, irrespective of the whiskey. As to a tavern, I hold that the purchase of the whiskey and two bottles of lager constituted a purchase of more than a quart.

In the Queen vs. Connolly, 2 Can. Cr. C, page 325, re Lampier Orr, Ont., weekly notes, 29th May, 1908, under a ship license, the shop keeper may sell any quantity of liquor, not being less than three half-pints, to be sold in unbroken packages, and less than one half-pint at any one time to any one person, and at the time of sale to be wholly removed in quantities not less than three half-pints or one half-pint as the case may be.

The tavern license is different. It is a place of entertainment, where food and drink may be had, but the Government has deliberately provided against drunkenness by limiting the quantity and it makes no difference where or the quantity of liquor is all of one kind or several kinds, there can only be a quart in all, and intervals of a few minutes between the buying would, if allowed, only make an evasion of the law.

I have no reason to doubt Handley's evidence, so I find that there was a breach of the law and I adjudge that the defendant is guilty, and that he pay a fine of $20 and costs, to be paid in ten days or one month in goal.

FATHER OF SECRETARY OF THE Y. M. C. A. HAS PASSED AWAY

Rev. Geo. Hassard, Well Known Methodist Clergyman, is Dead at Orangeville.

WAS A PIONEER DIVINE

Mr. F. Hassard, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., on Saturday night received the sad intelligence that his father, the Rev. Richard Hassard, had passed away suddenly. A despatch says:

Orangeville, March 14.—The Rev. Richard Hassard of this place, died on Saturday night. He had been ailing for two or three weeks, but so little was anything serious apprehended that his son, Dr. George Hassard, of Harrow, Ont., and who had been with him on Saturday, felt his condition to be so satisfactory that he decided at his father's express request to take a run home for a few days.

The Rev. Mr. Hassard was one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of Ontario. He came to Canada from the north of Ireland many years ago, being then associated with the Primitive Methodist or Wesleyan Methodist body, and many were the experiences which he underwent in the sparsely settled circuits in which he ministered. He was identified with the Mount Albert, Manilla, Cartwright, Laurel, Tyrone, and other districts in days when the work of a minister covered many things, and when long drives through unsettled districts and preaching almost constantly were the usual life of the minister. He was perfectly fearless, and by his courage won and made lifelong friends every place he went. About thirteen years ago, owing to failing health, Rev. Mr. Hassard withdrew from active pulpit life, and took up his residence in Orangeville, where he resided until the time of his death.

Rev. Mr. Hassard is survived by his widow, five sons and one daughter, as follows: Revs. W. E. of Toronto, Dr. George A. of Harrow, Dr. Robert E. of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Frank Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Peterborough; Harry, a druggist, in Fort William, and Mrs. Irwin, wife of the Rev. A. J. Irwin, B.A., Methodist minister of Tara.

CANADA'S FAMOUS MEN AND WOMEN

Gladly Testify to the Great Value of "Fruit-a-tives."

Hon. Senator Costigan (member of the Cabinets of five Premiers of Canada), says:—"Fruit-a-tives is the only medicine I ever took that did me any good for Constipation."

Mrs. J. R. Flock (widow of one of the most prominent physicians in London), writes:—"I was a constant martyr to Stomach Weakness all my life and no physician could cure me, but Fruit-a-tives gave me entire relief and I strongly recommend this medicine."

Mr. James Dingwall (Superintendent of St. Andrew's Sunday School in Williamstown, Ont., for nine years) states: "I am now over eighty years old, and I can strongly recommend Fruit-a-tives for Bladder and Kidney Trouble and Chronic Constipation."

Mr. H. Marchesault (High Constable of Quebec), testifies:—"I suffered for ten years with Severe Pain in the Back. Nothing did me any good until I tried Fruit-a-tives."

Mr. W. J. McComb (the leading merchant of Trenton, Ont.), writes:—"I was a martyr to Headaches—consulted doctors — wore glasses — without the slightest relief. Then I took Fruit-a-tives and this remedy cured me."

This is the kind of evidence that convinces. Dealers everywhere have "Fruit-a-tives." 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. Sent postpaid on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ott

NEW THEORY IN KINRADE AFFAIR

Police Hold No Suspicion Against Florence Kinrade.

LOOK IN NEW DIRECTION

Latest Explanation of Hamilton Mystery Is That Girl Is Keeping Silent Out of Self-Sacrifice In Order to Shield Another Person — Witness Think the Murder Was Committed About 2.30 p.m.

Hamilton, March 15.—It is evident that the apparent theory of the crown as deducted by many observers in the Kinrade murder case from the evidence given at the trial is not the real theory which is being followed.

There are other theories which would acquit Miss Florence Kinrade of any such part as the special correspondence in some of the American newspapers would impute to her, and also account for her remarkable self-possession and coolness throughout the terrible examination to which she was subjected on Friday evening last by the crown examiner. Women will do heroic things in a spirit of self-sacrifice which they would not be capable of under the Detroit and Buffalo theory of self-preservation.

Many points in the evidence are quite incompatible with the theory of the American newspapers.

That Florence Kinrade was perfectly innocent of the crime is clear from the entire absence of any effort to have recourse to the usual and obvious defence of an alibi. The suspicions of the crown in quite another direction are clear from the questions put to Inspector McMahon and Detective Bleakley on Thursday evening.

Detective Bleakley's story was of a crime that had been committed—according to the story of C. S. Wilcox, who believes he heard shots—between 2.10 and 2.30. The first bullet struck the girl as she sat on the chair near the dining-room door to the stairs. Falling over on the ground several other shots were fired and bullets with portions of teeth were found in the pool of blood on the floor. One bullet, evidently fired downwards at the prostrate body, was found imbedded in the floor. A juryman asked if the face of the girl in such a case would not have shown traces of the blood. As none were left they must have been removed. When the body was found this pool of blood was covered by the body, which was then straightened out so that the blood would not have flowed from any wound in the body in the position in which it was found. After this change in the position of the body and the probable removal of traces of blood from the face of the dead girl, three shots were fired at close range into her breast.

Another new witness for the crown will, it is claimed, now depose to hearing these latter shots about 3 o'clock, fixing the time by his having noticed the clock at 2 minutes to 3, and hearing, as he believes, three shots fired as he passed the Kinrade home within five minutes after.

Detective Bleakley swore that when Mr. Kinrade first entered the house after the tragedy he said, "I just expected something like this would happen."

Ernest Kinrade had been quoted as making use of the expression, "I knew something would happen," which, however, he modified as having said, "I knew something had happened."

Under the view apparently held by the crown, the contradictions in Florence Kinrade's evidence are not of importance, and her movements in the States or elsewhere have but the slightest possible bearing on the central incident.

The recovery of the revolver and the identification of the person who took it from the house after 3 o'clock on the fatal day will solve the whole mystery.

The police say that no steps have been taken yet to open up the sewer leading from the Kinrade home.

Montreal Waif Caught at Cobalt.

Montreal, March 15.—Get-rich-quick ideas fired the imagination of Master Lionel Trudel, aged 13, who ran away from home a few days ago at Point St. Charles, and nothing more was heard from him till yesterday, when his mother received a wire from the Cobalt chief of police saying he was holding the youngster awaiting the mother's order.

KIDNEY DISEASE COMES ON QUIETLY.

Perhaps no organs work harder than the kidneys to keep the general health of the body above the people are troubled with some kidney Complaint, but do not suspect they may have been in the system for some time. There may have been backaches, swelling of the feet and ankles, disturbance of the urinary organs, such as brick dust deposit in the urine, highly colored scanty or cloudy urine, bladder pains, frequent or supressed urination, burning sensation when urinating, etc.

Do not neglect any of these symptoms, for, if neglected they will eventually lead to Bright's Disease, Dropsy and Diabetes.

On the first sign of anything wrong Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go to the seat of trouble, strengthen the kidneys and help them to filter the blood properly and flush off all the impurities which cause kidney trouble.

Miss Albertha B. Clarke, Stony Creek, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with kidney trouble for several years; my back was weak, I had such terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night and tried everything without any benefit. Meantime a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got four boxes and they completely cured me. I now feel as well as I ever did and would advise everyone suffering from Kidney Disease to try them."

THREE HURT IN WRECK.

Wabash Passenger Collides With Engine at St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, March 15.—Wabash Engineer Thomas Arnum, Fireman Thomas Cade, and a woman, Mrs. Terwelger, Elmira, N.Y., were seriously injured in a wreck here in the Grand Trunk-Wabash yards yesterday morning.

The railway men hurt were on a freight engine, ready to take a westbound freight out as soon as the Wabash passenger train should arrive from the west, due at 1.30 a.m. The passenger came in on time, crossing the big bridge at ten miles on hour. Engineer Blanning and Fireman W. Chater, both of Windsor, felt her take the open switch on to the wrong track. The emergency brake was applied and the men saved themselves by jumping.

The engineer and fireman of the freight were not quick enough, Arnum was pinned between the cab and tender and had his shoulder and ribs badly squeezed, while a steam valve was broken and his legs were scalded. Scalds on the arm and back comprise the injuries to Cade, neither of whom were fatally hurt. The woman, the only passenger to receive more than a shaking up, was thrown against the seat and window with such force that she received many cuts. She had no bones broken, and is suffering only from external wounds and shock. She is at the Amasa Wood Hospital.

KEPT ON FERRY.

Franciscan Monk Wouldn't Answer Officials' Queries.

Windsor, March 15.—Because he objected to acknowledging his identity, and declined to state whether he possessed sufficient funds to make him eligible to enter Canada, Francis Pettinggill, a member of a religious brotherhood, spent several hours on the Detroit river on Saturday. Mr. Pettinggill, who is a member of the Christian Brothers, and is known as Brother Francisco, was on his way from Cincinnati to Chatham to enter a retreat to be conducted there during the Lenten season. He was unacquainted with border customs, and when a Canadian customs officer demanded his name, address, and further particulars as to his financial standing, he refused point blank to answer what he termed impertinent questions. As a result he was not permitted to put his foot on Canadian soil, but was sent back on the car ferry to Detroit. There he encountered more trouble, because he insisted upon preserving his attitude of reticence towards the American officers, and once more he was sent back across the river to Windsor. Half a dozen times or more he made the involuntary journey, but when darkness fell he finally capitulated and offered the Canadian authorities full and free information. Investigation showed that Brother Francisco carried a bank roll of several hundred dollars and was a prominent member of his order.

Fireman Is Hurt.

Toronto, March 15.—Robert Falconer, a city fireman, had his left leg broken, and "Doddy" Gates was as near to death as any man wants to be, during a blaze which destroyed the old Adamson grain elevator at the foot of West Market street on Sunday afternoon.

A portion on the bay front collapsed, and in the excitement of shifting their position, Falconer, who was on the branch, was jolted by the nozzle and compelled to jump. He broke through the ice, about 12 feet below, but was lucky enough to miss deep water, though he landed on some half-sunken piles. He was carried ashore by some of the crowd that were watching the fire, and then sent to St. Michael's Hospital.

Gates was forced to hang on at a height of 50 feet until he was almost exhausted, when he was rescued by means of a ladder.

Ends His Life as Fortune Came.

New York, March 15.—Frank G. Bruce, a Yonkers inventor, committed suicide at his home Saturday, just as the mail man brought to his door a letter informing him that the United States patent office had granted him a patent on a non-refillable bottle, a device which his friends say is worth $1,000,000.

Bruce had become discouraged over the difficulties which he was having in connection with his patent. Twice before he had attempted suicide.

Colorado's Foremost Citizen Dead.

Colorado Springs, March 15.—Gen. William J. Palmer, founder of Colorado Springs, is dead. Death came as a result of a fall from a horse in October, 1906, which resulted in breaking his back.

Gen. Palmer was widely known and has often been called the foremost citizen of Colorado. He leaves an estate valued at $15,000,000. He was best known as a railway builder.

Durham Hotel Closes.

Durham, March 15.—The Tahn House in this place has practically closed its doors, refused treats or lodging to the traveling public, on account of a raid by provincial detectives, who found a jug of whisky.

SCHOOL QUESTION AGAIN TO THE FORE

Old Trouble May Be Feature of Manitoba Conference.

WILL DISCUSS BOUNDARIES

When Hon. Robt. Rogers and Hon. Colin Campbell of Manitoba Cabinet Meet Sir Wilfrid This Week Old Sore May Be Reopened—Tories Will Try to Prove That Dual System Is a Failure.

Ottawa, March 15.—The representatives of the Manitoba Government, Messrs. Rogers and Campbell, will have an interview with the Prime Minister on Tuesday with reference to the extension of the boundaries of that province and the readjustment of the provincial subsidy.

It is understood that Manitoba is not at all pleased with the arrangements that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has in his mind. The Government wants more territory, but that is not the chief point of difference. It will hold out for a Federal grant proportionate to the amount received by the new Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Another matter of contention that is likely to arise is the school question. In the old Province of Manitoba the separate schools established by the Roman Catholics are not recognized; but when the dual system was abolished by the Greenway Government a concession was granted the Catholics that in sections where there are ten children of school age speaking any language but English they may demand a teacher to instruct in the dual language. This system has worked badly. It has resulted in several sections in the English-speaking children being withdrawn and instructed in private schools. There are 187 French-English, 43 German-English schools and 33 Ruthenian-English schools, in many of which they are no English-speaking children.

Since Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that he would bring in a bill this year to enlarge the province he has been approached by the Roman Catholic archbishop to provide for a separate school system in the new portion. The Manitoba Government, it is understood, will oppose this stipulation, and when the bill comes down, if it contains any such provision, it will mean a reopening of the old sores of 1896.

KING TAKES A REST.

Advices From London Say He Has Been Advised to Be Quiet.

London, March 15.—(New York Herald Cable.)—Some rather disquieting rumors have been in circulation for the last few days about the King's health, and that as a consequence His Majesty will make a rather prolonged stay abroad. It is significant that the rumor was first spread on Wednesday, just before the close of the stock exchange.

Apart from the cold from which he suffered, the King's general health, it was stated, was not quite satisfactory, and it was understood that he had been advised to live for some time as quietly as possible. But a member of his suite, who received an autograph letter from His Majesty, announced that he is very much better.

The Queen, also, is improving, but she will not venture out till the weather is milder than it is now. It is remarkable, considering Her Majesty's energy, that she has not been out of doors for a fortnight.

Arnold-Forster Dead.

London, March 15.—The death is announced in London of Hugh Oakeley Arnold-Forster, Secretary of State for War from 1903 to 1906. Mr. Arnold-Forster had been ill for a long time.

The Right Hon. Hugh Oakely Arnold-Forster came most prominently into public notice when he held the office of Secretary of State for War immediately following the Boer war. Innovations and new methods of organization which he introduced subjected him to some criticism and there was widespread discussion regarding his administration of his department.

His published works are numerous and include: "The Laws of Every Day Life," "This World of Ours," "Our Home Army," "A History of England," "The Coming of the Kilogram," "English Socialism of To-Day," and many others.

A REVIEW OF THE HOCKEY SEASON SHOWS THAT THE YEAR HAS BEEN SUCCESSFUL MANY YOUNG PLAYERS WERE DEVELOPED

A Retrospective Glance at the Contests in the Different Peterboro Leagues—The O. H. A. Season Was Fairly Good.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

The hockey season of 1909 is about at a close, and a critical review of the situation shows that it has not been a bad year, all things considered. True, no championships came to Peterborough, yet this city was represented in the O. H. A. by intermediate and junior O. H. A. teams that made creditable showings, and above all the year has been a bright one in view of the many promising players that it has brought to light.

The Juniors' Debut.

For the first time in several years Peterboro had a team in the O. H. A. junior series and the youngsters made the best showing in that series that a Peterborough team has made since the Colts won the title in 1901. They were contenders in their district beating Cobourg and Whitby, the ultimate winners, and would have undoubtedly gone further had not the demands of the intermediate team deprived them of the services of Charlie Ray, their captain and rover. The attendance at the junior games showed that the people take an interest in the youngsters and the debut of the juniors may be considered most successful.

Intermediates Good.

The Intermediates, too, had a surprisingly good season, in fact they had a very close call from capturing the championship. They gave Lindsay the hardest run they had this season, and the subsequent matches which the Midgets had, clearly showed none of the other teams which the Midgets had to meet were up to Peterboro's calibre.

Stratford certainly were not, and the scores registered against the Toronto Rowing Club and St. Catharines do not argue very highly in favour of the class shown by these two teams.

At the beginning of the season it looked as if Peterborough would not have a team at all, but a few faithful enthusiasts got together and a seven was placed in the intermediate series. The season had been disastrous financially and otherwise, and the outlook for the season just closed was not a bit brighter as no new players had come to Peterborough in the interval. As it turned out, however, the team was fairly strong, the young players came along nicely and the results on the whole were satisfactory. The team tied the district with Lindsay, after beating Belleville and Cobourg, and they gave the Midgets a merry little chase in which two extra games were necessary, for the honours. The old-time enthusiasm was in evidence among the fans, the rink being packed several times, and financially the club had a most successful year.

City League Season.

Peterborough this year had plenty of hockey outside of O. H. A. channels to entertain the fans. The City League had another successful season with five teams in the race, and the result proved an unexpected but highly popular win for the Lakefield team after four years of trying. The Strathconas, twice winners, got into the finals without a loss, but were defeated in the last game by Lakefield, the first defeat administered to the High Commissioners in three years of City League hockey. The Belmonts and West Ends had teams in the League for the first time and did fairly well and the latter especially will be heard from next season as they have gathered together a number of fast young players who are bound to develop. The T. A. S. were back into the League after an absence of several years and finished third.

This year a junior City League was inaugurated and some splendid hockey was seen. Four fast young teams of youngsters fought it out, and the T. A. S. Juniors, Chieftains, Otonabees and George Street and Jack Thirnbeck's crack little team, the Chieftains captured the honours after a most exciting final game with the George Street team. The red and black kids played great hockey and will improve with age.

Church League Revived.

The Church League was revived after having been out of existence for several years and justified its revival by furnishing excellent hockey. Both junior and senior series were played and there was a close race in each branch, a sudden death game in Brock Street rink to settle the championship being necessary. George Street Methodists, St. Andrew's and Knox Presbyterians and Park Street Baptists all had teams in the senior ranks.

In the junior league there were teams from St. John's, All Saints, Knox Church and Murray street Baptist. The All Saints team won the title, their chief rivals being the seven representing Murray street.

A Mercantile League was organized with distinct success, four teams, the Auburns, Canadian General Electric Company, Ackerman's, and the Quaker Oats Company's team fighting it out. Games were played every Monday night at Brock Street rink, which were well attended, and which furnished excellent hockey. The Quakers won the championship by beating the C. G. E. in the final game, after a splendid battle.

Of the independent teams the one that has shown the greatest promise has been the splendid young seven representing the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, and hockey fans are looking to this bunch of "kids" to furnish a junior O. H. A. championship for Peterborough. They have played splendid hockey this season, showing speed, headwork, and combination, and have beaten such teams as the Rough Riders handily, and wound up their local season in a blaze of triumph by taking into camp the Peterborough O. H. A. juniors by a score of 5-2.

GREAT BOWLING AT THE P. B. G. ALLEYS DURING THE PAST WEEK 31 SCORES OF OVER 200 MADE

Last week was featured by some of the most classy bowling ever seen on the P. B. C. alleys. The trundlers seem to have struck their gait with a vengeance and what they did to the pins during the week was not worth doing. To prove this it is necessary only to mention that there were no less than thirty-one scores of over two hundred, seventeen bowlers getting into the blue ribbon class.

It was great scoring, and everyone seemed to have the fever, as in addition to the two hundred scores there were dozens of tallies better than 190, and that is going some. The Iroquois were the chief offenders in punishing the wood, George Sutherland hanging five scores over the 200 mark, the best of which was 245, winning him the weekly box of cigars presented by the management for the best single score, while Herb Martin put on four scores, over 200 of which three were better than 225. McIlroy of the Pacifics, had three to his credit and there were five others with two each.

Sutherland's high water mark of 245 was put on early in the week and proved good enough to weather all the assaults made upon it although there were many times during the week when it looked as if it was going to be beaten. The same offer is on this week and the cracks say that it will take at least a 250 score to bring home the bacon.

The feature of the League rolling during the past week has been the substantial gain made by the Examiner A, who are now tied with the Pacifics for the leadership. The Exams took on their office mates, the Exam B's early in the week and trimmed them three in a row, while on Saturday the best the Pacifics could do with the Hams was to take two from the Hurtubise-Houlihan-Clancy combination, leaving them tied with the newspapermen. The Bankers are now two games behind the leaders, and have an awkward proposition on their hands to-night, when they hook up with the Iroquois. The Indians put on nine 200 scores last week, and have won the box of cigars two weeks in succession, so that they may be counted on to give the Bankers a chase to-night. The Examiner A clash with the Lockworks to-morrow night, and according to the dope should at least take two from them, which will put them up on top of the heap.

The alleys were never in better shape than they are just now and the bowlers have never had things more in their favour in their attempt to put on good scores. A carnival of high scoring was in vogue last week, but even higher things are looked for during the next few days as the bowlers seem to have their eyes on the king pin for fair.

Following is a list of those who have made better than 200 in the last week:

G. Sutherland (Iroquois) 217, 203, 245, 212. 220,

PROSPECTS FOR BALL SEASON NO MIDLAND LEAGUE TEAM

With the present springlike appearance of the weather the young man's fancy has lightly turned to thoughts of baseball and already the fans have started to figure out the prospects for the season. At present there is nothing very definite to offer although it looks reasonably safe to say that there will be no Midland League ball for Peterborough this season unless the constitution of the League is considerably altered. The Petes won the League last year but the season was a frost financially, although one of the fastest teams that ever played in the Midland League had been gathered together. Unless the League is made a purely amateur one with a strict residence rule that will be carried out to the letter there is no chance for the Midland League to prove a success. As it has been in the past few years, the personnel of the different teams was never known until they stepped on the field. Every team imported men, but only the winning teams could hope to have any chance to pay their men and even they went into the hole financially hanging on only because they had a chance to win the championship.

The proposal has been made and is under consideration that Peterborough should make application to get into the Toronto League. It is understad that ther will be five teams in the Toronto Senior League this season which will mean that one will have a bye every Saturday. It is proposed that Peterborough should play the odd team here every Saturday, while they might play the other games in Toronto in the middle of the week. From a Peterborough standpoint such an arrangement would be ideal as a Toronto team playing here every Saturday would draw big crowds and create great interest. On the other hand it is hardly to be supposed that the Toronto managers will fall over themselves to agree to the proposition. The main drawback is that the games in Toronto in the middle of the week would hardly draw very well especially during the time that the Maple Leafs are playing at home.

That there will be a City League this year goes without saying and a senior group of four teams is being figured on. The Strathconas and T. A. S. would enter such a League and no doubt two other teams could be secured to round out the quartette.

DAVE HARTLEY MADE GOOD HIS BOAST THAT HE WOULD FINISH

Dave Hartley did what he said he would when he left here the week before last for New York. He announced to a few of his friends that he would stay to the finish if he had to do it alone, and he made good his prediction. During the race he "killed off" two partners, and had to finish alone, but he kept doggedly at it, many miles behind the others and without a chance to get into the money class. Such an achievement speaks well for his powers of endurance and his stamina. Many younger men, especially selected by European countries to represent them in the big race found the strain too much and fell by the wayside, but Hartley, all alone with no money or no one to look after him, his partner out of it, kept up that strenuous grind until the race came to an end on Saturday night. The race shows that the veteran posesses pluck, if nothing else, and Peterborough has no reason to feel ashamed of the work of her representative. A despatch says:

New York, March 13.—France carried off the honours in the six days' international go-as-you-please race, when the team representing that country—Edouard Cibot and Louis Orphee—finished more than 13 miles ahead of their nearest competitors, Davis and Melkus, a reconstructed team.

The score was 732 miles and 6 laps, which is about 38 miles behind the record of 770 miles, made several years ago by Cavanaugh and Hegelman.

Cibot and Orphee held the lead for four days, displacing Dineen and Prouty, who led the first day. They have shown good form throughout the race and finished in splendid condition. Judging from the attendance during the week the revival of six-day pedestrianism has not proved popular. Only within the last two days has the number of spectators at the race been even fair. The final score:

Cibot and Orphee, 732.6; Davis and Melkus, 719.5; Dineen and Prouty, 7.02.0; Loeslein and Klubertanz, 688.3, Shelton and Frazer, 674.4; Corey and Hegelman, 649.2; Feegan and Curtis, 634.3; Guignard and Rovere, 610.4; Navezand and Kellar, 585.5; Edelson and Palanti, 533.5; Hartley (alone) 420.0.

COLLEGIATE WERE BEATEN IN LINDSAY

Local High School Students Lost An Interesting Game by a Score of Seven Goals To Four.

The Collegiate Institute team, which beat the Peterborough O.H.A. Juniors here last Thursday night were beaten in Lindsay on Saturday afternoon by the team representing the Lindsay Collegiate Institute. The score was seven to four in favour of the Scugog seven but the Peterborough men made an excellent showing, considering that they were short of the services of Ken Crane, their crack rover.

At the half it was three all, but Lindsay had the better of the second half and scored four goals, while Peterborough found the nets but once. The Spratt brothers were the stars for Lindsay, while the Peterborough team lined up as follows:—

SIMPSON-SHRUBB RACE IS CAUSING MUCH EXCITEMENT

Toronto, March 13.—The Shrubb-Simpson race in the Toronto Armories next Saturday night will probably be witnessed by the greatest crowd the big building has ever held. Though the seat plan does not open till Wednesday, applications are already coming in from many outside points. The calibre of Shrubb's opponent means that the contest will be one worth a long journey, and Simpson's trainer, Tom Eck, promises a race that will long be remembered. He has no idea that the English champion can defeat the Hiawatha runner, who has youth as well as great running ability on his side. The race will be twelve miles, and is under the auspices of the Toronto garrison, both the runners having been in the King's service. Shrubb and the Indian both had a good day's training yesterday, and found the weather just suited to their liking for outdoor preparation.

A large number of friends and relatives were present to witness the ceremony. The bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mrs. J. Billington. The bride was attired in cream silk, and carried a prety bouquet of white carnations and ferns. The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Aker, sister of the groom, was atired in white organdie. She also carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns. The groom was supported by Mr. W. O. Graham, of Norwood Grove. A splendid wedding dinner was served, and at its conclusion Rev. OBITUARY

MRS. CHAS. H. MANN

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Mann will learn with regret of the death of Mrs. Mann, at their home, 132 Young St., Hamilton, Ont., on Saturday, March 13th, at 12 o'clock noon.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mann were widely known throughout Peterborough, Bridgenorth and Smith.

Mrs. Mann's maiden name was Mary E. Buntin, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Buntin, of this city (Peterborough).

Mrs. Mann was born in Port Perry and in 1898 she came with her parents, who moved to this city.

She was an active worker in temperance movements and took an active part in church work in Murray and Park Street Churches, but after their marriage on April 30, 1902, Mrs. Mann united with Gore Street Methodist Church (Hamilton), where she became active in choir work. We regret to learn that Mrs. Mann has been in poor health for the past two years. In September last she went under on operation for peritonitis, from which she never seemed to recover successfully. Her last illness was of two days' duration, having taken ill on Thursday at noon and in spite of all medical aid passed away Saturday noon.

The parents received messages by telephone that their daughter was not expected to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Buntin, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Gertrude, hastened in response to the call but on arriving at Hamilton, at 2 o'clock Saturday, found that death's messenger had been swifter than their train as their loved one had passed away one hour and fifty-five minutes prior to their arrival.

Mrs. Mann leaves to mourn her loss her loving husband, Chas. H. Mann, her father and mother, two sisters and two brothers, Miss Gertrude and Mr. F. J. Buntin, of this city, (Peterborough), and Mrs. Wm. Ed. Dixon, of Hamilton, and Albert E., of Skykomish, Washington, U. S. A.

MRS. GEORGE B. HANBIDGE

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Sunday of Mrs. George B. Hanbidge, of Otonabee, after an illness from Bright's disease. She was 27 years of age and was born in Otonabee, she being the daughter of Mr. W. B. Stewart. Her maiden name was Bertha Irene Stewart. She was married only a few months ago to her now sorrowing husband. She was a woman of many estimable qualities and the news of her death will be learned of with the profoundest regret.

Her husband, father and one sister are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, Lot 20, Concession 15, to the Little Lake cemetery.

ANNUAL MEETING OF T. A. S. ATHLETIC CLUB

The annual meeting of the St. Peter's T. A. S. Athletic club will be held in the T. A. S. rooms to-morrow night at 8:30 o'clock, when the officers for the ensuing year will be elected, reports received and other business transacted. It is important that there should be a large attendance as it is desired to discuss the plans for the coming season in connection with baseball, lacrosse and other sports.

FARMERS FOR FARM HANDS FARM HANDS FOR FARMERS

The Examiner Mutual Employment Bureau To Be Re-opened Again This Season.

Encouraged by the success of last year of the Examiner's effort to bring farmers and farm hands together, we shall this season repeat the effort in the interest of both parties.

Last season between forty and fifty farm hands found places through the Examiner's Employment Bureau and as many farmers were accommodated.

The time has again arrived when men are seking places and farmers are wanting help.

Both farm hands and employing farmers are invited and welcomed to leave their names on record at the Examiner office, with details of capabilities and experience offered or demanded.

On Saturday afternoon at a quarter-past one o'clock, the Examiner office, 419 George street is placed at the disposal of men and farmers so that they may meet and come to personal understanding.

And during the week, applicants will be directed to the residences of farmers wanting hands or farmers will be informed of the addresses of applicants.

Both parties concerned are asked to remember that there is absolutely no charge for any services in this connection. The Examiner will be gratified if it can be fortunate enough to render services such as those mentioned.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy's Horse Nearly Drowned In East City To-day

East City residents, near the corner of Hunter and Mark streets, had an exciting time this morning. There was a runaway that brought them all to their doors to see what had happened, and before it was over, a horse was drowning out in front of the residence of Mr. S. Wright.

It was by a very narrow escape that Mr. H. P. Kennedy did not lose one of his fine horses. The water in the ditch in front of Mr. Wright's house is quite deep, the pipes having become frozen up, did not carry off the water from the street. Mr. Percy Kennedy did not know of this, and drove right over the thin ice. The horse immediately sank until only its head was visible.

t was with great difficulty and only with the assistance of Mr. Robert Watley and a number of other men that the animal was rescued from its perilous position. It was finally pulled out and taken to its stable.

Motors For Canoes And Skiffs On Exhibition At Millard's

An interesting window display of the latest small craft motor fixtures for the coming summer's pleasures on the river is to be seen at H. T. Millard's window on Hunter St., near Aylmer St. One of these is the Porto Outboard Motor. This weighs 74 lbs., is very compact and can be adjusted or removed in a moment. It is attached at the stern of a canoe or skiff and is really a part of the rudder. The engine is a two-horse power and the entire attachment is reported to be most satisfactory. It uses one gallon of gasoline in travelling 30 miles, and according to the lines of the boat the speed is from 7 to 12 miles per hour.

The other display is a small engine invented by Mr. W. Bennett, of the Millard shop. It is designed for small boats of the canoe and skiff type, is small but effective. It is a two-cycle single cylinder 2-horse power motor and weighs about 56 pounds. Both these displays are very interesting to boatmen and already many enquiries have been made.

An Interesting Presentation Made In South Verulam

South Verulam, March 13.—Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Brick and family left for the West on Tuesday, where they are about to take up their new home. They took with them a car packed full of useful and valuable stuff. It consisted of five horses, two cows, sleighs, buggy, cutter, robes and harness; a quantity of lumber and wood, also their house furniture.

On the eve of his departure a number of his friends and neighbours assembled together at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brick, of Verulam, to partake of the farewell supper which was served, and a very pleasant evening was spent in songs, music and games. After supper Mr. and Mrs. Brick were presented with two very handsome chairs and suitcase, and the address was read by Miss Florence White, as follows:

To Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Brick.

Dear friends,—Your many friends and neighbours feel that they cannot allow you to depart from their midst without showing some mark of general esteem in which you are regarded in the neighbourhood. During your sojourn amongst us you have contributed abundantly towards making lifepleasant, not only at your own home, but also in the sociable gatherings where we have met from time to time.

Your general presence has always made itself pleasant, and we feel as kind and sociable neighbours, that your place will be hard to fill. We also hope that your removal will not completely sever the bonds of friendship existing amongst us, but we ask as a slight token of our appreciation to accept these chairs and suit case, trusting that their presence in later years may be an emblem of departed days and pleasant associations of South Verulam. Let us assure you that our very best wishes go with you and your family to your new home, where we trust and hope that happiness and prosperity await you in a long life of continued usefulness.

Signed on behalf of your friends in this community, W. J. Falls, G. R. Fair, Rich. Davis, W. A. Graham, H. McFeeters.

A SUNDAY STROLL.

This Recreation Was at One Time Unlawful in Maine.

Something of the exact behavior demanded from young people by those in authority in the early days of the nineteenth century is brought to notice in the biography of Peter Edes, a pioneer printer in Maine. Mr. Edes had an appentrice, James Orrock, who enjoyed a walk on Sunday after a week of indoor employment.

Mr. Edes soon found out that this was not permitted at Bangor and wrote to a friend of the trouble caused him by his apprentice's apparently innocent amusement.

"You must know," he writes, "that the people are very strict on this day and will not let men walk out, much less boys. James was strolling about and was ordered home by the tything men, but he would not obey them. A complaint was lodged against me on the next day, and I should have been obliged to pay a fine had not Judge Dutton pleaded in my behalf that I did not approve of such conduct and so got clear."

Another interesting incident in connection with life in Bangor at this time is an advertisement which appeared in Mr. Edes' paper, the Bangor Weekly Register, stating that "E. & M. R. Edes have opened a school in the room over the Register office for the instruction of young misses and small children in the useful and ornamental branches of education."

The terms were: "Orthography and plain work, 17 cents per week; writing, English grammar, geography with the use of maps, composition, ornamental needlework, 25 cents per week." This was probably one of the first schools in Maine for teaching young ladies exclusively in the branches of education and also including plain work and fancy needlework.

THE APPARENT THEORY OF THE CROWN IN KINRADE CASE SAID NOT TO BE THE REAL REASON FOR WHAT IS BEING FOLLOWED OUT

Spirit of Self-Sacrifice Is Said To Be Actuating The Chief Witnesses In The Case That Has Attracted So Much Attention---Latest Developments

C. S. WILCOX'S EVIDENCE IS VERY IMPORTANT.

Hamilton, Ont., March 16.—It is evident that the apparent theory of the Crown as deduced by many observers in the Kinrade murder case from the evidence given at the trial is not the real theory which is being followed.

There are other theories which would acquit Miss Florence Kinrade of any such part as the special correspondence in some of the American newspapers would impute to her, and also account for her remarkable self possession and coolness throughout the terrible examination to which she was subjected on Friday evening last, by the Crown examiner. Women will do heroic things in a spirit of self sacrifice which they would not be capable of under the Detroit and Buffalo theory of self preservation.

Many points in the evidence are quite incompatible with the theory of the American newspapers.

That Florence Kinrade was perfectly innocent of the crime is argued from the entire absence of any effort to have recourse to the usual and obvious defence of an alibi.

That the suspicions of the Crown are in quite another direction are clear from the questions put to Inspector McMahon and Detective Bleakley on Thursday evening.

Detective Bleakley's story of the crime fits in with the recently obtained evidence of a neighbour, C. S. Wilcox, who believes he heard shots between 2:10 and 2:30.

Shot in Chair

The first bullet, Bleakley thinks, struck the girl as she sat on a chair near the dining-room door to the stairs. Falling over on the ground, several others shots were fired and the bullets with portions of teeth were found in a pool of blood on the floor.

One bullet, evidently fired downward at the prostrate body, was found imbedded in the floor. A juryman asked if the face of the girl in such case would not have shown traces of blood. As none were left, they must have been removed. When the body was found this pool of blood was covered by the body, which was then straightened out so that the blood could not have flowed from any wound in the body in the position in which it was found. After this change in position of the body and the probable removal of the traces of blood from the face of the dead girl, three shots were fired at close range into her breast.

Another new witness for the Crown will, it is claimed, now depose to hearing these latter shots about 3 o'clock, fixing the time by his having noticed the clock at 2 minutes to 3, and hearing, as he believed, three shots fired as he passed the Kinrade home within five minutes after.

Detective Bleakley swore that when Mr. Kinrade first entered the house after the tragedy he said: "I just expected something like this would happen." Ernest Kinrade had been quoted as making use of the expression: "I knew something would happen," which, however, he modified as having said, "I knew something had happened."

Under the view apparently held by the Crown, the contradictions in Florence Kinrade's evidence are not of importance, and her movements in the States or elsewhere have but the slightest possible bearing on the central incident.

The discovery of the revolver and the identification of the person who took it from the house after 3 o'clock on the fatal day will solve the whole mystery.

There have been some wild stories published in some of the United States papers, and it is likely the correspondents of these papers will be excluded from the court room on Friday night.

What About Ethel?

It is thought curious that so far at the inquest none of the witnesses have been asked by Mr. Blackstock about the recent movements and habits of the murdered girl, Ethel Kinrade. Father, brothers, sister have been questioned most thoroughly as to their doings, their habits, their travels. But there has been nothing as to what Ethel had been doing for the last year, where she had been, what sort of girl she was, whether she had any friends or social relationships that might have developed enemies. It may be, of course, that the detectives have satisfied themselves on these points privately, but nothing has been revealed publicly.

One of the many suggestions made is that Mr. Blackstock's line of questioning has been a "blind," and they see confirmation in the apparent satisfied manner which the lawyer assumed in an interview with a reporter on Friday morning. People are loth to believe that the detectives are as "up against it" as might be gathered from the progress of the inquest.

CHARTERS GRANTED

Two Applicants For Electric Railway Rights In The Kawartha District Before The Legislature.

NO SETTLEMENT AS YET.

Examiner Special, 2:45 p.m.

Toronto, March 16.—Two applicants for same railway rights between Cobourg and Havelock and including Kawartha Lakes district appeared before the Railway Committee this morning in support of two separate bills of incorporation. Representatives of both interests were present to press the alleged prior claims.

It was explained that the Opposition to the second bill "to incorporate the Cobourg, Peterborough, and Kawartha Lakes Railway Company," was strongly opposed by the Board of Trade of Port Hope, which did not wish to see the town cut off from the new electric route through the Kawartha Lakes district. Of the Cobourg line, promoters Mr. H. M. Fields, barrister of Cobourg, was the spokesman. Colonel Henry A. Ward appeared for the Port Hope line advocates.

On motion of Mr. Sam Clarke, the promoters of the two companies retired for half an hour to try to effect a settlement but failed. On Mr. Clarke's motion both bills were then passed granting two charters with few dissenting votes.

HE WAS TIRED OF LIFE AND ATTEMPTED SUICIDE BY DRINKING PARIS GREEN

Rash Act of Wilson Francis, a Young Englishman, in Jacobi's Restaurant Last Evening---Timely Action of Mr. Jacobi Saved a Life---Had Drunk Two Gulps of the Deadly Poison---Was Arrested and Taken to the Police Station----Two Doctors Worked on Him for Some Time---Appeared in Police Court This Morning.

WAS ALLOWED TO GO.

Had it not been for the timely action of Mr. Jacobi, the proprietor of the quick lunch counter, George street, Wilson Francis, a young man, would have ended his life last evening. He had taken two gulps of Paris green, when Mr. Jacobi turned round and saw green on the man's mouth. He asked him what he was drinking. He was told Paris green, and the man then immediately left the place. The police were telephoned and P. C. S. Meagher and Meharry arrested the man. With medical assistance he was soon out of danger, but would give no reason for his rash act.

Ordered Pork and Beans.

Francis entered the restaurant about half-past seven and took the seat at the extreme west end of the counter, or, in other words, the first one on entering the door. Mr. Neil Bratt, one of the clerks, took the young man's order, which was for pork and beans. He was also given a cup of tea. Mr. Bratt then went upstairs, leaving Mr. Jacobi and Francis alone. Only a few minutes could have elapsed when Francis took the poison from his pocket and poured it into the cup of tea. He must have drank twice of the deadly mixture when Mr. Jacobi turned to him.

"What is that green stuff you are drinking?" he asked.

"Paris green!" Francis quietly replied, and hurriedly left the cafe.

Mr. Jacobi lost no time in telephoning the police and after doing so ran up the street and caught the man.

Threw Poison Away.

P. C's. Meharry and Meagher were on their way to the restaurant when they met Mr. Jacobi with the man. They took him into their charge and brought him along to the police station. At the crossing on Simcoe St., before one comes to Mr. C. N. Brown's feed store, the prisoner threw something from his pocket out on to the road. P. C. Meharry picked it up and found it to be an one-half-pound pasteboard box, marked "Louis Beyer & Son, London, England. It was labelled pure Paris Green. The contents were practically all gone, evidently what hadn't been poured in the teacup was emptied on the road. Certainly had it not been for the timely action of Mr. Jacobi, the unfortunate man would have gone away and it would not have been long before the poison would have resulted fatally. Where the Paris Green was purchased could not be ascertained.

Used Stomach Pump.

Drs. Halliday and Leach were called and with a stomach pump worked for some time on the prisoner, until all the poison was thrown off. The prisoner made no resistance, but readily consented to the attention of the doctors. He was sick for a short while from the effects of the poison, but soon recovered.

Evidently Tired of Life.

The prisoner gave his name as Wilson Francis. He said that he had been working for a farmer by the name of James Thompson in Otonabee. He has a sister, Mrs. Thomas Walker, who resides at 497 Sherbrooke street.

He refused to give any motive for attempting suicide, but it apparently was a case of being tired of life. He is a man about twenty-two years of age. He was comfortably but not well dressed. Mr. Bratt, of Jacobi's restaurant, stated that Francis had been in there several times lately, and invariably was somewhat the worse of liquor.

Gave Him a Dollar.

Francis appeared before Magistrate Dumble, at the Police Court this morning, charged with attempted suicide, and was allowed to go, His Worship giving him a dollar to help him along.

Francis is an Englishman and has been in Canada three years, during which time he has worked for several farmers. The last one he was with three months. For his work he had received his board and one dollar.

"Why did you attempt to destroy yourself?" the Magistrate asked him.

"God gave you your life and you must make the best of it."

"I did it in a fit of despondency," the prisoner answered. "I have learn-

TO BE HELD ON MAY 24

Military Demonstration For Victoria Day Practically Decided Upon at Meeting of Officers of the 57th Last Evening.

The Brantford and St. Catharines Regiments Will Be Invited Here.

OPEN NEW ARMOURIES.

Invitations will be extended by the 57th Regiment to the Brantford and St. Catharines Regiments to visit here on the 24th of May, when it is proposed to hold a military demonstration in connection with the formal opening of the new armouries. This was practically decided upon at a largely attended meeting of the officers last night.

It is expected that the new armouries will be ready for opening by the 24th of May. It would only be fitting that some ceremonial function should mark the occasion. Officers from the Government and military headquarters would be invited to attend. Should the invited regiments visit the city, they would come on Saturday, the twenty-second, returning to their homes on the evening of Victoria Day. A church parade would be held on the Sunday. Just what will be the nature of the demonstration will be decided at a later meeting.

As the celebration will be a great event in the history of Peterborough the City Council will be asked to contribute towards the expense of entertaining the visiting soldiers.

The officers of the regiment will meet again next Monday evening.

ENTERTAINED ON EVE OF DEPARTURE

Mr. Wm. Young, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Wm. Young, Lakefield, and his sisters, Mrs. Alex. Davidson, 607 Water street, and Mrs. Quinn, Burnham street, East City, for the past three months, left this morning for his home in Davidson, Man., en route he will visit his sisters in Carberry. Mr. Young was entertained at the residence of Mrs. Davidson last night, when a number of friends and relatives gathered to say farewell. The evening was very pleasantly spent in games and music.

The following classes will be fought out: Bantam, 105 and under; featherweight, 115 and under, special, 125 pounds; lightweight, 135 and under; welterweight, 145 and under, middle-weight, 158 and under, and heavyweight, all over 158 pounds. The competion is open to all registered amateurs. N. H. Crow, secretary of the C. A. A. U. will supply all the necessary information. His address is 415 Yonge St., Toronto.

Local boxers who wish to take part may obtain entry blanks from the sporting editor of the Examiner.

DATE OF ANNUAL ROLL CALL IS SET

It has been announced that the annual roll call of Murray St. Baptist Church congregation will be held on Wednesday evening, March 31st. This is an important affair in the church's yearly events and arrangements are being already made for it.

TWO DOLLARS FOR THE CHILDREN'S AID

Mr. E. L. Goodwill, Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, desires to thank the members of the Sunday School on the 6th line of Otonabee for their kind donation of two dollars. This timely thoughtfulness on the part of this school is much appreciated by the society.

THE DETECTIVES SEARCH FOR THE MISSING REVOLVER TO-DAY HAD TO BE POSTPONED BECAUSE OF SNOW

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Hamilton, Ont., March 16.—The city authorities acting under instructions from Crown Attorney Washington started work on the sewer connections at the Kinrade residence this morning for the purpose of proving the theory that the murderer of Ethel Kinrade disposed of the revolver in this manner. The work advanced but little as at 10 o'clock the men engaged were forced to postpone their operations until this afternoon owing to the bad snow storm which visited this city this morning. The police are of the firm belief that the gun will be found in the sewer trap as their evidence and opinions centred around the girl, Florence, and Mrs. Kinrade. Very little attention has been paid to the mother's actions on the afternoon of the crime, but it is understood that this has been one of the points on which the police have been working since the day of the crime. Work on the sewer will be continued this afternoon and developments are expected by night. At least one theory will be exploded or proven.

"THIS IS THE WAY WE DEAL WITH GIRLS WHO GO BACK ON US DOWN IN VIRGINIA!"

Daughter of St. Catharines Minister Reported to Have Heard This From a Man on Train the Day of Kinrade Murder.

HE HAD A REVOLVER.

Examiner Special, 2:45 p.m.

Hamilton, Ont., March 16.—It was reported at police headquarters this afternon that the detectives had come across a Miss Isaacs, who is ready to testify that on the afternoon of the crime, she was on the Buffalo train, running from Hamilton to Buffalo, and that she saw a man take a revolver out of his pocket and remark to the person sitting in the same seat, "this is the way we deal with girls who go back on us, down in Virginia." Miss Isaacs is a daughter of a Methodist minister in St. Catharines, and is a teacher in the Jordan Station school, it being her habit to take the Buffalo train every afternoon about five o'clock for St. Catharines, staying with the people over night and returning to Jordan Station the first thing in the morning. The police are investigating the story.

Young Man To Be Blacklisted, Several Disorderlies In Court

There was a large docket at the police court this morning, but Magistrate Dumble disposed of the cases rapidly. After dealing with the Englishman who attempted suicide, a number of minor offences were taken up.

A young man, after a week's remand in gaol, appeared before His Worship charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty. The prisoner's brother-in-law said that the accused came home from the woods about three weeks ago and had been drinking excessively until his arrest. The witness asked that the prisoner be blacklisted.

"A good many in this courtroom can learn a lesson from what they have seen here to-day," remarked the Magistrate. The prisoner was given another chance, and he will be placed on the "Indian list."

Several Disorderlies.

Four young men pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly on Wednesday night last and another youth admitted making a disturbance on Saturday evening. Three were allowed to go with some good advice from His Worship, it being their first offence. One had appeared on previous occasions and was fined two dollars. The fifth offender was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.75.

Chief Rogzel said that on Saturday night this young man shoved a fellow up against a woman on George street and was in the act of doing it the second time when he was arrested.

Norwood And Havelock Missions May Be United Before Long

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt is holding a vestry meeting at Havelock to-night with a view of uniting the mission of Havelock with Norwood under one clergyman instead of two. This would save the diocese considerable expense. The mission at Havelock is vacant at present and Rev. Mr. Pickford is the minister at Norwood.

Immigrants Keep Coming Out And Many Are At Farm Work

The number of immigrants who have been recorded as arriving at Peterborough since January 1st is 18. Their names and locations have been registered at Ottawa. There have been, however, many who came out who did not wish to go out on farms, and there numbering over thirty have simply been received here and in most cases are working in town. Last week there were six men to arrive and another is expected in a day or so. These latter have been sent out to farms and are quite willing and anxious to do farm work. There are more than enough vacancies for them as the farmers have during the winter, been unable to secure necessary help.

All Patent Medicines Will Have To Bear The Government Stamp

Commencing on April 1st, according to a new Act of Parliament which goes into force on that day, all patent medicines will have to be stamped with the government stamp. All of the large manufacturers of these and even the druggists who put up their own special medicines will have to have their goods labelled.

A local druggist informed the Examiner that each dealer had different numbers for their various medicines, and a fee had to be paid for the labels. It is thought that the new law will work satisfactorily to all concerned.

ENGINEERS IN THE CITY

"Messrs. Henry Holgate, C.E., and W. J. Francis, C.E., of Montreal, are in the city to-day and are stopping at the Hotel National. It was learned by the Examiner that their visit to Peterborough had nothing to do with the construction of the proposed waterworks dam.

Normal School Students Have Formed An Athletic Club

A meeting of the Normal School students was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of organizing an Athletic Club. The prospects are bright for an enjoyable Spring term and part of the work of this organization will be to arrange for excursions which will be held regularly. In connection with the athletic section the game that will be chiefly played will be tennis. The wide lawn at the Normal School will be graded and levelled, and several courts will be laid out.

The young ladies will play the game as well as the young men and mixed doubles will likely be on the list of matches. With the fine equipment that is promised tennis should flourish at the Normal and the bright new corridors will undoubtedly resound before long with the stories of the good work done on the lawn.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Honorary President — Mr. Duncan Walker, B.A.

President—Mr. Colin Lees

Vice Pres.—Mr. S. Walsh.

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. Roy Clancy.

Committee—Mr. J. S. Keyes, B.A., Messrs. Learoyd and Patterson and Misses Park and Turner.

Excursion Executive—Mr. G. A. Cornish, B.A., Miss McKellar and Miss Dunn.

The name of the organization was chosen as the Normal School Athletic Club. Baseball and basketball will also be played by the young men, the gymnasium being equipped for the latter game.

The excursions should prove very popular. There will be outings on the river and up the lakes. At times boats will be chartered and again it is the intention to arrange for canoe trips. The social life at the school is now beginning to be enjoyed, as was intended, and the Spring term is being looked forward to with great pleasure. The outings and excursions will be partly for the purpose of pursuing the prescribed studies in natural history. The faculty as well as the students are interested in the newly formed club, with the result that the close of the first year of the Peterborough Normal should be attended by most enjoyable games and outings.

Request That Everyone Be Early In Their Seats At Grand

Everything is now ready for the production of "True Irish Hearts," at the Grand Opera House to-morrow night. The final rehearsal was held last night and bespeaks a big success. The comedy lines are prominent throughout and the stage settings will run at realism in all details.

The first five rows of the top gallery will be reserved for ladies and their escorts. They will be opened to the public at 7.15, going in at the front entrance but at 7.30, after allowing 15 minutes for those who reserve the gallery front seats to secure them, the side door will be open to the general public. The committee desires as a special favour that every person be in their seats at 8.10 o'clock. The curtain will be drawn at 8.15 sharp and as confusion in the house sometimes perturbs the players, it is stated that those coming late will be shown to their seats after the first act but not during it.

ALBERTA NOMINATIONS

The nominations in the Alberta general elections took place yesterday and resulted in the election by acclamation of five Liberals and two Conservatives. Mr. W. A. Buchanan, editor of the Lethbridge Herald, a former Peterborough boy, was nominated for Alberta and will be opposed by Mr. W. B. Ives, Conservative and Mr. D. McNab, Labour. Mr. Buchanan is on the right side of politics, and his friends in Peterborough, political friend or political foe, will extend him hearty wishes for success on March 22.

JUSTICE AND JUSTICE.

The Kinrade tragedy in Hamilton is attracting a great deal of attention and arousing a great deal of interest, morbid and otherwise, which is not confined to the murder itself, but to the methods of investigation employed. United States journals note that the Canadian police do not employ the "sweating" process or "third degree"—the extreme of coercive methods analagous to the "boot"—the thumbscrew and rack of a past semi-barbarous age; and these same journals declare that if the "third degree" methods were employed in cases like that at Hamilton the Kinrade mystery would have before this been relieved of some of its mysterious features. This is to be doubted, for the mystery still remains, in the face of a "sweating" process more odious than the prison made of the United States, because it is applied publicly and by a public officer specially appointed to represent the Crown. In the Hamilton case the sister of the murdered girl has been subjected to an ordeal effectively paralleling anything ever read of in the "third degree." It is the glory of British justice that an accused person is to be regarded as innocent unless proof of guilt is furnished. Yet we see a weak girl, if one may judge from the printed reports of the evidence, under no formal accusation, treated as a suspect and subjected to a nerve-racking rigour of alternate bullying banter or suavity. A Canadian newspaper is hailed to the bar of justice if it deals with a lis pendens in a manner to influence the judgment. Here we have an officer of the law pursuing a course which is strictly analagous, and adding the torture of the rack, publicly applied, to the torture arising from the circumstances of the tragedy; the morbid and impertinent curiosity of the public; the impudent prying into family affairs, the outrage of every sentiment of privacy or sacredness of the home, and the publishing broadcast, with lurid embellishment, of all these things—newspapers and ghoulish gossip, guessing, inventing, devising, suspecting, theorizing in a circle of innuendo and surmise of which one weak girl is the centre. Yet we have a reputable journal, devoting half a column to justification of the instrument of the public torture of a witness, who, in addition to being a weak woman, mourning a murdered sister, is under the spirit of the British law, even if a formal charge of murder were laid, to be regarded as innocent. Half a column of analytic literary hysteria is devoted to mind reading, to looking into the soul of the lawyer where is discovered the operations of a great mind struggling under the lofty impulse of duty, through the mental mazes opening upon the person and the frail body of a young girl. Who will paint the mental struggle, the soul-strife of the girl herself under such an ordeal? No one desires to see the perpetrator of the awful Hamilton crime of February 25th escape the punishment that justice demands; but surely no one desires to see justice come through the outrage of the spirit of British law, of the outrage of the sacred privacy of domestic life, the outrage of the feelings of a girl whom the law regards as innocent; for, unless the real criminal is discovered, and even in that event, Florence Kinsade will go through life bearing, in the eye of human suspicion, the brand of Cain, traced by the finger of the law, in the pursuit of justice contrary to the spirit of British justice while she is, by the spirit of the same law, to be assumed to be as innocent of the death of Ethel Kinrade as the hapless victim herself.

The pursuit of justice by the ways of injustice is contrary to the broad spirit of British institutions.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC LOAN

If a loan of thirty millions to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company more than a quarter of a century ago, when Canada was a problem, was a justifiable use of the credit of the Dominion, now that Canada is a fact the loan of ten millions to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company is doubly justifiable. Then the population of Canada was four millions odd; now it is seven millions. Then Canada was potentially great; now Canada is great actually with a potentiality infinitely increased, and with available resources and revenue three times greater than 25 years ago. Then the Canadian Pacific was an experiment. Now with the experiment developed into successful experience, with the record of splendid development due to the C. P. R., the Grand Trunk is not an experiment but a justifiable enterprise well advanced into the realm of a fact, with the greatest and most undoubted promise of supreme national utility. The Ottawa Free Press thus discusses the question:

"The terms of the resolution covering the proposed loan of $10,000,000 to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, of which Hon. Mr. Fielding has given notice, make it clear that, unfortunate though the circumstance may be, it is the only way out. The arrangement is one which perfectly safeguards the interests of the country and at the same time relieves the railway company of the unfortunate position in which it finds itself to-day owing to the conditions of the bond market.

"The Government will raise on the credit of the country the amount required and will take as security the bonds of the company for the amount, such bonds to bear 4 per cent. interest per annum. These bonds are to be guaranteed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada and are to be redeemed within ten years.

"The security is ample, because it carries with it the penalty of forfeiture of the company's section of the National Transcontinental in the event of default. In brief, the Government will act as the company's banker to the extent required.

"It may be asked: What are the reasons for this state of things? The answer is simple. Owing to the increased cost of labour, of material, and, owing, also, to the excellent manner in which the road is being constructed, the original estimate of the prairie section has been increased, from $18,000 per mile to $32,000. In other words, the company has been thrown upon its own credit to the extent of $19,000 per mile for the prairie section, instead of $5,000 per mile, as was contemplated when the original contract was entered into, the difference being the cost of the road and the Government guarantee of bonds.

"This explanation ought to be sufficient to any man who has given any study to the financial conditions of the day. The arrangements is one which perfectly safeguards the interests of the country and at the same time is one which comes to the relief of the company, which is building a road, which all experts agree will, when completed, be the highest grade railway in America.

"There will, of course, be critics who will say that the proposal is one which is not a righteous one, and among them will doubtless be Mr. Foster; but when that gentleman recalls the manner in which, a few years after its incorporation, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was compelled to come back to the Conservative Government of the day and ask for a loan of $30,000,000, and to later accept a sum of ten million dollars in lieu of the ten million acres of land which it relinquished, he will probably realize that all new enterprises require more assistance than was contemplated when they were first launched."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It might be regarded as justifiable homicide if every member of the Kinrade family were to assume a gun and shoot the pictures which some journals are printing under the name of portraits.

The Railway Commission has finished its six-weeks' western circuit. In that time it has done work which would have taken the courts two years to do, and at a minimum of cost not to speak of involved loss of business.

Bar International Officers.

Ottawa, March 16.—A bill to amend the Lemieux Act has been introduced in the Senate by Senator McMullen. It aims at the exclusion of international union officers from the United States at the time of strikes, and limits the definition of conciliator to "citizens of Canada and British subjects." Interference of anyone not a citizen of Canada and a British subject is punishable by a fine of $100.

Labor Men Parade.

Boston, March 16.—As a demonstration against the sentences of imprisonment imposed upon the labor delegates, Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, in the now prominent Bucks' stove and range case by Judge Wright in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, more than 5,000 members of labor unions paraded on Sunday.

Ordnance Stations.

Ottawa, March 16.—Militia general orders announce that ordnance stations in Canada are re-classified as follows:

First class—Halifax, Ottawa, Quebec and Toronto.

Second class—Montreal, Kingston, Esquimalt and Winnipeg.

Third class—Calgary, St. John, London and Charlottetown.

Earl Grey Withdraws Patronage.

Ottawa, March 16.—Earl Grey has withdrawn his patronage from the annual concert of St. Patrick's Society. It has always been the custom of the Governor-General to attend, but this year he asks the withdrawal of his name entirely.

This is because there will be a political address by E. B. Devlin, M.P., on "Ireland's Position in the Empire."

Senator Would Reform Commons.

Ottawa, March 16.—Senator T. O. Davis of Saskatchewan is out for Commons reform.

He proposes to reduce the popular representation, and a lower House of about fifty members. The present unit of representation is twenty-five thousand in round numbers. The Davis' proposition is that the unit be increased to one hundred thousand.

Winnipeg Car Employes Agreement.

Winnipeg, March 16.—After being in session nearly five hours from midnight, the meeting of the street railway employes broke up without, it is understood, reaching an agreement as to the demands for a new schedule, to go into effect on April 1, the chief demand being made for a nine-hour day, with same pay.

Strikers Must Pay Damages.

Winnipeg, March 16.—The Court of Appeal yesterday morning handed down a decision in the famous case of the Master Plumbers v. Journeymen, sustaining the decision of the lower court, which assessed damages against men individually who went out on strike, and granting a perpetual injunction against the union.

Falls Through Trap-Door.

Galt, March 16.—George Flatt, retired farmer, aged 60, met with sudden death last evening at 5 o'clock. He was in Hammill & Moore's hardware store. The trap-door leading to the cellar was open, and Flatt fell into the opening, fracturing his skull. An inquest will be held.

Why the Old Man Danced a Jig.

"What's Susie crying about?" asked the old farmer as he rubbed the tallow on his copper toed boots.

"Poor gal!" said his sympathetic wife. "Wind swept through the parlor and blew all her planner music away."

The old man jumped up and danced a jig.

"Praise to glory!" he shouted. "And now if a cyclone comes along and blows away the planner we sartinly will have something to be thankful for."—Boston Post.

He Was Mentioned.

Admiring Constituent—Senator, your name has been mentioned in connection with a cabinet position, hasn't it? Senator Greatgunn—Er—yes, I believe it has. A paper in my home county remarked the other day that any president who would offer me a place in his cabinet would be darned hard up.—Chicago Tribune.

Good breeding shows itself most where to an ordinary eye it appears least.—Addison.

Spanish Marriages.

Horseback Riding.

Horseback exercise possesses, according to some physicians, the faculty of both increasing and reducing weight. If meals are taken immediately after riding additional flesh is gained; otherwise a decrease of flesh results.

Hairs.

Hairs are composed of scarfskin and are covered with thin, flat, overlapping scales, which is the reason why an eyelash or other hair in the eye irritates it so much.

Dirigible Balloons.

The first attempt to steer a balloon was made in Paris in 1784.

Blackguards.

The term "blackguard" is said to be derived from a number of dirty and tattered boys who attend the horse guards' parade in St. James' park to black the boots and shoes of the soldiers or to do any other dirty offices. These boys, from their constant attendance about the time of guard mounting, were nicknamed "the black guards."

Supercilious.

"Do you expect me to do the cooking?" asked the housewife indignantly.

"Certainly not," answered the new servant. "I'm something of an epicure."—Washington Star.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Are Steady—Hogs Are Easier at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, March 15.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 12¾c to 13¼c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9¾c to 10c per pound.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, March 15.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 45 carloads, consisting of 886 cattle, 24 hogs, 80 sheep and lambs and 25 calves.

Exporters.

The best load of export steers on the market was sold at $5.62½; the bulk, however, sold at $5.25 to $5.35; export bulls sold at $4 to $4.60.

Butchers.

Maybee & Wilson topped the market with 13 butchers, 1120 lbs. each, and 3 butchers, 1200 lbs. each, at $5.40 per cwt. These were bought by a local firm for butchers' purposes, which goes to show that there is little difference in the prices of cattle designated, exporters and butchers, and that there is a growing home demand for the best cattle. We have, therefore, to quote selected lots of prime cattle for butchers' purposes at $5.20 to $5.40; loads of good at $4.80 to $5.10; medium to good at $4.40 to $4.70; common, $3.35 to $4.30; cows $3 to $4.30; canners and common cows, $1.75 to $3.25; bulls, $3 to $4 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

About a dozen milkers and springers sold readily at $40 to $71 each, Corbett & Hall selling one springer at the latter price.

Veal Calves.

There was a good demand for veal calves at $5 to $7.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

About 100 sheep and yearling lambs sold at higher quotations. Export ewes, $4.50 to $5; rams, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; grain-fed lambs of choice quality sold at $7 to $7.60 per cwt.; common lambs, $5.50 to $6.50.

Hogs.

The hog market has been in such a condition that some dealers hesitated to give quotations. Gunns, Limited, upon being asked to give quotations, respectfully declined, but a representative of H. P. Kennedy came to our rescue, and quoted selects, fed and watered, at $7.40 per cwt., and $7.15 to drovers, f.o.b. cars at country points, which will mean $7 or thereabout to the farmer.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 15.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 13 were 1,291 cattle, 190 sheep and lambs, 2452 hogs and 767 calves. While the supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 85 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 1535 hogs and 110 calves. A feature of the trade to-day was the stronger undertone to the market for cattle, and prices advanced ¼c per pound. This was attributed to the much smaller offerings than usual and the keener demand from both local and out-of-town buyers, on account of the continued favorable weather for keeping stock this period of the year. Another feature of the trade was the good enquiry from exporters for supplies, notwithstanding the fact that they claim that, even at the present high prices ruling in the British markets, cattle are losing plenty of money. However, on account of the higher prices demanded, and the general quality of the stock not being over the butchers' class here, they were not disposed to operate freely, but, as the demand for local account was in excess of the offerings, an active trade was done, and the prospects are that unless receipts increase materially values will go still higher in the near future. Choice beeves sold at 5¾c, good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 4¾c to 5c; medium at 4¾c to 4½c; choice bulls at 4¾c to 5c, and common stock at 3c to 4c per pound. There was no further change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, prices being steady, with trade quieter on account of the continued limited supply coming forward.

The demand was more than ample to absorb all the offerings, and sales of choice lots of lambs were made at 6¼c to 6½c, and good at 5¾c to 6c, while sheep sold at 3½c to 4½c per pound.

There continues to be a good demand for calves, of which supplies are steadily increasing, and the tone of the market is easy, with sales at prices ranging from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality. A very strong feeling continues to prevail in the market for hogs, and prices have scored a further advance of 5c per 100 pounds, which is due to the good demand from packers and the fact that supplies coming forward are not in excess of the requirements. Sales of selected lots were made at $7.30 to $7.35, and some odd lots at $7.35 and $5 over per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. A feature of the trade during the past week were the strong cable advices received on Canadian bacon, which noted an advance in prices in the British market of 2s to 3s, and in Liverpool and London 3s to 4s per 100 pounds.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, March 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 2200 head; slow; prime steady; others 10c to 15c higher; prime steers, $6.50 to $6.75; shipping, $5.85 to $6.50; butchers', $5.25 to $5.35; heifers, $4.25 to $5; cows, $3.75 to $5.25; bulls, $3.50 to $5.25.

Veals—Receipts, 1400 head, active and steady, $7 to $8.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 12,800 head; fairly active and 10c to 15c lower, heavy, $7.05 to $7.15 mixed, $7 to $7.10; yorkers, $6.50 to $7; pigs, $6.25 to $6.30; roughs, $5.75 to $6.10; stags, $4.50 to $5; dairies, $6.50 to $7.00.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,800 head; handy lambs active; heavy slow; mixed sheep steady; others 10c to 25c higher; lambs, $5 to $8.25; yearlings, $6.50 to $7.25; wethers, $5.75 to $6.25; ewes, $5 to $5.85; sheep, mixed, $3.50 to $5.75.

QUAKERS GAVE THE CITY LEAGUE CHAMPIONS HARD RUN AT HOME

The Quakers, champions of the Mercantile League, journeyed to Lakefield last night and made a very creditable showing against the Lakefield team, champions of the City League. The Smile men were beaten by 10 goals to 6, and were behind at the half 5 goals to 3. It was a great game all the way and the Lakefield team were considerably surprised by the showing of the visitors, who pressed them very hard, especially during the first half. The small rink interfered with the Quakers' play, but at that they were there with the goods all the time, giving the villagers the best battle they have had on their own ice this season. Quinlan, of Lakefield, was a satisfactory referee and the teams lined up as follows:

SIMPSON HAS GOOD CHANCE TO BEAT SHRUBB SATURDAY

Great interest, of course, is being taken in Peterborough in Saturday night's race in Toronto, between Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, and Alf. Shrubb, the great little Britisher. Local people seem to favour Simpson to win and there is no doubt that he will make things lively for the speed marvel across the pond. Local people perhaps do not appreciate the magnitude of the task that Simpson has undertaken so willingly. In going up against Shrubb at twelve miles he is meeting the Englishman at perhaps his best distance or at least very close to it. He is meeting a man to whom defeat at twelve miles is an unknown occurrence, a man who has the science of the game, the headwork, and above all the speed that makes him a most decidedly dangerous opponent. Simpson is doing what Longboat was undoubtedly afraid to do, in fact he is doing more, as Longboat refused to meet Shrubb in a race of three miles great length. Simpson, however, by his record breaking run of several weeks ago, in which he ran ten miles faster than Shrubb ever ran on this side of the water, has made him a decided contender in the big race, and Shrubb with all his wonderful ability as a runner will have his work cut out to hold the big Mississauga when he breaks loose. Shrubb will undoubtedly try to beat him at the start, but Simpson should be able to hold him and wear him down afterwards.

SIMPSON IS THE MAN TO BEAT THE FAMOUS LONGBOAT

The more Tom Longboat watches the career of Dorando, the more he must realize how many different kinds of an idiot he has been making of himself recently. The little Italian is not side-stepping any races. He is getting on all he can and is piling up a wad of green backs that will make him a Roman Rockefeller when he hits back into Capri. Meanwhile longboat "sulks in his tent" and has been letting all kinds of money-making chances go to waste. A beating means nothing to Dorando, who bobs up cheerfully with a consoling piece of gate money and a hunch that next time out he will do better. And last night he showed that Johnnie Hayes had no license to beat him in England, by trimming the Yankee Marathoner by two laps in fast time at the full Marathon distance. Longboat wants to "butt in" in Saturday's race between Simpson and Shrubb. He realizes that there is money in the scheme and he wants a piece of it. It is a good thing for Tom that he is not likely to get what he is asking, for it looks as if Simpson and Shrubb both would everlastingly beat him at twelve miles.

LINDSAY'S OPINION OF THE PETERBORO COLLEGIATE TEAM

The Lindsay Warder says:—

The L.C.I. hockey team won from seven representing the Peterborough Collegiate Institute by the score 8-4. In an exciting game on Saturday afternoon. The visiting team were a well balanced and speedy seven, and have no mean record during the past winter, having beaten the Junior O.H.A. team of Peterborough. The forward line of the Lindsay schoolboys was too fast, however, and the victory was a well deserved one. The half-time score was three all.

Rooters Uproarious

An uproarious crowd of rooters kept the excitement at high flow and school yells were brought into 'action' on the slightest pretext. The game afforded plenty of opportunities for applause, too, and the little fellows were at it hammer and tongs all the time. They played clean hockey, too, Referee Randall imposing but one penalty and that for a minor offence.

Fast Forward Line

As previously stated, it was the Lindsay forward line that won the game. They were lighter than their opponents by a goodly number of pounds, but when it came to hockey the smaller players were the superior. Meldrum's work in goal for the P.C.I. was exceptionally meritorious, and he saved his citadel by brilliant work time and again.

Pete, Jack and 'Dom,' the Spratt trio, and Beecroft, compose a formidable line for a school team. The defence was a trifle light, but nothing derogatory can be said against their playing. Spence has a pretty shot at the end of his stick, and Wilson pulls off a winding rush when occasion offers. Greer stopped the most persistent shots and acquitted himself creditably.

The Visitors

Geale, Conroy and Fortye were the pick of the visitors, with Meldrum scintillating in goal and Dennison playing neat hockey at point. The team played combined work fairly well, but were sorely troubled by the persistent back checking of the L.C.I. forwards. Occasionally they would break away with a likely looking two man rush, and they held their own pretty well in the first half.

The locals scored first in the second period, and the visitors came back with a rush and evened up. Then the kids from the "little red school house" got busy again, and scored three times off the reel, clinching the game.

Randall was impartial as a referee.

THE CRACKS STILL WOODING UP SOME

They are at it again at the P. B. C. Alleys. Last week the re were al two hundred scores with 245 as top heavy and judging by the way the cracks opened up last night they intend to make the pins hum during the week. Geo. Sutherland, last week's winner, so far is in advance of the field striking in a classy 223 score last night just by the way of showing that he still has the location of the king pin. In addition Clare Gutterson wooded up for a 200 count, while Geo. Carnes hung up 214, and Clare Clancy, one of the novice bowlers put on 202, a creditable performance.

There were no League games last night as the Bankers were unable to get around for their match with the Iroquois. They will meet the Indians later on in the week and when they do there should be a crimp put in some of the records. The Indians, who always have their eyes open for a good thing, have rounded up Clare Gutterson, and with him on their line-up they have a most formidable two which if it had been gotten together earlier in the race would have undoubtedly been fighting it out with the leaders.

It is likely that there will be a double-header to-night with the Examiner teams figuring prominently. The Exam A's hook up with the Lock Works, while the B's will endeavour to make life miserable for the Hams, although Gene Hurtubise can see nothing but three for the latter. The Exam A's need a couple of games to boost them to the top and it is a certainty that unless they drop two out of three that they will be on the top at the end of the week, as the Pacifics do not roll this week, and the other teams have not a chance of heading the ink spreaders off before the end of the week at least.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE T.A.S. A.C.

The annual meeting of the St. Peter's T.A.S. Athletic Club will be held tonight at 8.30 o'clock in the T.A.S. rooms when a full attendance of members is expected, as business of importance will come up before the meeting. It is desired to elect officers and to decide upon the campaign to be adopted in connection with sports this summer. The T.A.S.A. expects to have a good baseball team, and may be prominent in other lines of sport as well.

HURTUBISE HAS A MATCH ON

The Toronto Star says: Gene Hurtubise, of Peterborough, is to meet J. T. Hawkey, of Glenvale, at Napanee a week from to-night, best two falls in three. W. J. Sheridan, of Oshawa, and M. J. Barnes, of New York, will also wrestle, and a six-round boxing bout will complete the program. This is the first affair of its kind held in Napanee in 20 years and the townspeople are all worked up over it.

HOCKEY

A good game will likely be pulled off to-night or Wednesday night in Toronto between an all-star junior O. H. A. team and the champion Lindsay Midgets when the cream of the juniors will perform. The following will likely be picked:

All-Stars

Lindsay

• • • •

St. Michael's, the Senior O. H. A. champions, have refused to give Lindsay a game for the amateur championship of Ontario, and in so doing St. Mike's have followed the usual course of senior teams in connection with champions of other sections of the O. H. A. Lindsay has set up a frightful howl of cold feet, etc., at the Irishmen, and at the same time the Midgets refuse to give a junior team picked from the Stratford, Barrie, Eureka and Simcoe sevens a chance. The Midgets have won the championship of the Intermediate section fairly and squarely, but they should feel grateful to St. Michael's for not accepting their challenge. Any team that can go down to Kingston and beat Geo. Richardson and his sturdy bunch of soldiers on their own ice, should just about make Lindsay feel as much out of place as a vaudeville performer in grand opera. For you know that Kingston beat Peterborough's great team of two years ago, and you don't need a lead pencil to figure what chance Lindsay would have had with that aggregation.

BOWLING

London, March 15.—Lou McCutcheon, who is a newcomer to the blue ribbon class, as far as bowling goes, established a great record for himself at the National Alleys on Saturday afternoon, by rolling 297, three short of a perfect score. This score is without precedent here, as the former record was 276, held by Ed. Shea. Now Lou comes along and makes them all sit up. At the fifth frame he made 150. He knew he was right then, and so did the spectators. He kept on bowling easy and striking them clean till the eleventh frame. At this juncture he fell down, and spoiled a perfect score. The ball was too wide, missed the headpin and left three standing. It was a bitter disappointment for McCutcheon, as he was beaten out on the last roll, but nevertheless he received the warmest congratulations from everyone around, as it was a splendid showing.

WRESTLING.

Toronto may have it on Peterborough as far as theatrical attractions are concerned, but it looks as if the Queen City has to buck up when it comes to the wrestling game. Fritz Mohl, Yankee Rogers and Hassan Abdallah, all of whom travelled on the Peterborough circuit last season, are now exhibiting their agility before Toronto audiences. Hassan, by the way, looks as much like a package of Mogul cigarettes as ever.

RUNNING.

Longboat weighs 156 pounds, and looks as strong as an ox.

"I am in good shape, and have had rest enough now," said Longboat. "I'm ready for any race."

"Have you patched up with Pat Powers?"

"Yes. I'm going to run in the big Marathon race in New York in the first week in April," replied the Indian.

"Will two weeks be long enough for you to get in shape?"

"Yes. I don't need much work," was the reply.

"Where will you train?"

"Hamilton, with Bill Davis," was the answer.

There is a growing feeling around town that Longboat is not giving himself time to get into shape to meet such men at St. Yves, Maloney, Simpson, Shrubb, White, and Dorando. He has had a five weeks' lay up. He wasn't in the pink of condition when he came home from New York, and while the rest has worked wonders with him he is away too heavy to run twenty-six miles in the early April days. Longboat is 10 or 12 pounds over weight right now. He cannot get that off without weakening himself by the sweat-out process. He should have at least six weeks to get into condition. Only one thing is in his favour now. He has the stamina, and while he may not run in phenomenal time, he has a great chance to win out on that reserve power the others do not seem to possess, while Dorando, White, St. Yves, and Shrubb have all quit at the distance.

POST CARD COLUMN.

To the Editor of Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of Saturday, March 13th, it was noticed that Ald. Morgan moved that the Fire Chief hand over the $25.00 which he received from C. P. R. some time ago. What school children have we got in the council this year. I understood the letter from C. P. R. read that it was for services rendered by the fire chief at Owen Sound and also at Peterborough! If I am correct why did not Ald. Morgan move that $12.50 be forwarded to Owen Sound Council and then he would have acted somewhat honestly, but to devote it all to Ald. Morgan's blunders I do not consider it fair at all. And on inquiring why Ald. Turner seconded the motion I find out it was only to keep peace in the council chamber. If this is so why the best thing was for the Chief of Police to send his two best men there and gather a few green backs in for the city treasury, and also save some of the valuable time which is being utterly wasted and where there is time there is money wasted also. Ask Ald. Metheral where the donation went to when the old brigade was in existence, and then tell Chief Howard what to do with the $25.00. In conclusion I wish Ald. Morgan no harm but if ever his house were to be on fire that he would sleep until the firemen washed him out of bed with the water from their nozzle.

Thanking you for your space,
I remain
FAIR PLAY.

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir:—In regard to the Street Railway for Ashburnham. Mr. Larmonth gives us very little encouragement to expect extension on this side of the river. He speaks of Smith street Bridge being too far north, although we can't see it; no one would find fault with the company for the few extra minutes it would take to run up there, as long as the labour of walking was spared them.

Could we not persuade the auto-bus owners to run an early trip through the 5th Ward before they run to Chemong, and run another trip in the evening. It would be a great convenience to many of us.

It has been suggested to me that the streets of Ashburnham are not included in the agreement with the Radial Railway Co., and that they are not tied up for thirty years awaiting the pleasure of the company.

We would be glad to know that this is true, as, in that case, we might induce the Cobourg Electric Railway to run a loop around this ward, since they are to build through Peterborough anyway.

Yours,
ASHBURNHAM.

SAMPSON'S STRENGTH

Will Not Resist the Pulling Down Influence of a Kidney Aching Back

The strongest man or woman with a back constantly aching finds daily existence a struggle. Its the same way with urinary troubles. Booth's Kidney Pills cure these ailments. Peterborough people prove this statement.

W. Wormington, No. 121 Brock street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "I had suffered with rheumatism for over three years. I had found little or no relief in any of the remedies I had tried. I became so stiff and sore that I could scarcely turn in my bed and had to lay off from my work. The urine was highly coloured and filled with a heavy sand-like sediment which plainly told the disordered state of the kidneys. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy. I was surprised to see how quickly the urine cleared. The kidneys were soon active, and the uric acid went from my system. The rheumatism gradually became less severe nad finally left me. I am better than in years previous, and could not hesitate to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills." Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Co., Limited, Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

THEY MIGHT BOTH BE RIGHT.

The Examiner as well as the public generally, has been edified and amused by a funny little "scrap" between its morning and evening contemporary. The Times accusses the Review of a tendency towards "yellow" journalism, and the Review comes back with this tatement that the Times is not able to get the news. It seems a rather trivial matter to come to verbal blows over. Besides from the side it looks as if both might be right.

ACTOR CONFESSED AND WAS SHOT

Texas Baseball Player Forced Acknowledgment of Guilt From Otto Meyer And Then Shot Him.

Fort Worth, Texas, March 16.—Fred Morris, a baseball player, last night shot and instantly killed Otto H. Meyer, a vaudeville singer in a room in a local hotel, after having obtained a written confession that his relations with Mrs. Morris were improper.

The two men came to the hotel together and were assigned to the same room. Shortly after they had retired the shots were heard.

Meyer was found lying in a pool of blood, while Morris, upon the approach of the hotel authorities, calmly announced "I guess I am the man you are looking for; I think the police need me."

After he and Meyer had reached the room, Morris declared, he read an incriminating letter, the significance of which Meyer admitted. He then forced Meyer to write and sign the confession and then told him he intended to kill him.

"Meyer extended his arms," said Morris, "and told me to shoot him through the heart so that all would be over at once. I did as he suggested and would follow him beyond the grave except for the fact that I have a little boy who, I think, needs me to look out for him."

Both men are from Denton, Texas.

MISS KINRADE SANG IN STRATFORD

It Has Been Discovered That She Took Part in a Musicale There Two Years Ago.

Examiner Special

Stratford, March 15.—The only information concerning Miss Florence Kinrade, who stated that while on a singing tour she appeared in Stratford, is elicited from the Beacon of Aug. 1, 1907, and the paragraph reads as follows:

"Last evening a very enjoyable musicale was held at the residence of Mrs. J. C. Robinson, which proved a decided success. Those taking part were: Miss Florence Kinrade, soprano soloist, of Hamilton; Misses Marion and Erzon, of Guelph, and Mr. L. Brown, Mr. Clarence Mills, of Chatham, played several piano selections very acceptably. Miss Florence B. Kinrade, of Hamilton, created quite an impression by her excellent singing and charming manners. She has a wonderfully sweet, melodious voice, which she uses artistically, and she was given well-merited encores."

The article appeared under a small one-line heading, "Delightful Musicale," and does not give the address of Mrs. Robinson.

The press representative interviewed Mrs. J. C. Robinson, 144 Front street, this morning, but she stated that a mistake had evidently been made in the initials, as no musicale had been held in her house.

RHEUMATISM WEATHER THIS

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure Rheumatism.

What They Did for W. H. Craine, and Why They Always Cure Rheumatism—They Remove the Cause.

Toronto, Ont., March 5.—(Special.)—In those days of sudden changes of temperature known to so many suffering people as Rheumatism weather the experience of W. H. Craine, of 103 Gladstone Ave., this city, is of widespread interest. Mr. Craine suffered from Rheumatism. He is cured and he knows the cure. It was Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes, I know Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Rheumatism," Mr. Craine states. "For after I started taking them I used no other medicine. I never cease recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to my friends."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by putting the Kidneys in condition to strain the uric acid in the blood. It is uric acid in the blood that causes Rheumatism. Cold or damp causes it to crystallize at the muscles and joints and then comes those tortures every rheumatic knows only too well. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by curing the Kidneys. The cured Kidneys remove the cause of the Rheumatism.

A HOTEL CLERK FOULLY SLAIN

By Burglars Who Carried Off Only a Small Sum of Money.

Examiner Special:

New York, March 15.—Lying in a small room adjoining the hotel office, the body of Isadore de Valante, night clerk of the Eastern Hotel, on Whitehall street, was found early to-day with his skull fractured by a blow with an iron pipe, and his throat cut. The clerk was murdered by men, who afterwards rifled his pockets, took $78 from the hotel till, and made an unsuccessful attempt to get into the safe, in which there was $3,000. The police have practically no clue as to the identity of the murderers. A thumb print, which was alongside the names of two men found on the hotel register, the police believe to be that of one of the men and hope to trace his identity.

It was the clerk's habit to come to the hotel shortly after six o'clock at night, and leave at 7 the following morning. Between 2 o'clock and 6 the clerk was alone, and although no struggle was heard by anyone in the hotel it is supposed that the murder was committed during that time.

LETS WOMAN SENTENCE SON

Wilkes-Barre Judge Permits Mother Whose Patience is Worn Out to Fix Length of Jail Term.

Examiner Special.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Mar. 15.—Mrs. Emma Hatfield, of this city, sentenced her son to three months at hard labour and solitary confinement in the county jail. She had him arrested on the charge of larceny, and tearfully told Judge Ferris, after the young man had pleaded guilty, that he had given her a great deal of trouble, and that recently he had stolen articles from her home to sell them for drink.

Judge Ferris told the mother that he could impose three years, but asked her to fix the sentence. She said perhaps three months' imprisonment would reform him.

The son protested at this and promised, if released, to behave himself in the future, to leave the city and earn his living, but the mother insisted that she had given him many chances to reform, that he would not, and that he did not deserve to go without some punishment.

Judge Ferris then gave him the sentence of three months.

WOMAN THOUGHT THEY WERE TRAMPS

Called the Police to Hurry North to Her Residence to "Shoo" Them Away.

Any person is liable to be taken for a tramp after dark in these times. Last night the police received a peremptory call to go up to 705 George St., the woman at the other end of the 'phone stating that she thought there was a tramp around the premises.

The reporter did not remain to see whether another Kinrade affair had occurred, simply taking it for granted that there was no tramp within a mile.

COUNTY POLICE COURT SESSION

Was Held in Havelock Yesterday by Magistrate Edmison.

Magistrate Edmison and High Constable Cochrane were in Havelock yesterday for several county police court cases. That of Hubble vs. Hubble, a case of non-support, was heard first. Finally a compromise was effected whereby the husband pays the wife two dollars a week for the support of the child.

In the Rosebush case three witnesses were examined but nothing was done, an adjournment being called. This is a Children's Aid Society case, and at the time the home was visited the young boy struck the Havelock policeman with a club and attempted to bite Mr. Geo. Cochrane on the hand but was unsuccessful.

"FINDING OBE WHERE THEY HADN'T ORTER"

An Apt Description of the Gow Ganda District by an Old California Miner.

A middle-aged man was riding down from Gow Ganda on a Canadian Northern train last Tuesday. He was well dressed, but his face and hands gave evdence of long conflict with sun and wind and heavy toil. A representatve of the Bartlett Mines was in the opposite seat, and during the ride got into conversation with the stranger, who turned out to be a Californian miner. His story was an interesting one, as is that of the life of all successful miners.

It appears that fifteen or eighteen years ago he left a comfortable Eastern home to try his luck prospecting in the far West. The lure of the gold discoveries about the time was too strong a magnet when placed in comparison with the conservative business life of his own town. He was so successful that he has made a fortune of over two million dollars, most of it in California.

"And what are you doing up here?" he was asked.

"Oh, I just came north more out of curiosity than anything else to see the Canadian silver mines I've heard so much about. You know I like to keep in touch with mining in the big centres, even if I don't engage very actively in it any more."

"And what do you think of Gow Ganda?"

"I dont' know what to say about Gow Ganda," he replied, "because everybody there is finding ore where they hadn't orter. But it's going to be a great camp, if I know anything about it."

A regular meeting of K.O.T.M. will be held in the Lodge Rooms, Simcoe Street on Wednesday Evening, March 17th. Business of Importance.

DID THIS MAN SHOOT GOEBEL

The Mystery May be Cleared Up by a Strange Accusation.

Examiner Special.

Boston, Mass., March 15.—According to several stories published here to-day, William C. Howard, the former coast artilleryman, sent to prison for life last week for murdering his wife fda in New Bedford, may have been the person who fired the shot that killed Gov. William Goebel, of Kentucky, in Frankfort, on Jan. 30, 1900. It is said Howard is a nephew of James B. Howard, the feud chief of Kentucky, and that the latter brought the boy down from the mountains to Frankfort to fire the fatal shot. Report has it that a former Kentuckian, now living in Woonsocket, R. I., has made statement that the wife murderer is the nephew of Jim Howard and that he killed Goebel.

At the time Goebel was assassinated Howard was only 15 years old. The fact that Howard was a boy at the time has some weight, as witnesses testified at the trial of Jim Howard that the shooting of Goebel was the work of boys.

William C. Howard first enlisted in the army at Knoxville, Tenn., in 1901. His second enlistment also was from Knoxville, in 1904, and the third from Columbus, O.

Howard has but two relatives living, brothers. One is in Sevierville, Tenn., and the other somewhere in Kentucky. In Tennessee he bore a bad reputation and there are two killings in the wilds of the mountains that have been attributed to him, although no definite proof ever was forthcoming.

Howard shot and killed Edward Dewhurst in a public park in New Bedford three years ago, but was acquitted through the testimony of a young woman who was with him at the time.

Interesting News From Elk Lake The New Mining Centre

Four Sleep in Each Room to Accommodate Everybody—Blind Pigs are Raided—Sanitary Conditions are Not Good.

A GOD-FEARING PEOPLE.

The Examiner's correspondent in Elk Lake has sent the following newsy budget of items from the new town, which should be of interest to our readers:—

Elk Lake, March 14

Moving Picture Shows

The one element of pleasure in Elk Lake is a moving picture show which takes place nightly in a small tent across Bear Creek. Here the Elk Lakers, wearied of their monotonous cares of the day, troop nightly to watch the various scenes as they are thrown on canvas, and at the same time listen to the strains of a phonograph in the rear and a piano in front. I attended one of the entertainments the other evening, and it isn't bad.

Of course the immortal "blind pigs" where refreshments may be obtained by the initiated, are still in full swing. The boys are still keeping up the good work, although last week, when Mr. George Calbeck, of Cobalt, Chief of Provincial Police, had occasion to visit Elk Lake they kept pretty much under cover.

A God-Fearing People

As for the religious tendencies in the neighbourhood, I feel I can say with exactitude that the Elk Lakers are a God-fearing people. Well attended services of some denomination are held here on Sunday. The Salvation Army are apparently here to stay. They hold open air meetings nightly, and are getting a good reception. It can be mentioned to their credit that they are trying to rescue some of the victims from the "blind pigs."

Four in a Room

Those who expected a rush to Elk City cannot be disappointed. The spirit of the eternal bustle and excitement has been very manifest during the past two weeks. Hundreds of outsiders have come in and once again the genial managers of the various hotels had to request the boys to sleep four in a room, while others "flopped" in the hotels and corridors. The new comers either make the vicinity of Elk Lake their destination, or are pushing for Gowganda, Shiningtree and even further west. Encouraging silver showings have been encountered, and from this end it looks as if there were going to be an immediate investigation.

Poor Sanitary Conditions

Much good cannot be said of the sanitary conditions of Elk Lake. The settlement has rapidly grown up, and of course not being incorporated or within an incorporated township, no attention has been given to anything that warrants immediate improvements. The problem of local improvements for Elk Lake should not be a difficult one to grapple with, and certainly could not compare with the same problem where Cobalt is concerned, where the ground is uneven and hard rock. It is earnestly to be hoped by the residents of Elk Lake that after the incorporation of the township the authorities will act immediately and take steps to bring about the desired improvements, enacting the proper by-laws and seeing that they are enforced by competent officials.

Bell Has Been Found

The drill steel bell which was purloined from the Presbyterian place of service last week, was returned mysteriously in time for service last Sunday.

Bishop Visits Camp

Bishop Thorneloe visited the camp on Thursday and Friday of last week. His Lordship held an impromptu service on Friday night in the dining room of the Hotel Smyth, which was well attended. He was assisted by the Rev. J. J. Wright, the Presbyterian minister, who read the lessons. As there were no Anglican hymn books in town, the Presbyterian hymn of praise was used, and the service was very much enjoyed by the considerable number who attended. Mrs. John West, who presides as organist for the Presbyterian service, played the hymns which were sung with much enthusiasm. His Lordship exhorted the men present to live clean, decent lives and avoid the numerous pitfalls which tempt the feet of the unwary, perhaps more especially in mining districts like this. The Bishop proceeded to Gowganda on Saturday.

"Blind Pigs" Jugged

About eight "blind pigs" were herded before the "beak" to-day and sentenced to various penalties fitting the offence. This is the first attempt to enforce the law, and will have a good effect.

Couldn't Spell Obscene

Placards have been posted in all public places forbidding "vulgar" language. The intention was to write "obscene," but no one could be found at the time who could spell the latter word, so a compromise was made on "vulgar."

Practical Joker on the Scene

A mean trick was played by one carpenter on another at the King Edward the other day. The victim was away from the job for an hour or so, and the joker drove a five-inch spike through a piece of 2x4 scantling, filed off the point when it emerged from the wood and then glued the piece to the absentee's wooden jack plane, so that they appeared to be spiked firmly together. When the owner of the plane returned there was a cloud of profanity that would put to shame a mule-skinner until the combination was discovered.

A Yale Ball

There is to be a grand ball to celebrate the formal opening of the new Hotel Smyth on Wednesday of this week. The Cobalt Orchestra will furnish the music, and all the best people will be in evidence. The invitations are printed in the most approved form, but are only issued upon the production of two dollars of current coin of the realm.

BRIEF SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF IRELAND'S GREAT PATRON SAINT

March 17 is the day set apart in the calendar as commemorative of the life and work of St. Patrick, the great apostle of Ireland. People have been found rash enough to hint that no such man ever existed and that the honour of accomplishing the great task of evangelization should be rightfully ascribed to Palladius, who was sent by Pope Celestine, as Bishop of Ireland in 431. But there were three P[illegible]icks, the first, was undoubtedly, [illegible]ius, who assumed the name of [illegible]k or Patricius, but whose mission was a short and not a highly successful one, a second, the real apostle whom all Irishmen rightfully honour, who followed in the steps of Palladius, and succeeded, if not in entirely evangelizing the country, certainly in doing marvellous work in that direction, and a third, who according to certain Irish writers was the head of St. Patrick's community, or according to others, St. Patrick's tutor.

We shall not attempt to enter into the disputes and doubts engendered by the mixing up of the doings of these three separate entities. For us, on the glorious 17th day of March, there is but one duty and that is a plain one, to record the deeds of that one, legendary and otherwise, who by his life and teachings wrought such a marvellous change in Erin's verdant isle. At the outset it must be said and said with regret that very little that can be regarded as absolutely authentic history can be recorded of the life of Patrick. The date of his birth is enshrouded in mystery. Some place it as in the year 396, others in 372, whilst Scotland, England, France and Wales, all claim the honour of having been his natal soil. His missionary labours are placed by some as having commenced in 464; by others in 493. But surely these are matters of minor importance. The one salient fact is that he accomplished his task, and it is with that fact that we chiefly have to do.

Descended from a Patrician Family.

It is now the generally accepted belief that Patrick, or as his name originally was, Succat, came of aristocrat stock, and first saw the light somewhere in the neighbourhood of Dumbarton, in Scotland. At the age of fifteen he was carried off as a prisoner in one of the many incursions of the Picts upon the Roman Province, south of the Wall of Severus, and sold as a slave on the opposite coast of Ireland, in the Territory of the Irish Picts.

We learn from St. Patrick himself that he was the son of the deacon Calpurnius, who was the son of Potitus, a priest. Calpurnius was a decurio or magistrate, who on the withdrawal of the Roman garrisons from Britain, probably retired for safety south of the Wall of Severus. It was from a small country villa which his father owned near the town of Bannavem Taberniae that the lad was abducted. Bannavem Taberniae signifies literally, the military encampment at the river foot; and in all probability, before the withdrawal of the troops, this place had been an important miltary centre, as towards the end of the 4th century, the Romans had not less than 10,300 fot and 1,500 horse stationed along the great wall. Succat remained in hard slavery for six years tending cattle on Slemish mountain, in the county of Antrim. He was of an enthusiastic temperament, much given to prayer and meditation, and no doubt even at that sorrowful period of his life his thoughts often turned to the project of missionary work amongst his captors. The bays and creeks of the west and north-west of Ireland were in those days much frequented by sea-rovers, to whom they afforded safe retreats after an onslaught on the Romans in Britain, and probably it was on board one of their barks that Succat, or Patrick, as we may as well call him, escaped to Britain.

Becomes a Missionary to the Irish

During his residence in Ireland, he had acquired the Irish tongue, and become acquainted with manners, habits and customs of the people. He resolved to devote himself to the task of converting the Irish and for this purpose, after being ordained successively deacon, priest and bishop, with the authority of Pope Celestine, he returned to preach the Gospel to the heathen inhabitants of the country.

In regard to St. Patrick's labours in Ireland, we have to be contented in great part with what is simply legendary lore. His chief enemies were the Druids, who were of course bitterly opposed to any innovations on the practices observed in their ancient religion. We are told that they were great magicians, but that St. Patrick's powers were too much for them. Their antagonism was so great that in spite of his benevolent disposition he was obliged to curse their fertile land and render them dreary bogs; to curse their rivers, so that they produced no fish; to curse their kettles so that they could never boil; and finally, to curse the Druids themselves so that the earth opened and swallowed them up.

Another miracle recorded of the Saint is that he and his followers found themselves, one cold morning, on a mountain without a fire to cook their breakfast, or warm their limbs. A pile of ice and snowballs was collected together, and Patrick breathing upon it, instantaneously changed it into burning coals. He is also said to have accomplished the marvellous feat of swimming across the Shannon with his head in his mouth.

Ireland Cleared of Snakes.

It is stated that he accomplished the feat of ridding Ireland of snakes, by beating a drum, which he struck with such fervour, however, that he knocked a hole in it, thereby endangering the success of the miracle. One cunning old serpent resisted, but St. Patrick made a box and invited the serpent to enter in. The serpent insisted that it was too small; and so high the contention grew that he got into the box to prove that he was right whereupon St. Patrick slammed the lid tight and cast the box into the sea.

In 1831 an Irish gentleman, Mr. James Cleland, anxious to ascertain if the Irish soil was destructive to snakes, brought over from England six, of a harmless variety, and let them loose in his garden at Rathgael, in the County of Down. In a week afterwards, one of them was killed at Mile-Cross, three miles distant. The person who killed it thought it was an eel, and took it to a naturalist, a Dr. Drummond, who at once pronounced it a snake. That a snake should have been killed within so short a distance of the burial place of St. Patrick, (he was buried at Downpatrick) created a tremendous sensation. The clergy preached about it, one regarding it as heralding the approach of the millennium, and another as a sure portent of the coming of the cholera morbus. All parties and sects were united in the belief that it betokened some wonderful change in the world. Luckily, the gentleman kept his secret till all danger was past. Three more of the snakes were shortly afterwards killed and nothing was ever heard of the remaining two. The saner-minded people judged rightly enough, the true cause of the appearance of the snakes on Irish soil.

Little remains to be said concerning the life of St. Patrick. That he lived to a good and green old age, attaining, according to tradition, to 120 years, is a matter of common reading. That he accomplished a magnificent work, is beyond question. With this fact in view we can join heart and soul with our brethren of Irish descent in honouring the name of the patron saint of their country, who ranks with the most devoted and successful of Christian evangelists.

PROPOSED TO REFIT Y.M.C.A.

Ladies' Auxiliary Have Undertaken Work and Will Give a Concert to Raise Amount Required.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. with their usual kindness towards the members and officers of the Association have undertaken the work of the annual refitting and refurnishing of the building this spring. In order to secure the funds necessary for the carrying out of their purposes the ladies are holding an "at home" on Friday evening, March 26th, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The event will take the nature of a musical evening and a choice programme is being arranged for the occasion while refreshments will be served. As this will be the only means adopted by the Auxiliary this year to raise the amount required, it is hoped that the many people who have the interests of the Association at heart will respond to the opportunity to help in the work by attending the at home and keeping the date in mind. Further particulars will be given in papers later on.

Teas grown at high altitudes on the mountain slopes of Ceylon, where the growth is slower and cultivation more careful than in the warm, humid climate of the valleys, are used in "Salada" Tea. High-grown tea like "Salada" is not only of a finer quality, but contains more of the essential oil in the leaf than valley-grown tea. This is easily proved by comparing a drawing of "Salada" Tea with any other.

A MISSIONARY EVENING HELD

Young People's Guild of Knox Church Heard Addresses on "Pointe Aux Trembles."

The Knox Church Young Peoples Guild met last night at eight o'clock, the meeting being opend by singing.

The topic was a missionary one, "Pointe Aux Trembles School." Interesting papers on the subject were read by Miss Rebecca Philips, Mr. P. Davies and Miss M. Menzies. It was expected that Rev. Mr. Shearer, of Picton, would give an address, but he was unable to come, having gone to Quebec.

Mr. Patton read an invitation from St. Paul's Guild to spend an evening with them on April 5th. Next Monday the topic is "The Confederation of Canada," and will be conducted by Mr. R. F. McWilliams.

DR. CAMERON'S ABLE ADDRESS

Spoke on "First Aid and Ambulance Work" Before the A. Y. P. A.

The A.Y.P.A. of St John's Church, held a very pleasant and entertaining, as well as instructive, meeting last evening in the School Room, Dr. Cameron, of Charlotte street, presented a very able talk on First Aid and Ambulance W[illegible] as set forth by the St. John Ambu[illegible] Corps. He referred to the recent interest in Ambulance work, and mentioned that it was only since the Crimean war that such work had been taken up in the British army, and hospitals. He gave several practical illustrations of bandaging and first aid work, and suggested the advisability of the young people taking up a special class for instruction in the work next season. Refreshments were served and a profitable evening was spent.

There will be no further meetings of the society during Lent.

Lever Brothers, Toronto, will send you free a cake of their famous Plantol toilet soap, if you mention this paper.

Now Is The Winter Of Our Discontent Well Nigh Of The Past

A Summary of its Salient Features---Abnormally Mild---Comparison With Other Winters.

The delightful winter of 1908-9 is wearing to a close. Its strength seems to have been spent. It will be interesting to compare it with other winters in the matter of severity, depth of snow fall, and intensity of cold.

Last winter in the matter of temperature was unusually mild. There were only fourteen days on which the thermometer registered below zero. A most unusual thing it was to have the thermometer below zero only twice during the month of February. Our first day of real winter weather fell on December 2nd, and the remainder of the month was somewhat colder than the average.

By way of contrast last winter (1908) the thermometer went below zero on thirty days, which the average number of days taking the record of twenty years.

The winter of 1907 was still colder with thirty-eight below zero registration in comparison of 1907, when the figure was twenty-one times, and 1905, thirty times.

The winter of 1904 was a memorable one, the thermometer registering below zero on no fewer than fifty-three days. This was a particularly severe winter, whose memory is still cold in many minds.

So much for temperature. In the absence of heavy snowfalls, stormy weather and heavy drifts the present winter has been phenomenal. The greatest depth of snow on the ground at any one time was about twelve inches, lasting only a few days.

The greatest snowfall of the winter of 1908 was 36 inches on March 1st.

In 1907 the snow fall was light, the greatest depth having been twelve inches, and the general character of the winter was similar to that which has just passed away.

In 1905 the deepest snow was thirty-seven inches, there having been two feet of snow on St. Patrick's day.

In 1904 the greatest depth of snow was 36, on March 1st, and 2 feet about the middle of the month.

In 1902 there was little snow till January 22nd, when a fall of 26 inches at one innings provided for past neglect.

In 1901 there was little snow, but bad drifting, trains having been frequently blocked.

In 1900 the snow fall was heavy, with high drifts, many roads having been impassable.

A search of the records for several decades will not reveal more abnormal weather conditions than those of the winter of 1909. Though generally the weather has been unusually mild the Midland District in this respect has been especially favoured.

The foregoing figures are available by the kindness of Mr. Walter Peters, official and painstaking meteorologist for Peterborough.

THE POWER BYLAW IS DISCUSSED

Ald. Hicks' Gives His Opinion of The $15.000 Measure.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As the time is approaching for the voting on the Money bylaws, one for the waterworks dam and one for a fraction of the amount required for the development of power at the waterworks dam, I might be pardoned for expressing my opinion in your columns on the raw proposition for $15,000 upon which the ratepayers will be asked to vote on March 30. As to the $120,000 by-law for a new dam and pump house equipment I have at the present not one word to say more than this. If the old dam is unsafe we cannot afford to take the risk longer as a perfect waterworks system is vital to the city's interests.

With regard to the $15,000 by-law for a power house. By starting the work on the new dam from the west side the construction of the power house would not be reached until the summer of 1910 according to the water commissioners' statement, and the by-law would be held until January next, when the total cost could be estimated and such information as would give the ratepayers an intelligent idea of the total amount of money involved; they could then vote knowing their full responsibility in the matter.

The power house then would be built at the same time as the dam, which is the only argument the members of the council have for submitting the by-law at the present time, without proper information.

Not one of the members of the city council have been able to tell me how much money will be required for the completion of the scheme. The power house must be equipped with electrical machinery and the power conveyed to the city. From the cost of these different operations is to be judged the merits of the proposition which will solve itself in answer to these questions. How many horse power can you have delivered to the city? And at what cost?

Let the council get this information first and ask the ratepayers to vote the money afterwards. A good sound well defined power policy is of such vital interest to the city of Peterborough that the City Council can ill afford to make a joke of such a matter by groping in the dark—and submitting two or three by-laws and shaking the public confidence to such an extent, as to make the proper carrying out of the scheme impossible.

Some number of our City Council stated at one of the committee meetings that the water commissioners have advised certain matters in connection with the power house. To this I will say if the council insists on submitting the by-law for the $15,000 for the power house in its present raw state let them here and now hand over the construction as well as the operation of the scheme to the water commissioners (as the law provides for this) so that to those who have the knowledge in the matter will belong the responsibility.

Yours truly,
R. HICKS.

NEW ELECTION PLAN HAS BEEN PROPOSED AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, March 16.—F. D. Monk moved yesterday a resolution in favor of the adoption of the system of proportional representation.

Analyzing the figures of the last election, he showed that the Liberals were in a minority of the total vote. The majority of Liberals over Conservatives was 24,117, but the Independent vote was 24,893, so that the Liberal vote was 776 short of 50 per cent. The percentages were: Liberal 49.96, Conservative 47.91, and Independent 2.13.

Proportional representation, according to the Monk figures, would divide the House membership: Liberals 110, Conservatives 105, Independents 4, fractions accounting for the other two seats.

The small single member district was one of the principle evils in our system. Invariably the better men were those brought forward in the larger multiple districts.

In the large constituencies it would do away with political trickery. The electorate of Canada was not a corrupt electorate. In a constituency of, say, 5,000, it would be found there were 4,500 who could not be influenced improperly. But in such small constituencies there was always also a group of faddist, men of extreme views, who exercised too much influence in proportion to their numbers. Under the present system, Mr. Monk claimed Parliament was not a faithful mirror of the opinion of the electorate.

Mr. Fielding suggested that the motion be amended by striking out an opinion that the present system "fails to reflect the currents of public opinion," and confining it to a proposal that the question be investigated by a committee. Mr. Monk readily accepted the suggestion, and the amended motion carried unanimously.

Mr. Staples (MacDonald, Man.) moved a resolution calling upon the Government to fill the vacancy on the Railway Commission by the appointment of an "able and practicable farmer of the west." The agricultural community, he argued, did not have its proportional representation in Parliament or on the commissions. For instance, in the last Parliament there were only thirteen farmers out of a membership of 214. The interests of the farmer were not safeguarded by the Minister of Agriculture, who should have protected against the extravagant expenditures by the Militia Department.

In seconding the resolution, Dr. Schaffner criticized the appointment of D'Arcy Scott on account of unfitness for the position. "In such appointments we should forget race and creed," he said.

At last the Parliament of Canada has been permitted to scrutinize the waterways treaty.

In the absence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday, Mr. Fielding laid on the table of the House a copy of the treaty with the rider added to pacify the United States Senator William Allen Smith of Michigan. Word for word it agrees with the copy as has already been published, with the addition of the following rider:

"The the United States approves this treaty with the understanding that nothing in this treaty shall be construed as affecting or changing any existing territorial or riparian rights in the water, or rights of owners of land under water, on either side of the international boundary at the rapids of St. Mary's, river at Sault Ste. Marie, in the use of waters flowing over such lands, subject to the requirements of navigation in boundary waters and of navigation of canals, and without prejudice to the existing rights of United States and Canada, each to use the waters of St. Mary's river within its own territory; and, further, that nothing in this treaty shall be construed to interfere with the drainage of wet and overflowed lands into streams flowing into boundary waters, and that this interpretation will be mentioned in the ratification of this treaty as conveying the true meaning of the treaty, and will in effect form part of the treaty."

Supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year, terminating March 31, were tabled in the House yesterday.

They total $3,521,935, of which $285,876 is chargeable to capital and $238,876 inappropriated for unprovided items. Under the latter head are included amounts to cover over expenditure of last year's items, the principal being $20,000 over expended on charges of management, $17,692 o railways and canals, and $162,347 on the Intercolonial. There is a vote of $75,000 for Toronto harbor.

For militia the sum of $300,000 is asked, of which $170,000 additional for annual drill, and $12,500 each for transport and royal military college

THE SEARCH FOR WEAPON IS STILL KEPT UP BY POLICE

Hamilton, March 16.—While it is reported that the detectives have discovered new and important evidence in reference to the Kinrade case, the local authorities say that there is nothing in it, and that no developments are expected before the adjourned inquest on Friday night. C. Montrose Wright is likely to be called as a witness to clear up the point touched on by Mr. Blackstock when he was examining Miss Kinrade, as to whether or not the matter was discussed by members of the family before the inquest.

The police yesterday afternoon secured an order from the civic sewers department to open up the sewer leading from the Kinrade house. When the plumber was at work in the house it was discovered that the plumbing was large enough to allow a package to go through. There is a trap, however, where the pipe from the house joins the city sewer, which would block any large substance, and the pipe leading from the house will be opened up Tuesday morning, when the search for the revolver with which the murder was committed will be continued.

The testimony that C. D. Hossack, the builder, will give at the inquest next Friday evening is that he saw Ethel Kinrade at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder. He knew the girls well by sight and is satisfied that it was Ethel he saw. The police claim to be able to produce a woman who saw Ethel eight blocks away from her home at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the tragedy.

C. Montrose Wright will be called as a witness when the inquest is reopened. Sadie Chambers, who has been mentioned in the evidence, was engaged at the Manhattan restaurant for some four years. Her maiden name was Moorehead, and she was visited by a woman named Mrs. Robinson.

Many witnesses remain to be examined, and as Mr. Blackstock has intimated that the inquest will be concluded on Friday night, it is likely that an all-night session will be held.

In the absence of any definite clue much conjecture is being indulged in, and rumors will come thick and fast until the jury meets again.

Detectives were hustling about yesterday afternoon, but if they gain any information they will not give it out. So far they are in the dark, nothing having developed to give a tangible clue.

At the inquest Mr. Blackstock asked Florence Kinrade if Miss Sadie Chambers was visiting Mrs. Robinson's home while she was there, and Miss Kinrade said she remembered no person of that name.

Miss Chambers, who is in Toronto, denies that she knew Miss Kinrade or that she had any connection with the Goderich incident.

Seeing Bentley Off.

By ETHEL SEVERO

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Amy Sheldon, leaning idly over the steamer's rail, watched the crowd on the pier and wished, just for a moment, that there had been an opportunity to get word to some of the people she could trust.

This was all so different from her last sailing, and it brought more sharply to her memory the scene of two days before when she had given Dick Nesbit his ring and had declared that she hated the very sight of his face.

She had last sailed in June, and the pier had been crowded, but until the very last she had seen Dick's smiling face framed in an indistinct blur of other faces. Now she would look in vain, if, indeed, she looked at all.

She had about decided to go to her stateroom until the boat should swing into the stream.

She half turned to suggest to her aunt that course of action when she caught sight of Dick making his way through the crowd about the gangway, and presently he came on board with a heavy suit case that seemed to argue his determination to take passage on the Aurania.

Amy half turned back to the rail; then she turned again and made her way to the lower deck, where she knew that the purser's office was located.

Passing rapidly through the gangway, she saw that it really was Dick, though he was in earnest conversation with a man in blue and brass, and he did not see her.

He had his pocketbook in his hand, and with flashing eyes Amy made her way back to the upper deck, where her aunt still sat in the winter sunshine enjoying the bustle that preceded the departure.

One of the most admirable things about Aunt Molly was her willingness to do what her tempestuous little niece wished to do, but even the usually placid Aunt Molly demurred when Amy stormed up and demanded that they leave the ship at once.

"But I've said goodby to the Brookes, and Mrs. Brooke is going to send all our mail in care of the London agent," protested the little old lady. "We can't go back home after telling the Brookes that we were to be gone until fall. She will tell all her friends and"—

"And that's just the trouble," interrupted Amy, with a stamp of her little foot. "Mrs. Brooke has been talking—already. She must have gone to the telephone the moment we left last night and told everybody she ever knew."

"But what will Dick think if you start and then turn back?" reminded Aunt Molly, determined not to give up a spring in the south of France without exhausting every argument.

"That's just the trouble," explained Amy. "That horrid Mrs. Brooke must have called him up last night after promising that she would not tell a soul. He's on board. I just saw him in the purser's office buying his ticket."

"I thought that they bought them at the dock," objected Aunt Molly, but Amy shook her head.

"You can buy tickets on board at the last moment. I suppose that Dick—I mean Mr. Nesbit—had to wait until he could settle about his practice being looked after—not that there is so much to the practice," she added spitefully. "I don't believe that he's been in court this month."

"Is he altogether to blame for that?" asked Aunt Molly, fencing for time in which to marshal other arguments.

"And suppose that I did let him waste a lot of time with me!" retorted Amy. "I've been telling him for the last month that I was tired of seeing him about and that our engagement was all a mistake."

"Then I don't think that he is following you," advanced Aunt Molly. "Dick is not the sort of man to follow when he is not wanted. If he is on board it is because he has to reach Europe by the first steamer, and he won't bother us in the least."

"Because I shan't give him a chance," explained Amy promptly. "I am going down to the stateroom to have the steward take our steamer trunks back to the dock. It is lucky that we arranged to have our other baggage follow."

"But what will people say?" demanded Aunt Molly as she rose and prepared to follow her energetic niece. It was plainly to be seen that the trip was off, or at least postponed, and Aunt Molly knew the signs well enough to realize when resistance was useless.

Amy, by dint of liberal tipping, managed to collect her things on the dock just as the final warning sounded. For the moment it was useless to try to leave the dock.

The port captain stood beside the remaining gangway ready to superintend the lowering of the last connection between ship and shore, and a line was stretched to keep back those who had not gone to the end of the pier to wave a last farewell.

The sides of the ship were lined with eager faces, some smiling, some bedewed with tears. Aunt Molly stood guard over their belongings and looked wistfully at the fortunate ones on the decks.

Just as the signal was given to hoist, Dick Nesbit appeared at the head of the gangplank and dashed down, his feet not touching the dock before the upper end of the plank was hoisted clear of the ship's side.

He sprang lightly aside to escape the swaying edge of the chute and in doing so almost bumped into Aunt Molly, who was making a brave endeavor not to look disappointed.

The black bulk moved slowly past the open section of the shed, but Aunt Molly did not see it now. She was busy watching Amy and Dick.

Nesbit, after a single glance at the frowning girl, devoted his conversation to Aunt Molly, with whom he was a favorite.

"Did you get afraid of seasickness at the last moment?" he demanded gayly. "I didn't even know that you were thinking of going abroad or I should have sent some flowers."

Aunt Molly glanced triumphantly at Amy, but that crimson cheeked young woman gave no sign that she had heard the disclaimer.

"I came precious close to taking the trip myself," continued Dick. "You know what a pest Fred Bentley always is when there is a wedding. He always wants to decorate the trunk and do all those things that aggravate the bridal pair.

"When it came to getting married himself he was scared stiff, for he knew of a dozen chaps who had it in for him. He married Belle very quietly last night and came aboard this morning before daylight. Some reporter asked Ben Houghton about it, and we found that Fred was locked in his stateroom.

"Trimmins, the purser on this ship, is a jolly sort of chap. I've crossed with him three times, and I know him very well. The boys got me to hustle down here with a lot of junk in a suit case. I gave Trimmins some money to tip Fred's cabin and saloon stewards, and Fred's going to get a daily hint from his victims. I was so busy explaining that Trimmins had fairly to fire me down the gangplank."

"And you were not sailing yourself?" asked Aunt Molly.

"I only wish that I could—to see the fun," declared Dick, with twinkling eyes. "If it hadn't been that I caught a big case last night I think I should have done so. I bet Fred's sorry by this time tomorrow that he ever heard of white ribbons and old shoes as decorations for trunks and backs."

Amy was watching the steamer swinging into midstream with the aid of two bustling little tugs, but from the corner of her eye Aunt Molly saw that the girl heard.

"And, speaking of backs," ran on Dick, "shall I get you one?"

Without waiting for an answer he tore off up the dock to retain one of the few waiting backs, then hurried back to escort Aunt Molly and the trunks.

It was not until he had helped Aunt Molly into the cab and had turned to show a similar courtesy to Amy that she spoke.

"I thought that Mrs. Brooke told you we were leaving on this steamer and that you were following me," she said hurriedly. "I am sorry that I was so silly, and yet I am glad, because I know now that it was just because I was tired and silly that I broke the engagement. Will you come over tonight, Dick—and bring back the ring?"

"Will I?" he echoed jubilantly. "I should say that I would. And, do you know, I am almost sorry that I put up that job on Fred."

"Don't be afraid," reassured Amy smilingly. "That case will be over and we'll be on our own honeymoon before he gets back to play tricks on us. If you had not played the trick I should have sailed, and you"—

"Would not be the happiest man in town," completed Dick. "I guess Fred was of some use, after all."

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eighth year and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone once daily, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and in the time very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was confident I could I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I price my Catarrhozone at $1.00, trial size 25 cents, at all dealers.

THE COBRA STONE.

A Ceylon Story About the Reptile and Its Shining Lure.

Every one knows that Ceylon is famous for the amount of queer and rare precious stones found in the sands of its dried up river beds. Among these is one called "chlorophane," a rare variety of fluor spar, which shines at night with phosphorescent light. There has long been a tradition among the natives that a certain species of cobra makes use of this stone to attract insects in the darkness. Indeed, the name given it is "naja-kaller," or cobra stone. A scientist resolved to test this wonderful story during a stay in the island, so offered any cooly 5 rupees to point out a stone carrying cobra. In about a week an old Tamil came in and offered to show him one. He followed this guide, and, sure enough, there, under an immense tamarind tree, he saw a little point of steady greenish light and could faintly distinguish behind a cobra coiled and slowly waving its head from side to side. It would have been desperately dangerous to approach the reptile, and the cooly begged him not to do so, saying that next night he would himself get the stone. He did so, and in rather clever fashion. Before dark he climbed into the tree, carrying a large bag of ashes. After nightfall the cobra turned up, as usual, and deposited its treasure, which it carried in its mouth, before it. Thereupon the cooly emptied his bag of ashes over the shining object, and the frightened reptile after a wild but fruitless search crept back into the jungle. The cooly descended, searched the ashes, found the stone and received his promised reward.—London

Frozen Clouds.

The weather man as he put on his skates pointed to the feathery white clouds high up in the blue sky.

"They mean fine and cold," he said. "They are cirrus clouds. They are frozen — frozen water dust. Their height is 40,000 feet, and their temperature, by actual kite thermometer test, is 75 degrees below zero.

"Some clouds are snow-capped, the same as mountains. These are the cumuli, white and cottony fellows that heap themselves up like mountains. From top to bottom they often measure 20,000 feet, and when the top of them is a dazzling white it's a sign there is snow there."

Language of Business.

"I understand that your wife and daughters have acquired several foreign languages."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox; "when they're having a good time in society or at the opera they talk French or Italian. But when it comes to telling their troubles they get back to plain English, so that I can take a hand."

FOUR BOXES.

An Effective Quartet of Great Governing Powers.

"The world is governed by three boxes," said an American wit of a century ago, "the cartridge box, the ballot box and the bandbox."

Between the first two of these great governing powers no one questioned the natural alliance, but that the sex whose box was the bandbox should also claim a right to use the ballot box was in his day undreamed of. Half a century later, during the civil war, Horace Greeley, the famous editor, held the old opinion.

"Madam," he said bluntly at a public meeting to the pioneer suffragist, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, "the bullet and the ballot go together. If you want to vote, are you ready to fight?"

"Certainly, sir," replied the quick witted lady, to the delight of the audience. "I am ready to fight just as you have fought—with my pen."

Not all the early women suffragists would so readily have countenanced warfare, even in jest, for a notable number of them were Quakers or of Quaker ancestry, to whom force was abhorrent. In the Society of Friends the rights of men and women have been always absolutely equal, so that, as Lucretia Mott declared, it seemed but natural to wish to counsel and act with men everywhere on even terms, as she had always done in Nantucket.

One Quaker philanthropist, Abby Hopper Gibbons, who had never been identified with the "woman's rights" women, yet acknowledged with demure humor that, although she talked little about her rights, she had "been in the habit of always taking them" when she could.

Once, however, she failed to take a very important one when she was summoned to do so. She had a singularly bold and firm handwriting, easily mistaken for a man's, and often signed business communications simply A. H. Gibbons, so that she one day found herself, as a citizen and a taxpayer, imperatively required, in the name of the law, to furnish reasons why she should not serve as a juror.

"I know of none," she wrote serenely at the foot of this formidable document and sent it back. But the official who read this apparently impertinent response must have investigated the record of his correspondent and found a reason, for A. H. Gibbons, householder of New York, was excused from service in that fourth box, so important in civilized communities—the jury box.—Youth's Companion.

Seeing Bentley Off.

By ETHEL SEVERN

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Amy Sheldon, leaning idly over the steamer's rail, watched the crowd on the pier and wished, just for a moment, that there had been an opportunity to get word to some of the people she could trust.

This was all so different from her last sailing, and it brought more sharply to her memory the scene of two days before when she had given Dick Nesbit his ring and had declared that she hated the very sight of his face.

She had last sailed in June, and the pier had been crowded, but until the very last she had seen Dick's smiling face framed in an indistinct blur of other faces. Now she would look in vain, if, indeed, she looked at all.

She had about decided to go to her stateroom until the boat should swing into the stream.

She half turned to suggest to her aunt that course of action when she caught sight of Dick making his way through the crowd about the gangway, and presently he came on board with a heavy suit case that seemed to argue his determination to take passage on the Aurania.

Amy half turned back to the rail; then she turned again and made her way to the lower deck, where she knew that the purser's office was located.

Passing rapidly through the gangway, she saw that it really was Dick, though he was in earnest conversation with a man in blue and brass, and he did not see her.

He had his pocketbook in his hand, and with flashing eyes Amy made her way back to the upper deck, where her aunt still sat in the winter sunshine enjoying the bustle that preceded the departure.

One of the most admirable things about Aunt Molly was her willingness to do what her tempestuous little niece wished to do, but even the usually placid Aunt Molly demurred when Amy stormed up and demanded that they leave the ship at once.

"But I've said goodby to the Brookes, and Mrs. Brooke is going to send all our mail in care of the London agent," protested the little old lady. "We can't go back home after telling the Brookes that we were to be goue until fall. She will tell all her friends and"—

"And that's just the trouble," interrupted Amy, with a stamp of her little foot. "Mrs. Brooke has been talking—already. She must have gone to the telephone the moment we left last night and told everybody she ever knew."

"But what will Dick think if you start and then turn back?" reminded Aunt Molly, determined not to give up a spring in the south of France without exhausting every argument.

"That's just the trouble," explained Amy. "That horrid Mrs. Brooke must have called him up last night after promising that she would not tell a soul. He's on board. I just saw him in the purser's office buying his ticket."

"I thought that they bought them at the dock," objected Aunt Molly, but Amy shook her head.

"You can buy tickets on board at the last moment. I suppose that Dick—I mean Mr. Nesbit—had to wait until he could settle about his practice being looked after—not that there is so much to the practice," she added spitefully. "I don't believe that he's been in court this month."

"Is he altogether to blame for that?" asked Aunt Molly, fencing for time in which to marshal other arguments.

"And suppose that I did let him waste a lot of time with me!" retorted Amy. "I've been telling him for the last month that I was tired of seeing him about and that our engagement was all a mistake."

"Then I don't think that he is following you," advanced Aunt Molly. "Dick is not the sort of man to follow when he is not wanted. If he is on board it is because he has to reach Europe by the first steamer, and he won't bother us in the least."

"Because I shan't give him a chance," explained Amy promptly. "I am going down to the stateroom to have the steward take our steamer trunks back to the dock. It is lucky that we arranged to have our other baggage follow."

"But what will people say?" demanded Aunt Molly as she rose and prepared to follow her energetic niece. It was plainly to be seen that the trip was off, or at least postponed, and Aunt Molly knew the signs well enough to realize when resistance was useless.

Amy, by dint of liberal tipping, managed to collect her things on the dock just as the final warning sounded. For the moment it was useless to try to leave the dock.

The port captain stood beside the remaining gangway ready to superintend the lowering of the last connection between ship and shore, and a line was stretched to keep back those who had not gone to the end of the pier to wave a last farewell.

The sides of the ship were lined with eager faces, some smiling, some bedewed with tears. Aunt Molly stood guard over their belongings and looked wistfully at the fortunate ones on the decks.

Just as the signal was given to hoist, Dick Nesbit appeared at the head of the gangplank and dashed down, his feet not touching the dock before the upper end of the plank was hoisted clear of the ship's side.

He sprang lightly aside to escape the swaying edge of the chute and in doing so almost bumped into Aunt Molly, who was making a brave endeavor not to look disappointed.

The black bulk moved slowly past the open section of the shed, but Aunt Molly did not see it now. She was busy watching Amy and Dick.

"Did you get afraid of seasickness at the last moment?" he demanded gayly. "I didn't even know that you were thinking of going abroad or I should have sent some flowers."

Aunt Molly glanced triumphantly at Amy, but that crimson cheeked young woman gave no sign that she had heard the disclaimer.

"I came precious close to taking the trip myself," continued Dick. "You know what a pest Fred Bentley always is when there is a wedding. He always wants to decorate the trunk and do all those things that aggravate the bridal pair.

"When it came to getting married himself he was scared stiff, for he knew of a dozen chaps who had it in for him. He married Belle very quietly last night and came aboard this morning before daylight. Some reporter asked Ben Houghton about it, and we found that Fred was locked in his stateroom.

"Trimmins, the purser on this ship, is a jolly sort of chap. I've crossed with him three times, and I know him very well. The boys got me to hustle down here with a lot of junk in a suit case. I gave Trimmins some money to tip Fred's cabin and saloon stewards, and Fred's going to get a daily hint from his victims. I was so busy explaining that Trimmins had fairly to fire me down the gangplank."

"And you were not sailing yourself?" asked Aunt Molly.

"I only wish that I could—to see the fun," declared Dick, with twinkling eyes. "If it hadn't been that I caught a big case last night I think I should have done so. I bet Fred's sorry by this time tomorrow that he ever heard of white ribbons and old shoes as decorations for trunks and backs."

Amy was watching the steamer swinging into midstream with the aid of two hustling little tugs, but from the corner of her eye Aunt Molly saw that the girl heard.

"And, speaking of backs," ran on Dick, "shall I get you one?"

Without waiting for an answer he tore off up the dock to retain one of the few waiting hacks, then hurried back to escort Aunt Molly and the trunks.

It was not until he had helped Aunt Molly into the cab and had turned to show a similar courtesy to Amy that she spoke.

"I thought that Mrs. Brooke told you we were leaving on this steamer and that you were following me," she said hurriedly. "I am sorry that I was so silly, and yet I am glad, because I know now that it was just because I was tired and silly that I broke the engagement. Will you come over tonight, Dick—and bring back the ring?"

"Will I?" he echoed jubilantly. "I should say that I would. And, do you know, I am almost sorry that I put up that job on Fred."

"Don't be afraid," reassured Amy smilingly. "That case will be over and we'll be on our own honeymoon before he gets back to play tricks on us. If you had not played the trick I should have sailed, and you"—

"Would not be the happiest man in town," completed Dick. "I guess Fred was of some use, after all."

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs Farndel gives th following statement of her case, for th benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her exampl and use Catarrhozone:—

I am now in my eighth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, wheezing, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone, one dose and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and in the night two bottles were used. I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize it highly, and would not be without it."

A Ceylon Story About the Reptile and Its Shining Lure.

Every one knows that Ceylon is famous for the amount of queer and rare precious stones found in the sands of its dried up river beds. Among these is one called "chlorophane," a rare variety of fluor spar, which shines at night with phosphorescent light. There has long been a tradition among the natives that a certain species of cobra makes use of this stone to attract insects in the darkness. Indeed, the name given it is "naja-kaller," or cobra stone. A scientist resolved to test this wonderful story during a stay in the island, so offered any cooly 5 rupees to point out a stone carrying cobra. In about a week an old Tamil came in and offered to show him one. He followed this guide, and, sure enough, there, under an immense tamarind tree, he saw a little point of steady greenish light and could faintly distinguish behind a cobra coiled and slowly waving its head from side to side. It would have been desperately dangerous to approach the reptile, and the cooly begged him not to do so, saying that next night he would himself get the stone. He did so, and in rather clever fashion. Before dark he climbed into the tree, carrying a large bag of ashes. After nightfall the cobra turned up, as usual, and deposited its treasure, which it carried in its mouth, before it. Thereupon the cooly emptied his bag of ashes over the shining object, and the frightened reptile after a wild but fruitless search crept back into the jungle. The cooly descended, searched the ashes, found the stone and received his promised reward.—London

Frozen Clouds.

The weather man as he put on his skates pointed to the feathery white clouds high up in the blue sky.

"They mean fine and cold," he said. "They are cirrus clouds. They are frozen — frozen water dust. Their height is 40,000 feet, and their temperature, by actual kite thermometer test, is 75 degrees below zero.

"Some clouds are snow-capped, the same as mountains. These are the cumuli, white and cottony fellows that heap themselves up like mountains. From top to bottom they often measure 20,000 feet, and when the top of them is a dazzling white it's a sign there is snow there."

Language of Business.

"I understand that your wife and daughters have acquired several foreign languages."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox; "when they're having a good time in society or at the opera they talk French or Italian. But when it comes to telling their troubles they get back to plain English, so that I can take a hand."

FOUR BOXES.

An Effective Quartet of Great Governing Powers.

"The world is governed by three boxes," said an American wit of a century ago, "the cartridge box, the ballot box and the bandbox."

Between the first two of these great governing powers no one questioned the natural alliance, but that the sex whose box was the bandbox should also claim a right to use the ballot box was in his day undreamed of. Half a century later, during the civil war, Horace Greeley, the famous editor, held the old opinion.

"Madam," he said bluntly at a public meeting to the pioneer suffragist, Elisabeth Cady Stanton, "the bullet and the ballot go together. If you want to vote, are you ready to fight?"

"Certainly, sir," replied the quick witted lady, to the delight of the audience. "I am ready to fight just as you have fought—with my pen."

Not all the early women suffragists would so readily have countenanced warfare, even in jest, for a notable number of them were Quakers or of Quaker ancestry, to whom force was abhorrent. In the Society of Friends the rights of men and women have been always absolutely equal, so that, as Lucretia Mott declared, it seemed but natural to wish to counsel and act with men everywhere on even terms, as she had always done in Nantucket.

One Quaker philanthropist, Abby Hopper Gibbons, who had never been identified with the "woman's rights" women, yet acknowledged with demure humor that, although she talked little about her rights, she had "been in the habit of always taking them" when she could.

Once, however, she failed to take a very important one when she was summoned to do so. She had a singularly bold and firm handwriting, easily mistaken for a man's, and often signed business communications simply A. H. Gibbons, so that she one day found herself, as a citizen and a taxpayer, imperatively required, in the name of the law, to furnish reasons why she should not serve as a juror.

"I know of none," she wrote serenely at the foot of this formidable document and sent it back. But the official who read this apparently impertinent response must have investigated the record of his correspondent and found a reason, for A. H. Gibbons, householder of New York, was excused from service in that fourth box, so important in civilized communities—the jury box.—Youth's Companion.

The American Abroad.

Louis N. Park, the enterprising literary American who was placed in charge of the lord mayor's show in London, turned what had come to be regarded as a sort of circus procession into an interesting pageant. Shakespeare was accomplished by a picturesque entourage of characters from his plays, Chaucer was followed by a band of personages of his creating, and Spenser and Marlowe were attended in like manner. A striking feature was William Caxton on a float with a group of printers working an ancient printing press. These historical pageants will be continued progressively in future shows.—Exchange.

SIZES OF BOOKS.

Meaning of the Terms Folio, Quarto, Octavo and Duodecimo.

The words "folio," "quarto," "octavo," "duodecimo" and the like have almost, if not quite, lost their original meaning. At first they had reference only to the number of leaves into which the sheets used in making the book were folded. Thus if these sheets were folded once the book was called a folio; if the sheets were folded twice, so as to form four leaves, the book was called a quarto; if they were folded four times, so as to form eight leaves, the book was called an octavo, and so on.

The duodecimo, or 12mo, is an irregular size. To make it the sheet must be folded so as to form twelve leaves. Fold one-third of the width of a sheet lengthwise on itself. Next fold the paper across its breadth in the center. Next fold the sheet across its length—that is, fold the two leaves on the four. Finally fold it again across and in such shape that it may easily be sewed in with others to form a book.

But though, strictly and historically, quarto, octavo, etc., have reference solely to the manner of folding the sheet, they are, as a matter of common practice, used to specify the sizes of books.

If the sheets on which books are printed were of uniform size a quarto page would be as unvarying an area as a square foot or an acre, and before the invention of machines for making paper there was such uniformity to be found in the sizes of sheets.

But when paper making machines were introduced and the use of molds was abandoned sheets came to be made of all dimensions. As a result quartos and octavos had all sorts of dimensions, and the terms, when used strictly to indicate how the sheet was folded, became worthless as designations of size. The use of the old terms was nevertheless not abandoned, but instead they were first used to indicate a rather wide range of sizes and finally were attached to certain more definite sizes, without reference to the method of folding.

The practice of the publisher nowadays is first to determine what size of page he wants. The sheet he uses will be large or small, according to the capacity of the press at his disposal. On that sheet he may print, say, eight octavo pages, or he may print thirty-two, but he will call the book an octavo, though by its folding it should be called either a quarto or a 16mo.

In other words, the publisher calls his book by the name of that one of the old sizes to which it happens to come nearest.

The confusion resulting from the changes noticed here has not passed away yet, but efforts have been made to give definiteness to the old words.

Whistling on Sabbath in Scotland.

Concerning the Scottish reprobation of whistling on the Sabbath Dean Ramsay has a characteristic story. A famous Glasgow artist met an old highland acquaintance unexpectedly. "Donald, what brought you here?" "Oo, weel, sir, it was a band place yon; they were baad folk, but they're a God fearin' set o' folk here." "Well, Donald, I'm glad to hear it." "Oo, aye, sir, 'deed are they, an' I'll gie ye an instance o't. Last Sabbath just as the kirk was skailin' there was a drover chield frae Dumfries comin' along the road whistlin' an' lookin' as happy as if it was ta middle o' the week. Weel, sir, oor lauds is a God fearin' set o' lauds, an' they were just comin' oot o' the kirk—o'd they yckit upon him an' a'most killed him!"

That English Complexion.

The complexions of the English have often been exploited for our benefit. The damp climate and the exercise out of doors produce the red, they say. But on examination it proves to be not the red of the rose, but the red of raw beef, and often streaky and fibrous at that. The features are large and the face high colored, but it is not a delicate pink. It is a coarse red. At a distance the effect is charming, bright, refreshing, but close to often rather unpleasant. Here the features of the women, even the features of the beautiful women, are molded, while the features of our beautiful American women are chiseled.—Scribner's.

FIRST TO WEAR OUT WITH AGE

Simple Recipe for Bladder Trouble Should Be Valued By Elderly People.

GIVES THIS VALUED RECIPE

The great majority of men and women at the age of 50 years begin to feel the first signs of advancing age in some form of kidney trouble and bladder weakness. Few are entirely free from that torturous disease, rheumatism, which is not a disease in itself, but a symptom of deranged function of the kidneys, which have become clogged and sluggish, failing in their duty of sifting and straining the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, permitting it to remain and decompose, settling about the joints and muscles, causing intense pain and suffering.

The bladder, however, causes the old folks the most annoyance, especially at night and early morning.

Hundreds of readers who suffer will find the following, which is known as the Dandelion mixture, the most harmless and effective treatment to clean the system of rheumatic poisons, remove irritation of the bladder and relieve urinary difficulties of the old people. It is a true vitalizing tonic to the entire kidney and urinary structure, reinvigorating the entire system.

The Dandelion mixture consists of the following simple prescription, the ingredients of which can be obtained from any good pharmacy at small cost: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and upon going to bed, also drink plenty of water.

Test Your Ability by Writing This Jumble From Dictation.

It is some time ago since spelling bees were popular forms of entertainment in this country, but still one occasionally comes across the very superior person who tells you he can easily spell any word ever printed in a dictionary. If ever you meet this type of man, just ask somebody to dictate the following jumble to him and see how many mistakes he will make:

"Antinous, a disappointed, desiccated physicist, was peeling potatoes in an embarrassing and harassing way. His idiosyncrasy and privilege was to eat mayonnaise and mussels while staring at the Pleiades and seizing people's tricycles and velocipedes. He was an erring teetotaler and had been on a picayune jamboree. He rode a palfrey stallion and carried a salable papier mache bouquet of asters, phlox, mullein, chrysanthemums, rhododendrons, fuchsins and nasturtiums.

"He wore a sibyl's resplendent turquoise paraphernalia, an ormolu yashmak and astrakhan chaparejos. He drank crystallizable and disagreeable curacao juleps through a sieve. He stole some moneys and hid them under a peddler's mahogany bedstead and mattress.

"Like a fiend in an ecstasy of gayety I rushed after him into the maelstrom, or melee, and held him as in a vise. I could not feaze him, however, and he addressed me, with autocracy, in the following imbecile words, which sounded like a soliloquy or a superseding paean on an oboe: 'You are a ratable lunamoth, a salaaming vizier, an equinoctial coryphee and an isosceles daguerreotype.'"

A Curious Story.

The queen of Hanover, wife of King Ernest Augustus of Hanover (better known as the Duke of Cumberland, son of George III.), died at Hanover about 1842 of an illness which baffled the skill of her doctors as to its real cause. During her illness a clairvoyant was consulted, who wrote certain curious signs and words on the door of her bedroom; but, although these mystic words were repeated over and over again, the queen died. The king of Hanover after his wife's death gave orders that her bedroom should always be kept as though the queen would sleep there at night. The bed was turned down, the pillows reshaken, hot water brought and the daintiest slippers laid in readiness for her.—Home Notes.

A Funny Family.

"What makes your hair snap so?" asked the child who was watching his mother comb her hair.

"Electricity," his mother replied.

"We are a funny family," remarked the child after a few moments of thought. "The other day you said papa had wheels in his head, and now you've got electricity in your hair. If you put your heads together you might make an electric motor, mightn't you?"

The Size She Wanted.

The woman went in the bookstore and asked for a globe.

"What size do you want?" asked the clerk, turning one on its pivot for her to look at the various and sundry countries in pink and blue.

"I think," said the woman, "that you may give me one life size."—New York Times.

ORIENTAL COURTESY.

Ased Ullah's house is in what seems to be a mean quarter of the town. It is but a seeming. All Damascus houses front upon mean streets and are hidden and barred. The street is narrow, walled, rough enough underfoot, painted thick with vivid sunshine and deep shadow—a mystery of direction, too, and of detail, turning unexpectedly, forever revealing the surprise of low arches and steep alleys, of fenced tombs and wells in the wall. It is but a step from the flowing confusion of man and beast and noisy trading of the Suk et Tawileh, but remains quiet, traversed by apprentices upon errands, veiled women in black, who slip along the walls of unfrequented places, sheiks and scholars in softly tinted robes. There is a gigantic porter at the gate, as at the gates of the men of wealth and quality of the town, to unlock the way and shout a warning to the wife of Ahmed Aged Ullah, providing against the scandal of a surprise in the garden.

Here, then, upon cushions under the light, with his pens and his tools and his collection of old masterpieces, secluded from the vehement business of the bazaar and the troublous politics of the town, sits Ahmed Aged Ullah, the writer, unused to the company of travelers from abroad, but mildly wishful for it.

"Your day be happy," says Ahmed Aged Ullah, according to the form, beaming inquisitively over his great spectacles.

"And yours both happy and blessed."

"My house," he replies, his interest quite detached from the compliment, genially expressing itself rather in a glowing, diffident smile, childlike in frank delight, "is honored in your presence."

"But, no," is the protestation; "the honor is to such as may by grace be permitted to visit the homes of the distinguished."

"God forbid," says Ahmed Aged Ullah, with pious formality, "that it should be considered so in this case."

"God forbid, indeed, that it should be presumed otherwise!"

Ahmed Aged Ullah swiftly touches his breast, his thin white beard, his forehead, offering the service of his heart, his lips, his mind, in agreement with the polite custom, and accepts in return an expression of devotion precisely similar in form and sincerity, all the while continuing with remarkable rapidity to jump his finger tips from breast to brow, as if with the determination to multiply his politeness beyond the possibility of being matched, displaying in the ceremony an agility which nothing but lifelong practice could achieve.

"By your favor," says he at last, bowing an invitation to enter.

"It is by your grace."

And the gentle welcome to the diwan of Ahmed Aged Ullah is accomplished.

Confessions of a Dramatists.

The production of a new play, "Penelope," written by Mr. Somerset Maugham, at the Comedy Theatre, London, once more calls attention to the phenomenal success of this young dramatist. Mr. Maugham is only 34, and yet he has had the enviable experience of having four plays running in London at the same time, attracting, it was estimated, 35,000 people a week, the gross receipts varying between $25,000 and $30,000 for the same period. He recently confessed that it only took him three or four weeks to write a play; but it took another nine to think it out, he added, and, furthermore, he wishes it to be understood that the assertion that he can write a play with each hand and foot at the same time is an exaggeration. Here are one or two extracts from his confessions. "Playwriting to me is the most delightful occupation there is. Writing plays is a knack that some people have and some have not. It is like playing golf. One man will play well after a month, another will never play at all."

Pointless Punctuation.

Massachusetts has a law, known as the "semicolon law," under which a misplaced semicolon regulates the liquor traffic in the city of Boston. But this is not a circumstance to an omitted comma, as instanced in the following act of the last Legislature of Massachusetts: "Whoever operates an automobile or a motor cycle on any public way or private way laid out under the authority of law recklessly or while under the influence of liquor or so as to endanger the lives or safety of the public," etc. It is now asserted that the reckless motorist can go as he pleases on highways which have not been "laid out under the influence of liquor."

Scotland's Patron Saint.

Why was St. Andrew chosen as the patron saint of Scotland? This question has been asked many times, but the archdeacon of whom Dean Hole tells may be considered to have discovered the most satisfactory solution of the problem. "Gentlemen," said he (he was speaking at a St. Andrew's day banquet at the time), "I have given this difficult subject my thoughtful consideration, and I have come to the conclusion that St. Andrew was chosen to be the patron saint of Scotland because he discovered the lad who had the loaves and fishes."—Dundee Advertiser.

LOST CLASSICS.

Not One Work of Menander or Verro Remains to Us.

What with barbarism, religious intolerance and indifference, little could have remained to us of the literatures of Greece and Rome but for their almost inexhaustible wealth.

Of Sappho we possess only an ode or two and quoted fragments. Her works were burned in the eleventh century by order of the great Hildebrand. Addison says by way of consolation that they were "filled with such bewildering tenderness and rapture it might have been dangerous to give them a reading."

Of 108 comedies of Greek domestic life, the work of Menander, a writer whose field was never occupied by anybody else and whose purity of style Plutarch declares to have been surpassed by Homer alone, not even what may be called a fragment remains. Stray lines are quoted here and there. Twenty-four of the plays are known to have existed until the seventeenth century, when they were erased from their rolls to make space for the works of an ecclesiastical writer.

Of the 276 dramas of the great Greek tragedians, Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides, only thirty-two are possessed by the world to-day.

The brilliant Livy, to whom Macaulay, among moderns, is often likened, wrote 140 volumes or rolls of his "Annals" of Rome. Of these only thirty-five remain to us.

Of the thirty historical volumes of Tacitus we have four.

Of Pliny the elder, the sole great naturalist of the Roman race, but one work has escaped destruction.

Of Caesar's orations, for which his contemporary fame was as great as for his generalship or statesmanship, not one has been preserved.

Rats, Gas and Books.

The rats which have been giving such trouble at the Leeds (Eng.) Public Library are only bearing out their ancient reputation as enemies of books. Our Manchester Library, fortunately, has never been greatly troubled by rats, although there have been milder incursions of mice. Rats love scraps of old leather binding and soft old paper to line their nests with. In a glass case in the chapter house at Westminster you may see some antique rat bones and yellow bits of paper. This is their history: Two centuries ago a family of rats made their nests in a hole in the wall of the Dean and Chapter's Library, lining it with plunder from the books. The rats were walled up alive, and their remains were only discovered a few years ago.

In Manchester gas has proved a far worse enemy than rats. Thousands of leather bindings on the higher shelves at King street have been ruined — crumbled to the consistency of snuff by the sulphur in the gas-laden air. Gas attacks Russia bindings first; calf and morocco suffer not quite so badly. In the King street library (as in all modern libraries) gas is now superseded by electric light. The bookworm is written of more than seen. Unlike the rat, it does not touch parchment, hence the immunity of the pre-paper books. Even the common house fly does a good deal of harm.—Manchester Guardian.

The G.O.M. of Congregationalism.

Dr. Guinness Rogers, who recently celebrated his 86th birthday, is the oldest surviving ex-chairman of the British Congregational Union, and has a ministerial record of sixty-three years. In spite of his great age, however, the voice of Dr. Rogers is still as clear as a bell and his energy simply amazing. It is only a week or two ago since he made his fiftieth appearance as lecturer at the Merchants' Lectures at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon street, lectures which are often attended by some of the most prominent merchant princes, editors, and publishers in London.

Dragon Cleaning as a Hobby.

Prof. Seeley, who has just died, was one of the most remarkable figures among English scientists. His many thousand miles of travel filled the cellars of King's College with the remains of prehistoric dragons and other monsters, and these it was his chief delight to clean and restore at the rate of one a year. No man knew better the face of England and Wales; he could take up indifferently a map of Yorkshire or Gloucester and tell you in which fields the quarries were. And one service he did to English science was the origination of the system of scientific field classes.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mr. Sylvester Smith, Hampton, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and tried doctor's medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. I heard of your Heart and Nerve Pills and bought two boxes and before I had used them I was completely cured and would recommend them to all similarly affected."

HOW YOUNG GIRLS STUDY THE HINDOO METHOD OF REST AND RELAXATION

THAT there is a great deal of good in the old Hindu philosophy of rest and relaxation is a truth that has again been demonstrated by two circumstances of recent happening. One of these is the fact that many young girls, girls as young as ten or twelve years of age, find it necessary to retire from active school work or mental and physical exertion of any kind, temporarily, and take a rest cure, just as the jaded society woman withdraws from her social activities to recuperate, and during the retirement they are taught the value of absolute relaxation. The other is that, simultaneously with the scientific study of rest and relaxation by the young girl of to-day, the Yogi treatment and philosophy are brought into prominence by the leaders in the Emmanuel movement, who rely upon this old Hindu method for restoring the mind and body to a natural and healthful condition. Yogi breathing, Yogi physical exercises and Yogi philosophy of relaxation are made a feature of the practical side of the Emmanuel treatment of certain cases, and this form of treatment is proved to be so beneficial in restoring wasted mental and physical force that the method is now being applied to young persons, the idea being that the sooner a girl learns how to rest and relax scientifically the stronger will be her vitality and the better will be her ability to withstand the strain that modern life puts upon the individual.

IT is not because girls are breaking down earlier or are showing a loss of nervous force at a younger age than formerly that they are being taught how to take care of themselves after the Oriental fashion, but because parents and guardians see that it is essential for them to learn as early as possible the value of this quaint and simple philosophy which has been practised centuries upon centuries and has brought about excellent results. The difficulty experienced by a grown person in learning to relax properly and to rest perfectly is multiplied by that person's years. It follows quite naturally, then, that the earlier one begins studying this science the easier it comes to one and the greater are its advantages all during life.

Besides the beneficial effects derived from the practice of Hindu philosophy and physical exercises the idea of the science cannot fail to appeal to the young girl. The principle of the treatment is simple to understand and the rules are easy to follow, while the results are nearly always immediate enough to be encouraging and to stimulate interest in the cult.

One of the hardest things to do is to relax completely. Some persons think they are letting go of their muscles, but in reality they are not. Instead, the majority of their muscles are tense and it is almost impossible to get them to relax even after a series of mental and physical treatments. Relaxing is partly mental, so that youthful minds are easier to treat than mature ones.

AMONG the best relaxing exercises are those which start with the body standing and letting go of each muscle and joint separately. First the arms are outstretched in front and the fingers are permitted to drop, to fall of themselves, and when they are perfectly limp and inactive then the relaxing should be continued to the forearm, then to the upper arm, letting the whole arm drop loosely at the side and not only remain motionless but possess the sensation of utter relaxation. These exercises in letting go of the tension of the muscles should be continued to the feet, then the legs, the pupil lifting and dropping each one in turn; then to the shoulders and the head by letting the latter fall loosely as it will either in front or to one side and the whole upper part of the body "slumping" forward. Even the waist and the hips can be relaxed, although the loosening of the tension will be less noticeable. Now, after the various muscles have been taught what perfect relaxation means—and this is only the beginning of the treatment—lie down on a couch or a bed that is not too soft and let go of the entire body, supplementing the physical relaxation with a mental attention to these muscles and members of the body. The Hindu maintains that the mind must be fixed on the muscle relaxation in order to get the best results and to make the "letting go" thorough and complete, especially when one is learning the first principles of relaxing.

Resting like this once or twice during the day will restore one quickly to normal condition, and a few minutes devoted to perfect relaxation are worth an hour or more of sleep of the ordinary kind. It sounds more or less absurd to one who does not understand the art and science of relaxation and perfect rest to say that one's energy and vitality can be restored without having the pupil lie down. The method to pursue in this quick restoration process is to stand erect in a rather active position—that is, with the head up, shoulders back and chest expanded slightly. The arms should be allowed to drop loosely at the sides. While thus poised raise the body on the balls of the feet, lifting the heels gradually and throwing the weight forward, with the body still held erect and not tilted forward. As the heels rise the arms should be lifted straight out at the sides and upward until they pass above the horizontal line. Breathe deeply as the arms ascend, then hold the position for a minute or so and gradually let the heels drop down and the arms fall limply at the sides, not forgetting to exhale slowly and evenly as the original position is resumed.

PROPER breathing has quite as much to do with the success of the relaxing and the muscle exercises as the movements themselves. One can fall into what approaches a mesmerized state just by breathing in the Oriental fashion and continuing the action for a few minutes. While lying flat on your back raise the right hand to the nostrils, and with the finger or the thumb close one side tightly, making it necessary to breathe through the other. Rhythmical breathing is essential to perfect repose. With the hand at the nostrils alternate by inhaling through the right side and exhaling through the left, then reversing the order by closing the other side.

Instead of expanding the chest first as you breathe try abdominal breathing for the rest cure by continuing the reclining position and alternating the nostrils as inhalers and exhalers. Then begin by taking a deep breath from deep down in the abdominal region, gradually inflating the other parts of the chest and lungs as the breathing is continued on up to the very tops of the lungs. In this way the abdomen, chest and even the upper section of the lungs or the collarbone part are raised and expanded with the air. Hold it a few seconds, then exhale by first drawing in the abdomen, then dropping the lower part of the chest and finally allowing the upper part to fall as much as possible.

NOT until you have known the great benefits derived from deep abdominal breathing will you begin to understand the value of this Old World method, and the earlier you begin to learn how to do it the better will be your physical health and the more wholesome your mental attitude. It is so easy to do, takes so little time, requires no apparatus and can be taken any moment during the day when you can lie down, at night before going to sleep or in the morning. Of course it is less important as a restorer of brain and muscle when taken in the morning, but the breathing exercises never come amiss, and it is an excellent plan to fill the entire lung section with pure fresh air before starting the day's school work or the day's pleasures if lessons are temporarily abandoned.

Young girls of wealth who can be sent to a secluded spot for rest and recuperation whenever the physical and mental conditions suggest the need of some such cure or treatment would not find it necessary to begin the practice early in life, probably never, if they took great care to master the art of breathing properly, not just now and then, but at regular intervals until they finally forget all about any other way of filling the lungs and proceed quite naturally according to this well tried and excellent method.

The physical reasons for proper breathing, which includes the development of the body, improvement of the condition of the blood and the greatest resistance to disease, are subjects discussed in the physiology class and will be taken up later on, if the girl to whom these ideas are suggested is still too young to have gone deeply into this science. But if her parents and teachers start her on the right track she will have much to be grateful to them for in after years.

THERE are some excellent and quite simple physical exercises recommended by the followers of the Hindoo philosophy, which help to keep one strong and happy. They can be practised any time, preferably in the morning before the bath, and need not be continued for more than a few minutes. If they are repeated again before going to bed all the better, for a few such exercises taken regularly and earnestly are much more effective when divided this way than done all in a single half hour or an hour. There is less of a strain on the mind and muscle and they become a tonic. Many young girls grow enthusiastic over simple exercises at first, then they lose interest, and if they do continue the physical movements their minds wander to other matters. The result is that the exercises, taken in this way, are hardly better than none at all. It is most important that the mind and the body work together, and that the mind help the muscles to make the movements just as it helps them to relax.

Nearly all these simple exercises are taken in a standing position, with the feet spread a little apart, heels almost touching, head up, shoulders back, chest expanded and the abdomen drawn in. This is the way to start. Then, if you want to begin with an easy exercise stretch the arms forward in front, keeping them level with the shoulders, and with the palms of the hands pressed together gently, not rigidly, swing the arm back, keeping them on the same horizontal plane until they are as far back of the shoulders as they will go. At first you will not be able to touch the backs of the hands, but after a little practice this will come quite readily. Do this quickly backward and forward for ten times and then see how much better the muscles of the back feel and how much easier it is to stand erect.

A VARIATION of this exercise, one intended to develop the chest and improve the lung power, is to stand in the same position, raise the arms to a level with the shoulders, bending them at the elbow so that the hands come over the chest and the elbows stand out aggressively. The next movement is to swing the elbows backward as far as possible, pulling the chest and bringing the shoulder blades together, still keeping the arms even with the shoulders. In fact, the test of the correctness of this exercise is when the shoulder blades touch all the way down, or practically so.

The bending exercise should be included among the morning ones. Stand in the original position, then lift the arms straight up over the head, touching the thumbs. When the arms and body are perpendicular drop the arms suddenly, bending forward at the hips, but do not bend the knees, and see if you can touch the floor with the tips of the fingers. This will come easily after a few times, and eventually you may be able to lay the palms of the hands on the floor while keeping the knees stiff.

A Good Exercise to Overcome "Fidgeting"—Stand Erect with Arms Outstretched Over the Head and Thumbs Touching.

Practical Talks By the April Grandmother.

"SHE has not a very satisfactory reference and I doubt if she can do all of the things that she claims to be able to do," explained the April Grandmother when the door had closed behind a candidate for a parlor maid's situation, "but I was tempted to give her a trial on account of her low, soft voice. It is restful to listen to, probably because she has always lived in a quiet atmosphere—a condition that is almost certain to have its effect upon the voice.

"While the American climate undoubtedly has something to do with the nasal quality of our voices, and particularly in those regions where high winds prevail, its pitch is usually due to lack of training in youth, for most children have sweet, pleasantly modulated tones. The fact that they begin to lose this charm when they are old enough to attend school may be traced to their teachers, who are themselves very poor speakers and rarely realize the fact until they go abroad and witness the rasping effect of their voices upon the nerves of people of other lands.

"My sisters and myself naturally had good voices," continued the April Grandmother, "but unfortunately we were sent to a private school conducted by a New England woman, who not only possessed the typical conscience, but the nasal twang of the most virulent description. She endeavored to teach us to speak French, and when I compare her pronunciation—ah, well, she's dead, poor thing, and doubtless receiving punishment for her voice crimes!

"Our next teacher was a highly bred English girl who spoke slowly and distinctly, giving each syllable its full value. Her first reproof to me was during the course of a spelling lesson. 'How can you expect to know how to spell a word correctly when you do not pronounce it distinctly?' she inquired.

"Yesterday afternoon I attended an entertainment given in behalf of a well known charity by a score of débutantes equally well known to society, and I could not make out a dozen consecutive words during the course of the two playlets which they produced. Nine girls out of ten who try to speak in public cannot be heard five rows from the stage simply because they do not open their mouths properly. It is absurd to expect a clear enunciation to emanate from tightly closed teeth.

"Undoubtedly a great many girls are literally afraid of the sound of their own voice because of a consciousness that it is not sweet or smooth. Consequently they speak in whispers and the habit militates against the cultivation of pure tones of a carrying quality. Yet," concluded the April Grandmother, "a careful enunciation certainly is a valuable asset which makes for the success of any girl, whether she is destined for society or for business, as carefulness in speech suggests carefulness in thought, just as slovenliness in speech suggests slovenliness in other respects."

NOVEL IDEA IN JEWELRY.

ALMOST fascinating idea in jewelry is the novel one of using for ornamentation bits of the wings of butterflies. A great naturalist, who has agents all over the world getting butterflies for him, and whose collection is the most famous in the country, found that sometimes in transportation the butterflies were damaged and reached him with broken wings. These pieces were so exquisite in color and marking that it seemed a pity to lose them, and so he conceived the clever idea of preserving them in glass and having them rimmed with gold preparatory to mounting them in many forms of jewelry.

Rings, pendants, brooches, bracelets and scarfpins are the favorites, and the setting may be large or small, according to one's taste or one's pocketbook. The pendants are particularly beautiful because in their hanging position they catch the light and radiate the iridescence of the wings. Only one piece of wing is used in each piece of jewelry, and as it is flatly pressed between two pieces of crystal set in a rim of gold or silver, both sides of the wing show, which gives the piece additional beauty and value.

GARDENIAS THE RAGE.

GARDENIAS are now all the rage, and orchids, which have been the vogue throughout the winter, are quite supplanted in favor by the waxen white flower. To be modish one must wear a gardenia whenever one appears in the street, but it is not smart to wear more than one or to mingle any other flowers with it.

NECKLACE WATCHES.

NECKLACE watches appeal strongly to those school girls who realize that they are prone to drop or mislay their portable timepieces. Most of these little conveniences—they are surprisingly tiny—are in the form of a ball watch, so called because inserted into the bottom of a spherical case of precious or base metal, which is almost invariably suspended from a matching chain. Sometimes both ball and necklace are set with numbers of tiny precious stones, but many of the timepieces are of enamel, rose composition, oxidized silver green gold or gun metal, set with amethyst, turquoise, diamond, topaz or coral.

Similar settings are employed for the chatelaine watches, which are suspended from the belt or from a pin fastened to the blouse. As the open face, however infinitesimal, is apt to attract attention, efforts are made to conceal it by enclosing the watch in an inconspicuous case of bird, flower or animal form, equipped with a tiny spring which, upon being manipulated, discloses the dial.

Watches of the size worn in bracelets or set into umbrella handles are of nickel, silver or gun metal and may be made to serve as desk clocks by fitting them into special cases of kid, silk or leather, so constructed that they may be flatly folded or set up as easel form.

A STRIKE IN OLD EGYPT.

There Was Trouble in the Building Trade in Pharaoh's Day.

Egyptian history discloses the details of a labor difficulty at Thebes in the year 1400 B. C. The strike was in the building trades, and the strikers were masons. They were paid in rations, and they claimed that these were insufficient to sustain them and their families until the following pay day.

On the 10th of the month they laid down their tools and gathered behind a chapel. "We are hungry," they said, "and there are eighteen days before the next pay day." They charged the paymasters with dishonesty, saying that they gave false measure. The paymasters charged the men with want of foresight in feasting too well while the rations lasted.

After long discussion the men decided to return to work on condition that Pharaoh himself investigate the matter. Two days later Pharaoh came to the temple and decided that the masons should have their wages raised at once. For a little while all went well, but evidently the paymasters did not live up to their agreement, for on the 5th of the next month the strike was again in full force, and for three whole days not a tool was lifted.

The strikers decided to go out to the public with their troubles, but they found themselves locked in the temple. Then they broke out and rushed into the streets, frightening pedestrians as they paraded the thoroughfares.

Sheer-Luck Blake.

The modern Sexton Blake climbed through the kitchen window, followed by his faithful ally, Bunny—or was it Watson?

"Ah," exclaimed Blake, surveying the surroundings, "I find that his wife is away!"

"And how long has she been away?" asked his ally.

"Exactly thirty days."

"And how on earth are you able to tell that?"

"My dear fellow, by the unwashed dishes and cups and saucers. There are ninety of each in all, which shows that he has used three a day for thirty days and left them for her to wash when she comes home—same as we all do. Simplest thing in the world, my dear fellow; simplest thing in the world!"

The Surprisers Surprised.

It was quite an informal little evening gathering—Mr. and Mrs. Candor, hosts, and Mr. and Mrs. Funniman, guests. The program consisted of a little chat, a little supper and a little whist, of which the little chat—Mr. Candor not yet back from the office—has just begun.

"There!" exclaimed delightful Mr. Funniman. "If that's not Candor's step in the passage I'm not Funniman! Let's play a trick on him. My wife and I will hide behind the curtains here, and you must tell him that your expected guests have not arrived. Then we'll step out and surprise him. Ha, ha!"

No sooner said than done. The skittish pair dived behind the curtains just as old Candor entered the room.

"Where are the Funnimans?" he exclaimed.

"I'm afraid, John, they have disappointed us," pretended Mrs. Candor. "I had a wire not half an hour ago."

"Right-ho!" chimed Mr. Candor. "And jolly glad I am about it! I never did like 'em! Let's have some dinner!"—London Scraps.

Mme. Sainton-Dolby's Romance.

In 1856 Sainton was much interested in the lady whom, four years later, he took to wife. Some impetuous reader may here demand why if he were on excellent terms with Miss Dolby in 1856 he waited till 1860 before enforcing a decision. I can answer that on the authority of the persons most concerned. No ardor was wanting to the lover, but the gifted and stately woman, always so self possessed and dignified, seemed too formidable for any pretensions which Sainton could make. So he worshiped and waited till one day when the pair were touring with a concert company they found themselves two in a compartment. Resolved then to challenge fate, Sainton declared his love and put the momentous question. This was the answer. "Prosper, why did you not ask me before?"—From "Forty Years of Music," by Joseph Bennett.

Woman's World

A FRIEND IN NEED.

Is Mrs. Van Der Vaart to Immigrant Girls Coming to This Country.

This sweet faced, motherly woman is Mrs. Harriet M. Van Der Vaart of Chicago, one of the best friends of the friendless immigrant girl coming to this country.

Mrs. Van Der Vaart heads the efficient new special immigration department of the National Women's Trade Union league. This department is composed of leading philanthropists, settlement workers, members of relief and aid societies, of foreign alliances and others—about thirty-five in all—who hold monthly conferences for cooperation on extending a helping hand to the immigrants.

A special feature of this work has been its service as a clearing house to bring friends together who through wrong or lost addresses have not been able to find each other. The telegram sent from Ellis Island to the new arrival's friends often fails to reach its destination. And the poor girl, frequently unacquainted with English, is alone in the big city. The Chicago office at room 503, 275 Lasalle street, receives the address of the young immigrant girl and through its system of friendly visiting verifies her arrival or seeks her if she has been lost. She is helped to find fair employment and good living conditions and is also advised where to secure night schooling, medical care and social recreation.

Volunteer workers aid Mrs. Van Der Vaart, who is herself a native of Holland and familiar with foreign tongues. Experienced, kindly and full of sympathy, she is the right person in the right place.

Her Paper a Heavy Burden.

Lady Bathurst now knows the irritations attending the ownership of a London newspaper. She enjoys the distinction of being the first woman to own a big London daily, and she is earnest in the wish that the honor never was thrust upon her. The paper has come to her from the estate of her father, Lord Glenesk, and her troubles have been visited upon her by women friends in society. They pester her with requests for favorable paragraphs in the Post, and they accept no explanation when their names do not appear. Many of them have gone to the length of sending personal items on scented note paper to Lady Bathurst, with the gentle intimation that they would adorn the columns of her journal. The situation is funny, yet has a sad side. Lady Bathurst, through no fault of her own, finds enemies multiplying at an alarming rate. She is threatened with the breaking of many of her social ties, and the prospect is the reverse of pleasing to her. If she were to encourage her friends and acquaintances the Post would be crammed with flattering paragraphs and she would be one of the most popular women in England. It is imperative that she refuse a privilege to even one importunate pleader, and as a result she runs the risk of society turning a cold shoulder.

One Man Who Admired His Wife.

Doubtless there are many women in this hurrying world of divorce who would wish to have a modern Edmund Burke for a husband. Doubtless there are many men who would be equally desirous of having the orator's wife for a life partner. It is an inspiration to read of the romance that held this couple through the years. Burke praised his wife in words as eloquent as any in his career as a statesman. "Her understanding is not shown in the variety of matters it exerts itself upon," wrote Burke, "but in the goodness of the choice she makes. She does not display it so much in saying or doing striking things as in avoiding such as she ought not to say or do. She is always without preciseness or affectation. She is a woman who glides through all the agitating scenes of life, each another calmness and an almost saintlike beauty." Is it any wonder Burke achieved greatness?

Suffragists Are Artistic Anyway.

Economy has not been a virtue so far among the women engaged in the fight for the ballot, and now it appears that if the members of the so called weak sex get their hands on the reins of government official correspondence will be on embossed and hand tinted stationery, and every formal announcement will be engraved regardless of cost.

The Equal Franchise society, of which Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay is president, has sent out invitations to eligible persons to become members. The admitted aim of the society is to advance "public education by the promotion of the cause of equal suffrage." With Mrs. Mackay at the head of the organization are Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. Egerton Winthrop, Jr.; Mrs. Robert Goelet and Mrs. Frederick Nathan. An explanatory note bears Mrs. Mackay's signature and is neatly typewritten on delicately tinted mauve paper, with a narrow hand painted border in white. The other exhibits are revealed as choice specimens of the art of the engraver. Even a return envelope addressed to Mrs. Lydig is engraved, and the same liberality has been shown in the case of the simplest form of application blanks. Evidently the advocates of woman suffrage in the society believe in doing business on a lavish scale, but it can hardly be reasoned that the enlisting of an engraver for ordinary correspondence gives proof of a practical turn for the rough and ready field of politics.

To Clean a Chiffon Waist.

A woman who has tried the process is responsible for this way of cleaning a chiffon waist: Soak the waist in warm soapy water for ten minutes, then swirl it around, but do not wring or squeeze it, and shake it up and down in the water. Drain and give it another soapy water, and so continue until the waist is clean. Then rinse in warm water until the last water is clear, press out the water very carefully, wrap the waist in a towel and leave for fifteen minutes, then iron it with a warm iron. A little benzine might, an amateur who has not tried it thinks, be an improvement to the soapsuds.

Directoire Cravat.

A dainty little cravat on the directoire order that sold for 75 cents recently could be made for half the money and take very little time.

It is simply a strip of lace banding an inch wide, edged with a very narrow velvet in a delicate color, the ends weighted with tiny tassels. The yard of lace for it would cost 20 cents or less, two yards of velvet ribbon 15 cents and the ornaments 5 cents. The velvet must overlap the irregular edge of the lace and be neatly sewed down and the ends gathered to a point, to which the tassels must be attached.

A Business Woman.

A Massachusetts woman, Mrs. Jennie L. Doane, has been appointed to administer the half million dollar estate of the late R. N. Packard. She will also have charge of the large shoe factory which he established. Mr. Packard died suddenly without making a will. His heirs know nothing of his business. Mrs. Doane had been in the employ of Mr. Packard for a number of years, and he frequently said that she had more brains than any two men of his acquaintance. For that reason his heirs asked to have her appointed and put in full charge of the business.

Cure For Bone Felon.

The latest recipe for the cure of that excruciatingly painful affliction, a bone felon, is given in the London Lancet as follows:

As soon as the disease is felt put directly over the spot a fly blister about the size of your thumb nail and let it remain for six hours, at the expiration of which time, directly under the surface of the blister, may be seen the felon, which can be instantly taken out with the point of a needle or a lancet.

Bled Him.

He—Yes, the rascals bled me. She—Bled! I'm surprised to hear you using slang. He—Who says it's slang! They took away my circulating medium, didn't they?—Boston Transcript.

He that waits to do a great deal at once will never do any.—Johnson.

Don't Neglect a Cough or Cold."
It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.
Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It is without an equal as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all affections of the Throat and Lungs.
A single dose of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will stop a cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs, the healing properties of the Norway Pine Tree will proclaim its great virtue by promptly eradicating the bad effects, and a persistent use of the remedy cannot fail to bring about a complete cure.
Do not be humbugged into buying so-called Norway Pine Syrups, but be sure and insist on having Dr. Wood's. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.
Mrs. A. Elles, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "Last spring I had Typhoid fever and Bronchitis, which left me with a terrible cough. I tried doctor's medicine but got no relief until my husband got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had finished it my cough was cured. My husband also uses it whenever he has a cough. I would not be without it."

THE RELATIONS ARE STRAINED

Austro-Servian Situation Has Become Very Critical.

MAY SEE WAR THIS WEEK

If Servia's Reply to Austrian Representations Proves to Be Unsatisfactory the Result May Be War Within a Very Few Days—Russia Sends Warning to Servia —Austria Becoming Angry.

Berlin, March 16.—The private advices received here from Vienna represent the situation between Austria and Servia as one of extreme gravity. It is said in authoritative quarters that Austria will send within a few days an ultimatum to Belgrade, fixing a very short period for an answer to her representations. If the answer is unsatisfactory, it is declared, war is inevitable, and may break out by the end of the week.

The Berliner Tageblatt learns that the Russian Foreign Secretary, M. Iswolsky, has issued instructions to the Russian Minister at Belgrade to warn the Servian Government to avoid carefully everything that might be interpreted as a challenge to war. Nevertheless, diplomats here regard the danger of war as most acute.

Austria Getting Riled.

Vienna, March 16.—The rumors that the Austrian Government has ordered, or is about to order, a partial mobilization of troops is officially denied. On the contrary, it is stated that the Government has decided to give Servia time to reconsider the situation.

At the same time it is undeniable that the prolongation of the present tension has been becoming a serious trial to Austria's patience, and it is stated that if Servia still refuses to demobilize or give satisfactory assurances of peaceful intentions, the Austrian generals may have to take up the work.

Armenians Can Now Return.

Constantinople, March 16.—The Senate has adopted a bill voted in the Lower House giving the Government power to ask for a vote on account of one-twelfth of the budget. This is necessary as the budget is not yet laid before Parliament and the public servants are in need of money.

M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador at Constantinople, and Hilmi Pasha, have signed an agreement concerning the return to Turkey of the Armenian emigrants who took refuge in the Caucasus after the massacres in Constantinople. The refugees number nearly 60,000. They will be domiciled in the Province of Van. The Porte, however, insists that they shall possess Turkish passports.

Persians on Rampage.

St. Petersburg, March 16.—A despatch to The Novoe Vremya from Julfa, on the frontier between Persia and Russia, says that 1,000 Persian Government horsemen and 500 infantrymen are marching on Julfa from the Persian bank of the Araxes river, devastating the villages in their path and shooting down the people.

Already ten villages, four of them inhabited by Russian subjects, have been pillaged and burned. The troops are ruthlessly killing the fleeing peasants.

Many women, carrying their children on their backs, attempted to swim the Araxes to the Russian side, but they were shot down.

Province Wins Test Case.

Edmonton, March 16.—Edmonton won its appeal against a York proprietor of Alberta and Windsor. York sued for the recovery of an $800 license fee paid to the city, on the ground that the hotels were already assessed on floor space. Judge Stuart, Calgary, gave judgment for York, but the full court reversed the judgment, holding that the extra tax of $400 on each hotel was provided for by law, and was not in the nature of a license. This was a test case by the hotelmen of the city.

New Telegraph Line.

Montreal, March 16.—The announcement was made last evening that the Northern Commercial Telegraph Co. has awarded a contract to Michael Connolly to build 1,000 miles of telegraph and telephone line from Point Levis, Que., and Windsor, Ont., and it is said that operations will be started at once on the new enterprise.

Consolidated School Burned.

St. John, N.B., March 16.—The Consolidated School at Kingston, King's County, was burned to the ground Sunday night. The building was built about five years ago at a cost of $25,000 through the generosity of Sir William McDonald; insurance one-half. It is not likely the school will be rebuilt.

Canadians In Australia.

Ottawa, March 16.—J. S. Larke, Canadian trade commissioner at Sydney, N.S.W., reports that during 1908 there were only ninety-four persons of Canadian birth convicted of crime in Australia, as compared—with 368 of United States origin. In none of the Canadian cases were the crimes serious.

Port Elgin Man Killed In West.

Winnipeg, Man., March 16.—Robt. H. B. Stephenson, aged 28, a C.N.R. brakeman, was killed while coupling cars at Roosevelt, Minn., on Saturday morning. The body will be shipped to Port Elgin, Ont., accompanied by his brothers, J. A. of Regina and Vernon Stephenson of Port Arthur.

Brantford Makes Contract.

Brantford, March 16.—The City Council here last night made a contract with the Cataract interests for the supply of lighting for a period of five years.

The prices secured under the new agreement both for street and domestic lighting are higher than figures adduced by ex-Ald. Andrews and other members of last year's committee, which were approved of by several expert engineers.

IN THE LEGISLATURE.

Premier Again Hot on Trail of Delinquent Members.

Toronto, March 16.—Premier Whitney announced in the Legislature yesterday that he would move in a day or two that thereafter all Government measures be given precedence, and also that next private members' day, if the members were not present to move the second reading of their bills, he would ask the House to strike them off the list.

The Premier introduced a resolution that the petition of F. B. Davis and others applying for a railway charter, but really for a tote road for the Lake Superior & Long Lake Transportation Co., be granted, explaining that Mr. Davis, who is contractor on the National Transcontinental Railway, had hurried to Toronto as soon as he had learned of the location of the road. The papers would have been filed before but for a bereavement, and this was a case in which the House could afford to be lenient.

Several private bills were moved through the committee stage.

The following bills were introduced and read a first time:

Hon. Dr. Pyne—Respecting truancy and the Compulsory School Attendance Act.

Hon. Dr. Pyne—Respecting high schools and collegiate institutes.

Hon. Dr. Pyne—Respecting public schools.

The Toronto bill to repeal the act creating the Board of Education in Toronto was allowed to stand on the request of the Premier until more members were present. So far the Government had not given any expression regarding the bill, and before the House consented to a second reading he would like to have it more fully discussed.

The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board reported favorably on the City of Hamilton's bill.

To Investigate Maladministration.

Montreal, March 16.—Sir Henry Taschereau, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal, delivered the judgment of the court yesterday in connection with the question submitted a few days ago as to the right of the Provincial Government to appoint a royal commission to investigate the maladministration of the City of Montreal.

The decision of the court was in the affirmative. The court also defined the term "matter to be investigated" as meaning anything for which the citizens asked the Government for this commission.

It is likely the Government will now go ahead and name the commission, which will, it is expected, result in interesting revelations.

Standard Oil Fined $20,000.

Buffalo, March 16.—Judge Hazel, in the U. S. court, yesterday denied the motion of the Standard Oil Co. for a new trial, and imposed a fine of $20,000.

The case hinged on the Standard Oil Co.'s accepting concessions from railroads in the shipments of oil from Olean, N.Y., to Rutland and other points in Vermont.

There were in all 546 counts found against the oil company, but thus far only forty have been considered. The railroads involved are the New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Rutland.

Galt Graft Charges.

Galt, March 16.—Investigation began yesterday before Judge Chisholm of charges preferred against Town Foreman Davidson, of malfeasance of office. Dr. Soper, Mayor Patterson, ex-Ald. Webster, Town Treasurer Hood, Time-keeper Spooner and others were examined.

Nothing of a grave character was disclosed, and the enquiry will continue to-day. J. R. Hancock prosecutes; J. B. Dalzell appears for the town, and M. A. Secord defends.

Alberta Nominations.

Calgary, March 16.—The nominations for all but a few of the constituencies in Alberta took place yesterday, those in which the elections are to be deferred taking place at later dates. The acclamations are: Liberals—Pakan, P. E. Lessard; Pembina, W. H. McKenny; Sturgeon, J. R. Boyle; Victoria, F. A. Walker; Sedgewick, Charles Stewart. Conservatives—Lac Ste. Anne, D. H. Lent; Lacombe, W. F. Haffer.

Brantford Tax Rate Reduced.

Brantford, March 16.—The City Council last night struck the tax rate at 21 mills, a reduction of one-half mill. Civic expenditures last year, due to street paving, was the largest on record, but from increased assessable income $15,000 more taxes were derived.

The police have put a stop to suggestive moving picture productions at the three local amusement houses.

Suicides With Gas.

Toronto, March 16.—James McAdam, drug fiend and suicidal maniac, was found dead in his room at the Berkeley Apartments, yesterday morning. McAdam had attempted to drown himself in the bay at the foot of Bathurst street just before Christmas.

When found, he was lying on the floor, wrapped in a blanket and with his head on a pillow. In his mouth was the connected feed tube of a small gas-heater.

Murdered, and House Set on Fire.

Monticello, N.Y., March 16.—Bernard Soloman was found dying from terrible wounds in his house here yesterday, the circumstances indicating that an attempt had been made to kill him, and that the dwelling had been fired in an effort to conceal the crime.

In a moment of consciousness he gave the police the name of a man who, he said, had tried to kill him and had set fire to the house.

Assaulted on Streets.

Amherstburg, March 16.—While walking with a young lady Sunday evening, Herbert Coyle, a well-known dredge man, was attacked and assaulted in front of the mayor's residence.

Three men sprang from behind some trees and jumped on Coyle, beating and kicking him until his cries for help brought Albert Fox and Gordon Colburne to the scene, when the assailants fled.

R. L. BORDEN IN TORONTO.

Conservative Leader Says Government Is Extravagant.

Toronto, March 16.—R. L. Borden and Sir James P. Whitney were tendered an enthusiastic reception in Riverdale rink last night by 2,000 persons on the occasion of their joint political smoker. Mr. Borden was introduced by the late member, A. E. Kemp.

Referring to the finances of the Government, he said: "It is time for the people of Canada to wake up, to pay attention to public affairs, that a halt should be called on this career of extravagance. We have been blessed with abundant revenues. Do the people realize that these were $40,000,000 greater than when the Conservative party was in power? (and the country was well governed on less than $40,000,000). The present Government in the past year has dissipated $83,000,000 or $40,000,000 greater than the Government of 12 years ago had at its disposal, and has plunged the country into debt to the tune of nearly $49,000,000.

"If it is foolish and extravagant to destroy public credit, the Government has taken the very best means at its disposal to destroy the credit of Canada.

"I am no alarmist, but I say that the time has come to take this to heart and insist that some regard should be paid to economy, in public affairs. In the experience of the last five or six years it has been shown that five to ten millions a year has been as absolutely wasted as though it had been thrown into the sea.

"If the people could be brought into the House of Parliament, they would need no campaign meetings, no campaign speeches. The facts would speak for themselves. The Government would be turned out of power at the earliest opportunity."

Sir James took occasion in his address to score the Toronto Electric Light Co. Dr. Pyne also spoke.

Five Die In Cave-In.

Quebec, March 16.—Five men met death and the sixth had a narrow escape for his life in an accident which took place in a construction camp about 20 miles north of La Tuque.

From the meagre details at present to hand, it seems that the six men were at work in a cut on the Transcontinental when a cave-in occurred, burying the unfortunate men.

One man was extricated alive, but the rescue of the other five was not accomplished before life was extinct.

Hotel Clerk Murdered.

New York, March 16.—Lying in a small room adjoining the hotel office, the body of Isidore De Valante, night clerk of the Eastern Hotel, on Whitehall street, was found early yesterday with his skull fractured by a blow with an iron pipe and his throat cut.

The clerk was murdered by men, when afterwards rifled his pockets, took $78 from the hotel till and made an unsuccessful attempt to get into the safe, in which there was $3,000. A thumb-print, which was alongside the names of two men written on the hotel register, the police believe to be that of one of the men.

Fall Costs Him His Arm.

St. Catharines, March 16.—William Patterson, a Grand Trunk brakeman, suffered the loss of his right arm at the General and Marine Hospital yesterday morning as a result of an accident at Merritton Station.

While the engine was shunting a number of cars Patterson was running alongside of a section of the train, when he tripped over the "frog" at the switch, and, falling to the ground, his arm became tangled in the moving car.

Confesses His Guilt.

Fort Worth, Texas, March 16.—Fred Morris, a baseball player, Sunday night shot and instantly killed Otto H. Meyer, a vaudeville singer, in a room in a local hotel, after having obtained a written confession that his relations with Mrs. Morris were improper.

"Meyer extended his arms," said Morris, "and told me to shoot him through the heart so that all would be over at once. I did as he suggested and would follow him beyond the grave, except for the fact that I have a little boy who I think needs me to look out for him."

Twenty Drown.

Rotterdam, March 16.—The Norwegian steamer Mascot collided Sunday with the German ship Margretha, about 20 miles west of the Maas lightship.

Contemptible Attempt to Disable Havelock Constable—Marriage of Popular Young Lady of the Railroad Town—Latest News.

A PRESENTATION MADE

Havelock, March 17.—A very pretty house wedding took place on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Roberts, King street, when Miss Mabel Archer, (youngest sister of Mrs. Roberts), was joined in matrimony to Mr. Carman Holcombe, Rev. D. Balfour officiating in the presence of about seventy-five guests. The bride was charmingly gowned in an elaborate dress of mauve taffeta silk, trimmed with baby Irish lace, with bridal veil, and carrying a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Ada Holcombe, (sister of the groom), who looked very pretty in an Empire gown of pale blue tamoline silk with pearl trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. Little Miss Edith Roberts, niece of the bride, made a sweet little flower girl dressed in pale blue silk and carrying a basket of flowers which held the wedding ring. The groom was ably assisted by Mr. Allie Archer, of Hamilton, brother of the bride. At the hour appointed, to the strains of Mendelsshon's wedding march, played by Miss Winnie Istead, of Marmora, the bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. Chas. Roberts, and took her place beside the groom, followed by the bridesmaid. At the conclusion of the ceremony congratulations were bestowed upon the young couple, after which the bride led the way to the dining room, where a sumptuous repast awaited the guests.

The remainder of the evening was indulged in various kinds of games until the wee sma' hours, when the bride left to don her travelling suit, which was of striped navy blue ladies' cloth with pretty navy hat to match, trimmed with masses of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Holcombe left on the four o'clock train Thursday morning for Toronto and Hamilton, returning will take up residence on Ottawa street. The young couple have resided in town for many years, and their numerous friends wish them every happiness and prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Deegan, of Smith Falls, arrived in town on Wednesday, and are staying at the Armstrong House. Mr. and Mrs. Deegan propose taking up residence in Havelock some time soon.

A number from town attended Stirling-Norwood hockey match at Peterborough, Brock Street rink, on Wednesday night.

Misses Mildred and Ruby Forsythe, of Norwood, were the guests of Mr and Mrs. Thos. Forsythe, on Wednesday.

Miss Carrie McKelvie has returned from Toronto, where she attended the millinery openings.

A meeting of the Masonic Lodge was held on Wednesday night in the lodge rooms.

Constable Brill received a blow in the eye on Wednesday night which may yet prove serious. Mr. Brill was going up to the town hall to attend to the fire, which was necessary to make it comfortable for the prisoners who were in the cells, when upon entering the basement door of the town hall, some person, as yet unknown, threw a large rock, striking him in the right eye. If same had struck him in the temple, it would certainly have been sudden death. Mr. Brill is in search of the cowardly person who threw the rock, and if found will likely make it serious for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Conkrite entertained a few friends on Thursday evening. Dancing being the chief enjoyment.

A number of our young men are organizing a minstrel show which they purpose holding some time after Easter.

Miss Helen Hay, trained nurse, of Peterborough, who has been attending a case in town, returned home on Monday.

On Friday evening next, March 19th, the Sons of Scotland will hold a grand concert in the opera house, when J. H. Cameron, the famous entertainer, of Toronto, Miss Elsie Dixon Craig, the celebrated elocutionist, of Toronto, and Archibald Pollock, late of Glasgow, Scotland, the champion and Highland dancer, will be the artists of the evening. Plan of hall now at K. Mackay's store.

Miss Lizzie McMullen, of town, and Mr. Brunton, of Stanwood, were married at Norwood on Tuesday afternoon of this week, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Pickford.

Rev. J. A. G. Stirling attended a quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery, in Peterborough on Tuesday and read a report on Foreign Missions.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Smith on Thursday night of last week, when a few of their neighbours and friends assembled to congratulate that worthy couple on the completion of another milestone of their life.

The following address was read by Mrs. Bertrand, and Mrs. Noyes presented the gifts:

Dear Mrs. Smith,—We, your friends and neighbours, take great pleasure in assembling here to-night to offer our most sincere congratulations to you on this most important event in your life, it being, we understand the anniversary of your marriage and also your birthday, as a small token of our good will and friendly feeling toward you and your esteemed husband, we beg of you to accept this jewel case and cheese dish and to Mr. Smith this clothesbrush. It is our earnest wish that you may enjoy many, many happy returns of this eventful day and that the coming years may be replete to you and yours with all the blessings of this earthly life.

Signed on behalf of your friends,
MRS. JOE BERTRAND.
MRS. GEO. NOYES.

Dr. Holdcroft's horse ran away on Sunday morning about 4 o'clock, some twelve miles north of town, throwing the doctor out and bruising him severely. The runaway was the result of the cuter slewing on a piece of sidling road and upsetting. The doctor was thrown against a stonepile and lost his grasp of the reins. The cutter was found a few miles nearer town practically uninjured, but the shafts were missing and apparently are still with the horse. Up to the present time no trace of the animal has been discovered.

VINOL FOR OLD PEOPLE.

"I am past eighty years of age and for some time I had been losing strength and suffering from a chronic cold and lung trouble, until I was seriously ill and could not go out of doors. My son sent me some Vinol. I commenced to take it and it has simply worked wonders for me. I feel better and stronger than I have for years, and my cough is all gone. There is no other medicine equal to Vinol to build up health and strength for elderly people." Joseph Bankson, Bethany, Ill.

This is because Vinol is the best cod liver and iron tonic in the world. It creates a hearty appetite, strengthens the digestive organs, makes rich, red blood and replaces weakness with strength. The beneficial effect of Vinol in cases of feeble old people is simply remarkable.

We invite all old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, convalescents, or those suffering from chronic colds, coughs or bronchitis in this vicinity to try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it does no good. He and a young lady, Kathleen Mary Blake, sailed for Canada on the same boat, arriving in Campbellford on April 15, 1908, and registered at the Windsor Hotel. Immediately upon their arrival they proceeded to Christ Church rectory and were married. Wife number two and her young baby are now living in Toronto.

GAVE THE POLICE THE WRONG NAME

The name of the man who attempted suicide on Monday night was given in last evening's paper as Wilson Francis. It should have been Percy Eddy. However, Wilson Francis was the name he gave the police when arrested and that is how the mistake was made, it being afterwards learned that it was Eddy and not Francis.

The Fence And After

By Barry Preston.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Across the fields, through the golden sunshine of the Indian summer morning, strode Arthur Gray, a look of absorbed abstraction upon his intellectual brow and three heavy tomes of German philosophy beneath his arms.

Behind him on the terrace Mrs. Renwick and her husband watched his retreat. Mrs. Renwick's face was clouded by an impatient frown. Tom Renwick was grinning sardonically.

"I can't understand it," Mrs. Renwick complained. "I invited all these young people solely on his account. I picked out only the deep ones of our acquaintance, the Taylor girls and Miss Fruyne and Charlotte Brand.

"They know all about the ego and the subconscious self and all that sort of thing. They could talk it to him by the hour. And what does he do? Goes off every morning with his musty books and stays all day by himself. I call it downright rudeness in him."

Her big, easy going, happy-go-lucky husband laughed. "My dear Agatha," said he, "this comes of harboring a genius in our midst, a genius we can never hope to understand. Now, if he could talk horse or shoot or get a bit more speed out of a road car than it was ever intended to show we could give him the time of his life. But a philosopher, dropped here among our unintellectual selves—dear heavens!"

He threw out his hands in a gesture of deprecation and made a wry face.

"But he is a coming man," Mrs. Renwick began.

Tom Renwick's grin broadened.

"He seems to be a going man just at present," he remarked, with a bob of his head in the direction of the stoop shouldered figure trudging across the fields. "It's desertion, pure and simple. Your intellectual maidens corralled here must evidently philosophize without your lion to inspire them.

"Come on! Let's round 'em up and give 'em a whirl in the road cars up to the top of Bald hill and back. That will take their minds up for the time being at least."

"It's the last time I'll ever try to entertain a genius," Mrs. Renwick declared flatly, "even if the said genius is my cousin and has done the family proud."

"Amen! I'm with you there," said Tom heartily as he turned from the terrace and strode off toward the garage.

In the meantime Arthur Gray, quite oblivious to this criticism of his actions, tramped down the field, climbed a stone wall into an orchard, where the trees were deep laden with their wealth of fruit, and, selecting a corner where the mottled shadows were most inviting, settled himself comfortable on the ground, opened one of the ponderous volumes and was soon lost in the abstruse speculations of its author.

He read on in absorbed fashion, now pausing to thoroughly digest some choice morsel, now frowningly noting upon the margin his own opinion of the text at that point. It was an ideally quiet place in which to pursue his research.

But suddenly the quiet was rudely shattered. Just beyond the orchard came the pounding of rapid hoof beats. A girl's voice urging forward her mount rang through the still air. There was the swish of a hunting crop, a loud command, "Up, Rajah!" Then the sound of hoofs suddenly ceased.

A masculine voice said, "He'll never take it, ma'am!" And the girl's voice replied, with a note of obstinacy in it, "He'll stay here until he does."

Gray arose. He walked to the edge of the orchard and looked afield. On the smooth turf of the adjoining field a girl—a wonderfully pretty girl—sat on a horse, which she had evidently fence just before her.

A little distance to the rear a trim, silent groom upon another horse impassively watched the proceedings.

Even as Gray watched them the girl wheeled her horse and galloped away from the fence. Then she turned him, touching him lightly with the crop, and rode full tilt for the fence again.

But, arrived at the fence, the horse refused to jump. The girl gave a little cry of annoyance.

"Silly Rajah!" she said. "You should be ashamed of yourself. You could take it easily. I know you could. Now, then, once more!"

Again she wheeled the horse and cantered away, only to turn him and ride for the fence once more.

Gray in his interest quite forgot himself. He vaulted the low wall that separated the orchard from the field and ran forward.

"Don't try it!" he cried warningly. "It's too high! He'll never do it in the world!"

The girl turned to look at him coldly. Then she smiled.

"Oh, yes he will!" said she. "All he needs is a little confidence."

"Don't try again," said he.

She raised her eyebrows. "I can't stop now," said she. "He must go over that fence now that he knows it is what I ex of him."

"Then let i it to it," said he.

The girl looked surprised. "Aren't you the philosopher friend of the Renwicks?" she asked.

"I am," he confessed. Involuntarily he straightened his stooping shoulders. "But even philosophers sometimes ride," said he. "I'd like to put him to the fence if you don't mind."

Instantly the girl slid from the saddle. "Do so by all means," she suggested. "I've been trying it all the morning, and I confess I'm beginning to doubt my ultimate success with him."

Gray looked at her pretty flushed face and her sparkling eyes.

"And if I succeed what reward do I get?" he inquired boldly.

The girl laughed. "You may have a canter with me up to Bald hill and back," said she.

Gray sprang into the saddle. A man in a sidesaddle is not a particularly graceful figure. But there was a light in his eyes and a general determination in his whole bearing that went far toward making up for his lack of grace.

Three times he put the horse to the fence, each time with no success. The fourth time he plied the crop freely.

They reached the fence, and the big horse rose lightly, cleared the top bar by a good two feet and landed easily on the other side.

"Bravo!" cried the girl. "Splendid! Splendid! Splendid!" And even the groom ventured an involuntary "Well done, sir!"

"And now," said Gray, his eyes glowing with eager light, "I shall claim that canter with you. Shall we go now?"

He slipped from the saddle and helped her to mount.

"You will take Peter's horse," she said, turning to the groom. "Come on!"

Up the field they galloped gayly together, swung into the road and headed for Bald hill. Back in the orchard a woodpecker chased a nimble grasshopper over the pages of a work of German philosophy.

Just as they reached the bend near the summit of the hill they encountered Renwick and his party in the two road cars coming down the road.

Mrs. Renwick stared in wonder. Her husband chuckled openly. Gray lifted his hat, utterly without embarrassment, and, with the girl at his side, went on up the hill.

* * * * * * * *

"To think of it!" exclaimed Mrs. Renwick some two weeks later. "Arthur engaged to that Carlton girl! Why, she can't draw a breath without talking horse, and that's all she can talk!"

Renwick looked out the French window to the drive beyond, where Gray was helping a decidedly pretty young woman to her horse.

"For my part, Agatha," said he, with deep conviction, "I am mightily rejoiced. It shows that for all his intellect he has a decidedly human streak in him."

LUCKY MR. BROWN.

If it had not been for "Fruit-a-tives," Mr. Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., would still be living on stale bread and porridge, and suffering tortures with Indigestion.

His stomach was so weak that he had to give up all kinds of meats, potatoes and other vegetables, and even deny himself the comforts of a cup of tea. Fortunately, Mr. Brown read about "Fruit-a-tives," bought a box and was so much improved by taking the tablets, that he used four boxes altogether. "I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. About two years ago, I read about Fruit-a-tives and concluded to give them a trial. I used nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods and enjoy tea and coffee." This is not a rare case, but the regular experience of everyone who uses "Fruit-a-tives" for Weak Stomach, Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Try them. 50c a box. 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. SORTING PEARLS.

The Gems Vary Greatly in Size, Shape and Quality.

When the pearls are taken from the dead fish they are first sorted according to size. This is done by passing them through a set of ten small brass sieves, called baskets, with meshes of varying sizes. Pearls of the first class that are perfect both in sphericity and in luster are called ani. Those of the second class, that to the average observer seem equally without flaw, are anitari, and most of the pearls we see in the west and on general sale come under this head. Of the third class, called masauku, are those that are somewhat irregular in shape and a trifle off in color, but that are valuable for use in clusters and are largely used by eastern artificers in mountings of various sorts. Kural is the double or twinned pearl, which, when of good luster and sufficiently freakish shape, is sometimes enormously valuable. In this class the most wonderful specimen on record is the great Southern Cross pearl, which is in reality nine pearls naturally grown together and forming a perfect cross an inch and a half long. It was found off the coast of Western Australia in 1874. Many seed pearls and rejections, called vadivu, are generally ground into chunam and used as an ingredient in a favorite sweetmeat. From China also comes a heavy demand for seed pearls, and in India bushels of them literally are used in the decoration of idols and sacred images and of weapons as well. —Everybody's.

Cuba's Many Names.

Cuba is known in history under several names. The first was Antilla, then Juana, after a Spanish prince. Fernandina came third, followed by Santiago and the Isle of Ave Maria. The original Indian name, Cubanacan, signifying "where gold is found," was finally adopted, and usage shortened it to the first two syllables.
